Mr. Zunino cross-examined Mr. Suh.

The Board questioned Mr. Suh.

Ms. Beggs re-crossed Mr. Suh.

Mr. Zunino re-crossed Mr. Suh.

The Board re-questioned Mr. Suh based on testimony provided.

Richard Tomasso was excused from the Board Meeting at 9:31AM.

Ms. Beggs called Angela Summers as a witness.

Angela Summers appeared and was sworn in by President Park prior to answering questions and offering testimony.

Ms. Beggs questioned Ms. Summers about how she knew Ms. Kazeminy and the communications that she had with Mr. Biggs.

Richard Tomasso returned to the Board Meeting at 9:38AM.

Mr. Zunino objected to Ms. Beggs' question as speculation when the witness was asked to interpret Mr. Biggs' intent when he began communications with her.

Mr. Zunino objected to Ms. Summers' testimony as it seems like an attempt to smear Mr. Biggs and asked the Board to disregard her testimony.

President Park overruled the objections.

Ms. Beggs called Nazanin Kazeminy as a witness.

President Park reminded Ms. Kazeminy that she is still sworn in from previously.

Ms. Beggs questioned Ms. Kazeminy about her employment history, her vaccination efforts that she provided as a pharmacist, what her vaccination processes in the pharmacy are, and questioned her on the admitted Exhibits.

Dear Members of the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy,

I hope this letter finds you in good health.

Enclosed, you will find the necessary information as per the requirements outlined in the MDEG application process. This documentation provides a comprehensive list of AppliedVR's Board of Directors and Corporate Officers.

The submission includes a detailed roster of our esteemed leaders, offering valuable insights into the organizational structure. We are confident that this submission adheres to the Board's stipulations and enhances the thorough evaluation of our application.

It is important to note that AppliedVR is a Delaware corporation, and its majority ownership is held by Limited Partnership investment funds, corporations, or trusts, constituting over 85% of ownership. Due to this structure, there is no Personal History Record applicable.

Should you need any further information or clarification, please feel free to reach out to us. We appreciate your attention to this matter and eagerly anticipate the opportunity to make a positive contribution to the healthcare landscape in Nevada.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Best regards,

AppliedVR

59A-25.002 Licensure Requirements.

(1) Home medical equipment locations requiring a license are any locations that sell, rent, or distribute, or offer to sell or rent to or for a consumer any home medical equipment that requires services. These locations can be identified as follows:

(a) Any location providing or distributing home medical equipment requiring services to consumers in Florida;

(b) Any location where an intake person takes calls from consumers in Florida and offers to sell or rent home medical equipment requiring services;

(c) Any location where a consumer in Florida may call in response to a provider advertising to sell or rent home medical equipment requiring services, e.g., television advertisements, toll-free telephone numbers, phone books, newspapers, flyers or any other forms of public advertisement;

(d) Any location out of state that offers to sell or rent home medical equipment requiring services to consumers in Florida;

(e) Any location in state or out of state, with sales representatives working in Florida, that offers to sell or rent home medical equipment requiring services to consumers in Florida, i.e., the sales representatives themselves do not need to be licensed; and,

(f) Any buildings, that are not located at the licensed central service center address, called shops, warehouses, distribution centers, or called by any other name, are required to have a license if that site location provides selection (via telephone, showroom or sales representative), delivery, set up, consumer instruction or maintenance of equipment to consumers in Florida.

1. A central service center must provide the names and locations of all of its designated distribution centers on the licensure application.

2. A distribution center must submit a separate licensure application and must specify the name of its central service center on the application.

3. Each licensed distribution center is required to meet all standards for licensure but may be determined to meet the standards through the activities of its designated central service center as referenced in paragraph 59A-25.005(1)(b), F.A.C.

(2) Home medical equipment locations that do not require a license: Diabetic monitors and disposable supplies, e.g., diabetic, ostomy, urological and wound care supplies have been identified as equipment and supplies that do not require services as defined in Section 400.925(9), F.S.; therefore, locations that supply these items only will not require a HME license.

(3) Licensing application and fees:

An application for initial, change of ownership and renewal licensure must be made on the Health Care Licensing Application, Home Medical Equipment Provider, AHCA Form 3110-1005, October 2014, incorporated by reference and available at https://www.flrules.org/Gateway/reference.asp?No=Ref-05267, and the Health Care Licensing Application Addendum prescribed in subsection 59A-35.060(1), F.A.C. These forms are available online at http://ahca.myflorida.com/HQAlicensureforms. An application for initial, change of ownership and renewal licensure must be accompanied by a non-refundable $304.50 biennial licensing fee and, if required, a $400 inspection fee per location. Businesses with a central service center having distribution centers are required to submit an application and a $304.50 biennial licensing fee for each location, but shall submit only one $400 inspection fee with the application of the central service center.

(4) Initial and change of ownership applicants must submit proof of financial ability to operate pursuant to Sections 408.8065(1) and 408.810(8), F.S., and Rule 59A-35.062, F.A.C. for each location to be licensed

(5) Each licensed HME provider location must obtain and maintain professional and commercial liability insurance as referenced in Sections 400.931(3) and 408.810(7), F.S. A corporation can provide a blanket policy, which indicates that each of its licensed locations is insured under one policy, verifying not less than $250,000 per claim for each location.

(6) Initial applicants and providers requesting to change the address of record must provide proof of compliance with local zoning requirements. Physical location cannot be a post office box. The licensee must have all county licenses and permits that are applicable.

(7) If a change of name and/or address of record is to occur, the provider must submit Home Medical Equipment Provider, Request to Amend License for Change of Name and/or Address, AHCA Form 3110-1020, October 2014, https://www.flrules.org/Gateway/reference.asp?No=Ref-05268, incorporated by reference, and available online at http://ahca.myflorida.com/HQAlicensureforms, according to the timeframes as required in subsection 59A-35.040(2), F.A.C., and accompanied by a fee as required in subsection 59A-35.050(4), F.A.C.

Please see the letter below.

Dear Agiliti Health,

In 2018, the Washington State Pharmacy Quality Assurance Commission (Commission) decided it would no longer license third-party logistics providers, as defined in 21 U.S.C. § 360eee(22), as a wholesaler under the state's current licensing scheme. As a result of this decision, if your activities in this state exclusively fall within the definition of third-party logistics provider, as defined in 21 U.S.C. § 360eee(22), you are not required to obtain a state wholesaler license. It is incumbent upon your staff to ensure they are aware of and incompliance with any changes that impact this decision.

Sincerely,

Pharmacy Quality Assurance Commission (PQAC)

NOTE REGARDING FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Annual Report on Form 10-K contains forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. All statements other than statements of historical fact included in this Form 10-K are forward-looking statements. Forward-looking statements give our current expectations and projections relating to our financial condition, results of operations, plans, objectives, future performance and business. You can identify forward-looking statements by the fact that they do not relate strictly to historical or current facts. These statements may include words such as "anticipate", "estimate", "expect", "project", "plan", "intend", "believe", "may", "will", "should", "can have", "likely" and other words and terms of similar meaning in connection with any discussion of the timing or nature of future operating or financial performance or other events. All forward-looking statements are subject to risks and uncertainties that may cause actual results to differ materially from those that we expected, including:

- negative reaction of our investors, our suppliers, our customers or our employees to our leadership transition;
- market volatility of our common stock as a result of our leadership transition;
- the risk that the leadership transition may not provide the results that the company expects;
- imbalances in our selling mix;
- effects from political and policy changes that could limit our growth opportunities;
- our ability to maintain existing contracts or contract terms with, or enter into new contracts with customers;
- cancellations by or disputes with customers;
- our ability to maintain our reputation, including by protecting intellectual property;
- effects of a global economic downturn on our customers and suppliers;
- competitive practices by our competitors that could cause us to lose market share, reduce our prices or increase our expenditures;
- the bundling of products and services by our competitors, some of which we do not offer;
- consolidation in the healthcare industry;
- adverse developments with supplier relationships;
- our potential inability to attract and retain key personnel;
- our potential inability to make attractive acquisitions or successfully integrate acquire businesses;
- our need for substantial cash to operate and expand our business as planned;
- our substantial outstanding debt and debt service obligations;
- restrictions imposed by the terms of our debt;
- a decrease in the number of patients our customers are serving;
- our ability to effect change in the manner in which health care providers traditionally procure medical equipment;
- the absence of long-term commitments with customers;
- our ability to renew contracts with group purchasing organizations and integrated delivery networks;
- changes in reimbursement rates and policies by third-party payors;
- the impact of health care reform initiatives;
- the impact of significant regulation of the health care industry and the need to comply with those regulations;
- difficulties or delays in our continued expansion into certain of our businesses/geographic markets and developments of new businesses/geographic markets;
- additional credit risks in increasing business with home care providers and nursing homes, impacts of equipment product recalls or obsolescence;
- impairment charges for goodwill or other long-lived assets;
- an increase in expenses related to our pension plan;
- potential claims related to the medical equipment that we outsource and service;
- incurrence of costs that we cannot pass through to our customers;
- a failure of our management information systems;
- limitations inherent in all internal controls systems over financial reporting;
- our failure to keep up with technological changes;
- our failure to coordinate the management of our equipment;
- challenges to our tax positions or changes in taxation laws;
- litigation that may be costly to defend;
- federal privacy laws that may subject us to more stringent penalties;
- our contracts with the federal government that subject us to additional oversight;
- effects of high interest rates; and
- potential recall or obsolescence of our large fleet of medical equipment.

We derive many of our forward-looking statements from our operating budgets and forecasts, which are based on many detailed assumptions. While we believe that our assumptions are reasonable, we caution that it is very difficult to predict the impact of known factors, and it is impossible for us to anticipate all factors that could affect our actual results. Important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from our expectations, or cautionary statements, are disclosed under "Risk Factors" and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" in this Form 10-K and elsewhere in our filings with the SEC. All written and oral forward-looking statements attributable to us, or persons acting on our behalf, are expressly qualified in their entirety by these cautionary statements as well as other cautionary statements that are made from time to time in our other SEC filings and public communications. You should evaluate all forward-looking statements made in this Form 10-K in the context of these risks and uncertainties.

We caution you that the important factors referenced above may not contain all of the factors that are important to you. In addition, we cannot assure you that we will realize the results or developments we expect or anticipate or, even if substantially realized, that they will result in the consequences or affect us or our operations in the way we expect. The forward-looking statements included in this Form 10-K are made only as of the date hereof. We undertake no obligation to update or revise any forward-looking statement as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, except as otherwise required by law.

PART I

ITEM 1. Business

Unless otherwise specified, the terms "we", "our", "us" and the "Company" refer to Agiliti, Inc. and, where appropriate, its consolidated subsidiaries. The term "THL" refers to Thomas H. Lee Partners, L.P., our principal stockholder, and the term "THL Stockholder" refers to THL Agiliti LLC, an affiliate of Thomas H. Lee Partners, L.P.

Our Mission

Agiliti, Inc. is an essential service provider to the U.S. healthcare industry with solutions that help support a more efficient, safe and sustainable healthcare delivery system. We ensure healthcare providers have the critical medical equipment they need to care for patients—wherever and whenever it's needed—with a service model that helps lower costs, reduce waste, and maintain the highest quality standard of medical device management in the industry. We are motivated by a belief that every interaction has the power to change a life, which forms the cornerstone of how we approach our work and frames the lens through which we view our responsibility to make a difference for the customers, patients, and communities we serve.

Overview

We believe we are one of the leading experts in the manufacturing, management, maintenance, and mobilization of mission-critical, regulated, reusable medical devices. We offer healthcare providers a comprehensive suite of medical equipment management and service solutions that help reduce capital and operating expenses, optimize medical equipment utilization, reduce waste, enhance staff productivity, and bolster patient safety.

We commenced operations in 1939, originally incorporated in Minnesota in 1954 and reincorporated in Delaware in 2001.

In our more than 85 years of experience ensuring healthcare providers have high-quality, expertly maintained equipment to serve their patients, we've established a nationwide operating footprint that supports our offering. This at-scale, local market service and logistics infrastructure positions us to reach customers across the entire healthcare continuum—from individual facilities to the largest and most complex healthcare systems.

Our diverse customer base includes more than 10,000 national, regional, and local acute care hospitals, health systems and integrated delivery networks ("IDN"), and alternate site providers (such as surgery centers, specialty hospitals, home care providers, long-term acute care hospitals, and skilled nursing facilities). We serve the federal government as well as a number of city and state governments providing management and maintenance of emergency equipment stockpiles, and we are an outsourced service provider to medical device manufacturers supporting critical device remediation and repair services. We deliver our solutions through our nationwide network of more than 150 service centers and Centers of Excellence, a majority of which are certified to ISO 13485:2016. At our facilities, we employ a team of more than 800 specialized biomed repair technicians, more than 4,000 field-based service operators who work onsite within customer facilities or in our local service centers, and over 200 field sales and account managers. Our fees are primarily paid directly by our customers rather than by direct reimbursement from third-party payors, such as private insurers, Medicare, or Medicaid.

Industry Challenges

The U.S. healthcare industry continues to face transformative pressure that affects how provider organizations conduct business and serve their patients. Across the healthcare system, providers face compounding financial and operational challenges, including cost pressure from payors, nursing and clinical staff shortages, rising costs of drugs and supplies, increasing regulatory oversight, and advances in medical technology that generally result in higher prices for newer equipment and a higher cost of managing that equipment over its lifecycle. Given there is little that providers can do to change external dynamics, there is increased focus on areas within their enterprise that they can control. In our experience, one area that most hospitals and health systems identify for operational and cost improvement is the management and maintenance of medical equipment.

Healthcare facilities have been shown to own large quantities of reusable capital equipment ranging from multi-million dollar highly technical devices (e.g. MRIs) to lower cost, high volume devices (e.g. infusion pumps) required for patient care, treatment, and diagnosis. In our experience, providers often face challenges in managing their medical equipment inventory effectively. For example, hospitals typically utilize roughly 42% of their owned medical equipment inventory at any given time, yet caregivers report that they routinely lack access to readily available patient-ready equipment. Nurses report spending an average of 20 minutes per shift searching for equipment, and often less than 37% of their time on direct patient care. Operational silos that naturally occur among hospital departments create inadvertent breakdowns within equipment management workflows, from the administrators who order equipment, to the support staff who clean/reprocess and deliver the equipment, to the nurses and doctors who use the equipment.

Further, the repair and maintenance of this highly technical equipment continues to increase in complexity and cost. Over a period of 15 years from 1995 to 2010 there was a 62% increase in the number of medical devices per hospital bed and a 90% increase in costs related to maintaining this equipment. Given the increasingly complex nature of these devices and stringent regulatory mandates guiding their upkeep, specialized technical knowledge is required to repair and maintain them. Most healthcare facilities struggle to employ the in-house capabilities and resources needed to ensure timely, routine maintenance and rapid testing, repair, and turnaround of their medical inventory which may impact time-to-therapy and patient safety, while driving up capital replacement costs on equipment that could have otherwise been kept operational with proper maintenance.

Finally, the healthcare system experiences seasonality in patient volumes, resulting in peak-need demand for specialized medical equipment (e.g. ventilators, specialty beds, infusion pumps). Given the common breakdowns in managing and maintaining their inventory during times of normal operation, hospitals face additional burden on equipment availability during times of peak need and will procure supplemental equipment through additional acquisition channels to fill this gap.

These challenges drive up significant costs and time delays within individual hospital facilities, but when multiplied across several hospitals and alternate site facilities within an integrated delivery network, the losses increase significantly. An average 2,500 bed IDN has been shown to waste more than $11 million annually on inefficient equipment maintenance and unnecessary capital purchases, while clinicians lose valuable patient time and productivity hours managing equipment needs.

These dynamics, supported by the following trends, further support the essential nature of our work:

Focus on reducing costs and increasing operational efficiency. Hospitals and other healthcare facilities continue to experience substantial pressure to conserve capital, reduce operating expenses, and become more operationally efficient. We expect these pressures to continue in the future and believe that we will always be on the right side of healthcare reform. Our comprehensive, end-to-end solutions offer customers a way to realize costs savings while enhancing operational improvements for medical equipment access and availability, thereby improving their organizational efficiency and financial viability.

Demand for better patient safety and outcomes. Hospitals across the U.S. are focused on improving patient safety and outcomes, which includes efforts to minimize hospital-acquired conditions (e.g. infections, patient falls, and pressure injuries) and increase nursing time at the patient bedside. Hospitals turn to us to assist them in managing their equipment in ways that have been shown to help minimize these incidents and ensure necessary equipment is available when and where it is needed, thereby improving patient safety and time to therapy and supporting optimal patient outcomes.

Caregiver retention and satisfaction. Hospitals continue to experience pressure and risk related to nursing and other caregiver retention and job satisfaction pressures. According to McKinsey & Company, the United States is expected to face a nurse shortage of between 200,000 and 450,000 nurses by 2025. Adding non-patient care duties, such as searching for, cleaning, and managing equipment, adds to nurse workload and contributes to clinician dissatisfaction and turnover. We expect that with these internal pressures, hospitals will increasingly turn to our programs to outsource healthcare technology management duties and related management processes to allow nurses more time to spend on patient care, resulting in improved job satisfaction.

Increased capital and operating expense pressures and regulatory compliance. Hospitals continue to experience restricted capital and operating budgets, while the cost and complexity of medical equipment increases. Furthermore, the increasing complexity and sophistication of medical equipment brings with it more recordkeeping requirements and regulatory scrutiny in its use and maintenance. We expect that hospitals will increasingly look to us to support the management and maintenance of their capital equipment inventory to achieve capital and operating expense savings, operating efficiencies and regulatory compliance.

Our Value Proposition

As a critical outsource partner to more than 10,000 U.S. healthcare customers, including most leading providers nationwide, we've tailored our solution offering and service model to address the unique challenges and opportunities we witness among our customers related to the effective management of medical equipment.

Our services help eliminate significant capital and operating costs associated with the ownership and lifecycle management of mission-critical medical equipment. In addition to optimizing use of providers' owned equipment, we provide ready access and increase the on-patient utilization of supplemental medical equipment to address fluctuations in patient census and patient acuity. By partnering with Agiliti, providers have the benefits of:

Cost savings and lower total costs of equipment ownership

- Increased utilization of both customer-owned and supplemental equipment
- Lower overall total cost of equipment ownership by combining our solutions to solve challenges across the end-to-end equipment management process
- Optimized management and logistics of provider-owned equipment through tracking, monitoring, reprocessing, maintaining, and ensuring equipment is safety-tested and redeployed for use
- Reduced maintenance and repair costs through the use of our proprietary technology, flexible staffing models, parts pool, equipment capabilities, diverse skill mix of knowledgeable equipment technicians, and our commitment to quality
- Benefits of specialized technician labor to augment clinical biomed staff, having been shown to help reduce service costs and provide required technical proficiency to address more complex equipment types
- Access to our extensive data and expertise on the cost, performance, features, and functions of all major items of medical equipment
- Assistance with capital planning, vendor management, and regulatory compliance

More time to spend with patients and confidence in the availability of patient-ready medical equipment

- Increased productivity and satisfaction among nursing staff achieved by eliminating certain non-clinical work tasks and saving an average 300-bed hospital over 28,000 caregiver hours annually, allowing more time to focus on patient care responsibilities
- Improved time-to-therapy for patients at risk for falls, skin breakdown, and bariatric safety by expediting delivery of therapeutic equipment direct to the patient room
- Access to supplemental moveable medical equipment, surgical equipment, and next generation technology without the expense of acquisition on a pay-per-procedure basis

Improved regulatory compliance, risk management and extended use life

- Optimal maintenance intervals and parts replacement to extend equipment use life, reduce waste, and lower obsolescence risk
- Compliance with regulatory and recordkeeping requirements and adherence to manufacturers' specifications on the reprocessing and maintenance of medical equipment
- Equipment quality assurance through the use of our comprehensive quality management system ("QMS") based on the quality standards recognized worldwide for medical devices: 21 CFR 820 and ISO 13485:2016
- Risk mitigation and lower costs associated with product recalls or device modifications

Technical expertise and supplemental staffing to sustain optimal equipment workflow

- Reduced administrative and time burdens on clinical staff related to managing and locating available equipment and coordinating among multiple vendors
- Specialized technical and clinical specialists that directly interact with and work alongside customers to optimize equipment outsourcing solutions

Our Market Opportunities

We participate in the U.S. medical equipment services market comprised of the services we offer through our onsite managed services, clinical engineering services, and equipment solutions service lines.

According to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services ("CMS"), as of 2022, healthcare spending reached $4.5 trillion, or $13,493 per person, and accounted for 17.3% of the U.S. GDP. Spending is expected to grow at an average annual rate of 5.4% from 2022-2031, due to secular tailwinds including an aging population, rising acuity, and prevalence of chronic conditions.

There is a fundamental shift in the needs of health systems, hospitals, and alternate site providers to move from supplemental and peak need sourcing of medical equipment toward more comprehensive onsite inventory management and maintenance solutions. As healthcare facilities look to balance the challenge of providing better care at lower costs, they are more open to third party partnerships that outsource critical but non-core support functions. The move toward full outsourcing is not unlike trends in similar services at hospitals including food service, laundry, professional staffing, and technology.

We believe there are several key macro trends that will drive increased demand for our products and services:

Favorable demographic trends. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, individuals aged 65 and older in the United States comprise the fastest growing segment of the population. This segment is expected to grow to approximately 95 million individuals by 2060. This represents a 93.9% increase in the 65-and-older segment of the population as compared to 2016. As a result, over time, the number of patients and the volume of hospital admissions are expected to grow. The aging population and increasing life expectancy are driving demand for healthcare services.

Increase in chronic disease and obesity. According to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention ("CDC"), six in ten Americans live with at least one chronic disease, like heart disease and stroke, cancer, or diabetes. These conditions often require specialty equipment to support therapeutic intervention in inpatient and outpatient care settings. In addition, obesity in the U.S. increased to 41.9% of the population between 2017-2020, up from 30.5% between 1999-2000 (CDC). This population demands greater access to specialty bariatric equipment to support care and minimize the incidence of injury during a hospital stay.

Increased mergers & acquisitions. We have seen that hospitals and healthcare systems continue to expand their covered network and acquire alternate care delivery settings in order to care for patient populations in the most cost-effective way. In our experience, providers are increasingly seeking partners that provide comprehensive services and that can quickly adapt to changing health system infrastructure and growth. Working with one vendor that can operate at a nationwide and system-wide scale is attractive to cities, states, and IDNs who operate, manage, and maintain equipment inventories across multiple locations.

Centralizing shared services across the IDN. Health systems with duplicative services across multiple facilities in close proximity have an increased risk of unnecessary variation, greater costs, and suboptimal outcomes. Many health systems have centralized and consolidated non-clinical services as a shared service, including billing, reimbursement, supply chain, human resources, IT, etc. We have witnessed a growing trend among IDNs to centralize and consolidate equipment maintenance and logistics among member facilities. In our experience, because most health systems do not currently have the storage, technical, or transportation resources for managing a shared equipment management function, they will seek third party support to optimize equipment utilization, redeploy equipment where needed, and reduce overall equipment costs.

Increase in infection control risks. Infection control remains an essential priority for hospitals and health systems as a way to limit the spread of hospital-acquired infections and broad transmission of infectious diseases during a pandemic. Most focus in this area is around hand hygiene, the proper use of personal protective equipment ("PPE"), and the reprocessing and sterilization of critical and semi-critical medical devices (e.g. surgical instruments, endoscopes). Often overlooked is the reprocessing of non-critical medical devices, such as infusion pumps and ventilators, that are commonly touched by caregivers and patients. If not properly cleaned and sanitized between patient use, these devices can pose increased infection control risks. We expect an increase in demand of onsite equipment management programs to address proper reprocessing of these types of devices and help lower infection risks and allow clinicians to spend more time at the patient bedside and less time cleaning equipment.

Our Solutions

We provide a comprehensive offering for the manufacturing, management, maintenance, and mobilization of critical medical devices, built on an integrated service platform. Our solutions help reduce the cost and complexity of acquiring, managing, and maintaining medical equipment inventories. The integrated nature of our offerings within our end-to-end service framework ensures we maximize value to over 10,000 customers nationwide as we address more aspects of the equipment lifecycle continuum.

While customers may initially engage with us across one aspect of our service lines within this framework, we employ a variety of land-and-expand tactics to grow our relationships and customer share-of-wallet over time. These tactics include:

- Gateway solutions which offer an entry point to the economic buyer and include peak need equipment, surgical lasers and equipment, specialty beds and surfaces, and supplemental clinical engineering services;
- Vertical solutions which provide a deeper level of service with clinical offerings tailored to specific patient needs (e.g. bariatrics, wound management, falls management) and clinical engineering programs for broad equipment categories (general biomedical devices, diagnostic imaging equipment, surgical instruments);
- Comprehensive, connected solutions through onsite managed services and outsourced clinical engineering services that connect previously fragmented customer workflow processes to drive operational efficiencies, realize improved clinician and equipment productivity, lower total cost of ownership, ensure regulatory compliance, reduce waste, improve time to therapy, and allow customers to effectively lower costs; and
- Comprehensive logistics, management and clinical engineering solutions that allow IDNs to manage equipment inventories across multiple locations, and supports city, state, and federal government agencies in managing and maintaining equipment stockpiles.

We deploy our solution offering across three primary service lines:

On-Site Managed Services: Onsite Managed Services are comprehensive programs that assume full responsibility for the management, reprocessing, and logistics of medical equipment at individual facilities and IDNs, with the added benefit of enhancing equipment utilization and freeing more clinician time for patient care. This solution monitors and adjusts equipment quantities and availability to address fluctuations in patient census and acuity. Our more than 1,300 onsite employees work 24/7 in customer facilities, augmenting clinical support by integrating proven equipment management processes, utilizing our proprietary management software and conducting daily rounds, and unit-based training to ensure equipment is being used and managed properly, overall helping to optimize day-to-day operations and care outcomes. We assume full responsibility for ensuring equipment is available when and where it is needed, removing equipment when no longer in use, and decontaminating, testing, and servicing equipment as needed between each patient use. Revenue attributable to such customers for the years ended December 31, 2023 and 2022 represented 22% and 23% of our total revenue, respectively.

Clinical Engineering Services: Clinical Engineering Services provides maintenance, repair, and remediation solutions for all types of medical equipment, including general biomedical equipment, diagnostic imaging equipment, and surgical equipment through supplemental and outsourced offerings. Our supplemental offering helps customers manage their equipment repair and maintenance backlog, assist with remediation and regulatory reporting, and temporarily fill open biotechnical positions. With our outsourced offering, we assume full management, staffing, and clinical engineering service responsibilities for individual or system-wide customer sites. The outsourced model deploys a dedicated, on-site team to coordinate the management of customer-owned equipment utilizing our proprietary information systems, third party vendors of services and parts, and a broad range of professional services for capital equipment planning and regulatory compliance. We employ more than 800 technicians across our more than 150 local market service centers and Centers of Excellence who can flex in and out of customer facilities on an as-needed basis, ensuring customers pay only for time spent directly servicing their equipment by an appropriately qualified technician. We use flex staffing for our supplemental clinical engineering solution and to augment support when additional technicians are needed to supplement our outsourced services during peak workload. We contract our Clinical Engineering Services with acute care and alternate site facilities across the U.S., as well as with the federal government and any medical device manufacturers that require a broad logistical footprint to support their large-scale service needs. Revenue attributable to such customers for the years ended December 31, 2023 and 2022 represented 39% and 38% of our total revenue, respectively.

Equipment Solutions: Equipment Solutions primarily provides supplemental, peak need, and per-case rental of general biomedical, specialty, and surgical equipment to acute care hospitals and alternate site providers in the U.S., including some of the nation's premier healthcare institutions and integrated delivery networks. We contract for Equipment Solutions services directly with customers or through our contractual arrangements with hospital systems and alternate site providers. We consistently achieve high customer satisfaction ratings, as evidenced by our Net Promoter Score ("NPS") of 40 for the year ended December 31, 2023. For these customers we deliver patient-ready equipment within our contracted equipment delivery times and provide technical support and educational in-servicing for equipment as-needed in clinical departments, including the emergency room, operating room, intensive care, rehabilitation, and general patient care areas. We are committed to providing the highest quality of equipment to our customers, and we do so through the use of our comprehensive QMS which is based on the quality standards recognized worldwide for medical devices: 21 CFR 820 and ISO 13485:2016. This commitment ensures that customers have access to patient-ready equipment with the confidence of knowing it has been prepared and maintained to the highest industry standard for optimal patient safety and outcomes. Revenue attributable to such customers for both years ended December 31, 2023 and 2022 represented 39% of our total revenue.

Many of our customers have multiple contracts with Agiliti with revenue reported across multiple service lines. Our contracts vary based upon service offering, including with respect to term (with most being multi-year contracts), pricing (daily, monthly, and fixed fee arrangements) and termination (termination for convenience to termination for cause only). Many of our contracts contain customer commitment guarantees and annual price increases tied to the consumer price index. Standard contract terms include payment terms, limitation of liability, force majeure provisions, and choice of law/venue.

Because we work closely with customers to provide a long-term, value-based solution versus a product-based, transactional approach, they are motivated to expand their relationships with us over time. We have demonstrated an ability to grow revenue up to 5-6x with existing customers as they move toward our full suite of highly complementary services. Among our top 50 customers by revenue growth from 2015 to 2023, total revenue rose from an aggregate of approximately $23.1 million for the year ended December 31, 2015, to approximately $164.6 million for the year ended December 31, 2023. Within each of those customers, revenue growth ranged from $1.4 million to $16.7 million across all three primary service lines, with an average increase of $2.8 million per customer.

Further, the infrastructure and capabilities required to provide connected, responsive equipment lifecycle management is typically cost-prohibitive, even for large IDNs. Our nationwide network of clinical engineers, storage and repair facilities, vehicles, and analytics tools gives us scale to provide cost-effective services for individual facilities, systems, regional IDNs, governments, and device manufacturers.

Competitive Strengths

We believe our business model presents an attractive value proposition to our customers and that our comprehensive medical device management solutions and ability to work in partnership with and across Original Equipment Manufacturers ("OEMs") as a device-agnostic service provider have contributed to our growth in recent years. Our unique framework for end-to-end medical equipment management, delivered through our nationwide service and logistics infrastructure, differentiates us in the marketplace and is without comparable peers. We believe our more than 85 years of experience, extensive employee base of trained technicians, and our reputation for service excellence has earned us a leading position in our industry. We attribute our historical success to our:

Strong value proposition. With our focus and expertise in connected, end-to-end medical equipment management and service solutions, we offer a compelling customer value proposition. We believe that many of our customers have come to rely on our ability to respond quickly to their needs with reliable, high quality products and service expertise. We believe our ability to provide this level of service distinguishes us from our competitors. It also requires us to maintain inventories and infrastructure that we do not believe our competitors currently maintain. Our comprehensive solutions focus on helping customers:

- lower total cost of device ownership by reducing capital and operating costs related to owning and managing medical equipment;

- enhance operational productivity and staff satisfaction by ensuring equipment is available when and where needed; and
- maintain high standards of quality and regulatory compliance related to medical equipment use, maintenance and end-of-life disposal.

Large, nationwide infrastructure. We have a broad and specialized nationwide staff, facility, and vehicle service network coupled with focused and customized operations at the local level. Our extensive network of service centers and Centers of Excellence and our 24-hours-a-day, 365 days-a-year service capabilities enable us to compete effectively for large, national contracts as well as drive growth regionally and locally.

We employ a number of technical, clinical, and surgical specialists that engage directly with our customers to drive improved cost, efficiency, and clinical outcomes. These include over 800 biomedical repair technicians, more than 4,000 field-based service operators, and over 200 field sales and account managers. Our specialized teams, large equipment fleet, and quality assurance programs have been built over 85 years serving provider customers and represent a significant investment in infrastructure over time. This places us in a unique and hard-to-replicate position with the scale to serve the most complex acute care hospitals, such as teaching, research or specialty institutions, that demand access to current and preferred technologies to meet the complex needs of their patients.

Proprietary software and asset management tools. We have used our 85 years of experience and our extensive database of equipment management information to develop sophisticated software technology and management tools. These tools enable us to meet unique customer demands by supporting sophisticated onsite managed services that help drive cost efficiencies and equipment productivity for caregivers. We believe that our ongoing investment in new tools and technology will help continue to distinguish our offerings to the healthcare industry.

Commitment to quality. Class I and II medical devices are designed, manufactured, and distributed from our Sizewise manufacturing facilities. Each of the United States-based facilities that produce finished goods is registered with the United States Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") and follows strict quality guidelines in accordance with 21 CFR 820 and ISO 13485:2016.

Agiliti also services and repairs medical devices manufactured by other OEMs. Third-party service providers like Agiliti are not required to register their sites with the FDA; therefore, there are no regulations that specifically apply to our maintenance of medical devices. We've made a commitment, however, to do the right thing for our customers and their patients by staffing a dedicated Quality team and implementing a QMS based on the quality standards recognized worldwide for medical devices: 21 CFR 820 and ISO 13485:2016. This commitment to quality ensures that patient safety and risk management are at the center of every product decision, and that our equipment is serviced to the highest standards in the industry. We have elected to have independent accredited registrars certify our QMS at over 110 of our local market service centers, government service centers, and Centers of Excellence to ISO 13485:2015. British Standards Institute ("BSI") has certified over 90 of our local market service centers, government service centers, manufacturing sites, and Centers of Excellence to ISO 13485:2016. The Surgical Equipment Repair and Imaging Centers of Excellence are certified by Deutscher Kraftfahrzeug-Überwachungs-Verein e.V. ("Dekra") and National Quality Assurance ("NQA"). Our manufacturing facilities are certified by Intertek. We believe that ISO 13485:2016 provides the stringent guidelines specific to medical devices to ensure that our fleet of equipment, as well as the equipment we service, is maintained to the highest quality standards. Our commitment to quality extends to our exclusive use of OEM parts to repair FDA 510(k) registered medical devices that we own, whenever available. Implementing optimal maintenance intervals and parts replacement extends equipment use life, thereby reducing waste and lowering risk of obsolescence. We believe that our robust QMS policies set us apart in our industry from those who may use less stringent quality practices on the equipment they own or maintain.

Superior customer service. We believe we have a long-standing reputation among our customers for outstanding service and quality. This reputation is largely attributable to our strong customer service culture, which is continuously reinforced by management's commitment to, and significant investment in, hiring and training resources. We strive to seamlessly integrate our employees and solutions into the operations of our customers. We believe that our aggressive focus on the overall customer experience has helped us achieve high customer satisfaction ratings. Our customer satisfaction survey returned an NPS of 40 for the year ended December 31, 2023.

Low direct third-party payor reimbursement risk. Many healthcare providers rely on direct payment from patients or reimbursement from third-party payors. Our fees are primarily paid directly by our customers, rather than by third-party payors, such as Medicare, Medicaid, managed care organizations, or indemnity insurers. Accordingly, our exposure to uncollectible patient or reimbursement receivables or Medicare or Medicaid reimbursement changes is reduced, as evidenced by our bad debt expense of approximately 0.2%, 0.3%, and 0.2% of total revenue for the years ended December 31, 2023, 2022, and 2021, respectively.

Values driven culture centered on doing the right thing for our many stakeholders. Our team operates on a set of shared aspirations that reflect the manner in which we approach our work and serve the needs of our customers, team members, shareholders, and local communities. We believe these aspirations that underpin our culture, strategy, and service model help contribute to a safer and more sustainable healthcare system and frame the cornerstone of our success:

WE ARE BUILDING THE PREMIER CLINICAL EQUIPMENT SERVICES COMPANY. We ensure clinicians have the equipment they need, when they need it, with the confidence it is maintained to the highest industry standards. We never waver from doing what is right for our customers, our team members, and our shareholders.

WE ARE ESSENTIAL TO CUSTOMERS. We are dependable, trusted advisors—steadfast in our commitments and ready to serve. We deliver a unique and valuable offering that helps customers improve their business and prioritize patient care.

WE ARE EMPOWERED AND ENGAGED. We lead by example, inspiring one another to be at our best, to be accountable, and to develop with purpose. We value our diversity, knowing different perspectives lead to better outcomes. We share a common drive to make a difference and take pride in being part of something bigger than ourselves.

WE ARE OPERATIONALLY EXCELLENT. We demonstrate a tireless commitment to quality, reliability, and continuous improvement. We demand of ourselves the highest degree of accuracy, efficiency, and integrity in order to deliver exceptional service to our customers and their patients.

WE ARE CREATING A CATEGORY OF ONE. Together, we are building a highly differentiated service company that is the vendor of choice for customers and an employer of choice nationwide.

Highly engaged team. We believe a strong and sustainable company begins with an engaged and empowered team. We are committed to investing in our team's development and to fostering a culture of diversity, inclusion, trust, and transparency. Approximately 43% of our total work force is comprised of minorities and approximately 29% of our team members are female. We offer competitive compensation and benefits programs, and we ensure our team members share in the success of our business with a company wide annual bonus program and an Employee Stock Purchase Plan. We strive to ensure Agiliti is a place where our people are proud to work, and we achieve that by listening to feedback and taking active steps to improve. In 2023, we achieved a 60 employee engagement score rating.

Proven management team. Our diverse and industry leading management team brings decades of executive-level healthcare expertise from across the sector and has successfully supervised the development of our competitive strategy, continually enhanced and expanded our service and product offerings, reinforced our nationwide operating footprint, and furthered our reputation as an industry leader in our category.

Key Elements of our Growth Strategy

Retain and expand existing customer relationships. While our overall market opportunity is large, there is also significant expansion opportunity within our existing customers. We have demonstrated the ability to grow our wallet share among existing customers by expanding the services we provide to them over time. Looking at our top 50 customers by revenue growth between 2015 and 2023, total revenue rose from an aggregate of approximately $23.1 million for the year ended December 31, 2015, to approximately $164.6 million for the year ended December 31, 2023. Within each of those customers, revenue growth ranged from $1.4 million to $16.7 million across all three primary service lines, with an average increase of $2.8 million per customer.

Grow our customer base among customers that outsource. We believe there is a significant opportunity to further grow our business by winning new customer contracts for medical equipment management services in the U.S. Due to increasing pressures that providers are facing, we expect outsourcing to significantly accelerate. As a leader in our industry, we believe we are poised to take advantage of this continued shift.

Grow our serviceable market by contracting with those that insource today. We believe that as we reach additional potential customers with demonstrated value both in improved patient care and reduced costs, we can grow our total addressable market by contracting with new clients that were not previously outsourcing device management services. Further, this market is also experiencing tailwinds that make the total addressable market, the total contracted market, and our own contracts with ongoing customers poised to continue to expand. Examples of these tailwinds include increasing overall provider volumes, increasing use and complexity of medical devices and increased outsourcing by hospitals.

Invest in complementary offerings that enhance customer relationships. As the medical device field becomes increasingly complex and the number of devices used per patient on average increases over time, we routinely evaluate additional services and methods of approaching service delivery that increase value for our clients. As an example, this has recently taken the form of expanding our work with federal, state, and local governments to help them maintain and mobilize strategic stockpiles of ventilators and other critical medical equipment.

Opportunistically pursue accretive M&A. Due to our high and sustained value creation for customers and significant white space within existing customer relationships, we believe that pursuing opportunistic M&A will drive increasing returns through embedded customer relationships. From 2016-2023, we successfully integrated 11 acquisitions and will continue to pursue opportunistic M&A as part of our long-term growth strategy.

Business Operations

Service Centers

As of December 31, 2023, we operated more than 150 local market service centers which allow us to provide our end-to-end healthcare technology management and service solutions to customers in virtually all markets throughout the United States. Each service center is responsible for supporting the equipment management needs of its local healthcare market across all sites of care. Each service center maintains an inventory of locally demanded equipment, parts, supplies, and other items tailored to accommodate the needs of individual customers within its geographical area. Should additional or unusual equipment be required by one of our customers, a local service center can draw upon the resources of our other service centers. With access to more than one million owned or managed units of medical equipment (over 300,000 owned) available for customer use as of December 31, 2023, we believe we can most often obtain the necessary equipment within 24 hours.

Depending on market size and demands, our service centers are staffed by multi-disciplined teams of sales professionals, service representatives, customer service technicians, clinical engineering (biomedical) equipment technicians, and surgical services technologists trained to deliver on our complete portfolio of customer solutions. Employees providing resident-based services through our on-site managed programs are supported by local site managers and/or the service centers in the markets where those customers are located.

Centers of Excellence

Our local market service center network is supported by strategically located Centers of Excellence. These centers focus on providing highly specialized clinical engineering service and support. The Centers of Excellence also provide overflow support, technical expertise, training programs, and specialized service functions for our local service centers. All specialized depot work required by our manufacturer customers resides within these Centers of Excellence. Our Centers of Excellence are certified to ISO 13485:2016 by BSI, DEKRA, NQA, and Intertek as a quality commitment to our customers.

Centralized Functions

Our corporate office is located in Eden Prairie, Minnesota. We have centralized many of the key elements of our equipment and service offerings in order to create standardization and to maximize our operating efficiencies and uniformity of service. Some of the critical aspects of our business centralized within our corporate office include contract administration, marketing, purchasing, pricing, logistics, accounting, quality, and information technology.

Medical Equipment Fleet

We acquire, manufacture, or manage medical equipment to meet our customers' needs in some of the following product areas: respiratory therapy, infusion therapy, newborn care, critical care, patient monitors, specialty beds and therapy surfaces (which includes fall management equipment, bariatrics equipment, pressure area management and wound therapy equipment, stretchers, and wheelchairs), and surgical equipment. We believe we maintain one of the most technologically advanced and comprehensive equipment fleets in the industry and routinely acquire new and certified pre-owned equipment to enhance our fleet. Our specialized equipment portfolio managers evaluate new products each year to keep abreast of current market technology and to determine whether to add new products to our equipment fleet. In making equipment purchases, we consider a variety of factors, including manufacturer credibility, repair and maintenance costs, anticipated user demand, equipment mobility, and anticipated obsolescence. We generally do not enter into long-term fixed price contracts with suppliers of our equipment. As of December 31, 2023, we owned or managed more than one million units of medical equipment available for use by our customers of which more than 300,000 were owned by Agiliti.

In 2023, our ten largest manufacturers of medical equipment supplied approximately 65% (measured in dollars spent) of our direct medical equipment purchases. In 2023, three of our largest medical equipment suppliers accounted for approximately 41% of our medical equipment purchases (measured in dollars spent).

Corporate Citizenship Matters

Our approach to corporate citizenship is guided by a detailed understanding of those matters most material to Agiliti, its customers, team members, shareholders and other stakeholders across the communities we serve. Our differentiated product and service offerings provide powerful benefits to the nation's healthcare industry and align with several United Nations Sustainable Development Goals ("UN SDGs"), including Optimizing Clinical Outcomes (UN SDG 3), Improving Economic Outcomes (UN SDG 8), and Reducing Waste (UN SDG 12). We intend to partner with our customers, suppliers, and other stakeholders to maximize those benefits as we continue to evolve our business offerings. In that spirit, we seek to demonstrate our commitments to corporate citizenship through purposeful actions and meaningful results and by thoughtfully managing the risks and opportunities that shape the long-term sustainability of our business.

In 2023, we continued to make progress on our priority focus areas, which are detailed in our corporate citizenship reporting, and include our commitments to product quality standards; investments in our teams to prioritize safety and engagement; and, monitoring the energy and emissions intensity of our operations. Our strategic focus in 2023 also included careful tracking of emerging sustainability regulations and preparation for future reporting requirements.

We maintain a formal governance structure to oversee our corporate citizenship efforts, including oversight from the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee of the Board of Directors and a cross-functional steering committee comprised of senior leaders that supports the execution of strategy and reporting. These groups meet regularly to assess performance, guide strategy, and review disclosures for quality and accuracy. For more information about our corporate citizenship efforts please see our investor relations website.

Human Capital

We believe a strong and sustainable company begins with an engaged and empowered team. We are committed to investing in our team's training and development, and to open, two-way communication. Our culture is underpinned by our core belief, our Code of Conduct and our strong commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

As of December 31, 2023, we employed more than 5,800 employees throughout the United States. We believe we generally have good relations with our employees.

Talent Acquisition

Diversity and Inclusion: We foster a diverse company culture where all backgrounds and perspectives are welcomed, valued, and respected equally. As of 2023, ethnically diverse talent represents more than 43% of our workforce. We have adopted an Equal Employment Opportunity & Affirmative Action policy to further our commitment to providing equal employment opportunities to all Agiliti employees and applicants for employment.

Talent Development: We offer to our team members role-based and career development training covering a broad curriculum each year—from leadership development courses, to role-based skills development and high-touch onboarding experiences, we strive to offer the tools and resources our team members need to perform at their best and grow their careers. More than 22% of our positions are filled internally year-over-year, and roughly 57% of our leadership roles were filled internally in 2023. We enjoyed a 77% employee retention rate in 2023. In addition, we offer dynamic online training through our Quality Management System covering all dimensions of operations, safety, quality, and compliance across the company.

Engagement: We believe a strong and sustainable company begins with an engaged and empowered team. We are committed to investing in our team's training and development and to fostering a culture of trust and transparency. We constantly strive to make Agiliti a place where people are proud to work, and we achieve that by listening to feedback and taking active steps to improve. In our most recent survey (2023), we achieved a 60 employee engagement score rating.

Health & Safety: We ensure Agiliti is a safe place to work where team members feel supported and protected. We offer comprehensive health and wellness benefits and our team members are trained annually on safe work practices and procedures. Find more information in our policies on PTO and PTO for illness.

Intellectual Property

We have registrations with the United States Patent and Trademark Office ("PTO") for the following marks: "Asset360®" and "BioMed360®"; "Universal Hospital Services, Inc.," "UHS®" and the UHS logo; "OnCare," "Harmony," "Quartet," "Agiliti" and the Agiliti logo. We have applications pending with the United States Patent and Trademark Office for the following marks: "Vityl." United States service mark registrations are generally for a term of 10 years, renewable every 10 years if the mark is used in the regular course of business. Sizewise maintains 45 issued patents in the United States and other countries, is prosecuting ten pending patent applications in the United States and other countries. No decisions have been made regarding foreign patent protection, but new foreign patent applications are likely. Sizewise maintains 46 registered trademarks in the United States and in other countries. Sizewise maintains five applications for registration of trademarks in the United States and one in Canada. Sizewise also has many common law trademarks. Sizewise owns copyrights on original works of authorship and provides appropriate notice of copyright on its original works of authorship. There is currently no pending litigation pertaining to seven Sizewise's intellectual property.

We have a domain name registration for agilitihealth.com, which serves as our main website. In 2011, we registered the domain name OnCareMedical.com featuring our OnCare™ sub-brand for patient handling products. In 2012, we registered UHSSurgicalServices.com. In 2016, we acquired resxray.com. In 2021, we acquired Sizewise.com. In 2023, we acquired dabir-surfaces.com.

We have developed a number of proprietary software programs to directly service or support our customers including "inCare™" which is a medical equipment inventory management system that allows us to track the location and usage of equipment we are managing at a customer's location in our 360 Solutions. "MyAgiliti™" is our online ordering and reporting site which accesses our proprietary programs specifically designed to help customers meet medical equipment documentation and reporting needs under applicable regulations and standards, such as those promulgated by the FDA and The Joint Commission. Additionally, this tool provides detailed reporting on utilization, compliance, and analytics for management. "Vityl™" is our equipment maintenance and planning system which houses our work order system and assists in our customers regulatory compliance recordkeeping. "Scheduler™" is our web-based scheduling, tracking, reporting and physician preference system for Agiliti Surgical solutions. "inCommand™" encompasses the proprietary software tools that allow our employees to manage and maintain our extensive equipment fleet and serve our customers more effectively and efficiently. We primarily rely on trade secret, copyright and other similar laws for the protection of our proprietary software. Our employees who access such proprietary software sign confidentiality agreements and receive training on protecting the security of our data systems, and any independent contractors who assist with development of our proprietary software are required to sign non-disclosure and work product assignment agreements.

Marketing

We market our programs primarily through our direct sales force, which consisted of more than 200 sales representatives as of December 31, 2023. We support our direct sales force with technical, clinical, surgical, and financial specialists, who lead new business selling efforts to deliver comprehensive solutions for our customers. Our national accounts team also supports our direct sales force through its focus on securing national and regional contracts.

Our sales force uses a structured and consistent process to target customers where we can deliver significant financial and operational value over time. Each sales team member is responsible for identifying and prioritizing customer opportunities in their territory through the use of segmentation tools and market intelligence, leading to short- and long-term sales pipelines balanced across our comprehensive solutions. The sales force then engages customers directly with insights and tailored solutions that address specific customer challenges while using tools to demonstrate financial and operational savings. Our goal with this approach is to help customers with their most pressing challenges first and measure their return on value for each solution. We then work to connect additional solutions that add incremental and synergistic value for our customers, leading to an end-to-end approach to medical equipment management. Each activity our sales force initiates is aligned to our customer's buying process and is designed to move the opportunity quickly through the sales process. Every step in the process is documented in a customer relationship management ("CRM") system, where we continually monitor and manage sales pipelines, opportunity mix, and sales forecasts.

The members of the sales force are compensated with a combination of base pay and variable incentive pay. The percentage of each individual's overall compensation that is comprised of base pay versus variable incentive pay is dependent on the individual's position. Sales force members whose primary responsibility is account management receive a higher percentage of base pay, while sales force members whose primary responsibility is the generation of new business receive a higher percentage of variable incentive pay. The actual variable incentive pay received by an individual is based on achievement of certain performance metrics, including revenue, earnings, and/or new business milestones.

We also market our end-to-end solutions through our website at www.agilitihealth.com and various social media and digital marketing channels, including a variety of trade publications and organizations with subscribers and members who are key decision makers for our solutions. In addition, we participate in numerous national and regional conventions where we interact with industry groups and opinion leaders. Information presented on our website is not incorporated by reference and should not be considered a part of this Reporting Statement.

In our marketing efforts, we primarily target key decision makers such as administrators, chief executive officers, chief financial officers, chief technology officers, chief medical officers and chief nursing officers, as well as physicians, directors and managers of functional departments, such as supply chain, materials management, surgery, purchasing, pharmacy, biomedical services, and clinical engineering. We also promote comprehensive solutions to IDNs, hospitals, surgery centers, manufacturers, alternate site provider groups, and associations.

Seasonality and Business Interruption

Quarterly operating results are typically affected by seasonal factors. Historically, our first and fourth quarters are the strongest, reflecting increased hospital census and patient acuity during the fall and winter months. However, the COVID-19 pandemic impacted the seasonality of our business and we would expect any future pandemics to have a similar effect on seasonality. Our business can also be impacted by natural disasters, such as hurricanes and earthquakes, which may affect our ability to transfer equipment to and from our customers, and by equipment recalls, which can cause equipment to be removed from market use. We may also see variability in our business during down economic cycles with high levels of unemployment at which times our customers typically experience weaker census and higher levels of indigent patients.

Regulatory Matters

Regulation of Medical Equipment

Our customers are subject to documentation and safety reporting regulations and standards with respect to the medical equipment they use, including those established by the FDA, CMS and the National Fire Protection Association ("NFPA"). Various states and municipalities may also have similar regulations.

We monitor changes in regulations and standards to accommodate the needs of customers by providing specific product and manufacturer information upon request. Manufacturers of medical equipment are subject to regulation by agencies and organizations such as the FDA, Underwriters Laboratories, and the NFPA. We believe that all medical equipment we outsource conforms to these regulations.

The Safe Medical Devices Act of 1990 ("SMDA"), which amended the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act ("FDCA"), requires manufacturers, user facilities, and importers of medical devices to report whenever they believe there is a probability that a medical device has caused or contributed to a death, illness, or injury. In addition, the SMDA requires the establishment and maintenance of adverse safety and effectiveness data and various other FDA reports. Manufacturers and importers are also required to report certain device malfunctions. We diligently evaluate all complaints for devices we manufacture and report to the FDA as required.

From time to time, despite our best efforts, certain CVS store locations across the country have been cited for disciplinary action. Following any disciplinary action, we diligently work with local jurisdictions to prevent such disciplinary action in future and have instituted new measures and retrained our staff where necessary. We believe the number of disciplinary actions CVS has had is low considering the number of licenses we hold.

CAUTIONARY STATEMENT CONCERNING FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (the "Reform Act") provides a "safe harbor" for forward-looking statements, so long as (1) those statements are identified as forward-looking, and (2) the statements are accompanied by meaningful cautionary statements that identify important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those discussed in the statement. We want to take advantage of these safe harbor provisions.

Certain information contained in this 10-K is forward-looking within the meaning of the Reform Act or Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") rules. This information includes, but is not limited to: "Outlook for 2024" of Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations ("MD&A") included in Item 7, "Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosures About Market Risk" included in Item 7A, "Government Regulation" included in Item 1, and "Risk Factors" included in Item 1A. In addition, throughout this 10-K and our other reports and communications, we use the following words or variations or negatives of these words and similar expressions when we intend to identify forward-looking statements:

· Anticipates	· Believes	· Can	· Continue	· Could
· Estimates	· Evaluate	· Expects	· Explore	· Forecast
· Guidance	· Intends	· Likely	· May	· Might
· Outlook	· Plans	· Potential	· Predict	· Probable
· Projects	· Seeks	· Should	· View	· Will

All statements addressing the future operating performance of CVS Health or any segment or any subsidiary and/or future events or developments, including, but not limited to, statements relating to the Company's investment portfolio, operating results, cash flows and/or financial condition, statements relating to corporate strategy, statements relating to future revenue, operating income or adjusted operating income, earnings per share or adjusted earnings per share, Health Care Benefits segment business, sales results and/or trends, medical cost trends, medical membership, Medicare Part D membership, medical benefit ratios and/or operations, Health Services segment business, sales results and/or trends and/or operations, Pharmacy & Consumer Wellness segment business, sales results and/or trends and/or operations, incremental investment spending, interest expense, effective tax rate, weighted-average share count, cash flow from operations, net capital expenditures, cash available for debt repayment, statements related to possible, proposed, pending or completed acquisitions, joint ventures, investments or combinations that involve, among other things, the timing or likelihood of receipt of regulatory approvals, the timing of completion, integration synergies, net synergies and integration risks and other costs, including those related to CVS Health's acquisitions of Oak Street Health, Inc. ("Oak Street Health") and Signify Health, Inc. ("Signify Health"), enterprise modernization, transformation, leverage ratio, cash available for enhancing shareholder value, inventory reduction, turn rate and/or loss rate, debt ratings, the Company's ability to attract or retain customers and clients, store development and/or relocations, new product development, and the impact of industry and regulatory developments, as well as statements expressing optimism or pessimism about future operating results or events, are forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Reform Act.

Forward-looking statements rely on a number of estimates, assumptions and projections concerning future events, and are subject to a number of significant risks and uncertainties and other factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those statements. Many of these risks and uncertainties and other factors are outside our control.

Certain additional risks and uncertainties and other factors are described under "Risk Factors" included in Item 1A of this 10-K; these are not the only risks and uncertainties we face. There can be no assurance that the Company has identified all the risks that may affect it. Additional risks and uncertainties not presently known to the Company or that the Company currently believes to be immaterial also may adversely affect the Company's businesses. If any of those risks or uncertainties develops into actual events, those events or circumstances could have a material adverse effect on the Company's businesses, operating results, cash flows, financial condition and/or stock price, among other effects.

You should not put undue reliance on forward-looking statements. Any forward-looking statement speaks only as of the date of this 10-K, and we disclaim any intention or obligation to update or revise forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events, uncertainties or otherwise.

PART I

Item 1. Business.

Overview

CVS Health Corporation, together with its subsidiaries (collectively, "CVS Health," the "Company," "we," "our" or "us"), is a leading health solutions company building a world of health around every consumer it serves and connecting care so that it works for people wherever they are. As of December 31, 2023, we had more than 9,000 retail locations, more than 1,000 walk-in medical clinics, 204 primary care medical clinics, a leading pharmacy benefits manager with approximately 108 million plan members and expanding specialty pharmacy solutions, and a dedicated senior pharmacy care business serving more than one million patients per year. We serve an estimated more than 35 million people through traditional, voluntary and consumer-directed health insurance products and related services, including expanding Medicare Advantage offerings and a leading standalone Medicare Part D prescription drug plan ("PDP"). We are creating new sources of value through our integrated model allowing us to expand into personalized, technology driven care delivery and health services, increasing access to quality care, delivering better health outcomes and lowering overall health care costs.

During the year ended December 31, 2023, the Company completed the acquisition of two key health care delivery assets to enhance its ability to execute on its care delivery strategy by advancing its primary care, home-based care and provider enablement capabilities. On March 29, 2023, the Company acquired Signify Health, Inc. ("Signify Health"), a leader in health risk assessments, value-based care and provider enablement services. On May 2, 2023, the Company also acquired Oak Street Health, Inc. ("Oak Street Health"), a leading multi-payor operator of value-based primary care centers serving Medicare eligible patients. Both Signify Health and Oak Street Health are included within the Health Services segment.

In connection with its new operating model adopted in the first quarter of 2023, the Company realigned the composition of its segments to reflect how its Chief Operating Decision Maker (the "CODM") reviews information and manages the business. The Company's CODM is the Chief Executive Officer. As a result of this realignment, the Company formed a new Health Services segment, which in addition to providing a full range of pharmacy benefit management ("PBM") solutions, also delivers health care services in the Company's medical clinics, virtually, and in the home, as well as provider enablement solutions. In addition, the Company created a new Pharmacy & Consumer Wellness segment, which includes its retail and long-term care pharmacy operations and related pharmacy services, as well as its retail front store operations. This segment will also provide pharmacy fulfillment services to support the Health Services segment's specialty and mail order pharmacy offerings. Prior period segment financial information has been recast to conform with the current period presentation. See Note 19 "Segment Reporting" included in Item 8 of this 10-K for segment financial information.

The Company has four reportable segments: Health Care Benefits, Health Services, Pharmacy & Consumer Wellness and Corporate/Other.

Business Strategy

We are building a world of health around every consumer we serve, seeking to make it easier and more affordable to live a healthier life. This means delivering solutions that are more personalized, simpler to use and increasingly digital so consumers can receive care when, where and how they desire. We address holistic health – physical, emotional, social and economic – and we are creating new sources of value through our integrated care model which allows us to expand into personalized, technology driven care delivery and health services, increasing access to quality care, delivering better health outcomes and lowering overall health care costs. We believe our consumer-centric strategy will drive sustainable long-term growth and deliver value for all stakeholders.

Health Care Benefits Segment

The Health Care Benefits segment operates as one of the nation's leading diversified health care benefits providers, serving an estimated more than 35 million people as of December 31, 2023. The Health Care Benefits segment has the information and resources to help members, in consultation with their health care professionals, make more informed decisions about their health care. The Health Care Benefits segment offers a broad range of traditional, voluntary and consumer-directed health insurance products and related services, including medical, pharmacy, dental and behavioral health plans, medical management capabilities, Medicare Advantage and Medicare Supplement plans, PDPs and Medicaid health care management services. The Health Care Benefits segment's customers include employer groups, individuals, college students, part-time and hourly workers, health plans, health care providers ("providers"), governmental units, government-sponsored plans, labor groups and expatriates.

Health Care Benefits Products and Services

The Company refers to insurance products (where it assumes all or a majority of the risk for medical and dental care costs) as "Insured" and administrative services contract products (where the plan sponsor assumes all or a majority of the risk of medical and dental care costs) as "ASC." Health Care Benefits products and services consist of the following:

- Commercial Medical: The Health Care Benefits segment offers point-of-service ("POS"), preferred provider organization ("PPO"), health maintenance organization ("HMO") and indemnity benefit ("Indemnity") plans. Commercial medical products also include health savings accounts ("HSAs") and consumer-directed health plans that combine traditional POS or PPO and/or dental coverage, subject to a deductible, with an accumulating benefit account (which may be funded by the plan sponsor and/or the member in the case of HSAs). Principal products and services are targeted specifically to large multi-site national, mid-sized and small employers, individual insureds and expatriates. The Company offers medical stop loss insurance coverage for certain employers who elect to self-insure their health benefits. Under medical stop loss insurance products, the Company assumes risk for costs associated with large individual claims and/or aggregate loss experience within an employer's plan above a pre-set annual threshold. The segment also has a portfolio of additional health products and services that complement its medical products such as dental plans, behavioral health and employee assistance products, provider network access and vision products.
- Government Medical: In select geographies, the Health Care Benefits segment offers Medicare Advantage plans, Medicare Supplement plans and prescription drug coverage for Medicare beneficiaries; participates in Medicaid and subsidized Children's Health Insurance Programs ("CHIP"); and participates in demonstration projects for members who are eligible for both Medicare and Medicaid ("Duals"). These Government Medical products are further described below:
    - Medicare Advantage: Through annual contracts with the U.S. Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services ("CMS"), the Company offers HMO and PPO products for eligible individuals in certain geographic areas through the Medicare Advantage program. Members typically receive enhanced benefits over traditional fee-for-service Medicare coverage ("Original Medicare"), including reduced cost-sharing for preventive care, vision and other services. The Company offered network-based HMO and/or PPO plans in 46 states and Washington, D.C. in 2023. For certain qualifying employer groups, the Company offers Medicare PPO products nationally. When combined with the Company's PDP product, these national PPO plans form an integrated national Insured Medicare product for employers that provides medical and pharmacy benefits.
    - Medicare PDP: The Company is a national provider of drug benefits under the Medicare Part D prescription drug program. All Medicare eligible individuals are eligible to participate in this voluntary prescription drug plan. Members typically receive coverage for certain prescription drugs, usually subject to a deductible, co-insurance and/or co-payment. The Company offered PDP plans in all 50 states and Washington, D.C. in 2023.
    - Medicare Supplement: For certain Medicare eligible members, the Company offers supplemental coverage for certain health care costs not covered by Original Medicare. The products included in the Medicare Supplement portfolio help to cover some of the gaps in Original Medicare, and include coverage for Medicare deductibles and coinsurance amounts. The Company offered a wide selection of Medicare Supplement products in 49 states and Washington, D.C. in 2023.
    - Medicaid and CHIP: The Company offers health care management services to individuals eligible for Medicaid and CHIP under multi-year contracts with government agencies in various states that are subject to annual appropriations. CHIP are state-subsidized insurance programs that provide benefits for families with uninsured children. The Company offered these services on an Insured or ASC basis in 16 states in 2023.
    - Duals: The Company provides health coverage to beneficiaries who are dually eligible for both Medicare and Medicaid coverage. These members must meet certain income and resource requirements in order to qualify for this coverage. The Company coordinates 100% of the care for these members and may provide them with additional services in order to manage their health care costs.

The Company also has a portfolio of transformative products and services aimed at creating a holistic and integrated approach to individual health and wellness. These products and services complement the Commercial Medical and Government Medical products and aim to provide innovative solutions, create integrated experience offerings and enable enhanced care delivery to customers.

Health Care Benefits Provider Networks

The Company contracts with physicians, hospitals and other providers for services they provide to the Company's members. The Company uses a variety of techniques designed to help encourage appropriate utilization of medical services ("utilization") and maintain affordability of quality coverage. In addition to contracts with providers for negotiated rates of reimbursement, these techniques include creating risk sharing arrangements that align economic incentives with providers, the development and implementation of guidelines for the appropriate utilization and the provision of data to providers to enable them to improve health care quality. At December 31, 2023, the Company's underlying nationwide provider network had approximately 1.7 million participating providers. Other providers in the Company's provider networks also include laboratory, imaging, urgent care and other freestanding health facilities.

Health Care Benefits Quality Assessment

CMS uses a 5-star rating system to monitor Medicare health care and drug plans and ensure that they meet CMS's quality standards. CMS uses this rating system to provide Medicare beneficiaries with a tool that they can use to compare the overall quality of care and level of customer service of companies that provide Medicare health care and drug plans. The rating system considers a variety of measures adopted by CMS, including quality of preventative services, chronic illness management and overall customer satisfaction. See "Health Care Benefits Pricing" below in this Item 1 for further discussion of star ratings. The Company seeks Health Plan accreditation for Aetna Inc. ("Aetna") HMO plans from the National Committee for Quality Assurance ("NCQA"), a private, not-for-profit organization that evaluates, accredits and certifies a wide range of health care organizations. Health care plans seeking accreditation must pass a rigorous, comprehensive review and must annually report on their performance.

Aetna Life Insurance Company ("ALIC"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company, has received nationwide NCQA PPO Health Plan accreditation. As of December 31, 2023, all of the Company's Commercial HMO and all of ALIC's PPO members who were eligible participated in HMOs or PPOs that are accredited by the NCQA.

The Company's provider selection and credentialing/re-credentialing policies and procedures are consistent with NCQA and URAC, a health care accrediting organization that establishes quality standards for the health care industry, as well as state and federal, requirements. In addition, the Company is certified under the NCQA Credentials Verification Organization ("CVO") certification program for all certification options and has URAC CVO accreditation.

Quality assessment programs for contracted providers who participate in the Company's networks begin with the initial review of health care practitioners. Practitioners' licenses and education are verified, and their work history is collected by the Company or in some cases by the practitioner's affiliated group or organization. The Company generally requires participating hospitals to be certified by CMS or accredited by The Joint Commission, the American Osteopathic Association, or Det Norske Veritas Healthcare.

The Company also offers quality and outcome measurement programs, quality improvement programs, and health care data analysis systems to providers and purchasers of health care services.

Health Care Benefits Information Systems

The Health Care Benefits segment currently operates and supports an end-to-end suite of information technology platforms to support member engagement, enrollment, health benefit administration, care management, service operations, financial reporting and analytics. The multiple platforms are supported by an integration layer to facilitate the transfer of real-time data. There is continued focus and investment in enterprise data platforms, cloud capabilities, digital products to offer innovative solutions and a seamless experience to the Company's members through mobile and web channels. The Company is making concerted investments in emerging technology capabilities such as voice, artificial intelligence and robotics to further automate, reduce cost and improve the experience for all of its constituents. The Health Care Benefits segment is utilizing the full breadth of the Company's assets to build enterprise technology that will help guide our members through their health care journey, provide them a high level of service, enable healthier outcomes and encourage them to take next best actions to lead healthier lives.

Health Care Benefits Customers

Medical membership is dispersed throughout the U.S., and the Company also serves medical members in certain countries outside the U.S. The Company offers a broad range of traditional, voluntary and consumer-directed health insurance products and related services, many of which are available nationwide. Depending on the product, the Company markets to a range of customers, including employer groups, individuals, college students, part-time and hourly workers, health plans, providers, governmental units, government-sponsored plans, labor groups and expatriates. For additional information on medical membership, see "Health Care Benefits Segment" in the Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations (the "MD&A") included in Item 7 of this 10-K.

The Company markets both Commercial Insured and ASC products and services primarily to employers that sponsor the Company's products for the benefit of their employees and their employees' dependents. Frequently, larger employers offer employees a choice among coverage options from which the employee makes his or her selection during a designated annual open enrollment period. Typically, employers pay all of the monthly premiums to the Company and, through payroll deductions, obtain reimbursement from employees for a percentage of the premiums that is determined by each employer. Some Health Care Benefits products are sold directly to employees of employer groups on a fully employee-funded basis. In some cases, the Company bills the covered individual directly. The Company sold Insured plans directly to individual consumers through the individual public health insurance exchanges ("Public Exchanges") in 12 states as of December 31, 2023. The Company entered Public Exchanges in five additional states effective January 2024.

The Company offers Insured Medicare coverage on an individual basis as well as through employer groups to their retirees. Medicaid and CHIP members are enrolled on an individual basis. The Company also offers Insured health care coverage to members who are dually-eligible for both Medicare and Medicaid.

Health Care Benefits products are sold through: the Company's sales personnel; independent brokers, agents and consultants who assist in the production and servicing of business; as well as private health insurance exchanges ("Private Exchanges") and Public Exchanges (together with Private Exchanges, "Insurance Exchanges"). For large employers or other entities that sponsor the Company's products ("plan sponsors"), independent consultants and brokers are frequently involved in employer health plan selection decisions and sales. In some instances, the Company may pay commissions, fees and other amounts to brokers, agents, consultants and sales representatives who place business with the Company. In certain cases, the customer pays the broker for services rendered, and the Company may facilitate that arrangement by collecting the funds from the customer and transmitting them to the broker. The Company supports marketing and sales efforts with an advertising program that may include television, radio, billboards, print media and social media, supplemented by market research and direct marketing efforts.

The U.S. federal government is a significant customer of the Health Care Benefits segment through contracts with CMS for coverage of Medicare-eligible individuals and federal employee-related benefit programs. Other than the contracts with CMS, the Health Care Benefits segment is not dependent upon a single customer or a few customers the loss of which would have a significant effect on the earnings of the segment. The loss of business from any one or a few independent brokers or agents would not have a material adverse effect on the earnings of the Health Care Benefits segment. Health Care Benefits segment revenues from the federal government accounted for 14% of the Company's consolidated total revenues in 2023, 2022 and 2021. Contracts with CMS for coverage of Medicare-eligible individuals in the Health Care Benefits segment accounted for approximately 73%, 74% and 79%, respectively, of the Company's consolidated revenues from the federal government in 2023, 2022 and 2021.

Health Care Benefits Pricing

For Commercial Insured plans, contracts containing the pricing and other terms of the relationship are generally established in advance of the policy period and typically have a duration of one year. Fees under ASC plans are generally fixed for a period of one year.

Generally, a fixed premium rate is determined at the beginning of the policy period for Commercial Insured plans. The Company typically cannot recover unanticipated increases in health care and other benefit costs in the current policy period; however, it may consider prior experience for a product in the aggregate or for a specific customer, among other factors, in determining premium rates for future policy periods. Where required by state laws, premium rates are filed and approved by state regulators prior to contract inception. Future operating results could be adversely affected if the premium rates requested are not approved or are adjusted downward or their approval is delayed by state or federal regulators.

The Company has Medicare Advantage and PDP contracts with CMS to provide HMO, PPO and prescription drug coverage to Medicare beneficiaries in certain geographic areas. Under these annual contracts, CMS pays the Company a fixed per member (or "capitation") payment and/or a portion of the premium, both of which are based on membership and adjusted for demographic and health risk factors. CMS also considers inflation, changes in utilization patterns and average per capita fee-for-service Medicare costs in the calculation of the fixed capitation payment or premium. PDP contracts also provide a risk-sharing arrangement with CMS to limit the Company's exposure to unfavorable expenses or benefit from favorable expenses. Amounts payable to the Company under the Medicare arrangements are subject to annual revision by CMS, and the Company elects to participate in each Medicare service area or region on an annual basis. Premiums paid to the Company for Medicare products are subject to federal government reviews and audits, which can result, and have resulted, in retroactive and prospective premium adjustments and refunds to the government and/or members. In addition to payments received from CMS, some Medicare Advantage products and all PDP products require a supplemental premium to be paid by the member or sponsoring employer. In some cases, these supplemental premiums are adjusted based on the member's income and asset levels. Compared to Commercial Medical products, Medicare contracts generate higher per member per month revenues and higher health care and other benefit costs.

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act and the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010 (collectively, the "ACA") ties a portion of each Medicare Advantage plan's reimbursement to the plan's "star ratings." Plans must have a star rating of 4 or higher (out of 5) to qualify for bonus payments. CMS released the Company's 2024 star ratings in October 2023. The Company's 2024 star ratings will be used to determine which of the Company's Medicare Advantage plans have ratings of four stars or higher and qualify for bonus payments in 2025. Based on the Company's membership at December 31, 2023, 87% of the Company's Medicare Advantage members were in plans with 2024 star ratings of at least 4.0 stars, compared to the unmitigated 21% of the Company's Medicare Advantage members being in plans with 2023 star ratings of at least 4.0 stars based on the Company's membership at December 31, 2022. Refer to "Medicare Star Ratings" within the "Government Regulation" section of this Item 1 for further discussion of the decrease in the Company's star ratings.

Rates for Medicare Supplement products are regulated at the state level and vary by state and plan.

Under Insured Medicaid contracts, state government agencies pay the Company fixed monthly rates per member that vary by state, line of business and demographics; and the Company arranges, pays for and manages the health care services provided to Medicaid beneficiaries. These rates are subject to change by each state, and, in some instances, provide for adjustment for health risk factors. CMS requires these rates to be actuarially sound. The Company also receives fees from customers where it provides services under ASC Medicaid contracts. ASC Medicaid contracts generally are for periods of more than one year, and certain of them contain performance incentives and limited financial risk sharing with respect to certain medical, financial and operational metrics. Under these arrangements, performance is evaluated annually, with associated financial incentive opportunities, and financial risk share obligations are typically limited to a percentage of the fees otherwise payable to the Company. Payments to the Company under Medicaid contracts are subject to the annual appropriation process in the applicable state.

Under Duals contracts, the rate setting process is generally established by CMS in partnership with the state government agency participating in the demonstration project. Both CMS and the state government agency may seek premium and other refunds under certain circumstances, including if the Company fails to comply with CMS regulations or other contractual requirements.

The Company offers HMO and consumer-directed medical and dental plans to federal employees under the Federal Employees Health Benefits ("FEHB") Program and the Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program. Premium rates and fees for those plans are subject to federal government review and audit, which can result, and have resulted, in retroactive and prospective premium and fee adjustments and refunds to the government and/or members.

Health Care Benefits Seasonality

The Health Care Benefits segment's quarterly operating income progression is impacted by (i) the seasonality of benefit costs which generally increase during the year as Insured members progress through their annual deductibles and out-of-pocket expense limits, (ii) continued changes in product mix between Commercial and Government medical membership and (iii) the seasonality of operating expenses, which are generally the highest during the fourth quarter due primarily to spending to support readiness for the start of the upcoming plan year and marketing associated with Medicare annual enrollment.

During the year ended December 31, 2023, overall medical costs continued to progress toward normalized utilization in the first quarter. Beginning in the second quarter of 2023, the segment experienced higher than previously expected medical cost trend in Medicare Advantage driven by increased outpatient and supplemental benefit utilization when compared with pandemic influenced utilization levels in the prior year. This elevated utilization continued through year end, which resulted in elevated medical costs throughout the remainder of 2023.

During the year ended December 31, 2022, the impact of COVID-19 within the Health Care Benefits segment generally stabilized as a result of the Company's ability to capture COVID-19 related medical costs in pricing, and the segment experienced a return to a more normal seasonality pattern, as described above.

During the year ended December 31, 2021, the customary quarterly operating income progression was impacted by COVID-19. While overall medical costs in the first quarter were generally consistent with historical baseline levels in the aggregate, the segment experienced increased COVID-19 testing and treatment costs and lower Medicare risk-adjusted revenue. During the second quarter, COVID-19 testing and treatment costs persisted, however at levels significantly lower than those observed during the first quarter. Beginning in the third quarter, medical costs once again increased primarily driven by the spread of the emerging new variants of COVID-19, which resulted in increased testing and treatment costs that continued throughout the fourth quarter.

Health Care Benefits Competition

The health care benefits industry is highly competitive, primarily due to a large number of for-profit and not-for-profit competitors, competitors' marketing and pricing and a proliferation of competing products, including new products that are continually being introduced into the marketplace. New entrants into the marketplace, as well as consolidation within the industry, have contributed to and are expected to intensify the competitive environment. In addition, the rapid pace of change as the industry evolves towards a consumer-focused retail marketplace, including Insurance Exchanges, and the increased use of technology to interact with members, providers and customers, increase the risks the Company faces from new entrants and disruptive actions by existing competitors compared to prior periods.

The Company believes that the significant factors that distinguish competing health plans include the perceived overall quality (including accreditation status), quality of service, comprehensiveness of coverage, cost (including premium rates, provider discounts and member out-of-pocket costs), product design, financial stability and ratings, breadth and quality of provider networks, ability to offer different provider network options, providers available in such networks, and quality of member support and care management programs. The Company believes that it is competitive on each of these factors. The Company's ability to increase the number of persons covered by its health plans or to increase Health Care Benefits segment revenues is affected by its ability to differentiate itself from its competitors on these factors. Competition may also affect the availability of services from providers, including primary care physicians, specialists and hospitals.

Insured products compete with local and regional health care benefits plans, health care benefits and other plans sponsored by other large commercial health care benefit insurance companies, health system owned health plans, new entrants into the marketplace and numerous for-profit and not-for-profit organizations operating under licenses from the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association. The largest competitor in Medicare products is Original Medicare. Additional Health Care Benefits segment competitors include other types of medical and dental provider organizations, various specialty service providers (including PBM services providers), health care consultants, financial services companies, integrated health care delivery organizations (networks of providers who also coordinate administrative services for and assume insurance risk of their members), third party administrators ("TPAs") and, for certain plans, programs sponsored by the federal or state governments. Emerging competitors include start up health care benefits plans, provider-owned health plans, new joint ventures (including not-for-profit joint ventures among firms from multiple industries), financial services firms that are distributing competing products on their proprietary Private Exchanges, and consulting firms that are distributing competing products on their proprietary Private Exchanges, as well as non-traditional distributors such as retail companies. The Company's ability to increase the number of persons enrolled in Insured Commercial Medical products also is affected by the desire and ability of employers to self-fund their health coverage.

The Health Care Benefits segment's ASC plans compete primarily with other large commercial health care benefit companies, numerous for-profit and not-for-profit organizations operating under licenses from the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association and TPAs.

In addition to competitive pressures affecting the Company's ability to obtain new customers or retain existing customers, the Health Care Benefits segment's medical membership has been and may continue to be adversely affected by adverse and/or uncertain economic conditions and reductions in workforce by existing customers due to adverse and/or uncertain general economic conditions, especially in the U.S. and industries where such membership is concentrated.

Health Care Benefits Reinsurance

The Company currently has several reinsurance agreements with non-affiliated insurers that relate to Health Care Benefits insurance policies. The Company entered into these contracts to reduce the risk of catastrophic losses which in turn reduces capital and surplus requirements. The Company frequently evaluates reinsurance opportunities and refines its reinsurance and risk management strategies on a regular basis.

Health Services Segment

The Health Services segment provides a full range of PBM solutions, delivers health care services in its medical clinics, virtually, and in the home, and offers provider enablement solutions. PBM solutions include plan design offerings and administration, formulary management, retail pharmacy network management services, and specialty and mail order pharmacy services. In addition, the Company provides clinical services, disease management services, medical spend management and pharmacy and/or other administrative services for providers and federal 340B drug pricing program covered entities ("Covered Entities"). The Company operates a group purchasing organization that negotiates pricing for the purchase of pharmaceuticals and rebates with pharmaceutical manufacturers on behalf of its participants and provides various administrative, management and reporting services to pharmaceutical manufacturers. During 2023, the Company completed the acquisition of two key health care delivery assets – Signify Health, a leader in health risk assessments, value-based care and provider enablement services, and Oak Street Health, a leading multi-payor operator of value-based primary care centers serving Medicare eligible patients. The Company also announced the launch of Cordavis™, a wholly owned subsidiary that will work directly with pharmaceutical manufacturers to commercialize and/or co-produce high quality biosimilar products. The Health Services segment's clients and customers are primarily employers, insurance companies, unions, government employee groups, health plans, PDPs, Medicaid managed care ("Managed Medicaid") plans, CMS, plans offered on Insurance Exchanges and other sponsors of health benefit plans throughout the U.S., patients who receive care in the Health Services segment's medical clinics, virtually or in the home, as well as Covered Entities. During the year ended December 31, 2023, the Company's PBM filled or managed 2.3 billion prescriptions on a 30-day equivalent basis.

Health Services Products and Services

PBM Solutions
The Health Services segment manages prescription drug distribution directly through the Company's specialty and mail order pharmacies and through pharmacies in its retail network. All prescriptions processed by the Company are analyzed, processed and documented by the Company's proprietary prescription management systems. These systems provide essential features and functionality to allow plan members to utilize their prescription drug benefits. These systems also streamline the process by which prescriptions are processed by staff and network pharmacists by enhancing review of various items through automation, including plan eligibility, early refills, duplicate dispensing, appropriateness of dosage, drug interactions or allergies, over-utilization and potential fraud.

Plan Design Offerings and Administration
The Company assists its PBM clients in designing pharmacy benefit plans that help improve health outcomes while minimizing the costs to the client. The Company also assists PBM clients in monitoring the effectiveness of their plans through frequent, informal communications, the use of proprietary software, as well as through formal annual, quarterly and sometimes monthly performance reviews. The Company administers pharmacy benefit plans for clients who contract with it to facilitate prescription drug coverage and claims processing for their eligible plan members. The Company also provides administrative services for Covered Entities.

The Company makes recommendations to help PBM clients design benefit plans that promote the use of lower cost, clinically appropriate drugs and helps its PBM clients control costs by recommending plan designs that encourage the use of generic equivalents of brand name drugs when such equivalents are available. Clients also have the option, through plan design, to further lower their pharmacy benefit plan costs by setting different member payment levels for different products on their drug lists or "formularies," which helps guide members to choose lower cost alternatives through appropriate financial incentives.

Formulary Management
The Company utilizes an independent panel of doctors, pharmacists and other medical experts, referred to as the CVS Caremark National Pharmacy and Therapeutics Committee, to review and approve the selection of drugs that meet the Company's standards of safety and efficacy for inclusion on one of the Company's template formularies. The Company's formularies provide recommended products in numerous drug classes to help ensure member access to clinically appropriate drugs with alternatives within a class under the client's pharmacy benefit plan, while helping to drive the lowest net cost for clients that select one of the Company's formularies. To help improve clinical outcomes for members and clients, the Company conducts ongoing, independent reviews of all drugs, including those appearing on the formularies and generic equivalent products. Many of the Company's clients choose to adopt a template formulary offering as part of their plan design. PBM clients are given capabilities to offer real time benefits information for a member's specific plan design, provided electronically in the Electronic Health Record at the point of prescribing, at the CVS pharmacy and directly to members.

Retail Pharmacy Network Management Services
The Company maintains a national network of approximately 66,000 retail pharmacies, consisting of approximately 38,000 chain pharmacies (which include CVS pharmacy locations) and approximately 28,000 independent pharmacies, in the U.S., including Puerto Rico, the District of Columbia, Guam and the U.S. Virgin Islands. When a customer fills a prescription in a retail pharmacy, the pharmacy sends prescription data electronically to the Company from the point-of-sale. This data interfaces with the Company's proprietary prescription management systems, which verify relevant plan member data and eligibility, while also performing a drug utilization review to help evaluate clinical appropriateness and safety and confirming that the pharmacy will receive payment for the prescription.

Specialty and Mail Order Pharmacy Services
The Company operates mail order pharmacies, specialty mail order pharmacies and retail specialty pharmacy stores in the U.S. The mail order pharmacies are used primarily for maintenance medications, while the specialty mail order pharmacies and retail specialty pharmacy stores are used for the delivery of advanced medications to individuals with chronic or genetic diseases and disorders. The Health Services segment's plan members or their prescribers submit prescriptions or refill requests to these pharmacies, and staff pharmacists review these prescriptions and refill requests with the assistance of the Company's prescription management systems. This review may involve communications with the prescriber and, with the prescriber's approval when required, can result in generic substitution, therapeutic interchange or other actions designed to help reduce cost and/or improve quality of treatment.

The Company's mail order pharmacies and specialty mail order pharmacies have been awarded Mail Service Pharmacy and Specialty Pharmacy accreditation, respectively, from URAC. Substantially all of the Company's specialty mail order pharmacies also have been accredited by The Joint Commission and the Accreditation Commission for Health Care ("ACHC"), which are independent, not-for-profit organizations that accredit and certify health care programs and organizations in the U.S. The ACHC accreditation includes an additional accreditation by the Pharmacy Compounding Accreditation Board, which certifies compliance with the highest level of pharmacy compounding standards.

In connection with its new operating model adopted in the first quarter of 2023, the Company consolidated its specialty and mail order pharmacy fulfillment operations, which were previously included in the former Pharmacy Services segment, with its retail and long-term care pharmacy fulfillment operations in the newly formed Pharmacy & Consumer Wellness segment. Under this new operating model, the Health Services segment pays an administrative service fee to the Pharmacy & Consumer Wellness segment, in exchange for which the Pharmacy & Consumer Wellness segment provides pharmacy fulfillment services to support the Health Services segment's specialty and mail order pharmacy offerings.

Clinical Services
The Company offers multiple clinical programs and services to help clients manage overall pharmacy and health care costs in a clinically appropriate manner. These programs are primarily designed to promote better health outcomes and to help target inappropriate medication utilization and non-adherence to medication, each of which may result in adverse medical events that negatively affect member health and client pharmacy and medical spend. These programs include utilization management ("UM"), medication management, quality assurance, adherence and counseling programs to complement the client's plan design and clinical strategies. To help address prescription opioid abuse and misuse, the Company introduced an industry-leading UM approach that limits to seven days the supply of opioids dispensed for certain acute prescriptions for patients who are new to therapy, limits the daily dosage of opioids dispensed based on the strength of the opioid and requires the use of immediate-release formulations of opioids before extended-release opioids are dispensed. The Company's Pharmacy Advisor® program facilitates pharmacist counseling, both face-to-face and over the telephone, to help participating plan members with certain chronic diseases, such as diabetes and cardiovascular conditions, to identify gaps in care, adhere to their prescribed medications and manage their health conditions. The Company also has digital connectivity that helps to lower drug costs for patients by providing expanded visibility to lower cost alternatives through enhanced analytics and data sharing.

Disease Management Programs
The Company's clinical programs and services utilize advanced protocols and offer clients convenience in working with providers and other third parties. The Company's care management program covers diseases such as rheumatoid arthritis, Parkinson's disease, epilepsy and multiple sclerosis and is accredited by the NCQA. The Company's UM program covers similar diseases and is accredited by the NCQA and URAC.

Medical Benefit Management
The Company's NovoLogix® online preauthorization tool helps identify and capture cost savings opportunities for specialty drugs billed under the medical benefit by identifying outliers to appropriate dosages and costs, and helps to ensure clinically appropriate use of specialty drugs.

Group Purchasing Organization Services
The Company operates a group purchasing organization that negotiates pricing for the purchase of pharmaceuticals and rebates with pharmaceutical manufacturers on behalf of its participants. The Company also provides various administrative, management and reporting services to pharmaceutical manufacturers.

Value-Based Care
In response to rising healthcare spending in the U.S., commercial, government and other payors are shifting away from fee-for-service payment models towards value-based models, including risk-based payment models that tie financial incentives to quality, efficiency and coordination of care. Value-based care ("VBC") refers to the goal of incentivizing healthcare providers to simultaneously increase quality while lowering the cost of care for patients. More specifically, providers in a VBC model are incentivized to focus on more preventative care, higher quality of care and better coordination of care to create better health outcomes and avoid potentially expensive complications from illnesses that could be managed more conveniently and cost effectively.

The Company is committed to expanding value-based care in the U.S. and delivering higher quality care to patients at a lower overall cost to the industry. The Company operates in value-based care through two primary means: providing comprehensive primary care through its Oak Street Health primary care centers and enabling independent health systems transition to value-based care through contracting and care management services. The Company's value-based care assets typically contract with payors, primarily Medicare Advantage plans, and/or CMS.

The Company's Oak Street Health business operates retail-like, community-based centers that provide medical primary care services and support Medicare eligible patients in the management of chronic illnesses and the prevention of unnecessary acute events. Through its centers and management services organization, the Company combines an innovative health care model and its proprietary Canopy technology with superior patient experience and quality care. The Company engages its patients through the use of an innovative community outreach approach. Once engaged, the Company integrates population health analytics, social support services and primary care into the care model to drive improved patient outcomes. The Company contracts with health plans and CMS to generate medical costs savings, assume full financial risk of its patients and realize a return on its investment in primary care.

The Company's clinics implement a branded and consumer-focused design to create a welcoming environment that engages patients. While traditional healthcare facilities are often located in medical office buildings that are removed from where patients spend a majority of their time, the Company targets locations in highly accessible, convenient locations close to where patients live, work and shop. Each of the Company's centers has a consistent look and feel, which contributes to the success in acquiring patients. Subsequent to the Company's acquisition of Oak Street Health, the Company has opened 31 locations. As of December 31, 2023, the Company operated 204 centers across 25 states, which provided care for approximately 270,000 patients.

In addition to its primary care centers, the Company provides enablement services to independent health systems, assisting these groups with their transition to value-based care. The Company's customers practice value-based care primarily through two programs administered by CMS, the Accountable Care Organization ("ACO") Realizing Equity, Access, and Community Health ("REACH") Model (collectively, "ACO REACH") and the Medicare Shared Savings Program ("MSSP"), under which the Company served approximately 793,000 covered lives as of December 31, 2023.

ACOs are networks of healthcare providers and suppliers that work together to invest in infrastructure and redesign delivery processes to attempt to achieve high quality and efficient delivery of services. ACOs that achieve performance standards established by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services ("HHS") are eligible to share in a portion of the amounts saved by the Medicare program. ACOs employ a retrospective payment system in which Medicare reimburses providers in accordance with their usual fee-for-service payment schedule, while also tracking the total fee-for-service costs for all billable services rendered for attributed Medicare beneficiaries over the course of a year. CMS periodically compares the total amount of all fee-for-service payments for a beneficiary against a benchmark price for the annual cost of such beneficiary's medical care. If the total fee-for-service costs exceed the benchmark price, then typically the ACO owes a portion of the difference to CMS and, likewise, if total fee-for-service costs are lower than the benchmark price, then CMS pays a portion of the difference, representing the shared savings achieved, to the ACO.

The Company's ACO REACH contracts are global risk arrangements and the ACO assumes full risk for the total cost of care for aligned beneficiaries and, accordingly, the ACO is subject to 100% of shared savings and shared losses. The final shared savings due from CMS or shared losses due to CMS for each performance period is reconciled in the year following the performance year.

As part of the MSSP, the Company helps unrelated providers join together to form a "collaborative ACO." The collaborative ACO has a large attributed patient population, consisting of the beneficiaries attributed to all of the participating providers. Risks are therefore spread across a much larger beneficiary population, helping to stabilize performance and reduce downside risk for participating providers. The Company offers providers a suite of tools and services that are designed to enhance their ability to effectively manage and coordinate the care of attributed patients in order to improve patient outcomes, reduce costs and generate savings. The Company assumes a portion of the collaborative ACO's financial risk and also receives a portion of any shared savings received by the collaborative ACO.

In-Home Health Evaluations

As a complement to its value-based care delivery, the Company operates a large mobile network of credentialed providers in the U.S. through its Signify Health business. These credentialed providers are deployed into the home primarily to conduct in-home health evaluations ("IHEs") and perform select diagnostic services. IHEs may also be performed virtually or at a healthcare provider facility. From the date of the Signify Health acquisition through December 31, 2023, the Company performed nearly 2 million IHEs. While in the home, providers perform IHEs with the assistance of the Company's longitudinal patient records and proprietary clinical workflow software with its integrated device hub. The Company's software guides clinical workflows as well as in-home diagnostic screenings, yielding a rich patient report of hundreds of data points. The Company also offers diagnostic and preventive services and provides comprehensive medication review services while in the home. Through its IHEs, the Company creates a comprehensive, documented record of the clinical, social and behavioral needs of its health plan customers' medically complex populations and seek to further engage them with the healthcare system.

The evaluation results of IHEs are provided to individuals' primary care physicians. The Company believes sharing these results helps to fill gaps in care, while encouraging individuals who have not regularly visited their PCP to schedule a visit. The IHEs also provide health plans with insights into member health without taking members out of the home, the reports IHEs produce form a basis of the Medicare Risk Adjustment Factor ("RAF") scores, which contribute to health plans' ability to effectively participate in value-based and risk-adjusted government programs such as Medicare Advantage, and affect the premiums health plans receive for Medicare Advantage beneficiaries. The data gathered during an IHE is also a resource that can be used by health plans to improve their Healthcare Effectiveness Data and Information Set ("HEDIS") scores and Medicare Advantage star ratings.

MinuteClinic

As of December 31, 2023, the Company operated more than 1,000 MinuteClinic locations in the U.S. The clinics are staffed by nurse practitioners and physician assistants who utilize nationally established guidelines to deliver a variety of health care services. Payors value these clinics because they provide convenient, high-quality, cost-effective care, in many cases offering an attractive alternative to more expensive sites of care. MinuteClinic also offers virtual care services to connect customers with licensed providers to provide access to health services remotely. MinuteClinic is collaborating with the Company's medical and pharmacy members to help meet the needs of the Company's health plan and client plan members by offering programs that can improve member health and lower costs. MinuteClinic also maintains relationships with leading hospitals, clinics and physicians in the communities we serve to support and enhance quality, access and continuity of care.

Health Services Information Systems

The Health Services segment's claim adjudication platform incorporates architecture that centralizes the data generated from adjudicating retail pharmacy, specialty and mail order claims and delivering other solutions to PBM clients. The Health Engagement Engine® technology and proprietary clinical algorithms help connect various parts of the enterprise and serve an essential role in cost management and health improvement, leveraging cloud-native technologies and practices. This capability transforms pharmacy data into actionable interventions at key points of care, including in retail, mail and specialty pharmacies as well as in customer care call center operations, leveraging our enterprise data platform to improve the quality of care. The technology leverages assisted artificial intelligence to deliver insights to the business and bring automation to otherwise manual tasks. Specialty services also connects with our claim adjudication platform and various health plan adjudication platforms with a centralized architecture servicing many clients and members. Operating services, such as Specialty Expedite®, provide an interconnected onboarding solution for specialty medications and branding solutions ranging from fulfillment to total patient management. These services are managed through our new innovative specialty workflow and web platform.

The Health Services segment's custom-built proprietary Canopy technology is a key driver of the success of its value-based care model and foundation for patients receiving a consistent, high-quality level of care. Canopy underlies every aspect of the Company's day-to-day clinical and operational workflows, allowing care teams to tailor care plans to the needs of both the patient and the business. Canopy integrates an immense amount of data about patients from a broad set of sources, including payor claims data, pharmacy data and medical records from hospitals and specialists and provides actionable insights and workflows to accelerate effective clinical management and oversight. Canopy leverages artificial intelligence and machine learning capabilities to create and refine a clinical rules engine (predictive models and prescriptive algorithms) that informs care delivery and addresses hospital admissions and readmissions, medical costs and patient retention.

Through the collaboration of its digital and technical teams, the Company has established critical tools which enable patients to schedule appointments through MinuteClinic.com. Key elements of the offerings include landing pages which highlight services and answer common questions, screening capabilities to determine patient eligibility, service location locator and appointment selection tools to efficiently identify the requested service on a specified date, time, and location and registration pages to collect required patient information, accelerating check-in once at the MinuteClinic. Once scheduled, the tools provide the user with instructions and notifications including SMS text message and email reminders, and also provide digital results and records, enabling patients to view and save their medical records for convenient access at a later point.

Health Services Clients & Customers

The Company's Health Services clients and customers are primarily employers, insurance companies, unions, government employee groups, health plans, PDPs, Managed Medicaid plans, CMS, plans offered on Insurance Exchanges, other sponsors of health benefit plans throughout the U.S., patients who receive care in the Health Services segment's medical clinics, virtually or in the home, as well as Covered Entities. The Health Services segment's revenues are primarily generated from the sale and managing of prescription drugs to eligible members in benefit plans maintained by clients. Pharmaceuticals are provided to eligible members in benefit plans maintained by clients and utilize the Company's information systems, among other things, to help perform safety checks, drug interaction screening and identify opportunities for generic substitution.

The Company's primary care operations rely on its value-based capitated partnerships with payors and CMS which manage and market Medicare Advantage plans across the U.S. The Company has strategic value-based relationships with over 30 different payors as of December 31, 2023, including each of the top 5 national payors by number of Medicare Advantage patients. These existing contracts and relationships and their understanding of the value of the Company's model reduces the risk of entering into new markets as the Company typically has payor contracts before entering a new market. Maintaining, supporting and growing these relationships, particularly as the Company enters new geographies, is critical to its long-term success.

The Company's value-based care arrangements are primarily directed at independent health systems, including community hospitals, physician practices and clinics, participating in, or seeking to participate in, ACOs or contract with Medicare Advantage plans.

The Company's IHE operations customers are primarily Medicare Advantage health plans and Managed Medicaid organizations. In 2023, the Company had IHE contracts with 52 health plans in the U.S., including 25 of the 50 largest Medicare Advantage plans.

Health Services Seasonality

The majority of the Health Services segment revenues, including revenues generated from its PBM services, are not seasonal in nature.

The Company's primary care operations experience some variability depending upon the time of year in which they are measured. Typically, a significant portion of the Company's at-risk patient growth is experienced during the first quarter, when plan enrollment selections made during the prior annual enrollment period from October 15th through December 7th of the prior year take effect. Per-patient revenue will generally decline over the course of the year as new patients typically join with less complete or accurate documentation (and therefore lower risk-adjustment scores), and patient attrition skews towards higher-risk (and therefore greater revenue) patients. Finally, medical costs will vary seasonally depending on a number of factors including the weather, which can be a driver of certain illnesses such as the influenza virus.

HENRY SCHEIN MSO, LLC APPLICATION
NEVADA STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY
EXPLANATION FOR HISTORY OF COMPANY QUESTION NO. 3:

Question No.3:

Has the corporation, any owner(s), shareholder(s) or partner(s) with at least 10% interest or partners with any interest, ever been subject of an administrative action or proceeding relating to the pharmaceutical industry?

Response:

Based on currently available records/information, and although not necessarily responsive or applicable to the question, Henry Schein MSO, LLC, discloses the following information:

Matters Relating to Henry Schein MSO, LLC's parent company, Henry Schein, Inc.:

In May 2008, Henry Schein, Inc. resolved a matter with the Florida Department of Health ("DOH") (Case No. 2008-08770; prescription drug wholesaler permit # 22:1315) in connection with a Notice of Violation, alleging that Henry Schein, Inc. sold and/or shipped prescription drugs to an unauthorized recipient, in violation of Chapter 499, Florida Statutes. Henry Schein, Inc. entered into a settlement agreement which resolved the matter without any admission of liability and agreed to make a payment of $5,000. The matter was closed by order dated May 15, 2008.

In July 2011, Henry Schein, Inc. resolved a matter with the Colorado Board of Pharmacy ("BOP") which alleged that Henry Schein, Inc. violated Colorado state statutes and BOP rules by not timely submitting an application for a change of designated representative (Case No. 2011-1806; non-resident prescription drug wholesaler registration # WHO 7115). Henry Schein, Inc. made a payment of $5,500 to resolve the matter.

In November 2011, the Iowa Board of Pharmacy alleged that Henry Schein, Inc. violated Iowa state statutes and regulations in connection with the sale of controlled substances to Des Moines University, whose Iowa Controlled Substances Registration had expired at the time of shipment. (Case No. 2010-35; Wholesale Drug License No. 5328) Henry Schein, Inc. denied the allegations. Henry Schein, Inc. agreed to a Citation and Warning, resolving the matter in April 2012 without any admission of liability and agreed to make a payment of $5,000.

PART I

General

Henry Schein, Inc. is a solutions company for health care professionals powered by a network of people and technology. We believe we are the world's largest provider of health care products and services primarily to office-based dental and medical practitioners, as well as alternate sites of care. Our philosophy is grounded in our commitment to help customers operate a more efficient and successful business so the practitioner can provide better clinical care.

With more than 89 years of experience distributing health care products, we have built a vast set of small, mid-sized and large customers in the dental and medical markets, serving more than one million customers worldwide across dental practices, laboratories, physician practices, and ambulatory surgery centers, as well as government, institutional health care clinics and other alternate care clinics.

We are headquartered in Melville, New York, employ more than 21,600 people (of which approximately 10,700 are based outside the United States) and have operations or affiliates in 32 countries and territories. Our broad global footprint has evolved over time through our organic success as well as through contribution from strategic acquisitions.

We offer a comprehensive selection of more than 120,000 branded products and Henry Schein private brand products in stock, as well as more than 180,000 additional products available as special-order items. Our infrastructure, including over 3.8 million square feet of space in 27 strategically located distribution centers around the world, enables us to historically provide rapid and accurate order fulfillment, better serve our customers and increase our operating efficiency. This infrastructure, together with broad product and service offerings at competitive prices, and a strong commitment to customer service, enables us to be a single source of supply for our customers' needs.

We conduct our business through two reportable segments: (i) health care distribution and (ii) technology and value-added services. These segments offer different products and services to the same customer base. Our dental businesses serve office-based dental practitioners, dental laboratories, schools, government and other institutions. Our medical businesses serve physician offices, urgent care centers, ambulatory care sites, emergency medical technicians, dialysis centers, home health, federal and state governments and large enterprises, such as group practices and integrated delivery networks, among other providers across a wide range of specialties.

The health care distribution reportable segment, combining our global dental and medical businesses, distributes consumable products, dental specialty products, small equipment, laboratory products, large equipment, equipment repair services, branded and generic pharmaceuticals, vaccines, surgical products, diagnostic tests, infection-control products and vitamins. While our primary go-to-market strategy is in our capacity as a distributor, we also market and sell under our own private label portfolio of cost-effective, high-quality consumable merchandise products, and manufacture certain dental specialty products in the areas of implants, orthodontics and endodontics.

The technology and value-added services reportable segment provides software, technology and other value-added services to health care practitioners. Henry Schein One, the largest contributor of sales to this category, offers dental practice management solutions for dental and medical practitioners. In addition, we offer dentists and physicians a broad suite of electronic health records, integrated revenue cycle management, patient communication services including electronic marketing and web-site design, analytics and patient demand generation. Finally, our value-added practice solutions include practice consultancy, education, and the facilitation of financial service offerings (on a non-recourse basis) to help dentists and physicians operate and expand their business operations. We believe our hands-on consultative approach to provide solutions to support practice decision-making is a key differentiator for our business.

Recent Developments

See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations – Recent Developments" herein for a discussion related to the COVID-19 pandemic and recent corporate transactions.

Industry

The global health care distribution industry, as it relates to office-based health care practitioners, is fragmented and diverse. The industry ranges from sole practitioners working out of relatively small offices to mid-sized and large group practices ranging in size from a few practitioners to several hundred practices owned or operated by dental support organizations (DSOs), medical group purchasing organizations (GPOs), hospital systems or integrated delivery networks (IDNs).

Due in part to the inability of office-based health care practitioners to store and manage large quantities of supplies in their offices, the distribution of health care supplies and small equipment to office-based health care practitioners has been characterized by frequent, small quantity orders, and a need for rapid, reliable and substantially complete order fulfillment. The purchasing decisions within an office-based health care practice are typically made by the practitioner, hygienist or office manager. Supplies and small equipment are generally purchased from more than one distributor, with one generally serving as the primary supplier.

The health care distribution industry continues to experience growth due to demand driven by the aging population, increased health care awareness and the importance of preventative care, an increasing understanding of the connection between good oral health and overall health, improved access to care globally, the proliferation of medical technology and testing, new pharmacology treatments and expanded third-party insurance coverage, partially offset by the effects of unemployment on insurance coverage and technological improvements, including the advancement of software and services, prosthetic solutions and telemedicine. In addition, the non-acute market continues to benefit from the shift of procedures and diagnostic testing from acute care settings to alternate-care sites, particularly physicians' offices and ambulatory surgery centers.

We believe that consolidation within the industry will continue to result in a number of distributors, particularly those with limited financial, operating and marketing resources, seeking to combine with larger companies that can provide growth opportunities. This consolidation also may continue to result in distributors seeking to acquire companies that can enhance their current product and service offerings or provide opportunities to serve a broader customer base.

In addition, customer consolidation will likely lead to multiple locations under common management and the movement of more procedures from the hospital setting to the physician or alternate care setting as the health care industry is increasingly focused on efficiency and cost containment. This trend has benefited distributors capable of providing a broad array of products and services at low prices. It also has accelerated the growth of health maintenance organizations ("HMOs"), group practices, other managed care accounts and collective buying groups, which, in addition to their emphasis on obtaining products at competitive prices, tend to favor distributors capable of providing specialized management information support. We believe that the trend towards cost containment has the potential to favorably affect demand for technology solutions, including software, which can enhance the efficiency and facilitation of practice management.

Competition

The distribution and manufacture of health care supplies and equipment is highly competitive. Many of the health care products we sell are available to our customers from a number of suppliers. In addition, our competitors could obtain exclusive rights from manufacturers to market particular products. Manufacturers also could seek to sell directly to end-users, and thereby eliminate or reduce our role and that of other distributors. In certain parts of the dental end market, such as those related to dental specialty products, and medical end market manufacturers already sell directly to end customers.

In North America, we compete with other distributors, as well as several manufacturers, of dental and medical products, primarily on the basis of price, breadth of product line, e-commerce capabilities, customer service and value-added products and services. In the dental market, our primary competitors in the U.S. are the Patterson Dental division of Patterson Companies, Inc. and Benco Dental Supply Company. In addition, we compete against a number of other distributors that operate on a national, regional and local level. Our primary competitors in the U.S. medical market, which accounts for the large majority of our global medical sales, are McKesson Corporation and Medline Industries, Inc., which are national distributors. We also compete with a number of regional and local medical distributors, as well as a number of manufacturers that sell directly to physicians. With regard to our dental software, we compete against numerous companies, including the Patterson Dental division of Patterson Companies, Inc., Carestream Health, Inc., Open Dental Software, Inc., PlanetDDS LLC, Good Methods Global Inc. (d.b.a. CareStack) and Curve Dental, LLC. In other software end markets, including revenue cycle management, patient relationship management and patient demand generation, we compete with companies such as Vyne Therapeutics Inc., EDI-Health Group, Inc. (d.b.a. Dental X Change, Inc.), Weave Communications, Inc., Solutionreach, Inc., ZocDoc, Inc., LocalMed Inc. and Prosites Inc. The medical practice management and electronic medical records market is fragmented and we compete with numerous companies such as the NextGen division of Quality Systems, Inc., eClinicalWorks, Allscripts Healthcare Solutions, Inc. and Epic Systems Corporation.

Outside of the U.S., we believe we are the only global distributor of supplies and equipment to dental practices and our competitors are primarily local and regional companies. We also face significant competition internationally, where we compete on the basis of price and customer service against several large competitors, including the GACD Group, Proclinic SA, Lifco AB, Planmeca Oy and Billericay Dental Supply Co. Ltd., as well as a large number of other dental and medical product distributors and manufacturers in international countries and territories we serve.

Competitive Strengths

We have more than 89 years of experience in distributing products to health care practitioners resulting in strong awareness of the Henry Schein® brand. Our competitive strengths include:

A focus on meeting our customers' unique needs. We are committed to providing customized solutions to our customers that are driven by our understanding of the end markets we serve and reflect the technology-driven products and services best suited for their practice needs. We are committed to continuing to enhance these offerings through organic investment in our products and our teams, as well as through the acquisition of new products and services that may help us better serve our customers.

Direct sales and marketing expertise. Our sales and marketing efforts are designed to establish and solidify customer relationships through personal or virtual visits by field sales representatives, frequent direct marketing and telesales contact, emphasizing our broad product lines, including exclusive distribution agreements, competitive prices and ease of order placement, particularly through our e-commerce platforms. The key elements of our direct sales and marketing efforts are:

- Field sales consultants. We have over 3,450 field sales consultants, including equipment sales specialists, covering major North American, European and other international markets. These consultants complement our direct marketing and telesales efforts and enable us to better market, service and support the sale of more sophisticated products and equipment.

- Marketing. During 2021, we marketed to existing and prospective office-based health care providers through a combination of owned, earned and paid digital channels, as well as through catalogs, flyers, direct mail and other promotional materials. Our strategies included an emphasis on educational content through webinars and content marketing initiatives. We continue to enhance our marketing technology to improve our targeting capability and the relevance of messaging and offers.

- Telesales. We support our direct marketing effort with approximately 2,100 inbound and outbound telesales representatives, who facilitate order processing, generate new sales through direct and frequent contact with customers and stay abreast of market developments and the hundreds of new products, services and technologies introduced each year to educate practice personnel.

- Electronic commerce solutions. We provide our customers and sales teams with innovative and competitive e-commerce solutions. We continue to invest in our e-commerce platform to offer enhanced content management so customers can more easily find the products they need and to enable an engaging purchase experience, supported by excellent customer service.

- Social media. Our operating entities and employees engage our customers and supplier partners through various social media platforms, which are an important element of our communications and marketing efforts. We continue to expand our social media presence to raise awareness about issues, engage customers beyond a sale and deliver services and solutions to specialized audiences.

Broad product and service offerings at competitive prices. We offer a broad range of products and services to our customers, at competitive prices, in the following categories:

- Consumable supplies and equipment. We distribute consumable products, small equipment, laboratory products, large equipment, equipment repair services, branded and generic pharmaceuticals, vaccines, dental specialty products, diagnostic tests, infection-control products and vitamins. We offer over 120,000 Stock Keeping Units, or SKUs, to our customers. We offer over 180,000 additional SKUs to our customers in the form of special order items. We also market and sell our own private label portfolio of cost-effective, high-quality consumable merchandise products and manufacture certain dental specialty products in the areas of implants, orthodontics and endodontics.

- Technology and other value-added products and services. We sell practice management, business analytics, patient engagement and patient demand creation software solutions to our dental customers. Our practice management solutions provide practitioners with electronic medical records, patient treatment history, analytics, billing, accounts receivable analyses and management, appointment calendars, electronic claims processing and word processing programs, network and hardware services, e-commerce and electronic marketing services, sourcing third party patient payment plans, transition services and training and education programs for practitioners. We also sell medical software for practice management, certified electronic health records ("EHR") and e-Prescribe medications and prescription solutions through MicroMD®. We have approximately 950 technical representatives supporting customers using our practice management solutions and services. As of December 25, 2021, we had an active user base of approximately 95,700 practices and 400,000 consumers, including users of AxiUm, Dentally®, Dentrix Ascend®, Dental Vision®, Dentrix® Dental Systems, Dentrix® Enterprise, Easy Dental®, EndoVision®, Evolution® and EXACT®, Gesden®, Jarvis Analytics™, Julie® Software, Oasis, OMSVision®, Orisline®, PBS Endo®, PerioVision®, Power Practice® Px, PowerDent, and Viive® and subscriptions for Demandforce®, Sesame, and Lighthouse360® for dental practices and DentalPlans.com® for dental patients; and MicroMD® for physician practices.

- Repair services. We have over 140 equipment sales and service centers worldwide that provide a variety of repair, installation and technical services for our health care customers. Our over 2,175 technicians provide installation and repair services for: dental handpieces; dental and medical small equipment; table-top sterilizers and large dental equipment.

- Financial services. We offer our customers solutions in operating their practices more efficiently by providing access to a number of financial services and products provided by third party suppliers (including non-recourse financing for equipment, technology and software products, non-recourse practice financing for leasehold improvements, business debt consolidation and commercial real estate, non-recourse patient financing and credit card processing) at rates that we believe are generally lower than what our customers would be able to secure independently. We also provide staffing services, dental practice valuation and brokerage services.

Commitment to superior customer service. We maintain a strong commitment to providing superior customer service. We frequently monitor our customer service through customer surveys, focus groups and statistical reports. Our customer service policy primarily focuses on:

- Exceptional order fulfillment. We ship an average of approximately 156,000 cartons daily. Historically, approximately 99% of items have been shipped without back ordering and were shipped on the same business day the order is received. Due to the significant increase in demand for personal protective equipment ("PPE"), as a result of COVID-19, during the year ended December 25, 2021, approximately 96% of items ordered were shipped without back ordering. As the demand for PPE stabilizes, we expect our percentage of items shipped without back-ordering and shipped on the same day to return to historical levels.

- Comprehensive ordering process. Customers may place orders 24 hours a day, 7 days a week via e-commerce solutions, telephone, fax, e-mail and mail.

Integrated management information systems. Our information systems generally allow for centralized management of key functions, including accounts receivable, inventory, accounts payable, payroll, purchasing, sales, order fulfillment and financial and operational reporting. These systems allow us to manage our growth, deliver superior customer service, properly target customers, manage financial performance and monitor daily operational statistics.

Cost-effective purchasing. We believe that cost-effective purchasing is a key element to maintaining and enhancing our position as a competitively priced provider of health care products. We continuously evaluate our purchase requirements and suppliers' offerings and prices in order to obtain products at the lowest possible cost. In 2021, our top 10 health care distribution suppliers and our single largest supplier accounted for approximately 30% and 4%, respectively, of our aggregate purchases.

Efficient distribution. We distribute our products from our strategically located distribution centers. We strive to maintain optimal inventory levels in order to satisfy customer demand for prompt delivery and complete order fulfillment. These inventory levels are managed on a daily basis with the aid of our management information systems. Once an order is entered, it is electronically transmitted to the distribution center nearest the customer's location for order fulfillment.

Products and Services

The following table sets forth the percentage of consolidated net sales by principal categories of products and services offered through our health care distribution and technology and value-added services reportable segments:

	December 25, 2021	December 26, 2020	December 28, 2019

(2) Includes branded and generic pharmaceuticals, vaccines, surgical products, diagnostic tests, infection-control products, X-ray products, equipment, PPE and vitamins.

(3) Consists of practice management software and other value-added products, which are distributed primarily to health care providers, and financial services on a non-recourse basis, e-services, continuing education services for practitioners, consulting and other services.

(4) Corporate TSA revenues represents sales of certain products to Covetrus under the transition services agreement entered into in connection with the Animal Health Spin-off, which ended in December 2020. See Note-23 Related Party Transactions for further information.

Business Strategy

Our objective is to continue to expand as a global value-added provider of health care products and services to office-based dental and medical practitioners by increasing their efficiency and success. To accomplish this, we apply our competitive strengths in executing the following strategies:

- Increase penetration of our existing customer base. We have over 1 million customers worldwide and we intend to increase sales to our existing customer base and enhance our position as their primary supplier. We believe our offering of a broad range of products, services and support, including software solutions that can help drive improved workflow efficiency and patient communications for practices, coupled with our full-service value proposition, helps us to retain and grow our customer base.

- Increase the number of customers we serve. This strategy includes increasing the productivity of our field sales consultants and telesales team, as well as using our customer database to focus our marketing efforts in all of our operating segments. In the dental business, we provide products and services to independent practices, mid-market groups, and large DSOs as well as community health centers and government sites of care. Leveraging our broad array of assets and capabilities, we offer solutions to address these new markets. In the medical business, we have expanded to serve customers located in settings outside of the traditional office, such as urgent care clinics, retail, occupational health and home health settings. As settings of health care shift, we remain committed to serving these practitioners and providing them with the products and services they need.

- Leverage our value-added products and services. We continue to increase cross-selling efforts for key product lines utilizing a consultative selling process. In the dental business, we have significant cross-selling opportunities between our dental software users and our dental distribution customers. In the medical business, we have opportunities to expand our vaccine, injectables and other pharmaceuticals sales to health care practitioners, as well as cross-selling EHR systems and software when we sell our core products. Our strategy extends to providing health systems, integrated delivery networks and other large group and multi-site health care organizations, including physician clinics, these same value added products and services. As physicians and health systems closely align, we have increased access to opportunities for cross-marketing and selling our product and service portfolios.

- Pursue strategic acquisitions and joint ventures. Our acquisition strategy is focused on investments in companies that add new customers and sales teams, increase our geographic footprint (whether entering a new country, such as emerging markets, or building scale where we have already invested in businesses), and finally, those that enable us to access new products and technologies.

Markets Served

Demographic trends indicate that our markets are growing, as an aging U.S. population is increasingly using health care services. According to the U.S. Census Bureau's International Database, between 2021 and 2031, the 45 and older population is expected to grow by approximately 11%. Between 2021 and 2041, this age group is expected to grow by approximately 22%. This compares with expected total U.S. population growth rates of approximately 7% between 2021 and 2031 and approximately 12% between 2021 and 2041.

In the dental industry, there is predicted to be a rise in oral health care expenditures as the 45-and-older segment of the population increases. There is increasing demand for new technologies that allow dentists to increase productivity, and this is being driven in the U.S. by lower insurance reimbursement rates. At the same time, there is an expected increase in dental insurance coverage.

In the medical market, there continues to be a migration of procedures from acute-care settings to physicians' offices and home health settings, a trend that we believe provides additional opportunities for us. There also is the continuing use of vaccines, injectables and other pharmaceuticals in alternate-care settings. We believe we have established a leading position as a vaccine supplier to the office-based physician practitioner.

We support our dental and medical professionals through the many SKUs that we offer, as well as through important value-added services, including practice management software, electronic claims processing, financial services and continuing education, all designed to help maximize a practitioner's efficiency.

Additionally, we seek to expand our dental full-service model and medical offerings in countries where opportunities exist. We do this through both direct sales and by partnering with local distribution companies.

For information on revenues and long-lived assets by geographic area, see Note 3 – Segment and Geographic Data of "Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements."

Seasonality and Other Factors Affecting Our Business and Quarterly Results

We experience fluctuations in quarterly earnings. As a result, we may fail to meet or exceed the expectations of securities analysts and investors, which could cause our stock price to decline.

Our business is subject to seasonal and other quarterly fluctuations. Sales and profitability generally have been higher in the third and fourth quarters due to the timing of sales of seasonal products (including influenza vaccine) purchasing patterns of office-based health care practitioners for certain products (including equipment and software) and year-end promotions. Sales and profitability may also be impacted by the timing of certain annual and biennial dental tradeshows where equipment promotions are offered. In addition, some dental practices delay equipment purchases in the U.S. until year-end due to tax incentives. We expect our historical seasonality of sales to continue in the foreseeable future.

Governmental Regulations

We strive to be compliant with the applicable laws, regulations and guidance described below, and believe we have effective compliance programs and other controls in place to ensure substantial compliance. However, compliance is not guaranteed either now or in the future, as certain laws, regulations and guidance may be subject to varying and evolving interpretations that could affect our ability to comply, as well as future changes, additions and enforcement approaches, including political changes. President Biden's administration (the "Biden Administration") has indicated that it will be more aggressive in its pursuit of alleged violations of law, and it has revoked certain guidance that would have limited governmental use of informal agency guidance to pursue potential violations, as well as that it was more prepared to pursue individuals for corporate law violations, including an aggressive approach to anti-corruption activities. Changes to applicable laws, regulations and guidance described below, as well as related administrative or judicial interpretations, may require us to update or revise our operations, services, marketing practices and compliance programs and controls, and may impose additional and unforeseen costs on us, pose new or previously immaterial risks to us, or may otherwise have a material adverse effect on our business.

Government

Certain of our businesses involve the distribution, importation, exportation, marketing and sale of, and third party payment for, pharmaceuticals and medical devices, and in this regard, we are subject to extensive local, state, federal and foreign governmental laws and regulations, including as applicable to our wholesale distribution of pharmaceuticals and medical devices, and as part of our specialty home medical supply business that distributes and sells medical equipment and supplies directly to patients. The federal government and state governments have also increased enforcement activity in the health care sector, particularly in areas of fraud and abuse, anti-bribery and corruption, controlled substances handling, medical device regulations and data privacy and security standards.

Government and private insurance programs fund a large portion of the total cost of medical care, and there have been efforts to limit such private and government insurance programs, including efforts, thus far unsuccessful, to seek repeal of the entire United States Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, as amended by the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act, each enacted in March 2010, (as amended, the "ACA"). In addition, activities to control medical costs, including laws and regulations lowering reimbursement rates for pharmaceuticals, medical devices and/or medical treatments or services, are ongoing. Many of these laws and regulations are subject to change and their evolving implementation may impact our operations and our financial performance.

Our businesses are also generally subject to numerous other laws and regulations that could impact our financial performance, including securities, antitrust, consumer protection, anti-bribery and anti-kickback, customer interaction transparency, data privacy, data security, government contracting, price gouging and other laws and regulations.

Failure to comply with laws, rules or regulations could have a material adverse effect on our business.

Operating, Security and Licensure Standards

Certain of our businesses are subject to local, state and federal governmental laws and regulations relating to the distribution of pharmaceuticals and medical devices and supplies. Among the United States federal laws applicable to us are the Controlled Substances Act, the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as amended ("FDC Act"), and Section 361 of the Public Health Service Act, as well as laws regulating the billing of and reimbursement from government programs, such as Medicare and Medicaid, and from commercial payers. We are also subject to comparable foreign regulations.

The FDC Act, the Controlled Substances Act, their implementing regulations, and similar foreign laws generally regulate the introduction, manufacture, advertising, marketing and promotion, sampling, pricing and reimbursement, labeling, packaging, storage, handling, returning or recalling, reporting, and distribution of, and record keeping for, pharmaceuticals and medical devices shipped in interstate commerce, and states may similarly regulate such activities within the state. Furthermore, Section 361 of the Public Health Service Act, which provides authority to prevent the introduction, transmission or spread of communicable diseases, serves as the legal basis for the United States Food and Drug Administration's ("FDA") regulation of human cells, tissues and cellular and tissue-based products, also known as "HCT/P products."

The Federal Drug Quality and Security Act of 2013 brought about significant changes with respect to pharmaceutical supply chain requirements. Title II of this measure, known as the Drug Supply Chain Security Act ("DSCSA"), is being phased in over a period of ten years, and is intended to build a national electronic, interoperable system by November 27, 2023, that will identify and trace certain prescription drugs as they are distributed in the United States. The law's track and trace requirements applicable to manufacturers, wholesalers, repackagers and dispensers (e.g., pharmacies) of prescription drugs took effect in January 2015, and continues to be implemented. The DSCSA product tracing requirements replace the former FDA drug pedigree requirements and pre-empt certain state requirements that are inconsistent with, more stringent than, or in addition to, the DSCSA requirements.

The DSCSA also establishes certain requirements for the licensing and operation of prescription drug wholesalers and third-party logistics providers ("3PLs"), and includes the eventual creation of national wholesaler and 3PL licenses in cases where states do not license such entities. The DSCSA requires that wholesalers and 3PLs distribute drugs in accordance with certain standards regarding the recordkeeping, storage and handling of prescription drugs. The DSCSA requires wholesalers and 3PLs to submit annual reports to the FDA, which include information regarding each state where the wholesaler or 3PL is licensed, the name and address of each facility and contact information. According to FDA guidance, states are pre-empted from imposing any licensing requirements that are inconsistent with, less stringent than, directly related to, or covered by the standards established by federal law in this area. Current state licensing requirements concerning wholesalers will remain in effect until the FDA issues new regulations as directed by the DSCSA. In addition, with respect to our specialty home medical supply business, we are subject to certain state licensure laws (including state pharmacy laws), and also certain accreditation standards, including to qualify for reimbursement from Medicare and other third-party payers.

The Food and Drug Administration Amendments Act of 2007 and the Food and Drug Administration Safety and Innovation Act of 2012 amended the FDC Act to require the FDA to promulgate regulations to implement a unique device identification ("UDI") system. The UDI rule phased in the implementation of the UDI regulations, generally beginning with the highest-risk devices (i.e., Class III medical devices) and ending with the lowest-risk devices. Most compliance dates were reached as of September 24, 2018, with a final set of requirements for low risk devices being reached on September 24, 2022, which will complete the phase in. However, in May 2021, the FDA issued an enforcement policy stating that it does not intend to object to the use of legacy identification numbers on device labels and packages for finished devices manufactured and labeled prior to September 24, 2023. The UDI regulations require "labelers" to include unique device identifiers ("UDIs"), with a content and format prescribed by the FDA and issued under a system operated by an FDA-accredited issuing agency, on the labels and packages of medical devices (including, but not limited to, certain software that qualifies as a medical device under FDA rules), and to directly mark certain devices with UDIs. The UDI regulations also require labelers to submit certain information concerning UDI-labeled devices to the FDA, much of which information is publicly available on an FDA database, the Global Unique Device Identification Database. The UDI regulations and subsequent FDA guidance regarding the UDI requirements provide for certain exceptions, alternatives and time extensions. For example, the UDI regulations include a general exception for Class I devices exempt from the Quality System Regulation (other than record-keeping requirements and complaint files). Regulated labelers include entities such as device manufacturers, repackagers, reprocessors and relabelers that cause a device's label to be applied or modified, with the intent that the device will be commercially distributed without any subsequent replacement or modification of the label and include certain of our businesses.

Under the Controlled Substances Act, as a distributor of controlled substances, we are required to obtain and renew annually registrations for our facilities from the United States Drug Enforcement Administration ("DEA") permitting us to handle controlled substances. We are also subject to other statutory and regulatory requirements relating to the storage, sale, marketing, handling, reporting, record-keeping and distribution of such drugs, in accordance with the Controlled Substances Act and its implementing regulations, and these requirements have been subject to heightened enforcement activity in recent times. We are subject to inspection by the DEA. Certain of our businesses are also required to register for permits and/or licenses with, and comply with operating and security standards of, the DEA, the FDA, the United States Department of Health and Human Services ("HHS"), and various state boards of pharmacy, state health departments and/or comparable state agencies as well as comparable foreign agencies, and certain accrediting bodies, depending on the type of operations and location of product distribution, manufacturing or sale. These businesses include those that distribute, manufacture and/or repackage prescription pharmaceuticals and/or medical devices and/or HCT/P products, or own pharmacy operations, or install, maintain or repair equipment.

In addition, Section 301 of the National Organ Transplant Act, and a number of comparable state laws, impose civil and/or criminal penalties for the transfer of certain human tissue (for example, human bone products) for valuable consideration, while generally permitting payments for the reasonable costs incurred in procuring, processing, storing and distributing that tissue. We are also subject to foreign government regulation of such products. The DEA, the FDA and state regulatory authorities have broad inspection and enforcement powers, including the ability to suspend or limit the distribution of products by our distribution centers, seize or order the recall of products and impose significant criminal, civil and administrative sanctions for violations of these laws and regulations. Foreign regulations subject us to similar foreign enforcement powers.

EU Regulation of Medicinal and Dental Products

European Union ("EU") member states regulate their own healthcare systems, as does EU law. The latter regulates certain matters, most notably medicinal products and medical devices. Medicinal products are defined, broadly, as substances or combinations of substances having certain functionalities and may not include medical devices. EU "regulations" apply in all Member States, whereas "directives" are implemented by the individual laws of member states.

On medicines for humans, we are regulated under Directive No. 2001/83/EC of 6 November 2001, as amended by Directive 2003/63/EC of 25 June 2003, and EU Regulation (EC) No. 726/2004 of 31 March 2004. These rules provide for the authorization of products, and regulate their manufacture, importation, marketing and distribution. It implements requirements which may be implemented without warning, as well as a national pharmacovigilance system under which marketing authorizations may be withdrawn, and includes potential sanctions for breaches of the rules, and on other bases such as harmfulness or inefficiency.

EU Regulation No. 1223/2009 of 30 November 2009 on cosmetic products requires that cosmetic products (which includes dental products) be safe for human health when used under normal or reasonably foreseeable conditions of use and comply with certain obligations which apply to manufacturer, importer and distributor. It includes market surveillance, and non-compliance may result in the recall or withdrawal of products, along with other sanctions.

In the EU, the EU Medical Device Regulation No. 2017/745 of 5 April 2017 ("EU MDR") covers a wide scope of our activities, from dental material to X-ray machines, and certain software. It was meant to become applicable three years after publication (i.e., May 26, 2020). However, on April 23, 2020, to allow European Economic Area ("EEA") national authorities, notified bodies, manufacturers and other actors to focus fully on urgent priorities related to the COVID-19 pandemic, the European Council and Parliament adopted Regulation 2020/561, postponing the date of application of the EU MDR by one year (to May 26, 2021).

The EU MDR significantly modifies and intensifies the regulatory compliance requirements for the medical device industry as a whole. Among other things, the EU MDR:

- strengthens the rules on placing devices on the market and reinforces surveillance once they are available;
- establishes explicit provisions on manufacturers' responsibilities for the follow-up of the quality, performance and safety of devices placed on the market;
- improves the traceability of medical devices throughout the supply chain to the end-user or patient through a unique identification number;
- sets up a central database to provide patients, healthcare professionals and the public with comprehensive information on products available in the EU;
- strengthens rules for the assessment of certain high-risk devices, such as implants, which may have to undergo an additional check by experts before they are placed on the market; and
- identifies importers and distributors and medical device products through registration in a database (EUDAMED not due until May 26, 2022 and after).

In particular, the EU MDR imposes stricter requirements for the confirmation that a product meets the regulatory requirements, including regarding a product's clinical evaluation and a company's quality systems, and for the distribution, marketing and sale of medical devices, including post-market surveillance. Medical devices that have been assessed and/or certified under the EU Medical Device Directive may continue to be placed on the market until 2024 (or until the expiry of their certificates, if applicable and earlier); however, requirements regarding the distribution, marketing and sale including quality systems and post-market surveillance have to be observed by manufacturers, importers and distributors as of the application date.

Other EU regulations that may apply under appropriate circumstances include EU Regulation No. 1907/2006 of 18 December 2006 concerning the Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals, which requires importers to register substances or mixtures that they import in the EU beyond certain quantities, and the EU Regulation No. 1272/2008 of 16 December 2008 on classification, labelling and packaging of substances and mixtures, which sets various obligations with respect to the labelling and packaging of concerned substances and mixtures.

Furthermore, compliance with legal requirements has required and may in the future require us to delay product release, sale or distribution, or institute voluntary recalls of, or other corrective action with respect, to products we sell, each of which could result in regulatory and enforcement actions, financial losses and potential reputational harm. Our customers are also subject to significant federal, state, local and foreign governmental regulation, which may affect our interactions with customers, including the design and functionality of our products.

Certain of our businesses are subject to various additional federal, state, local and foreign laws and regulations, including with respect to the sale, transportation, storage, handling and disposal of hazardous or potentially hazardous substances, and safe working conditions. In addition, certain of our businesses must operate in compliance with a variety of burdensome and complex billing and record-keeping requirements in order to substantiate claims for payment under federal, state and commercial healthcare reimbursement programs. One of these businesses was recently suspended by CMS from receiving payments from Medicare, although it is permitted to continue to perform and bill for Medicare services. The amounts billed are being deposited in an escrow account pending resolution of an audit. The Company has not recognized revenue for these services and has currently deferred slightly over $4 million in revenue.

Certain of our businesses also maintain contracts with governmental agencies and are subject to certain regulatory requirements specific to government contractors.

Antitrust and Consumer Protection

The federal government of the United States, most U.S. states and many foreign countries have antitrust laws that prohibit certain types of conduct deemed to be anti-competitive, as well as consumer protection laws that seek to protect consumers from improper business practices. At the U.S. federal level, the Federal Trade Commission oversees enforcement of these types of laws, and states have similar government agencies. Violations of antitrust or consumer protection laws may result in various sanctions, including criminal and civil penalties. Private plaintiffs may also bring civil lawsuits against us in the United States for alleged antitrust law violations, including claims for treble damages. EU law also regulates competition and provides for detailed rules protecting consumers. The Biden Administration has indicated increased antitrust enforcement and has been more aggressive in enforcement activities.

Health Care Fraud

Certain of our businesses are subject to federal and state (and similar foreign) health care fraud and abuse, referral and reimbursement laws and regulations with respect to their operations. Some of these laws, referred to as "false claims laws," prohibit the submission or causing the submission of false or fraudulent claims for reimbursement to federal, state and other health care payers and programs. Other laws, referred to as "anti-kickback laws," prohibit soliciting, offering, receiving or paying remuneration in order to induce the referral of a patient or ordering, purchasing, leasing or arranging for, or recommending ordering, purchasing or leasing of, items or services that are paid for by federal, state and other health care payers and programs. Certain additional state and federal laws, such as the federal Physician Self-Referral Law, commonly known as the "Stark Law," prohibit physicians and other health professionals from referring a patient to an entity with which the physician (or family member) has a financial relationship, for the furnishing of certain designated health services (for example, durable medical equipment and medical supplies), unless an exception applies. Violations of Anti-Kickback Statutes or the Stark Law may be enforced as violations of the federal False Claims Act.

The fraud and abuse laws and regulations have been subject to heightened enforcement activity over the past few years, and significant enforcement activity has been the result of "relators" who serve as whistleblowers by filing complaints in the name of the United States (and if applicable, particular states) under applicable false claims laws, and who may receive up to 30% of total government recoveries. Penalties under fraud and abuse laws may be severe, including treble damages and substantial civil penalties under the federal False Claims Act, as well as potential loss of licenses and the ability to participate in federal and state health care programs, criminal penalties, or imposition of a corporate compliance monitor which could have a material adverse effect on our business. Also, these measures may be interpreted or applied by a prosecutorial, regulatory or judicial authority in a manner that could require us to make changes in our operations or incur substantial defense and settlement expenses. Even unsuccessful challenges by regulatory authorities or private relators could result in reputational harm and the incurring of substantial costs. Most states have adopted similar state false claims laws, and these state laws have their own penalties, which may be in addition to federal False Claims Act penalties, as well as other fraud and abuse laws.

With respect to measures of this type, the United States government (among others) has expressed concerns about financial relationships between suppliers on the one hand and physicians and dentists on the other. As a result, we regularly review and revise our marketing practices as necessary to facilitate compliance.

We also are subject to certain United States and foreign laws and regulations concerning the conduct of our foreign operations, including the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, the U.K. Bribery Act, German anti-corruption laws and other anti-bribery laws and laws pertaining to the accuracy of our internal books and records, which have been the focus of increasing enforcement activity globally in recent years.

While we believe that we are substantially compliant with applicable fraud and abuse laws and regulations, and have adequate compliance programs and controls in place to ensure substantial compliance, we cannot predict whether changes in applicable law, or interpretation of laws, or changes in our services or marketing practices in response to changes in applicable law or interpretation of laws, or failure to comply with applicable law, could have a material adverse effect on our business.

Affordable Care Act and Other Insurance Reform

The ACA increased federal oversight of private health insurance plans and included a number of provisions designed to reduce Medicare expenditures and the cost of health care generally, to reduce fraud and abuse, and to provide access to increased health coverage. The ACA also materially expanded the number of individuals in the United States with health insurance.

The ACA has faced frequent legal challenges, including litigation seeking to invalidate and Congressional action seeking to repeal some of or all of the law or the manner in which it has been implemented. In 2012, the United States Supreme Court, in upholding the constitutionality of the ACA and its individual mandate provision requiring that people buy health insurance or else face a penalty, simultaneously limited ACA provisions requiring Medicaid expansion, making such expansion a state-by-state decision. In addition, one of the major political parties in the United States remains committed to seeking the ACA's legislative repeal, but legislative efforts to do so have previously failed to pass both chambers of Congress. Under President Trump's administration, a number of administrative actions were taken to materially weaken the ACA, including, without limitation, by permitting the use of less robust plans with lower coverage and eliminating "premium support" for insurers providing policies under the ACA. The Tax Cuts and Jobs Act enacted in 2017, which contains a broad range of tax reform provisions that impact the individual and corporate tax rates, international tax provisions, income tax add-back provisions and deductions, also effectively repealed the ACA's individual mandate by zeroing out the penalty for non-compliance. In the most recent ACA litigation, the federal Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals found the individual mandate to be unconstitutional, and returned the case to the District Court for the Northern District of Texas for consideration of whether the remainder of the ACA could survive the excision of the individual mandate. The Fifth Circuit's decision was appealed to the United States Supreme Court. The Supreme Court issued a decision on June 17, 2021. Without reaching the merits of the case, the Supreme Court held that the plaintiffs in the case did not have standing to challenge the ACA. Any outcomes of future cases that change the ACA, in addition to future legislation, regulation, guidance and/or Executive Orders that do the same, could have a significant impact on the U.S. healthcare industry. For instance, the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021 enhanced premium tax credits, which has resulted in an expansion of the number of people covered under the ACA. These changes are time-limited, with some enhancements in place for 2021 only and others available through the end of 2022.

An ACA provision, generally referred to as the Physician Payment Sunshine Act or Open Payments Program (the "Sunshine Act"), imposes annual reporting and disclosure requirements for drug and device manufacturers and distributors with regard to payments or other transfers of value made to certain covered recipients (including physicians, dentists, teaching hospitals, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, clinical nurse specialists, certified registered nurse anesthesiologist assistants, and certified nurse midwives), and for such manufacturers and distributors and for group purchasing organizations, with regard to certain ownership interests held by covered recipients in the reporting entity. The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services ("CMS") publishes information from these reports on a publicly available website, including amounts transferred and physician, dentist, teaching hospital, and non-physician practitioner identities. The Sunshine Act pre-empts similar state reporting laws, although we or our subsidiaries may be required to report under certain state transparency laws that address circumstances not covered by the Sunshine Act, and some of these state laws, as well as the federal law, can be unclear. We are also subject to foreign regulations requiring transparency of certain interactions between suppliers and their customers.

In the United States, government actions to seek to increase health-related price transparency may also affect our business.

Another notable Medicare health care reform initiative, the Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act of 2015 ("MACRA"), enacted on April 16, 2015, established a new payment framework, which modified certain Medicare payments to "eligible clinicians," including physicians, dentists and other practitioners. Under MACRA, certain eligible clinicians are required to participate in Medicare through the Merit-Based Incentive Payment System ("MIPS") or Advanced Alternative Payment Models, through which Medicare reimbursement to eligible clinicians includes both positive and negative payment adjustments that take into account quality, promoting interoperability, cost and improvement activities. Data collected in the first MIPS performance year (2017) determined payment adjustments that began January 1, 2019. MACRA standards and payment levels continue to evolve, and reflect a fundamental change in physician reimbursement that is expected to provide substantial financial incentives for physicians to participate in risk contracts, and to increase physician information technology and reporting obligations. The implications of the implementation of MACRA are uncertain and will depend on future regulatory activity and physician activity in the marketplace. New state-level payment and delivery system reform programs, including those modeled after such federal programs, are also increasingly being rolled out through Medicaid administrators, as well as through the private sector, which may further alter the marketplace and impact our business.

Recently, in addition to other government efforts to control health care costs, there has been increased scrutiny on drug pricing and concurrent efforts to control or reduce drug costs by Congress, the President, executive branch agencies and various states. At the state level, several states have adopted laws that require drug manufacturers to provide advance notice of certain price increases and to report information relating to those price increases, while others have taken legislative or administrative action to establish prescription drug affordability boards or multi-payer purchasing pools to reduce the cost of prescription drugs. At the federal level, several related bills have been introduced and regulations proposed which, if enacted or finalized, respectively, would impact drug pricing and related costs.

As a result of political, economic and regulatory influences, the health care distribution industry in the United States is under intense scrutiny and subject to fundamental changes. We cannot predict what further reform proposals, if any, will be adopted, when they may be adopted, or what impact they may have on us.

EU Directive on the pricing and reimbursement of medicinal products

EU law provides for the regulation of the pricing of medicinal products which are implemented by EU member states (Directive No. 89/105/EC of 21 December 1988 relating to the transparency of measures regulating the pricing of medicinal products for human use and their inclusion in the scope of national health insurance systems). Member states may, subject notably to transparency conditions and to the statement of reasons based upon objective and verifiable criteria, regulate the price charged (or its increases) for authorized medicines and their level of reimbursement, or they may freeze prices, place controls on the profitability of persons responsible for placing medicinal products on the market, and include or exclude the medicine on the list of products covered by national health insurance systems.

EU law does not expressly include provisions like those of the Sunshine Act in the United States, but a growing number of EU member states (such as France since 2011) have enacted laws to increase the transparency of relationships in the healthcare sector. The scope of these laws varies from one member state to another and may, for example, include the relations between healthcare industry players and physicians or their associations, students preparing for medical professions or their associations, teachers, health establishments or publishers of prescription and dispensing assistance software.

Regulated Software; Electronic Health Records

The FDA has become increasingly active in addressing the regulation of computer software and digital health products intended for use in health care settings. The 21st Century Cures Act (the "Cures Act"), signed into law on December 13, 2016, among other things, amended the medical device definition to exclude certain software from FDA regulation, including clinical decision support software that meets certain criteria. On September 27, 2019, the FDA issued a suite of guidance documents on digital health products, which incorporated applicable Cures Act standards, including regarding the types of clinical decision support tools and other software that are exempt from regulation by the FDA as medical devices, and continues to issue new guidance in this area. Certain of our businesses involve the development and sale of software and related products to support physician and dental practice management, and it is possible that the FDA or foreign government authorities could determine that one or more of our products is a medical device, which could subject us or one or more of our businesses to substantial additional requirements with respect to these products.

In addition, our businesses that involve physician and dental practice management products, and our specialty home medical supply business, include electronic information technology systems that store and process personal health, clinical, financial and other sensitive information of individuals. These information technology systems may be

HENRY SCHEIN, INC.'S APPLICATION
EXPLANATION FOR HISTORY OF COMPANY QUESTION NO. 3:

Question No.3:

Has the corporation, any owner(s), shareholder(s) or partner(s) with at least 10% interest or partners with any interest, ever been subject of an administrative action or proceeding relating to the pharmaceutical industry?

Response:

Based on currently available records/information, and although not necessarily responsive or applicable to the question, Henry Schein, Inc. discloses the following information:

In May 2008, Henry Schein, Inc. resolved a matter with the Florida Department of Health ("DOH") (Case No. 2008-08770; prescription drug wholesaler permit # 22:1315) in connection with a Notice of Violation, alleging that Henry Schein, Inc. sold and/or shipped prescription drugs to an unauthorized recipient, in violation of Chapter 499, Florida Statutes. Henry Schein, Inc. entered into a settlement agreement which resolved the matter without any admission of liability and agreed to make a payment of $5,000. The matter was closed by order dated May 15, 2008.

In July 2011, Henry Schein, Inc. resolved a matter with the Colorado Board of Pharmacy ("BOP") which alleged that Henry Schein, Inc. violated Colorado state statutes and BOP rules by not timely submitting an application for a change of designated representative (Case No. 2011-1806; non-resident prescription drug wholesaler registration # WHO 7115). Henry Schein, Inc. made a payment of $5,500 to resolve the matter.

In November 2011, the Iowa Board of Pharmacy alleged that Henry Schein, Inc. violated Iowa state statutes and regulations in connection with the sale of controlled substances to Des Moines University, whose Iowa Controlled Substances Registration had expired at the time of shipment. (Case No. 2010-35; Wholesale Drug License No. 5328) Henry Schein, Inc. denied the allegations. Henry Schein, Inc. agreed to a Citation and Warning, resolving the matter in April 2012 without any admission of liability and agreed to make a payment of $5,000.

PART I

General

Henry Schein, Inc. is a solutions company for health care professionals powered by a network of people and technology. We believe we are the world's largest provider of health care products and services primarily to office-based dental and medical practitioners, as well as alternate sites of care. Our philosophy is grounded in our commitment to help customers operate a more efficient and successful business so the practitioner can provide better clinical care.

With more than 89 years of experience distributing health care products, we have built a vast set of small, mid-sized and large customers in the dental and medical markets, serving more than one million customers worldwide across dental practices, laboratories, physician practices, and ambulatory surgery centers, as well as government, institutional health care clinics and other alternate care clinics.

We are headquartered in Melville, New York, employ more than 21,600 people (of which approximately 10,700 are based outside the United States) and have operations or affiliates in 32 countries and territories. Our broad global footprint has evolved over time through our organic success as well as through contribution from strategic acquisitions.

We offer a comprehensive selection of more than 120,000 branded products and Henry Schein private brand products in stock, as well as more than 180,000 additional products available as special-order items. Our infrastructure, including over 3.8 million square feet of space in 27 strategically located distribution centers around the world, enables us to historically provide rapid and accurate order fulfillment, better serve our customers and increase our operating efficiency. This infrastructure, together with broad product and service offerings at competitive prices, and a strong commitment to customer service, enables us to be a single source of supply for our customers' needs.

We conduct our business through two reportable segments: (i) health care distribution and (ii) technology and value-added services. These segments offer different products and services to the same customer base. Our dental businesses serve office-based dental practitioners, dental laboratories, schools, government and other institutions. Our medical businesses serve physician offices, urgent care centers, ambulatory care sites, emergency medical technicians, dialysis centers, home health, federal and state governments and large enterprises, such as group practices and integrated delivery networks, among other providers across a wide range of specialties.

The health care distribution reportable segment, combining our global dental and medical businesses, distributes consumable products, dental specialty products, small equipment, laboratory products, large equipment, equipment repair services, branded and generic pharmaceuticals, vaccines, surgical products, diagnostic tests, infection-control products and vitamins. While our primary go-to-market strategy is in our capacity as a distributor, we also market and sell under our own private label portfolio of cost-effective, high-quality consumable merchandise products, and manufacture certain dental specialty products in the areas of implants, orthodontics and endodontics.

The technology and value-added services reportable segment provides software, technology and other value-added services to health care practitioners. Henry Schein One, the largest contributor of sales to this category, offers dental practice management solutions for dental and medical practitioners. In addition, we offer dentists and physicians a broad suite of electronic health records, integrated revenue cycle management, patient communication services including electronic marketing and web-site design, analytics and patient demand generation. Finally, our value-added practice solutions include practice consultancy, education, and the facilitation of financial service offerings (on a non-recourse basis) to help dentists and physicians operate and expand their business operations. We believe our hands-on consultative approach to provide solutions to support practice decision-making is a key differentiator for our business.

Recent Developments

See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations – Recent Developments" herein for a discussion related to the COVID-19 pandemic and recent corporate transactions.

Industry

The global health care distribution industry, as it relates to office-based health care practitioners, is fragmented and diverse. The industry ranges from sole practitioners working out of relatively small offices to mid-sized and large group practices ranging in size from a few practitioners to several hundred practices owned or operated by dental support organizations (DSOs), medical group purchasing organizations (GPOs), hospital systems or integrated delivery networks (IDNs).

Due in part to the inability of office-based health care practitioners to store and manage large quantities of supplies in their offices, the distribution of health care supplies and small equipment to office-based health care practitioners has been characterized by frequent, small quantity orders, and a need for rapid, reliable and substantially complete order fulfillment. The purchasing decisions within an office-based health care practice are typically made by the practitioner, hygienist or office manager. Supplies and small equipment are generally purchased from more than one distributor, with one generally serving as the primary supplier.

The health care distribution industry continues to experience growth due to demand driven by the aging population, increased health care awareness and the importance of preventative care, an increasing understanding of the connection between good oral health and overall health, improved access to care globally, the proliferation of medical technology and testing, new pharmacology treatments and expanded third-party insurance coverage, partially offset by the effects of unemployment on insurance coverage and technological improvements, including the advancement of software and services, prosthetic solutions and telemedicine. In addition, the non-acute market continues to benefit from the shift of procedures and diagnostic testing from acute care settings to alternate-care sites, particularly physicians' offices and ambulatory surgery centers.

We believe that consolidation within the industry will continue to result in a number of distributors, particularly those with limited financial, operating and marketing resources, seeking to combine with larger companies that can provide growth opportunities. This consolidation also may continue to result in distributors seeking to acquire companies that can enhance their current product and service offerings or provide opportunities to serve a broader customer base.

In addition, customer consolidation will likely lead to multiple locations under common management and the movement of more procedures from the hospital setting to the physician or alternate care setting as the health care industry is increasingly focused on efficiency and cost containment. This trend has benefited distributors capable of providing a broad array of products and services at low prices. It also has accelerated the growth of health maintenance organizations ("HMOs"), group practices, other managed care accounts and collective buying groups, which, in addition to their emphasis on obtaining products at competitive prices, tend to favor distributors capable of providing specialized management information support. We believe that the trend towards cost containment has the potential to favorably affect demand for technology solutions, including software, which can enhance the efficiency and facilitation of practice management.

Competition

The distribution and manufacture of health care supplies and equipment is highly competitive. Many of the health care products we sell are available to our customers from a number of suppliers. In addition, our competitors could obtain exclusive rights from manufacturers to market particular products. Manufacturers also could seek to sell directly to end-users, and thereby eliminate or reduce our role and that of other distributors. In certain parts of the dental end market, such as those related to dental specialty products, and medical end market manufacturers already sell directly to end customers.

In North America, we compete with other distributors, as well as several manufacturers, of dental and medical products, primarily on the basis of price, breadth of product line, e-commerce capabilities, customer service and value-added products and services. In the dental market, our primary competitors in the U.S. are the Patterson Dental division of Patterson Companies, Inc. and Benco Dental Supply Company. In addition, we compete against a number of other distributors that operate on a national, regional and local level. Our primary competitors in the U.S. medical market, which accounts for the large majority of our global medical sales, are McKesson Corporation and Medline Industries, Inc., which are national distributors. We also compete with a number of regional and local medical distributors, as well as a number of manufacturers that sell directly to physicians. With regard to our dental software, we compete against numerous companies, including the Patterson Dental division of Patterson Companies, Inc., Carestream Health, Inc., Open Dental Software, Inc., PlanetDDS LLC, Good Methods Global Inc. (d.b.a. CareStack) and Curve Dental, LLC. In other software end markets, including revenue cycle management, patient relationship management and patient demand generation, we compete with companies such as Vyne Therapeutics Inc., EDI-Health Group, Inc. (d.b.a. Dental X Change, Inc.), Weave Communications, Inc., Solutionreach, Inc., ZocDoc, Inc., LocalMed Inc. and Prosites Inc. The medical practice management and electronic medical records market is fragmented and we compete with numerous companies such as the NextGen division of Quality Systems, Inc., eClinicalWorks, Allscripts Healthcare Solutions, Inc. and Epic Systems Corporation.

Outside of the U.S., we believe we are the only global distributor of supplies and equipment to dental practices and our competitors are primarily local and regional companies. We also face significant competition internationally, where we compete on the basis of price and customer service against several large competitors, including the GACD Group, Proclinic SA, Lifco AB, Planmeca Oy and Billericay Dental Supply Co. Ltd., as well as a large number of other dental and medical product distributors and manufacturers in international countries and territories we serve.

Competitive Strengths

We have more than 89 years of experience in distributing products to health care practitioners resulting in strong awareness of the Henry Schein® brand. Our competitive strengths include:

A focus on meeting our customers' unique needs. We are committed to providing customized solutions to our customers that are driven by our understanding of the end markets we serve and reflect the technology-driven products and services best suited for their practice needs. We are committed to continuing to enhance these offerings through organic investment in our products and our teams, as well as through the acquisition of new products and services that may help us better serve our customers.

Direct sales and marketing expertise. Our sales and marketing efforts are designed to establish and solidify customer relationships through personal or virtual visits by field sales representatives, frequent direct marketing and telesales contact, emphasizing our broad product lines, including exclusive distribution agreements, competitive prices and ease of order placement, particularly through our e-commerce platforms. The key elements of our direct sales and marketing efforts are:

- Field sales consultants. We have over 3,450 field sales consultants, including equipment sales specialists, covering major North American, European and other international markets. These consultants complement our direct marketing and telesales efforts and enable us to better market, service and support the sale of more sophisticated products and equipment.

- Marketing. During 2021, we marketed to existing and prospective office-based health care providers through a combination of owned, earned and paid digital channels, as well as through catalogs, flyers, direct mail and other promotional materials. Our strategies included an emphasis on educational content through webinars and content marketing initiatives. We continue to enhance our marketing technology to improve our targeting capability and the relevance of messaging and offers.

- Telesales. We support our direct marketing effort with approximately 2,100 inbound and outbound telesales representatives, who facilitate order processing, generate new sales through direct and frequent contact with customers and stay abreast of market developments and the hundreds of new products, services and technologies introduced each year to educate practice personnel.

- Electronic commerce solutions. We provide our customers and sales teams with innovative and competitive e-commerce solutions. We continue to invest in our e-commerce platform to offer enhanced content management so customers can more easily find the products they need and to enable an engaging purchase experience, supported by excellent customer service.

- Social media. Our operating entities and employees engage our customers and supplier partners through various social media platforms, which are an important element of our communications and marketing efforts. We continue to expand our social media presence to raise awareness about issues, engage customers beyond a sale and deliver services and solutions to specialized audiences.

Broad product and service offerings at competitive prices. We offer a broad range of products and services to our customers, at competitive prices, in the following categories:

- Consumable supplies and equipment. We distribute consumable products, small equipment, laboratory products, large equipment, equipment repair services, branded and generic pharmaceuticals, vaccines, dental specialty products, diagnostic tests, infection-control products and vitamins. We offer over 120,000 Stock Keeping Units, or SKUs, to our customers. We offer over 180,000 additional SKUs to our customers in the form of special order items. We also market and sell our own private label portfolio of cost-effective, high-quality consumable merchandise products and manufacture certain dental specialty products in the areas of implants, orthodontics and endodontics.

- Technology and other value-added products and services. We sell practice management, business analytics, patient engagement and patient demand creation software solutions to our dental customers. Our practice management solutions provide practitioners with electronic medical records, patient treatment history, analytics, billing, accounts receivable analyses and management, appointment calendars, electronic claims processing and word processing programs, network and hardware services, e-commerce and electronic marketing services, sourcing third party patient payment plans, transition services and training and education programs for practitioners. We also sell medical software for practice management, certified electronic health records ("EHR") and e-Prescribe medications and prescription solutions through MicroMD®. We have approximately 950 technical representatives supporting customers using our practice management solutions and services. As of December 25, 2021, we had an active user base of approximately 95,700 practices and 400,000 consumers, including users of AxiUm, Dentally®, Dentrix Ascend®, Dental Vision®, Dentrix® Dental Systems, Dentrix® Enterprise, Easy Dental®, EndoVision®, Evolution® and EXACT®, Gesden®, Jarvis Analytics™, Julie® Software, Oasis, OMSVision®, Orisline®, PBS Endo®, PerioVision®, Power Practice® Px, PowerDent, and Vlive® and subscriptions for Demandforce®, Sesame, and Lighthouse360® for dental practices and DentalPlans.com® for dental patients; and MicroMD® for physician practices.

- Repair services. We have over 140 equipment sales and service centers worldwide that provide a variety of repair, installation and technical services for our health care customers. Our over 2,175 technicians provide installation and repair services for: dental handpieces; dental and medical small equipment; table-top sterilizers and large dental equipment.

- Financial services. We offer our customers solutions in operating their practices more efficiently by providing access to a number of financial services and products provided by third party suppliers (including non-recourse financing for equipment, technology and software products, non-recourse practice financing for leasehold improvements, business debt consolidation and commercial real estate, non-recourse patient financing and credit card processing) at rates that we believe are generally lower than what our customers would be able to secure independently. We also provide staffing services, dental practice valuation and brokerage services.

Commitment to superior customer service. We maintain a strong commitment to providing superior customer service. We frequently monitor our customer service through customer surveys, focus groups and statistical reports. Our customer service policy primarily focuses on:

- Exceptional order fulfillment. We ship an average of approximately 156,000 cartons daily. Historically, approximately 99% of items have been shipped without back ordering and were shipped on the same business day the order is received. Due to the significant increase in demand for personal protective equipment ("PPE"), as a result of COVID-19, during the year ended December 25, 2021, approximately 96% of items ordered were shipped without back ordering. As the demand for PPE stabilizes, we expect our percentage of items shipped without back-ordering and shipped on the same day to return to historical levels.

- Comprehensive ordering process. Customers may place orders 24 hours a day, 7 days a week via e-commerce solutions, telephone, fax, e-mail and mail.

Integrated management information systems. Our information systems generally allow for centralized management of key functions, including accounts receivable, inventory, accounts payable, payroll, purchasing, sales, order fulfillment and financial and operational reporting. These systems allow us to manage our growth, deliver superior customer service, properly target customers, manage financial performance and monitor daily operational statistics.

Cost-effective purchasing. We believe that cost-effective purchasing is a key element to maintaining and enhancing our position as a competitively priced provider of health care products. We continuously evaluate our purchase requirements and suppliers' offerings and prices in order to obtain products at the lowest possible cost. In 2021, our top 10 health care distribution suppliers and our single largest supplier accounted for approximately 30% and 4%, respectively, of our aggregate purchases.

Efficient distribution. We distribute our products from our strategically located distribution centers. We strive to maintain optimal inventory levels in order to satisfy customer demand for prompt delivery and complete order fulfillment. These inventory levels are managed on a daily basis with the aid of our management information systems. Once an order is entered, it is electronically transmitted to the distribution center nearest the customer's location for order fulfillment.

Products and Services

The following table sets forth the percentage of consolidated net sales by principal categories of products and services offered through our health care distribution and technology and value-added services reportable segments:

	December 25, 2021	December 26, 2020	December 28, 2019

(2) Includes branded and generic pharmaceuticals, vaccines, surgical products, diagnostic tests, infection-control products, X-ray products, equipment, PPE and vitamins.

(3) Consists of practice management software and other value-added products, which are distributed primarily to health care providers, and financial services on a non-recourse basis, e-services, continuing education services for practitioners, consulting and other services.

(4) Corporate TSA revenues represents sales of certain products to Covetrus under the transition services agreement entered into in connection with the Animal Health Spin-off, which ended in December 2020. See Note 21 Related Party Transactions for further information.

Business Strategy

Our objective is to continue to expand as a global value-added provider of health care products and services to office-based dental and medical practitioners by increasing their efficiency and success. To accomplish this, we apply our competitive strengths in executing the following strategies:

- Increase penetration of our existing customer base. We have over 1 million customers worldwide and we intend to increase sales to our existing customer base and enhance our position as their primary supplier. We believe our offering of a broad range of products, services and support, including software solutions that can help drive improved workflow efficiency and patient communications for practices, coupled with our full-service value proposition, helps us to retain and grow our customer base.

- Increase the number of customers we serve. This strategy includes increasing the productivity of our field sales consultants and telesales team, as well as using our customer database to focus our marketing efforts in all of our operating segments. In the dental business, we provide products and services to independent practices, mid-market groups, and large DSOs as well as community health centers and government sites of care. Leveraging our broad array of assets and capabilities, we offer solutions to address these new markets. In the medical business, we have expanded to serve customers located in settings outside of the traditional office, such as urgent care clinics, retail, occupational health and home health settings. As settings of health care shift, we remain committed to serving these practitioners and providing them with the products and services they need.

- Leverage our value-added products and services. We continue to increase cross-selling efforts for key product lines utilizing a consultative selling process. In the dental business, we have significant cross-selling opportunities between our dental software users and our dental distribution customers. In the medical business, we have opportunities to expand our vaccine, injectables and other pharmaceuticals sales to health care practitioners, as well as cross-selling EHR systems and software when we sell our core products. Our strategy extends to providing health systems, integrated delivery networks and other large group and multi-site health care organizations, including physician clinics, these same value added products and services. As physicians and health systems closely align, we have increased access to opportunities for cross-marketing and selling our product and service portfolios.

- Pursue strategic acquisitions and joint ventures. Our acquisition strategy is focused on investments in companies that add new customers and sales teams, increase our geographic footprint (whether entering a new country, such as emerging markets, or building scale where we have already invested in businesses), and finally, those that enable us to access new products and technologies.

Markets Served

Demographic trends indicate that our markets are growing, as an aging U.S. population is increasingly using health care services. According to the U.S. Census Bureau's International Database, between 2021 and 2031, the 45 and older population is expected to grow by approximately 11%. Between 2021 and 2041, this age group is expected to grow by approximately 22%. This compares with expected total U.S. population growth rates of approximately 7% between 2021 and 2031 and approximately 12% between 2021 and 2041.

In the dental industry, there is predicted to be a rise in oral health care expenditures as the 45-and-older segment of the population increases. There is increasing demand for new technologies that allow dentists to increase productivity, and this is being driven in the U.S. by lower insurance reimbursement rates. At the same time, there is an expected increase in dental insurance coverage.

In the medical market, there continues to be a migration of procedures from acute-care settings to physicians' offices and home health settings, a trend that we believe provides additional opportunities for us. There also is the continuing use of vaccines, injectables and other pharmaceuticals in alternate-care settings. We believe we have established a leading position as a vaccine supplier to the office-based physician practitioner.

We support our dental and medical professionals through the many SKUs that we offer, as well as through important value-added services, including practice management software, electronic claims processing, financial services and continuing education, all designed to help maximize a practitioner's efficiency.

Additionally, we seek to expand our dental full-service model and medical offerings in countries where opportunities exist. We do this through both direct sales and by partnering with local distribution companies.

For information on revenues and long-lived assets by geographic area, see Note 3 – Segment and Geographic Data of "Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements."

Seasonality and Other Factors Affecting Our Business and Quarterly Results

We experience fluctuations in quarterly earnings. As a result, we may fail to meet or exceed the expectations of securities analysts and investors, which could cause our stock price to decline.

Our business is subject to seasonal and other quarterly fluctuations. Sales and profitability generally have been higher in the third and fourth quarters due to the timing of sales of seasonal products (including influenza vaccine) purchasing patterns of office-based health care practitioners for certain products (including equipment and software) and year-end promotions. Sales and profitability may also be impacted by the timing of certain annual and biennial dental tradeshows where equipment promotions are offered. In addition, some dental practices delay equipment purchases in the U.S. until year-end due to tax incentives. We expect our historical seasonality of sales to continue in the foreseeable future.

Governmental Regulations

We strive to be compliant with the applicable laws, regulations and guidance described below, and believe we have effective compliance programs and other controls in place to ensure substantial compliance. However, compliance is not guaranteed either now or in the future, as certain laws, regulations and guidance may be subject to varying and evolving interpretations that could affect our ability to comply, as well as future changes, additions and enforcement approaches, including political changes. President Biden's administration (the "Biden Administration") has indicated that it will be more aggressive in its pursuit of alleged violations of law, and it has revoked certain guidance that would have limited governmental use of informal agency guidance to pursue potential violations, as well as that it was more prepared to pursue individuals for corporate law violations, including an aggressive approach to anti-corruption activities. Changes to applicable laws, regulations and guidance described below, as well as related administrative or judicial interpretations, may require us to update or revise our operations, services, marketing practices and compliance programs and controls, and may impose additional and unforeseen costs on us, pose new or previously immaterial risks to us, or may otherwise have a material adverse effect on our business.

Government

Certain of our businesses involve the distribution, importation, exportation, marketing and sale of, and third party payment for, pharmaceuticals and medical devices, and in this regard, we are subject to extensive local, state, federal and foreign governmental laws and regulations, including as applicable to our wholesale distribution of pharmaceuticals and medical devices, and as part of our specialty home medical supply business that distributes and sells medical equipment and supplies directly to patients. The federal government and state governments have also increased enforcement activity in the health care sector, particularly in areas of fraud and abuse, anti-bribery and corruption, controlled substances handling, medical device regulations and data privacy and security standards.

Government and private insurance programs fund a large portion of the total cost of medical care, and there have been efforts to limit such private and government insurance programs, including efforts, thus far unsuccessful, to seek repeal of the entire United States Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, as amended by the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act, each enacted in March 2010, (as amended, the "ACA"). In addition, activities to control medical costs, including laws and regulations lowering reimbursement rates for pharmaceuticals, medical devices and/or medical treatments or services, are ongoing. Many of these laws and regulations are subject to change and their evolving implementation may impact our operations and our financial performance.

Our businesses are also generally subject to numerous other laws and regulations that could impact our financial performance, including securities, antitrust, consumer protection, anti-bribery and anti-kickback, customer interaction transparency, data privacy, data security, government contracting, price gouging and other laws and regulations.

Failure to comply with laws, rules or regulations could have a material adverse effect on our business.

Operating, Security and Licensure Standards

Certain of our businesses are subject to local, state and federal governmental laws and regulations relating to the distribution of pharmaceuticals and medical devices and supplies. Among the United States federal laws applicable to us are the Controlled Substances Act, the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as amended ("FDC Act"), and Section 361 of the Public Health Service Act, as well as laws regulating the billing of and reimbursement from government programs, such as Medicare and Medicaid, and from commercial payers. We are also subject to comparable foreign regulations.

The FDC Act, the Controlled Substances Act, their implementing regulations, and similar foreign laws generally regulate the introduction, manufacture, advertising, marketing and promotion, sampling, pricing and reimbursement, labeling, packaging, storage, handling, returning or recalling, reporting, and distribution of, and record keeping for, pharmaceuticals and medical devices shipped in interstate commerce, and states may similarly regulate such activities within the state. Furthermore, Section 361 of the Public Health Service Act, which provides authority to prevent the introduction, transmission or spread of communicable diseases, serves as the legal basis for the United States Food and Drug Administration's ("FDA") regulation of human cells, tissues and cellular and tissue-based products, also known as "HCT/P products."

The Federal Drug Quality and Security Act of 2013 brought about significant changes with respect to pharmaceutical supply chain requirements. Title II of this measure, known as the Drug Supply Chain Security Act ("DSCSA"), is being phased in over a period of ten years, and is intended to build a national electronic, interoperable system by November 27, 2023, that will identify and trace certain prescription drugs as they are distributed in the United States. The law's track and trace requirements applicable to manufacturers, wholesalers, repackagers and dispensers (e.g., pharmacies) of prescription drugs took effect in January 2015, and continues to be implemented. The DSCSA product tracing requirements replace the former FDA drug pedigree requirements and pre-empt certain state requirements that are inconsistent with, more stringent than, or in addition to, the DSCSA requirements.

The DSCSA also establishes certain requirements for the licensing and operation of prescription drug wholesalers and third-party logistics providers ("3PLs"), and includes the eventual creation of national wholesaler and 3PL licenses in cases where states do not license such entities. The DSCSA requires that wholesalers and 3PLs distribute drugs in accordance with certain standards regarding the recordkeeping, storage and handling of prescription drugs. The DSCSA requires wholesalers and 3PLs to submit annual reports to the FDA, which include information regarding each state where the wholesaler or 3PL is licensed, the name and address of each facility and contact information. According to FDA guidance, states are pre-empted from imposing any licensing requirements that are inconsistent with, less stringent than, directly related to, or covered by the standards established by federal law in this area. Current state licensing requirements concerning wholesalers will remain in effect until the FDA issues new regulations as directed by the DSCSA. In addition, with respect to our specialty home medical supply business, we are subject to certain state licensure laws (including state pharmacy laws), and also certain accreditation standards, including to qualify for reimbursement from Medicare and other third-party payers.

The Food and Drug Administration Amendments Act of 2007 and the Food and Drug Administration Safety and Innovation Act of 2012 amended the FDC Act to require the FDA to promulgate regulations to implement a unique device identification ("UDI") system. The UDI rule phased in the implementation of the UDI regulations, generally beginning with the highest-risk devices (i.e., Class III medical devices) and ending with the lowest-risk devices. Most compliance dates were reached as of September 24, 2018, with a final set of requirements for low risk devices being reached on September 24, 2022, which will complete the phase in. However, in May 2021, the FDA issued an enforcement policy stating that it does not intend to object to the use of legacy identification numbers on device labels and packages for finished devices manufactured and labeled prior to September 24, 2023. The UDI regulations require "labelers" to include unique device identifiers ("UDIs"), with a content and format prescribed by the FDA and issued under a system operated by an FDA-accredited issuing agency, on the labels and packages of medical devices (including, but not limited to, certain software that qualifies as a medical device under FDA rules), and to directly mark certain devices with UDIs. The UDI regulations also require labelers to submit certain information concerning UDI-labeled devices to the FDA, much of which information is publicly available on an FDA database, the Global Unique Device Identification Database. The UDI regulations and subsequent FDA guidance regarding the UDI requirements provide for certain exceptions, alternatives and time extensions. For example, the UDI regulations include a general exception for Class I devices exempt from the Quality System Regulation (other than record-keeping requirements and complaint files). Regulated labelers include entities such as device manufacturers, repackagers, reprocessors and relabelers that cause a device's label to be applied or modified, with the intent that the device will be commercially distributed without any subsequent replacement or modification of the label and include certain of our businesses.

Under the Controlled Substances Act, as a distributor of controlled substances, we are required to obtain and renew annually registrations for our facilities from the United States Drug Enforcement Administration ("DEA") permitting us to handle controlled substances. We are also subject to other statutory and regulatory requirements relating to the storage, sale, marketing, handling, reporting, record-keeping and distribution of such drugs, in accordance with the Controlled Substances Act and its implementing regulations, and these requirements have been subject to heightened enforcement activity in recent times. We are subject to inspection by the DEA. Certain of our businesses are also required to register for permits and/or licenses with, and comply with operating and security standards of, the DEA, the FDA, the United States Department of Health and Human Services ("HHS"), and various state boards of pharmacy, state health departments and/or comparable state agencies as well as comparable foreign agencies, and certain accrediting bodies, depending on the type of operations and location of product distribution, manufacturing or sale. These businesses include those that distribute, manufacture and/or repackage prescription pharmaceuticals and/or medical devices and/or HCT/P products, or own pharmacy operations, or install, maintain or repair equipment.

In addition, Section 301 of the National Organ Transplant Act, and a number of comparable state laws, impose civil and/or criminal penalties for the transfer of certain human tissue (for example, human bone products) for valuable consideration, while generally permitting payments for the reasonable costs incurred in procuring, processing, storing and distributing that tissue. We are also subject to foreign government regulation of such products. The DEA, the FDA and state regulatory authorities have broad inspection and enforcement powers, including the ability to suspend or limit the distribution of products by our distribution centers, seize or order the recall of products and impose significant criminal, civil and administrative sanctions for violations of these laws and regulations. Foreign regulations subject us to similar foreign enforcement powers.

EU Regulation of Medicinal and Dental Products

European Union ("EU") member states regulate their own healthcare systems, as does EU law. The latter regulates certain matters, most notably medicinal products and medical devices. Medicinal products are defined, broadly, as substances or combinations of substances having certain functionalities and may not include medical devices. EU "regulations" apply in all Member States, whereas "directives" are implemented by the individual laws of member states.

On medicines for humans, we are regulated under Directive No. 2001/83/EC of 6 November 2001, as amended by Directive 2003/63/EC of 25 June 2003, and EU Regulation (EC) No. 726/2004 of 31 March 2004. These rules provide for the authorization of products, and regulate their manufacture, importation, marketing and distribution. It implements requirements which may be implemented without warning, as well as a national pharmacovigilance system under which marketing authorizations may be withdrawn, and includes potential sanctions for breaches of the rules, and on other bases such as harmfulness or inefficiency.

EU Regulation No. 1223/2009 of 30 November 2009 on cosmetic products requires that cosmetic products (which includes dental products) be safe for human health when used under normal or reasonably foreseeable conditions of use and comply with certain obligations which apply to manufacturer, importer and distributor. It includes market surveillance, and non-compliance may result in the recall or withdrawal of products, along with other sanctions.

In the EU, the EU Medical Device Regulation No. 2017/745 of 5 April 2017 ("EU MDR") covers a wide scope of our activities, from dental material to X-ray machines, and certain software. It was meant to become applicable three years after publication (i.e., May 26, 2020). However, on April 23, 2020, to allow European Economic Area ("EEA") national authorities, notified bodies, manufacturers and other actors to focus fully on urgent priorities related to the COVID-19 pandemic, the European Council and Parliament adopted Regulation 2020/561, postponing the date of application of the EU MDR by one year (to May 26, 2021).

The EU MDR significantly modifies and intensifies the regulatory compliance requirements for the medical device industry as a whole. Among other things, the EU MDR:

- strengthens the rules on placing devices on the market and reinforces surveillance once they are available;
- establishes explicit provisions on manufacturers' responsibilities for the follow-up of the quality, performance and safety of devices placed on the market;
- improves the traceability of medical devices throughout the supply chain to the end-user or patient through a unique identification number;
- sets up a central database to provide patients, healthcare professionals and the public with comprehensive information on products available in the EU;
- strengthens rules for the assessment of certain high-risk devices, such as implants, which may have to undergo an additional check by experts before they are placed on the market; and
- identifies importers and distributors and medical device products through registration in a database (EUDAMED not due until May 26, 2022 and after).

In particular, the EU MDR imposes stricter requirements for the confirmation that a product meets the regulatory requirements, including regarding a product's clinical evaluation and a company's quality systems, and for the distribution, marketing and sale of medical devices, including post-market surveillance. Medical devices that have been assessed and/or certified under the EU Medical Device Directive may continue to be placed on the market until 2024 (or until the expiry of their certificates, if applicable and earlier); however, requirements regarding the distribution, marketing and sale including quality systems and post-market surveillance have to be observed by manufacturers, importers and distributors as of the application date.

Other EU regulations that may apply under appropriate circumstances include EU Regulation No. 1907/2006 of 18 December 2006 concerning the Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals, which requires importers to register substances or mixtures that they import in the EU beyond certain quantities, and the EU Regulation No. 1272/2008 of 16 December 2008 on classification, labelling and packaging of substances and mixtures, which sets various obligations with respect to the labelling and packaging of concerned substances and mixtures.

Furthermore, compliance with legal requirements has required and may in the future require us to delay product release, sale or distribution, or institute voluntary recalls of, or other corrective action with respect, to products we sell, each of which could result in regulatory and enforcement actions, financial losses and potential reputational harm. Our customers are also subject to significant federal, state, local and foreign governmental regulation, which may affect our interactions with customers, including the design and functionality of our products.

Certain of our businesses are subject to various additional federal, state, local and foreign laws and regulations, including with respect to the sale, transportation, storage, handling and disposal of hazardous or potentially hazardous substances, and safe working conditions. In addition, certain of our businesses must operate in compliance with a variety of burdensome and complex billing and record-keeping requirements in order to substantiate claims for payment under federal, state and commercial healthcare reimbursement programs. One of these businesses was recently suspended by CMS from receiving payments from Medicare, although it is permitted to continue to perform and bill for Medicare services. The amounts billed are being deposited in an escrow account pending resolution of an audit. The Company has not recognized revenue for these services and has currently deferred slightly over $4 million in revenue.

Certain of our businesses also maintain contracts with governmental agencies and are subject to certain regulatory requirements specific to government contractors.

Antitrust and Consumer Protection

The federal government of the United States, most U.S. states and many foreign countries have antitrust laws that prohibit certain types of conduct deemed to be anti-competitive, as well as consumer protection laws that seek to protect consumers from improper business practices. At the U.S. federal level, the Federal Trade Commission oversees enforcement of these types of laws, and states have similar government agencies. Violations of antitrust or consumer protection laws may result in various sanctions, including criminal and civil penalties. Private plaintiffs may also bring civil lawsuits against us in the United States for alleged antitrust law violations, including claims for treble damages. EU law also regulates competition and provides for detailed rules protecting consumers. The Biden Administration has indicated increased antitrust enforcement and has been more aggressive in enforcement activities.

Health Care Fraud

Certain of our businesses are subject to federal and state (and similar foreign) health care fraud and abuse, referral and reimbursement laws and regulations with respect to their operations. Some of these laws, referred to as "false claims laws," prohibit the submission or causing the submission of false or fraudulent claims for reimbursement to federal, state and other health care payers and programs. Other laws, referred to as "anti-kickback laws," prohibit soliciting, offering, receiving or paying remuneration in order to induce the referral of a patient or ordering, purchasing, leasing or arranging for, or recommending ordering, purchasing or leasing of, items or services that are paid for by federal, state and other health care payers and programs. Certain additional state and federal laws, such as the federal Physician Self-Referral Law, commonly known as the "Stark Law," prohibit physicians and other health professionals from referring a patient to an entity with which the physician (or family member) has a financial relationship, for the furnishing of certain designated health services (for example, durable medical equipment and medical supplies), unless an exception applies. Violations of Anti-Kickback Statutes or the Stark Law may be enforced as violations of the federal False Claims Act.

The fraud and abuse laws and regulations have been subject to heightened enforcement activity over the past few years, and significant enforcement activity has been the result of "relators" who serve as whistleblowers by filing complaints in the name of the United States (and if applicable, particular states) under applicable false claims laws, and who may receive up to 30% of total government recoveries. Penalties under fraud and abuse laws may be severe, including treble damages and substantial civil penalties under the federal False Claims Act, as well as potential loss of licenses and the ability to participate in federal and state health care programs, criminal penalties, or imposition of a corporate compliance monitor which could have a material adverse effect on our business. Also, these measures may be interpreted or applied by a prosecutorial, regulatory or judicial authority in a manner that could require us to make changes in our operations or incur substantial defense and settlement expenses. Even unsuccessful challenges by regulatory authorities or private relators could result in reputational harm and the incurring of substantial costs. Most states have adopted similar state false claims laws, and these state laws have their own penalties, which may be in addition to federal False Claims Act penalties, as well as other fraud and abuse laws.

With respect to measures of this type, the United States government (among others) has expressed concerns about financial relationships between suppliers on the one hand and physicians and dentists on the other. As a result, we regularly review and revise our marketing practices as necessary to facilitate compliance.

We also are subject to certain United States and foreign laws and regulations concerning the conduct of our foreign operations, including the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, the U.K. Bribery Act, German anti-corruption laws and other anti-bribery laws and laws pertaining to the accuracy of our internal books and records, which have been the focus of increasing enforcement activity globally in recent years.

While we believe that we are substantially compliant with applicable fraud and abuse laws and regulations, and have adequate compliance programs and controls in place to ensure substantial compliance, we cannot predict whether changes in applicable law, or interpretation of laws, or changes in our services or marketing practices in response to changes in applicable law or interpretation of laws, or failure to comply with applicable law, could have a material adverse effect on our business.

RE: InfuSystem

To Whom it May Concern:

Wholesale Distributors headquartered or with a facility in Massachusetts must register with the Department unless the Wholesale Distributor does not store or distribute prescription medications or medical devices that contain a prescription medication. Therefore, InfuSystem, is neither required nor eligible for licensure with the Commonwealth and stands in compliance with Massachusetts laws and regulations in this regard.

Cautionary Statement About Forward-Looking Statements

Certain statements contained in this Form 10-K are forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act") and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"). The words "believe," "may," "will," "estimate," "continue," "anticipate," "intend," "should," "plan," "expect," "strategy," "future," "likely," variations of such words, and other similar expressions, as they relate to the Company, are intended to identify forward-looking statements. However, the absence of these words or similar expressions does not mean that a statement is not forward-looking. In connection with the "safe harbor" provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, the Company is identifying certain factors that could cause actual results to differ, perhaps materially, from those indicated by these forward-looking statements. InfuSystem does not intend and does not undertake any obligation to update any forward-looking statement to reflect future events or circumstances after the date of such statements, except as may be required by law. Important factors that could cause our actual results and financial condition to differ materially from the forward-looking statements include, without limitation, those described in "Risk Factors" and elsewhere in this Form 10-K, and the following:

- changes in third-party reimbursement processes, rates, contractual relationships and payer mix;
- our dependence on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement;
- risks associated with the loss of a relationship with one or more third-party payers;
- risks associated with a federal government shutdown;
- risks associated with payer concentration;
- physicians' acceptance of infusion pump therapy over alternative therapies and focus on early detection and diagnostics;
- our dependence on our Medicare Suppler Number, which allows us to bill Medicare for services provided to Medicare patients;
- availability of chemotherapy drugs used in our infusion pump systems;
- our expectations regarding enacted and potential legislative and regulatory changes impacting, among other things, the level of reimbursement received from the Medicare and state Medicaid programs including the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services ("CMS") competitive bidding;
- our dependence upon our suppliers;
- periodic reviews and billing audits from governmental and private payers;
- our ability to maintain controls and processes over billing and collection and the adequacy of our allowance for doubtful accounts and customer concessions;
- our ability to comply with state licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers;
- risks associated with our allowance for doubtful accounts and customer concessions;
- our ability to execute our business strategies to grow our business, including our ability to introduce new products and services;
- industry competition;
- compliance with regulatory guidelines affecting our billing practices;
- defective products manufactured by third-party suppliers;
- our ability to execute on acquisition and joint-venture opportunities and integrate any acquired businesses;
- our ability to maintain relationships with health care professionals and organizations;
- our ability to comply with changing health care regulations;
- our ability to protect our intellectual property;
- our ability to remain in compliance with our credit agreement or future debt agreements;
- general economic uncertainty;
- changes in tax laws or challenges to our tax positions;
- the value of our net operating loss carryforwards may become impaired if we do not generate sufficient future taxable income required to utilize all or a portion of our net operating loss carryforwards prior to their expiration;
- volatility in the market price of our stock;
- the future price of our stock may be negatively affected by not paying dividends;
- potential dilution to current stockholders from the issuance of equity awards;
- we may be subject to limitations on net operating loss carryforwards and certain built-in losses following an ownership change;
- our ability to remediate the material weaknesses in our internal control over financial reporting;
- the long-term effects of the coronavirus ("COVID-19") pandemic, or any other global pandemic or disease outbreak, on our business;

- litigation or other legal or regulatory proceedings in which we may be involved from time to time;
- risks associated with the collection of sales or consumption taxes;
- our ability to implement, both internally and externally, information technology improvements and to respond to technological changes, interruptions and security breaches;
- natural disasters, pandemics, acts of war or terrorism and other external events affecting us, our customers or our suppliers; and
- our ability to hire and retain key employees.

These risks are not exhaustive. Other sections of this Form 10-K include additional factors which could adversely impact our business and financial performance. Moreover, we operate in a very competitive and changing environment. New risk factors emerge from time to time and it is not possible for us to predict all risk factors, nor can we assess the impact of all factors on our business or the extent to which any factor, or combination of factors, may cause actual results to differ materially from those contained in any forward-looking statements. All forward-looking statements made in this Form 10-K speak only as of the date of this report. We do not intend, and do not undertake any obligation, to update any forward-looking statements to reflect future events or circumstances after the date of such statements, except as required by law.

You should not rely upon forward-looking statements as predictions of future events. Our actual results and financial condition may differ materially from those indicated in the forward-looking statements. We qualify all of our forward-looking statements by these cautionary statements. Although we believe that the expectations reflected in the forward-looking statements are reasonable, we cannot guarantee future results, levels of activity, performance or achievements. Therefore, you should not rely on any of the forward-looking statements. In addition, with respect to all of our forward-looking statements, we claim the protection of the safe harbor for forward-looking statements contained in the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995.

PART I

Item 1. Business.

Background

The Company is a Delaware corporation, formed in 2005. It operates through operating subsidiaries, including InfuSystem Holdings USA, Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Holdings"), InfuSystem, Inc., a California corporation ("ISI"), First Biomedical, Inc., a Kansas corporation ("First Biomedical"), and IFC, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("IFC").

Business Concept and Strategy

We are a leading national health care service provider, facilitating outpatient care for Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and health care providers. We provide our products and services to hospitals, oncology practices, ambulatory surgery centers, and other alternate site health care providers. Our headquarters is in Rochester Hills, Michigan, and we operate our business from a total of seven locations in the United States ("U.S.") and Canada.

Our services are provided under a two-platform model. Our lead platform, Integrated Therapy Services ("ITS"), provides the last-mile solution for clinic-to-home healthcare where the continuing treatment involves complex Durable Medical Equipment and services. Our second platform, Durable Medical Equipment Services ("DME Services"), supports our ITS platform and leverages the Company's strong service orientation to win incremental business from our direct payer clients.

We believe InfuSystem has a lot to offer the healthcare community. Over the last 30 plus years, we have developed a unique expertise and service offering that Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and health care providers are using to reduce costs, improve service, and most importantly, provide welcome options for patients who want to continue their healthcare treatments from home. We perfected our ITS model in oncology and have proven that we can extend this model into other Durable Medical Equipment therapies. Key is the ability to leverage our existing platforms – the new therapies do not require building a new infrastructure; we simply add incrementally to the systems already in place (e.g., sales, clinical, logistics, revenue cycle management, and biomedical services).

ITS is presented as a "turnkey" solution allowing our health care provider customers to focus on the practice of medicine. InfuSystem provides the Durable Medical Equipment and treatment consumables, handles the logistics around orders and deliveries, provides 24x7 nursing support relating to the provided equipment, assumes responsibility for third-party payer Durable Medical Equipment billing, and handles biomedical services (inspection, repair, certification and replacement) for the Durable Medical Equipment. DME Services are provided as a "concierge" offering, whereby InfuSystem leverages its strong service orientation to provide incremental services to our health care provider customers on a direct payer model. DME Services include equipment rental and sales, consumable sales, and biomedical support services.

InfuSystem competes for and retains its business primarily on the basis of its long participation and strong reputation in the Durable Medical Equipment space, its long-standing relationships with Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and its health care provider customers, and the high levels of service it provides. Current barriers to entry for potential competitors are created by our: (i) growing number of third-party payer networks under contract, which included nearly 800 third-party payer networks as of December 31, 2022, an increase of 4% over the prior year period; (ii) economies of scale, which allow for predictable reimbursement and less costly purchase and management of the pumps, respectively; (iii) established, long-standing relationships as a provider of pumps to outpatient oncology practices in the U.S. and Canada; (iv) our large pump fleet of ambulatory and large volume infusion pumps for rent and for sale, which may allow us to be more responsive to the needs of physicians, outpatient oncology practices, hospitals, outpatient surgery centers, homecare practices, patient rehabilitation centers and patients than a new market entrant; (v) seven geographic locations in the U.S. and Canada that allow for same-day or next-day delivery of pumps; (vi) our growing team of field-based and traveling biomedical technicians; and (vii) a wide array of pump repair and service capabilities. We do not perform any research and development on pumps, but we have made, and continue to make, investments in our information technology.

ITS Segment

The ITS segment's core purpose is to seek opportunities to grow our business by leveraging our unique know-how in clinic-to-home health care involving Durable Medical Equipment, our logistics and billing capabilities, our growing network of third-party payers under contract, and our clinical and biomedical capabilities. This leverage may take the form of new products and/or services, strategic alliances, joint ventures and/or acquisitions. The leading service within our ITS segment is to supply electronic ambulatory infusion pumps and associated disposable supply kits to private oncology clinics, infusion clinics and hospital outpatient oncology clinics to be utilized in the treatment of a variety of cancers, including colorectal cancer and other disease states ("Oncology Business"). Colorectal cancer is the fourth most prevalent form of cancer in the U.S., according to the American Cancer Society, and the standard of care for the treatment of colorectal cancer relies upon continuous chemotherapy infusions delivered via ambulatory infusion pumps. One of the goals for the ITS segment is to expand into treatment of other types of cancers. In 2022, our Oncology Business approximated 91% of our total ITS segment net revenues. In 2022, we generated approximately 47% of our total ITS segment net revenues from treatments for colorectal cancer and 44% of our ITS segment net revenues from treatments for non-colorectal disease states. There are a number of approved treatment protocols for pancreatic, head and neck, esophageal and other types of cancers, as well as other disease states which present opportunities for growth. There are also a number of other drugs currently approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (the "FDA"), as well as agents in the pharmaceutical development pipeline, which we believe could potentially be used with continuous infusion protocols for the treatment of diseases other than colorectal cancer. Additional drugs or protocols currently in clinical trials may also obtain regulatory approval over the next several years. If these new drugs or protocols obtain regulatory approval for use with continuous infusion protocols, we expect the pharmaceutical companies to focus their sales and marketing efforts on promoting the new drugs and protocols to physicians.

Furthermore, our Oncology Business focuses mainly on the continuous infusion of chemotherapy. Continuous infusion of chemotherapy can be described as the gradual administration of a drug via a small, lightweight, portable infusion pump over a prolonged period of time. A cancer patient can receive his or her medicine anywhere from one to 30 days per month depending on the chemotherapy regimen that is most appropriate to that individual's health status and disease state. This may be followed by periods of rest and then repeated cycles with treatment goals of progression-free disease survival. This drug administration method has replaced intravenous push or bolus administration in specific circumstances. The advantages of slow continuous low doses of certain drugs are well documented. Clinical studies support the use of continuous infusion chemotherapy for decreased toxicity without loss of anti-tumor efficacy. The 2015 National Comprehensive Cancer Network ("NCCN") Guidelines recommend the use of continuous infusion for treatment of numerous cancer diagnoses. We believe that the growth of continuous infusion therapy is driven by three factors: evidence of improved clinical outcomes; lower toxicity and side effects; and a favorable reimbursement environment.

The use of continuous infusion has been demonstrated to decrease or alter the toxicity of a number of cytotoxic, or cell killing, agents. Higher doses of drugs can be infused over longer periods of time, leading to improved tolerance and decreased toxicity. For example, the cardiotoxicity (heart muscle damage) of the chemotherapy drug Doxorubicin is decreased by schedules of administration according to The Chemotherapy Source Book by Michael C. Perry. Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and decreased white blood cell and platelet counts are all affected by duration of delivery. Continuous infusion can lead to improved tolerance and patient comfort while enhancing the patient's ability to remain on the chemotherapy regimen. Additionally, the lower toxicity profile and resulting reduction in side effects enables patients undergoing continuous infusion therapy to continue a relatively normal lifestyle, which may include continuing to work, going shopping, and caring for family members. We believe that the partnering of physician management and patient autonomy provide for the highest quality of care with the greatest patient satisfaction.

We believe that oncology practitioners have a heightened sensitivity to providing quality service and to their ability to obtain reimbursement for services they provide. Simultaneously, CMS and private insurers are increasingly focused on evidence-based medicine to inform their reimbursement decisions — that is, aligning reimbursement with clinical outcomes and adherence to standards of care. Continuous infusion therapy is a main component of the standard of care for certain types of cancer because clinical evidence demonstrates superior outcomes. Payers' recognition of this benefit is reflected in their relative reimbursement policies for clinical services related to the delivery of this care.

Additional areas of focus for our ITS segment are as follows:

- Pain Management - providing our ambulatory pumps, products, and services for pain management in the area of post-surgical continuous peripheral nerve block.
- Wound Care - launched in November 2022, the Company established a partnership, SI Wound Care, LLC ("SI Wound Care"), with Sanara MedTech Inc. ("Sanara"). The partnership will focus on delivering a complete wound care solution targeted at improving patient outcomes, lowering the cost of care, and increasing patient and provider satisfaction. The partnership is expected to enable InfuSystem to offer innovative products including Cork Medical LLC's ("Cork") negative pressure wound therapy ("NPWT") devices and supplies and Sanara's advanced wound care product line to new customers through the jointly controlled entity.
- Acquisitions - we believe there are opportunities to acquire smaller, regional health care service providers, in whole or in part that perform similar services to us but do not have the national market access, network of third-party payer contracts or operating economies of scale that we currently enjoy. We may also pursue acquisition opportunities of companies that perform similar services, but offer different therapies or utilize different devices.

- Lymphedema Therapy – Lymphedema therapy includes providing patient care and customer service, pneumatic compression devices and associated garments through our partnership with Bio Compression Systems, Inc. to outpatients, initially targeting our existing acute care and oncology customers, estimated to be 20% of the multi-billion-dollar Lymphedema market.
- Information technology-based services - we also plan to continue to capitalize on key new information technology-based services such as EXPRESS, InfuBus or InfuConnect, Pump Portal, DeviceHub and BlockPain Dashboard®.

The payer environment within our ITS segment is in a constant state of change. We continue to extend our considerable breadth of payer networks under contract as patients move into different insurance coverage plans, including Medicaid and Insurance Marketplace products. In some cases, this may slightly reduce our aggregate billed revenues payment rate but result in an overall increase in collected revenues, due to a reduction in concessions. Consequently, we are increasingly focused on revenues net of concessions.

DME Services Segment

Our DME Services segment's core service is to: (i) sell or rent new and pre-owned pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps and other Durable Medical Equipment; (ii) sell treatment-related consumables; and (iii) provide biomedical recertification, maintenance and repair services for oncology practices as well as other healthcare site settings, including hospitals, home care and home infusion providers, skilled nursing and acute care facilities, pain centers and others. We purchase new and pre-owned pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps from a variety of sources on a non-exclusive basis. We repair, refurbish and provide biomedical certification for the devices as needed. The pumps are then available for sale, rental or to be used within our ambulatory infusion pump management service. Our acquisition of FilAMed, a privately-held biomedical services company, on January 31, 2021 has supplemented the Company's existing biomedical recertification, maintenance and repair services for acute care facilities and other alternate site settings including home care and home infusion providers, skilled nursing facilities, pain centers and others. Our acquisition of OB Healthcare Corporation ("OB Healthcare"), a privately-held biomedical services company, on April 18, 2021 further develops and expands InfuSystem's DME Services segment by adding field service capabilities and complements the Company's purchase of FilAMed.

Services

ITS Segment

Our core service within our ITS segment is our Oncology Business. After delivering our ambulatory pumps to oncology offices, infusion clinics, and hospital and outpatient chemotherapy clinics, we then directly bill and collect payment from payers and patients for the use of these pumps. At any given time, our pumps are in the possession of these facilities, on a patient, in transit, or in our facilities for cleaning, calibration and storage as reserves for increased demand.

After a physician determines that a patient is eligible for ambulatory infusion pump therapy, the physician arranges for the patient to receive an infusion pump and provides the necessary chemotherapy drugs. The physician and nursing staff train the patient in the use of the pump and initiate service. The physician bills the payers, which may include Medicare, Medicaid, third-party payer companies or patients for the physician's professional services associated with initiating and supervising the infusion pump administration, as well as the supply of drugs. We directly bill (i) payers, (ii) facilities of our Medicare patients, and (iii) patients for the use of the pump and related disposable supplies. Billing to payers requires coordination with patients and physicians who initiate the service, as physicians' offices must provide us with appropriate documentation (patient's insurance information, physician's order, an acknowledgement of benefits that shows receipt of equipment by the patient, and, in some cases, physician's progress notes) in order for us to submit a bill to the payers. We provide assistance to uninsured patients that cannot afford our pumps via our financial hardship program – a program that usually matches what our physician practices provide as long as the uninsured patients meet certain criteria. This billing process is handled from our Rochester Hills, Michigan location.

In addition to providing high quality and convenient care, we believe that our business offers significant economic benefits for patients, providers and payers.

- Our clinical support team employs oncology, pain, Intravenous Certified, and Oncology Certified registered nurses trained on ambulatory infusion pump equipment who staff our 24x7 customer service hotline to address questions that patients may have about their pump treatment, the infusion pumps or other medical or technical questions related to the pumps.

- Physicians use our services to outsource the capital commitment, pump service, maintenance and billing and administrative burdens associated with pump ownership. Our services also allow the doctor to continue a direct relationship with the patient and to receive professional service fees for setting up the treatment and administering the drugs.

- We provide methods for the physician offices to deliver the appropriate paperwork for billing through a number of electronic means including EXPRESS and InfuConnect reducing the required effort on the employees of the physician offices.

- We believe our services are attractive to payers because such services are generally less expensive than hospitalization or standalone home health care.

Also, within ITS, we offer pain management services via electronic ambulatory infusion pumps for post-operative pain management using our pumps along with a numbing agent and a continuous nerve block catheter – continuous peripheral nerve block ("CPNB"). Using CPNB for the management of post-operative pain, which usually lasts two to three days after surgery, can result in reduced pain for the patient, increased satisfaction scores for the surgical center or hospital, and reduced need for post-operative opioid pain medication. These services include our patient care call center interaction offering support to patients and the review and collection of pain score patient outcome data for outpatient surgery centers using our proprietary BlockPain Dashboard®.

Other services we offer are classified under our DME Services segment and include the rental, sale or leasing and servicing of pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps to oncology practices, hospitals and other clinical settings. These pumps are available for daily, weekly, monthly or annual rental periods. We also sell treatment consumables that can be used in conjunction with the pumps we sell and rent.

In addition to sales, rental and leasing services, we also provide biomedical maintenance, repair and certification services for the devices we offer as well as for devices owned by customers but not acquired from us. We operate pump service and repair "Centers of Excellence" from all of our locations across the U.S. and Canada and employ a staff of highly-trained technicians to provide these services. Our main Center of Excellence for service is our Lenexa, Kansas facility. In addition to the maintenance and repair services we perform at these facilities, we offer similar services that can be performed directly at our customer locations nation-wide through our team of field-based and traveling biomedical technicians.

As of December 31, 2022, our rental fleet of pole-mounted pumps, ambulatory pumps and NPWT medical equipment for both our ITS and DME Services segments had a historical cost of $99.2 million, up from $91.9 million at the end of 2021, and included approximately 125 makes and models of equipment dedicated to our rental services. Additionally, as of December 31, 2022 and 2021, we had a fleet of new and used pole-mounted pumps, ambulatory pumps and NPWT medical equipment with a historical cost of $2.8 million and $1.8 million, respectively, for sale or rental.

Information Technology

Our Information Technology ("IT") department is focused on not only supporting our internal IT infrastructure needs, but also supporting our revenue cycle management infrastructure including our electronic medical record technology ("EMR") that allows medical facilities to use our infusion pumps and services via our solutions such as EXPRESS and InfuConnect. This focus has enabled current billing information to be transferred to us from participating facilities electronically and automatically. Our focus on IT solutions resulted in the development of EXPRESS, a product powered by our InfuBus data integration platform, and provides for paperless delivery of the appropriate information for InfuSystem to bill payers that:

- eliminates all paper;
- provides an enhanced visibility as a result of real time status and reporting;
- reduces risk of error;
- automates treatment logs, pump assignments, tracking and physician's orders;
- provides a secure scanner for easy pump assignment to patients; and
- removes interruptions from physician practices' daily schedules, and standardizes data flow for clinics and hospitals with multiple locations.

Relationships with Physician Offices

As of December 31, 2022, we had business relationships with clinical oncologists in over 2,150 outpatient oncology clinics. Although this represents a substantial number of the oncologists in the U.S., we believe that we can continue to expand our network to further penetrate the oncology market. Based on our retention rates and the positive results of our professional customer satisfaction research, we believe our relationships with physician offices are strong.

We believe that, in general, we do not compete directly with hospitals and physician offices to treat patients. Rather, by providing products and services to hospitals and physician offices and other care facilities and providers, we believe that we assist other providers in meeting increasing patient demand and managing institutional constraints on capital and manpower due to the nature of limited resources in hospitals and physician offices.

Physician practices in the oncology field are following the overall healthcare practices trend to consolidate. However, as of December 31, 2022, we had gained more facilities than we had lost. We expect this trend to continue for the foreseeable future.

Employees

As of December 31, 2022, we had 438 employees, including 420 full-time employees and 18 part-time or contract employees. None of our employees are unionized.

Material Suppliers

We supply a wide variety of pumps and associated equipment, as well as disposables and ancillary supplies. The majority of our pumps are electronic infusion pumps. Smiths Medical, Inc. and Moog Medical Devices Group each supplied more than 10% of the ambulatory pumps purchased by us in 2022. The Company has a supply agreement in place with each of these suppliers. Certain "spot" purchases are made on the open market subject to individual negotiation. We also supply NPWT medical equipment, as well as related disposables and ancillary supplies.

Seasonality

Revenues may be seasonal due to the impact of co-pays and deductibles for patients' insurance that traditionally reset each January. This has been further impacted by changes in the insurance industry as it responds to increased government regulation. Also, rental customers tend to make buy versus rent decisions late in the year as customer capital budgets are being finalized, impacting sales revenue in the second half of the year, predominantly in the fourth quarter. Furthermore, as the Company's liquidity has improved, opportunistic pump purchases are made from time to time. These opportunistic pump purchases also allow for opportunistic pump sales, which could be material. The timing of such purchases and sales vary within the course of a year.

Environmental Laws

We are required to comply with applicable federal, state and local environmental laws regulating the disposal of cleaning agents used in the process of cleaning medical equipment, as well as the disposal of sharps and blood products used in connection with the pumps and medical equipment. We do not believe that compliance with such laws has a material effect on our business.

Significant Customers

We have sought to establish contracts with as many third-party payer organizations as commercially practicable, in an effort to ensure that reimbursement is not a significant obstacle for providers who recommend continuous infusion therapy and wish to utilize our services. A third-party payer organization is a health care payer or a group of medical services payers that contracts to provide a wide variety of health care services to enrolled members through participating providers such as us. A payer is any entity that pays on behalf of a member patient.

As of December 31, 2022, we had contracts with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, an increase of 4% over the prior year period. Material terms of contracts with third-party payer organizations are typically a pre-negotiated fee schedule rate or a then-current proprietary fee schedule rate for equipment and supplies provided. The majority of these contracts generally provide for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. We also contract with various other third-party payer organizations, Medicaid, commercial Medicare replacement plans, self-insured plans, facilities of our Medicare patients and numerous other insurance carriers. No single payer or customer represented more than 10% of net revenue in 2022, 2021 or 2020.

Competitors

We believe that our competition primarily consists of national, regional, and hospital-owned Durable Medical Equipment providers and service companies, physician providers and home care infusion providers and the competitive products and services they offer. An estimate of the number of competitors is not known or reasonably available, due to the wide variety in type and size of the market participants described below. We are not aware of any industry reports with respect to the competitive market described below. The description of market segments and business activities within those market segments is based on our experiences in the industry.

- National Durable Medical Equipment Providers and Service Companies: Other national providers and service companies have offerings similar to us. These products and service offerings include, but are not limited to, third-party reimbursement, direct rental and sale of infusion electronic and disposal pumps and related products and services for patients in the home, oncology clinics, ambulatory surgery centers, hospitals and other sites of care.

- Regional Durable Medical Equipment Providers: Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers act as distributors for a variety of medical products. We believe regional Durable Medical Equipment provider sales forces generally consist of a relatively small number of salespeople, usually covering several states. Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers tend to carry a limited selection of infusion pumps and their salespeople generally have limited resources. Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers usually do not have 24x7 nursing services. We believe that Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers have relatively few third-party payer contracts, which may prevent these providers from being paid at acceptable levels and may also result in higher out-of-pocket costs for patients.

- Hospital-Owned Durable Medical Equipment Providers: Many hospitals have in-house Durable Medical Equipment providers to supply basic equipment. In general, however, these providers have limited capital and tend to stock a small inventory of infusion pumps. We believe that hospital-owned providers have limited ability to grow because of limited patient populations. Growth from outside of the hospital may pose a challenge because hospitals typically will not provide referrals to competitors, instead preferring to offer patients a choice of non-hospital-affiliated Durable Medical Equipment providers.

- Physician Providers: A limited number of physicians maintain an inventory of their own infusion pumps and provide them to patients for a fee. However, we believe that pump utilization in this area tends to be low and the costs associated with ongoing supplies, preventative maintenance and repairs can be relatively high. Moreover, we believe that a high percentage of Durable Medical Equipment claims by doctors are rejected by payers upon first submission, requiring a physician's staff to spend significant time and effort to resubmit claims and receive payment for treatment. The numerous service and technical questions from patients may present another significant cost to a physician provider's staff.

- Home Care Infusion Providers: Home care infusion providers provide chemotherapy drugs and services to allow for in-home patient treatment. We believe that home care infusion treatment can be very costly and that many patients do not carry insurance coverage that pay for home-based infusion services, resulting in larger out-of-pocket costs. Because home care treatments may take as long as six months, these costs can be high and can result in higher patient co-payments. We believe that home care providers may also be reluctant to offer 24x7 coverage or additional patient visits, due to capped fees.

Regulation of Our Business

Our business is subject to various regulations. Specifically, as a registered Medicare supplier of Durable Medical Equipment and related supplies, we must comply with supplier standards established by CMS regulating Medicare suppliers of Durable Medical Equipment, Prosthetics, Orthotics and Supplies ("DMEPOS Supplier Standards"). The DMEPOS Supplier Standards consist of 30 requirements that must be met in order for a DMEPOS supplier to be eligible to receive payment for a Medicare-covered item. Some of the more significant DMEPOS Supplier Standards require us to (i) advise Medicare beneficiaries of their option to purchase certain equipment, (ii) honor all warranties under state law and not charge Medicare beneficiaries for the repair or replacement of equipment or for services covered under warranty, (iii) permit CMS agents to conduct on-site inspections to ascertain compliance with the DMEPOS Supplier Standards, (iv) maintain liability insurance in prescribed amounts, (v) refrain from contacting Medicare beneficiaries by telephone, except in certain limited circumstances, (vi) answer questions and respond to complaints of beneficiaries regarding the supplied equipment, (vii) disclose the DMEPOS Supplier Standards to each Medicare beneficiary to whom we supply equipment, (viii) maintain a complaint resolution procedure and record certain information regarding each complaint, (ix) maintain accreditation from a CMS approved accreditation organization, and (x) meet certain specified surety bond requirements.

We are also subject to the provisions of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 ("HIPAA"), which are designed to protect the security and confidentiality of certain protected health information. Under HIPAA, we must provide patients access to certain records and must notify patients of our use of protected health information and patient privacy rights. Moreover, HIPAA sets limits on how we may use individually identifiable health information and prohibits the use of patient information for marketing purposes. The adoption of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 ("ARRA") includes a new breach notification requirement that applies to breaches of unsecured health information occurring on or after September 23, 2009. We are subject to regulations in the various states in which we operate. We believe we are in material compliance with all such regulations.

Available Information

Our Internet address is www.infusystem.com. On this website, we post the following filings as soon as reasonably practicable after they are electronically filed with or furnished to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"): our Annual Reports on Form 10-K; our Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q; our Current Reports on Form 8-K; our proxy statements related to our annual stockholders' meetings; and any amendments to those reports or statements. All such filings are available on our website free of charge. The charters of our audit, nominating and governance and compensation committees and our Code of Business Conduct and Ethics Policy are also available on our website and in print to any stockholder who requests them. The content on our website is not incorporated by reference into this Form 10-K unless expressly noted.

Item 1A. Risk Factors.

An investment in our securities involves a high degree of risk. You should consider carefully all of the material risks described below, together with the other information contained in this Form 10-K. If any of the following events occur, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may be materially adversely affected.

RISK FACTORS RELATING TO OUR BUSINESS AND THE INDUSTRY IN WHICH WE OPERATE

Our business is substantially dependent on third-party reimbursement. Any change in the overall health care reimbursement system may adversely impact our business.

Our revenues are substantially dependent on third-party reimbursement. We are paid directly by private insurers and, in some cases, governmental agencies, often on a fixed fee basis, for the use of continuous infusion equipment and related disposable supplies provided to patients. If the average fees allowable by private insurers or governmental agencies were reduced, the negative impact on revenues could have a material effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Also, if amounts owed to us by patients and insurers are reduced or not paid on a timely basis, we may be required to increase our concessions and/or decrease our revenues.

Changes in the health care reimbursement system often create financial incentives and disincentives that encourage or discourage the use of a particular type of product, therapy or clinical procedure. Such changes may be impacted by the growth in ACOs, reduction of providers by payers, the use of lower cost rental networks and other factors. Market acceptance of continuous infusion therapy may be adversely affected by changes or trends within the health care reimbursement system. Changes to the health care reimbursement system that favor other technologies or treatment regimens that reduce reimbursements to providers or treatment facilities, including increasing competitive pressures from home health care and other companies that use our services, may adversely affect our ability to market our services profitably. Overall, such dependency and potential changes could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our business is substantially dependent on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement.

Our revenues are substantially dependent on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement. Due to the complex nature of third-party reimbursement for the use of continuous infusion equipment and related disposable supplies provided to patients, we must estimate, based upon historical averages, the amount of collectible revenue that may be derived from each patient treatment. If average reimbursement rates diverge from historical levels, the estimates of such revenue may diverge from actual collections.

We utilize statistical methods to account for such changes, but there can be no assurance that the revenue reported in any period will ultimately be collected. Any recognized revenue related to third-party reimbursement from prior periods, which remains uncollected until written off from accounts receivable, will negatively impact revenues in the period in which it is written off. Thus, over time, recognized revenue net of concessions will approximate total collections.

The loss of a relationship with one or more third-party payers could negatively impact our business.

Our contracts for reimbursement with third-party payers are often for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. These evergreen contracts are subject to termination upon written notice. One or more terminations could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Any federal government shutdown may adversely impact our business.

Our revenues are dependent on private insurers and governmental agencies. In the absence of any bipartisan agreement in the federal government with respect to payments from governmental agencies, our revenues could be reduced. In addition, any federal government shutdown could also have a material and adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Payer concentration may adversely impact our business.

As of December 31, 2022, we had contracts with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, an increase of 4% over the prior year period. Material terms of contracts with third-party payer organizations are typically a pre-negotiated fee schedule rate or a then-current proprietary fee schedule rate for equipment and supplies provided. The majority of these contracts generally provide for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. We also contract with various other third-party payer organizations, Medicaid, commercial Medicare replacement plans, self-insured plans, facilities of our Medicare patients and numerous other insurance carriers. No single payer represented more than 10% of net revenue in 2022, 2021 or 2020. To the extent such dependency was to occur, significant fluctuations in revenues, results of operations and liquidity could arise if any significant contracted payer reduces its reimbursement for the services we provide.

Our billing process is dependent on meeting payer claims processing guidelines which are subject to change at the discretion of the payers. Such changes would materially impact our ability to bill and the timing of such billings, which could materially and adversely impact our net revenues and cash flows, which impact would be even greater if such changes are made by one of our larger payers.

The continued consolidation of physician practices, outpatient infusion clinics, oncology clinics, homecare providers and hospitals, increases the concentration of decision makers whom either choose to use our ambulatory electronic pumps within our Oncology Business or directly rent, lease or purchase pumps or supplies from us.

While we make every effort to benefit from such concentration, it could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Increased focus on early detection and diagnostics may adversely affect our business.

An increased focus on lowering health care spending via improved diagnostic testing (i.e., defensive medicine) and patient monitoring could materially and negatively affect our business. A large portion of our ambulatory infusion pumps are dedicated to a specific form of cancer (i.e., colorectal). As a result of rising health care costs, there may be a demand for more cost-effective approaches to disease management, specifically for colorectal cancer, as well as for emphasis on screening and accurate diagnostic testing to facilitate early detection of potentially costly, severe afflictions. Any change in the approach to treatment of colorectal cancer could have a material and adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

If future clinical studies demonstrate that oral medications or other therapies that do not use our electronic ambulatory pumps are at least as effective as continuous infusion therapy, our business could be adversely affected.

Ongoing clinical trials are currently evaluating and comparing the therapeutic benefits of current continuous infusion-based regimens with various oral medication regimens. If these clinical trials demonstrate that oral medications provide equal or greater therapeutic benefits and/or demonstrate reduced side effects compared to prior oral medication regimens, our revenues and overall business could be materially and adversely affected. Additionally, if new oral medications or other therapies that do not utilize our ambulatory electronic pumps are introduced to the market that are superior to existing oral therapies, physicians' willingness to prescribe continuous infusion-based regimens could decline, which would materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our success is impacted by the availability of the chemotherapy drugs that are used in our continuous infusion pump systems.

We primarily derive our revenues from the rental of ambulatory infusion pumps to oncology patients through physicians' offices and chemotherapy clinics. A shortage in the availability of chemotherapy drugs that are used in the continuous infusion pump system, which has occurred in the past, could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We are dependent on our Medicare Supplier Number.

We are required to have a Medicare Supplier Number in order to have the ability to bill Medicare for services provided to Medicare patients. Furthermore, all third-party and Medicaid contracts require us to have a Medicare Supplier Number. We are required to comply with Medicare DMEPOS Supplier Standards in order to maintain such number. If we are unable to comply with the relevant standards, we could lose our Medicare Supplier Number. Without such number, we would be unable to continue our various third-party and Medicaid contracts. A significant portion of our revenues are dependent upon our Medicare Supplier Number, the loss of which would materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

The CMS requires that all Durable Medical Equipment providers must be accredited by a CMS-approved accreditation organization. On February 17, 2009, we initially received accreditation from CHAP, and we have remained accredited to date. If we lost our accredited status, our business, financial condition, revenues and results of operations would be materially and adversely affected.

The impact of U.S. health care reform legislation on us remains uncertain.

The ACA has perpetuated the development of alternative provider payment models by CMS and the major national commercial payers. These payment models do not replace the current fee-for-service models nor replace current payer contracts, but rather provide additional financial incentives to certain "accountable" providers to improve quality and lower cost. The implications for the Company will come from the provider networks that are forming in order to integrate and coordinate care under these alternative models with CMS and the commercial payers. These provider networks include ACOs, patient-centered primary care medical homes, specialty medical homes, networks accepting bundled payment programs, and other "performance" networks that contract with CMS and commercial payers under alternative payment models that financially reward improved quality and lower medical cost. The relationship between us and our provider practices and facilities that are participating in these provider networks under alternative payment models will depend on (i) the extent to which these provider networks give priority to the medical cost associated with our Durable Medical Equipment services and (ii) whether our services are seen as part of a care delivery model that delivers higher value – higher quality at a lower cost.

Our failure to perform under these alternative payment models, or under similar models or conditions introduced by future legislation, could have a material adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We rely on independent suppliers for our products. Any delay or disruption in the supply of products, particularly our supply of electronic ambulatory pumps, may negatively impact our operations.

Our infusion pumps and related consumables are obtained from outside vendors. The majority of our new pumps are electronic infusion pumps which are supplied to us by two major suppliers: Smiths Medical, Inc. and Moog Medical Devices Group. The loss or disruption of our relationships with outside vendors, including pumps, parts, or supply recall or pump end-of-life announcements or availability of related proprietary consumable supplies, could subject us to substantial delays in the delivery of pumps or services provided to customers. From time to time, we or our suppliers may experience supply chain disruptions due to circumstances beyond our or our suppliers' control, such as the 2020 outbreak of COVID-19. Significant delays in the delivery or service of pumps or related proprietary consumable supplies could result in possible cancellation of orders and the loss of customers. Our inability to provide pumps to meet delivery schedules could have a material adverse effect on our reputation in the industry, as well as on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We face periodic reviews and billing audits from governmental and private payers and these audits could have adverse results that may negatively impact our business.

As a result of our participation in the Medicaid program and our registration in the Medicare program, we are subject to various governmental reviews and audits to verify our compliance with these programs and applicable laws and regulations. We also are subject to audits under various government programs in which third-party firms engaged by CMS conduct extensive reviews of claims data and medical and other records to identify potential improper payments under the Medicare program. Private pay sources also reserve the right to conduct audits. If billing errors are identified in the sample of reviewed claims, the billing error can be extrapolated to all claims filed which could result in a larger overpayment than originally identified in the sample of reviewed claims. Our costs to respond to and defend reviews and audits may be significant and could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Moreover, an adverse review or audit could result in:

- required refunding or retroactive adjustment of amounts we have been paid by governmental or private payers;
- state or Federal agencies imposing fines, penalties and other sanctions on us;
- loss of our right to participate in the Medicare program, state programs, or one or more private payer networks; or
- damage to our business and reputation in various markets.

Any one of these results could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our failure to maintain controls and processes over billing and collecting could have a significant negative impact on our Consolidated Financial Statements.

The collection of accounts receivable is a significant challenge and requires constant focus and involvement by management and ongoing enhancements to information systems, billing center operating procedures and proper staffing levels. If we are unable to properly bill and collect our accounts receivable, our results could be materially and adversely affected. While management believes that our staffing, controls and processes are satisfactory, there can be no assurance that accounts receivable collectability will remain at current levels.

State licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers are subject to change. If we fail to comply with any state laws, we will be unable to operate as a Durable Medical Equipment supplier in such state and our business operations will be adversely affected.

As a Durable Medical Equipment supplier operating in all 50 states, we are subject to each state's licensure laws regulating Durable Medical Equipment suppliers. State licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers are subject to change and we must ensure that we are continually in compliance with the laws of all 50 states. In the event that we fail to comply with any state's laws governing the licensing of Durable Medical Equipment suppliers, we will be unable to operate as a Durable Medical Equipment supplier in such state until we regain compliance. We may also be subject to certain fines and/or penalties and our business operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Our customer concessions may not be adequate to cover actual losses.

Our third-party payer contracts do not guarantee annual inflationary increases, typical of the Durable Medical Equipment payer contracting environment. Contracted reimbursement rates are either subject to increases or decreases in CMS program rates or, if not indexed to government rates, are frozen until those payer contracts are reopened and renegotiated. While we monitor reimbursement levels to identify specific payer reimbursement rates that have eroded and renegotiate such rates, we may not be able to maintain or improve overall reimbursement levels, thereby compromising the adequacy of the predicted customer concessions.

We may also face reduced reimbursements from private third-party payers. In addition, our customers may be unable to make timely payments to us. Although we maintain allowances for estimated losses resulting from the inability of our customers to make required payments, we cannot guarantee that we will continue to experience the same loss rates that we have in the past. If we begin to experience an increase in our loss rates in excess of our allowances, it could materially and adversely impact our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our growth strategy includes expanding into treatment for cancers other than colorectal cancer. There can be no assurance that continuous infusion-based regimens for these other cancers will become standards of care for large numbers of patients or that we will be successful in penetrating these different markets.

An aspect of our growth strategy is to expand into the treatment of other cancers, such as head, neck and gastric cancers. This population of patients will expand only if clinical trial results for new drugs and new combinations of drugs demonstrate superior outcomes for regimens that include continuous infusion therapy relative to alternatives. No assurances can be given that these new drugs and drug combinations will be approved or will prove superior to oral medication or other treatment alternatives. In addition, no assurances can be given that we will be able to penetrate successfully any new markets that may develop in the future or manage the growth in additional resources that would be required.

The industry in which we operate is intensely competitive and ever-changing. If we are unable to successfully compete with our competitors, our business operations may suffer.

The drug infusion industry is highly competitive. Some of our competitors and potential competitors, including some of the practices that we service, have significantly greater resources than we do for information technology, marketing and sales. As a result, they may be better able to compete for market share, even in areas in which our services may be superior. The industry is subject to technological changes and such changes may put our current fleet of pumps, smart pump licensing, our information technology solutions or our other technological-based solutions at a competitive disadvantage. Furthermore, the healthcare industry, in general, is experiencing market consolidation, reducing the number of decision makers. If we are unable to effectively compete in our market, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may be materially and adversely affected.

Our industry is dependent on regulatory guidelines that affect our billing practices. If our competitors do not comply with these regulatory guidelines, our business could be adversely affected.

Aggressive competitors may not fully comply with rules regarding CMS and other payers' billing and documentation requirements. Competitors, who do not meet the same standards of compliance that we do with respect to billing regulations, may put us at a potential competitive disadvantage. We are a participating provider with Medicare and as of December 31, 2022, we were under contract with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, all of which have very stringent guidelines. If our competitors do not comply with these regulatory guidelines, we could be put at a potential competitive disadvantage and our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be material and adversely affected.

Although we do not manufacture the products we distribute, if one of the products distributed by us proves to be defective or is misused by a health care practitioner or patient, we may be subject to liability that could adversely affect our financial condition and results of operations.

Although we do not manufacture the pumps that we distribute, a defect in the design or manufacture of a pump distributed or serviced by us, or a failure of pumps distributed by us to perform for the use specified, could have a material and adverse effect on our reputation in the industry and subject us to claims of liability for injuries and otherwise. Misuse of the pumps distributed by us by a practitioner or patient that results in injury could similarly subject us to liability. Any substantial underinsured loss could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Furthermore, any impairment of our reputation could have a material and adverse effect on our revenues and prospects for future business.

We intend to continue to pursue opportunities for the further expansion of our business through strategic alliances and/or joint ventures. Future strategic alliances and/or joint ventures may require significant resources and/or result in significant unanticipated costs or liabilities to us.

We intend to continue to pursue opportunities for the further expansion of our business through strategic alliances and/or joint ventures. Any future strategic alliances or joint ventures will depend on our ability to identify suitable partners, negotiate acceptable terms for such transactions and obtain financing, if necessary. These investments require significant managerial attention, which may be diverted from our other operations.

If we engage in strategic acquisitions, we may experience significant costs and difficulty in assimilating operations or personnel, which could threaten our future growth.

If we make any acquisitions, we could have difficulty assimilating operations, technologies and products and services. In addition, we could have difficulty integrating or retaining personnel and maintaining employee morale as we take steps to combine the personnel and business cultures of separate organizations into one and to eliminate duplicate positions and functions. It may also be difficult for us to preserve important relationships with others, such as strategic partners, customers, and suppliers, who may delay or defer decisions on agreements with us, or seek to change existing agreements with us, because of the acquisition. In addition, acquisitions may involve entering markets in which we have no or limited direct prior experience. The occurrence of any one or more of these factors could disrupt our ongoing business, distract our management's and employees' attention from our ongoing business operations, result in decreased operating performance and increase our expenses. Moreover, our profitability may suffer because of acquisition-related costs or amortization of intangible assets. Furthermore, we may have to incur debt or issue equity securities in future acquisitions. The issuance of equity securities would dilute our existing stockholders.

We may be unable to maintain adequate working relationships with health care professionals.

We seek to maintain close working relationships with respected physicians and medical personnel in hospitals and universities. We rely on these professionals to assist us in the development of proprietary service and improvements to complement and expand our existing service and product lines. If we are unable to maintain these relationships, our ability to market and sell new and improved products and services could decrease and future operating results could be unfavorably affected.

If we fail to comply with applicable governmental or accrediting bodies' regulations, we could face substantial penalties and our business, operations and financial condition could be adversely affected.

Certain federal, state health care, and accreditation bodies' laws and regulations, including those pertaining to fraud and abuse and patients' rights, are applicable to our business. The laws that are applicable to our business include:

- the federal health care program Anti-Kickback Statute, which prohibits, among other things, soliciting, receiving or providing remuneration, directly or indirectly, to induce (i) the referral of an individual, for an item or service or (ii) the purchasing or ordering of a good or service, for which payment may be made under federal health care programs such as the Medicare and Medicaid programs;
- federal false claims laws which prohibit, among other things, knowingly presenting, or causing to be presented, claims for payment from Medicare, Medicaid, or other third-party payers that are false or fraudulent, and which may apply to entities like us that promote medical devices, provide medical device management services and may provide coding and billing advice to customers;
- HIPAA, which prohibits executing a scheme to defraud any health care benefit program or making false statements relating to health care matters and which also imposes certain requirements relating to the privacy, security and transmission of individually identifiable health information; and
- state law equivalents of each of the above federal laws, such as anti-kickback and false claims laws that may apply to items or services reimbursed by any third-party payer, including commercial insurers, and state laws governing the privacy and security of health information in certain circumstances, many of which differ in significant ways from state to state and often are not preempted by HIPAA, thus complicating compliance efforts.

If our operations are found to be in violation of any of the laws described above or any other regulations that apply to us, we may be subject to penalties, including civil and criminal penalties, damages, fines and the curtailment or restructuring of our operations. Any penalties, damages, fines, curtailment or restructuring of our operations could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Any action against us for violation of these laws, even if we successfully defend against it, could cause us to incur significant legal expenses and divert our management's attention from the operation of our business. Moreover, achieving and sustaining compliance with applicable federal and state privacy, security and fraud laws may prove costly.

Failure to protect our intellectual property could substantially harm our business and operating results.

In order to protect our trade secrets and other confidential information, we rely in part on confidentiality agreements with our employees, consultants and third parties with whom we have relationships. These agreements may not effectively prevent disclosure of trade secrets and other confidential information and may not provide an adequate remedy in the event of misappropriation of trade secrets or any unauthorized disclosure of trade secrets and other confidential information. In addition, others may independently discover our trade secrets and confidential information and, in such cases, we could not assert any trade secret rights against such parties. Costly and time-consuming litigation could be necessary to enforce or determine the scope of our trade secret rights and related confidentiality and nondisclosure provisions. Failure to obtain or maintain trade secret protection, or our competitors' acquisition of our trade secrets, could materially and adversely affect our competitive business position.

Covenants in our current and any future debt agreements restrict our business.

Our 2021 Credit Agreement contains and the agreements that govern our future indebtedness may contain, covenants that restrict our ability to and the ability of our subsidiaries to, among other things:

- engage in a transaction that results in a change of control, as defined by the 2021 Credit Agreement;
- create, incur, assume or suffer to exist any lien upon any of our property, assets or revenues;
- make certain investments or acquisitions;

- create, incur, assume or suffer to exist certain indebtedness;
- merge, dissolve, liquidate, consolidate or sell all or substantially all of our assets;
- make any disposition or enter into any agreement to make any disposition;
- repurchase outstanding stock from the open market; and
- declare or make, directly or indirectly, any dividend or other restricted payment, or incur any obligation (contingent or otherwise) to do so.

These covenants may restrict our ability to operate our business. Our failure to comply with these covenants could result in an event of default that, if not cured or waived, could result in reduced liquidity for the Company and could have a material and adverse effect on our ability to operate our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Additionally, our ability to pay interest and repay the principal for our indebtedness is dependent upon our ability to manage our business operations, generate sufficient cash flows to service such debt and the other factors discussed in this section. Our 2021 Credit Agreement also contains certain financial covenants. As of December 31, 2022, we were in compliance with all the covenants contained in the 2021 Credit Agreement, however, there can be no assurance that we will be able to manage any of the risks associated with debt agreements successfully.

Economic uncertainty or economic deterioration could adversely affect us.

There continues to be global economic uncertainty, as well as increased inflation, heightened interest rates and a recessionary environment. Ongoing political changes and conflicts in the U.S. and abroad continue to contribute to global economic uncertainty and volatility in the global financial markets. In February 2022, Russian forces launched significant military actions against Ukraine, which has caused significant international conflict, including sanctions, tensions and military actions. In addition, the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic have contributed to economic uncertainty. Continued economic uncertainty may continue to drive stock market and interest rate volatility, increased inflation and adversely impact consumer confidence, product demand, and our ability to refinance our debt. Economic conditions, along with our operating performance, may also materially and adversely impact our ability to access the financial markets. Accordingly, our future business and financial results are subject to uncertainty. If economic conditions deteriorate in the future, our future revenues and financial results could be materially and adversely affected.

Changes in tax laws or challenges to our tax positions could adversely affect our business, results of operations and financial condition.

We are subject to income taxes as well as non-income based taxes in federal and various state jurisdictions. Changes in tax laws, including, for example, those resulting from the U.S. federal tax legislation commonly referred to as the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act, as well as other factors, could cause us to experience fluctuations in our tax obligations and effective tax rates in future periods and otherwise adversely affect our tax positions and/or our tax liabilities. The full impact of the CARES Act on us may change significantly as regulations, interpretations and rulings relating to the CARES Act are issued and additional changes in U.S. federal and state tax laws are made in the future. There can be no assurance that our effective tax rates, tax payments, tax credits or incentives will not be adversely affected by these or other initiatives.

We are subject to audits by tax authorities from time to time in federal and state jurisdictions. Tax authorities may disagree with certain positions we have taken and assess additional taxes and penalties. We regularly assess the likely outcomes of these audits in order to determine the appropriateness of our tax provision. However, there can be no assurance that we will accurately predict the outcomes of these audits, and the actual outcomes of these audits could have a material impact on our results of operations.

The value of our net operating loss carryforwards may become impaired if we do not generate sufficient future taxable income required to utilize all or a portion of our net operating loss carryforwards prior to their expiration.

The Company's U.S. federal net operating loss carryforward for tax purposes was $35.7 million at December 31, 2022, resulting in a federal deferred tax asset of $7.5 million. Approximately $29.1 million of the Company's U.S. federal net operating loss carryforwards will begin to expire in various years beginning in 2031. The Company's realization of its deferred tax assets including the loss carryforwards is dependent upon many factors, including, but not limited to, the Company's ability to generate sufficient taxable income in sufficient amounts. There can be no assurance that we will generate the required amounts of taxable income before the expiration dates are reached.

Cautionary Statement About Forward-Looking Statements

Certain statements contained in this Form 10-K are forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act") and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"). The words "believe," "may," "will," "estimate," "continue," "anticipate," "intend," "should," "plan," "expect," "strategy," "future," "likely," variations of such words, and other similar expressions, as they relate to the Company, are intended to identify forward-looking statements. However, the absence of these words or similar expressions does not mean that a statement is not forward-looking. In connection with the "safe harbor" provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, the Company is identifying certain factors that could cause actual results to differ, perhaps materially, from those indicated by these forward-looking statements. InfuSystem does not intend and does not undertake any obligation to update any forward-looking statement to reflect future events or circumstances after the date of such statements, except as may be required by law. Important factors that could cause our actual results and financial condition to differ materially from the forward-looking statements include, without limitation, those described in "Risk Factors" and elsewhere in this Form 10-K, and the following:

- changes in third-party reimbursement processes, rates, contractual relationships and payer mix;
- our dependence on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement;
- risks associated with the loss of a relationship with one or more third-party payers;
- risks associated with a federal government shutdown;
- risks associated with payer concentration;
- physicians' acceptance of infusion pump therapy over alternative therapies and focus on early detection and diagnostics;
- our dependence on our Medicare Suppler Number, which allows us to bill Medicare for services provided to Medicare patients;
- availability of chemotherapy drugs used in our infusion pump systems;
- our expectations regarding enacted and potential legislative and regulatory changes impacting, among other things, the level of reimbursement received from the Medicare and state Medicaid programs including the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services ("CMS") competitive bidding;
- our dependence upon our suppliers;
- periodic reviews and billing audits from governmental and private payers;
- our ability to maintain controls and processes over billing and collection and the adequacy of our allowance for doubtful accounts and customer concessions;
- our ability to comply with state licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers;
- risks associated with our allowance for doubtful accounts and customer concessions;
- our ability to execute our business strategies to grow our business, including our ability to introduce new products and services;
- industry competition;
- compliance with regulatory guidelines affecting our billing practices;
- defective products manufactured by third-party suppliers;
- our ability to execute on acquisition and joint-venture opportunities and integrate any acquired businesses;
- our ability to maintain relationships with health care professionals and organizations;
- our ability to comply with changing health care regulations;
- our ability to protect our intellectual property;
- our ability to remain in compliance with our credit agreement or future debt agreements;
- general economic uncertainty;
- changes in tax laws or challenges to our tax positions;
- the value of our net operating loss carryforwards may become impaired if we do not generate sufficient future taxable income required to utilize all or a portion of our net operating loss carryforwards prior to their expiration;
- volatility in the market price of our stock;
- the future price of our stock may be negatively affected by not paying dividends;
- potential dilution to current stockholders from the issuance of equity awards;
- we may be subject to limitations on net operating loss carryforwards and certain built-in losses following an ownership change;
- our ability to remediate the material weaknesses in our internal control over financial reporting;
- the long-term effects of the coronavirus ("COVID-19") pandemic, or any other global pandemic or disease outbreak, on our business;

- litigation or other legal or regulatory proceedings in which we may be involved from time to time;
- risks associated with the collection of sales or consumption taxes;
- our ability to implement, both internally and externally, information technology improvements and to respond to technological changes, interruptions and security breaches;
- natural disasters, pandemics, acts of war or terrorism and other external events affecting us, our customers or our suppliers; and
- our ability to hire and retain key employees.

These risks are not exhaustive. Other sections of this Form 10-K include additional factors which could adversely impact our business and financial performance. Moreover, we operate in a very competitive and changing environment. New risk factors emerge from time to time and it is not possible for us to predict all risk factors, nor can we assess the impact of all factors on our business or the extent to which any factor, or combination of factors, may cause actual results to differ materially from those contained in any forward-looking statements. All forward-looking statements made in this Form 10-K speak only as of the date of this report. We do not intend, and do not undertake any obligation, to update any forward-looking statements to reflect future events or circumstances after the date of such statements, except as required by law.

You should not rely upon forward-looking statements as predictions of future events. Our actual results and financial condition may differ materially from those indicated in the forward-looking statements. We qualify all of our forward-looking statements by these cautionary statements. Although we believe that the expectations reflected in the forward-looking statements are reasonable, we cannot guarantee future results, levels of activity, performance or achievements. Therefore, you should not rely on any of the forward-looking statements. In addition, with respect to all of our forward-looking statements, we claim the protection of the safe harbor for forward-looking statements contained in the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995.

PART I

Background

The Company is a Delaware corporation, formed in 2005. It operates through operating subsidiaries, including InfuSystem Holdings USA, Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Holdings"), InfuSystem, Inc., a California corporation ("ISI"), First Biomedical, Inc., a Kansas corporation ("First Biomedical"), and IFC, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("IFC").

Business Concept and Strategy

We are a leading national health care service provider, facilitating outpatient care for Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and health care providers. We provide our products and services to hospitals, oncology practices, ambulatory surgery centers, and other alternate site health care providers. Our headquarters is in Rochester Hills, Michigan, and we operate our business from a total of seven locations in the United States ("U.S.") and Canada.

Our services are provided under a two-platform model. Our lead platform, Integrated Therapy Services ("ITS"), provides the last-mile solution for clinic-to-home healthcare where the continuing treatment involves complex Durable Medical Equipment and services. Our second platform, Durable Medical Equipment Services ("DME Services"), supports our ITS platform and leverages the Company's strong service orientation to win incremental business from our direct payer clients.

We believe InfuSystem has a lot to offer the healthcare community. Over the last 30 plus years, we have developed a unique expertise and service offering that Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and health care providers are using to reduce costs, improve service, and most importantly, provide welcome options for patients who want to continue their healthcare treatments from home. We perfected our ITS model in oncology and have proven that we can extend this model into other Durable Medical Equipment therapies. Key is the ability to leverage our existing platforms – the new therapies do not require building a new infrastructure; we simply add incrementally to the systems already in place (e.g., sales, clinical, logistics, revenue cycle management, and biomedical services).

ITS is presented as a "turnkey" solution allowing our health care provider customers to focus on the practice of medicine. InfuSystem provides the Durable Medical Equipment and treatment consumables, handles the logistics around orders and deliveries, provides 24x7 nursing support relating to the provided equipment, assumes responsibility for third-party payer Durable Medical Equipment billing, and handles biomedical services (inspection, repair, certification and replacement) for the Durable Medical Equipment. DME Services are provided as a "concierge" offering, whereby InfuSystem leverages its strong service orientation to provide incremental services to our health care provider customers on a direct payer model. DME Services include equipment rental and sales, consumable sales, and biomedical support services.

InfuSystem competes for and retains its business primarily on the basis of its long participation and strong reputation in the Durable Medical Equipment space, its long-standing relationships with Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and its health care provider customers, and the high levels of service it provides. Current barriers to entry for potential competitors are created by our: (i) growing number of third-party payer networks under contract, which included nearly 800 third-party payer networks as of December 31, 2022, an increase of 4% over the prior year period; (ii) economies of scale, which allow for predictable reimbursement and less costly purchase and management of the pumps, respectively; (iii) established, long-standing relationships as a provider of pumps to outpatient oncology practices in the U.S. and Canada; (iv) our large pump fleet of ambulatory and large volume infusion pumps for rent and for sale, which may allow us to be more responsive to the needs of physicians, outpatient oncology practices, hospitals, outpatient surgery centers, homecare practices, patient rehabilitation centers and patients than a new market entrant; (v) seven geographic locations in the U.S. and Canada that allow for same-day or next-day delivery of pumps; (vi) our growing team of field-based and traveling biomedical technicians; and (vii) a wide array of pump repair and service capabilities. We do not perform any research and development on pumps, but we have made, and continue to make, investments in our information technology.

ITS Segment

The ITS segment's core purpose is to seek opportunities to grow our business by leveraging our unique know-how in clinic-to-home health care involving Durable Medical Equipment, our logistics and billing capabilities, our growing network of third-party payers under contract, and our clinical and biomedical capabilities. This leverage may take the form of new products and/or services, strategic alliances, joint ventures and/or acquisitions. The leading service within our ITS segment is to supply electronic ambulatory infusion pumps and associated disposable supply kits to private oncology clinics, infusion clinics and hospital outpatient oncology clinics to be utilized in the treatment of a variety of cancers, including colorectal cancer and other disease states ("Oncology Business"). Colorectal cancer is the fourth most prevalent form of cancer in the U.S., according to the American Cancer Society, and the standard of care for the treatment of colorectal cancer relies upon continuous chemotherapy infusions delivered via ambulatory infusion pumps. One of the goals for the ITS segment is to expand into treatment of other types of cancers. In 2022, our Oncology Business approximated 91% of our total ITS segment net revenues. In 2022, we generated approximately 47% of our total ITS segment net revenues from treatments for colorectal cancer and 44% of our ITS segment net revenues from treatments for non-colorectal disease states. There are a number of approved treatment protocols for pancreatic, head and neck, esophageal and other types of cancers, as well as other disease states which present opportunities for growth. There are also a number of other drugs currently approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (the "FDA"), as well as agents in the pharmaceutical development pipeline, which we believe could potentially be used with continuous infusion protocols for the treatment of diseases other than colorectal cancer. Additional drugs or protocols currently in clinical trials may also obtain regulatory approval over the next several years. If these new drugs or protocols obtain regulatory approval for use with continuous infusion protocols, we expect the pharmaceutical companies to focus their sales and marketing efforts on promoting the new drugs and protocols to physicians.

Furthermore, our Oncology Business focuses mainly on the continuous infusion of chemotherapy. Continuous infusion of chemotherapy can be described as the gradual administration of a drug via a small, lightweight, portable infusion pump over a prolonged period of time. A cancer patient can receive his or her medicine anywhere from one to 30 days per month depending on the chemotherapy regimen that is most appropriate to that individual's health status and disease state. This may be followed by periods of rest and then repeated cycles with treatment goals of progression-free disease survival. This drug administration method has replaced intravenous push or bolus administration in specific circumstances. The advantages of slow continuous low doses of certain drugs are well documented. Clinical studies support the use of continuous infusion chemotherapy for decreased toxicity without loss of anti-tumor efficacy. The 2015 National Comprehensive Cancer Network ("NCCN") Guidelines recommend the use of continuous infusion for treatment of numerous cancer diagnoses. We believe that the growth of continuous infusion therapy is driven by three factors: evidence of improved clinical outcomes; lower toxicity and side effects; and a favorable reimbursement environment.

The use of continuous infusion has been demonstrated to decrease or alter the toxicity of a number of cytotoxic, or cell killing, agents. Higher doses of drugs can be infused over longer periods of time, leading to improved tolerance and decreased toxicity. For example, the cardiotoxicity (heart muscle damage) of the chemotherapy drug Doxorubicin is decreased by schedules of administration according to The Chemotherapy Source Book by Michael C. Perry. Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and decreased white blood cell and platelet counts are all affected by duration of delivery. Continuous infusion can lead to improved tolerance and patient comfort while enhancing the patient's ability to remain on the chemotherapy regimen. Additionally, the lower toxicity profile and resulting reduction in side effects enables patients undergoing continuous infusion therapy to continue a relatively normal lifestyle, which may include continuing to work, going shopping, and caring for family members. We believe that the partnering of physician management and patient autonomy provide for the highest quality of care with the greatest patient satisfaction.

We believe that oncology practitioners have a heightened sensitivity to providing quality service and to their ability to obtain reimbursement for services they provide. Simultaneously, CMS and private insurers are increasingly focused on evidence-based medicine to inform their reimbursement decisions — that is, aligning reimbursement with clinical outcomes and adherence to standards of care. Continuous infusion therapy is a main component of the standard of care for certain types of cancer because clinical evidence demonstrates superior outcomes. Payers' recognition of this benefit is reflected in their relative reimbursement policies for clinical services related to the delivery of this care.

Additional areas of focus for our ITS segment are as follows:

- Pain Management - providing our ambulatory pumps, products, and services for pain management in the area of post-surgical continuous peripheral nerve block.
- Wound Care - launched in November 2022, the Company established a partnership, SI Wound Care, LLC ("SI Wound Care"), with Sanara MedTech Inc. ("Sanara"). The partnership will focus on delivering a complete wound care solution targeted at improving patient outcomes, lowering the cost of care, and increasing patient and provider satisfaction. The partnership is expected to enable InfuSystem to offer innovative products including Cork Medical LLC's ("Cork") negative pressure wound therapy ("NPWT") devices and supplies and Sanara's advanced wound care product line to new customers through the jointly controlled entity.
- Acquisitions - we believe there are opportunities to acquire smaller, regional health care service providers, in whole or in part that perform similar services to us but do not have the national market access, network of third-party payer contracts or operating economies of scale that we currently enjoy. We may also pursue acquisition opportunities of companies that perform similar services, but offer different therapies or utilize different devices.

- Lymphedema Therapy – Lymphedema therapy includes providing patient care and customer service, pneumatic compression devices and associated garments through our partnership with Bio Compression Systems, Inc. to outpatients, initially targeting our existing acute care and oncology customers, estimated to be 20% of the multi-billion-dollar Lymphedema market.
- Information technology-based services - we also plan to continue to capitalize on key new information technology-based services such as EXPRESS, InfuBus or InfuConnect, Pump Portal, DeviceHub and BlockPain Dashboard®.

The payer environment within our ITS segment is in a constant state of change. We continue to extend our considerable breadth of payer networks under contract as patients move into different insurance coverage plans, including Medicaid and Insurance Marketplace products. In some cases, this may slightly reduce our aggregate billed revenues payment rate but result in an overall increase in collected revenues, due to a reduction in concessions. Consequently, we are increasingly focused on revenues net of concessions.

DME Services Segment

Our DME Services segment's core service is to: (i) sell or rent new and pre-owned pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps and other Durable Medical Equipment; (ii) sell treatment-related consumables; and (iii) provide biomedical recertification, maintenance and repair services for oncology practices as well as other healthcare site settings, including hospitals, home care and home infusion providers, skilled nursing and acute care facilities, pain centers and others. We purchase new and pre-owned pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps from a variety of sources on a non-exclusive basis. We repair, refurbish and provide biomedical certification for the devices as needed. The pumps are then available for sale, rental or to be used within our ambulatory infusion pump management service. Our acquisition of FilAMed, a privately-held biomedical services company, on January 31, 2021 has supplemented the Company's existing biomedical recertification, maintenance and repair services for acute care facilities and other alternate site settings including home care and home infusion providers, skilled nursing facilities, pain centers and others. Our acquisition of OB Healthcare Corporation ("OB Healthcare"), a privately-held biomedical services company, on April 18, 2021 further develops and expands InfuSystem's DME Services segment by adding field service capabilities and complements the Company's purchase of FilAMed.

Services

ITS Segment

Our core service within our ITS segment is our Oncology Business. After delivering our ambulatory pumps to oncology offices, infusion clinics, and hospital and outpatient chemotherapy clinics, we then directly bill and collect payment from payers and patients for the use of these pumps. At any given time, our pumps are in the possession of these facilities, on a patient, in transit, or in our facilities for cleaning, calibration and storage as reserves for increased demand.

After a physician determines that a patient is eligible for ambulatory infusion pump therapy, the physician arranges for the patient to receive an infusion pump and provides the necessary chemotherapy drugs. The physician and nursing staff train the patient in the use of the pump and initiate service. The physician bills the payers, which may include Medicare, Medicaid, third-party payer companies or patients for the physician's professional services associated with initiating and supervising the infusion pump administration, as well as the supply of drugs. We directly bill (i) payers, (ii) facilities of our Medicare patients, and (iii) patients for the use of the pump and related disposable supplies. Billing to payers requires coordination with patients and physicians who initiate the service, as physicians' offices must provide us with appropriate documentation (patient's insurance information, physician's order, an acknowledgement of benefits that shows receipt of equipment by the patient, and, in some cases, physician's progress notes) in order for us to submit a bill to the payers. We provide assistance to uninsured patients that cannot afford our pumps via our financial hardship program – a program that usually matches what our physician practices provide as long as the uninsured patients meet certain criteria. This billing process is handled from our Rochester Hills, Michigan location.

In addition to providing high quality and convenient care, we believe that our business offers significant economic benefits for patients, providers and payers.

- Our clinical support team employs oncology, pain, Intravenous Certified, and Oncology Certified registered nurses trained on ambulatory infusion pump equipment who staff our 24x7 customer service hotline to address questions that patients may have about their pump treatment, the infusion pumps or other medical or technical questions related to the pumps.

- Physicians use our services to outsource the capital commitment, pump service, maintenance and billing and administrative burdens associated with pump ownership. Our services also allow the doctor to continue a direct relationship with the patient and to receive professional service fees for setting up the treatment and administering the drugs.

- We provide methods for the physician offices to deliver the appropriate paperwork for billing through a number of electronic means including EXPRESS and InfuConnect reducing the required effort on the employees of the physician offices.

- We believe our services are attractive to payers because such services are generally less expensive than hospitalization or standalone home health care.

Also, within ITS, we offer pain management services via electronic ambulatory infusion pumps for post-operative pain management using our pumps along with a numbing agent and a continuous nerve block catheter – continuous peripheral nerve block ("CPNB"). Using CPNB for the management of post-operative pain, which usually lasts two to three days after surgery, can result in reduced pain for the patient, increased satisfaction scores for the surgical center or hospital, and reduced need for post-operative opioid pain medication. These services include our patient care call center interaction offering support to patients and the review and collection of pain score patient outcome data for outpatient surgery centers using our proprietary BlockPain Dashboard®.

DME Services Segment

Other services we offer are classified under our DME Services segment and include the rental, sale or leasing and servicing of pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps to oncology practices, hospitals and other clinical settings. These pumps are available for daily, weekly, monthly or annual rental periods. We also sell treatment consumables that can be used in conjunction with the pumps we sell and rent.

In addition to sales, rental and leasing services, we also provide biomedical maintenance, repair and certification services for the devices we offer as well as for devices owned by customers but not acquired from us. We operate pump service and repair "Centers of Excellence" from all of our locations across the U.S. and Canada and employ a staff of highly-trained technicians to provide these services. Our main Center of Excellence for service is our Lenexa, Kansas facility. In addition to the maintenance and repair services we perform at these facilities, we offer similar services that can be performed directly at our customer locations nation-wide through our team of field-based and traveling biomedical technicians.

As of December 31, 2022, our rental fleet of pole-mounted pumps, ambulatory pumps and NPWT medical equipment for both our ITS and DME Services segments had a historical cost of $99.2 million, up from $91.9 million at the end of 2021, and included approximately 125 makes and models of equipment dedicated to our rental services. Additionally, as of December 31, 2022 and 2021, we had a fleet of new and used pole-mounted pumps, ambulatory pumps and NPWT medical equipment with a historical cost of $2.8 million and $1.8 million, respectively, for sale or rental.

Information Technology

Our Information Technology ("IT") department is focused on not only supporting our internal IT infrastructure needs, but also supporting our revenue cycle management infrastructure including our electronic medical record technology ("EMR") that allows medical facilities to use our infusion pumps and services via our solutions such as EXPRESS and InfuConnect. This focus has enabled current billing information to be transferred to us from participating facilities electronically and automatically. Our focus on IT solutions resulted in the development of EXPRESS, a product powered by our InfuBus data integration platform, and provides for paperless delivery of the appropriate information for InfuSystem to bill payers that:

- eliminates all paper;
- provides an enhanced visibility as a result of real time status and reporting;
- reduces risk of error;
- automates treatment logs, pump assignments, tracking and physician's orders;
- provides a secure scanner for easy pump assignment to patients; and
- removes interruptions from physician practices' daily schedules, and standardizes data flow for clinics and hospitals with multiple locations.

Relationships with Physician Offices

As of December 31, 2022, we had business relationships with clinical oncologists in over 2,150 outpatient oncology clinics. Although this represents a substantial number of the oncologists in the U.S., we believe that we can continue to expand our network to further penetrate the oncology market. Based on our retention rates and the positive results of our professional customer satisfaction research, we believe our relationships with physician offices are strong.

We believe that, in general, we do not compete directly with hospitals and physician offices to treat patients. Rather, by providing products and services to hospitals and physician offices and other care facilities and providers, we believe that we assist other providers in meeting increasing patient demand and managing institutional constraints on capital and manpower due to the nature of limited resources in hospitals and physician offices.

Physician practices in the oncology field are following the overall healthcare practices trend to consolidate. However, as of December 31, 2022, we had gained more facilities than we had lost. We expect this trend to continue for the foreseeable future.

Employees

As of December 31, 2022, we had 438 employees, including 420 full-time employees and 18 part-time or contract employees. None of our employees are unionized.

Material Suppliers

We supply a wide variety of pumps and associated equipment, as well as disposables and ancillary supplies. The majority of our pumps are electronic infusion pumps. Smiths Medical, Inc. and Moog Medical Devices Group each supplied more than 10% of the ambulatory pumps purchased by us in 2022. The Company has a supply agreement in place with each of these suppliers. Certain "spot" purchases are made on the open market subject to individual negotiation. We also supply NPWT medical equipment, as well as related disposables and ancillary supplies.

Seasonality

Revenues may be seasonal due to the impact of co-pays and deductibles for patients' insurance that traditionally reset each January. This has been further impacted by changes in the insurance industry as it responds to increased government regulation. Also, rental customers tend to make buy versus rent decisions late in the year as customer capital budgets are being finalized, impacting sales revenue in the second half of the year, predominantly in the fourth quarter. Furthermore, as the Company's liquidity has improved, opportunistic pump purchases are made from time to time. These opportunistic pump purchases also allow for opportunistic pump sales, which could be material. The timing of such purchases and sales vary within the course of a year.

Environmental Laws

We are required to comply with applicable federal, state and local environmental laws regulating the disposal of cleaning agents used in the process of cleaning medical equipment, as well as the disposal of sharps and blood products used in connection with the pumps and medical equipment. We do not believe that compliance with such laws has a material effect on our business.

Significant Customers

We have sought to establish contracts with as many third-party payer organizations as commercially practicable, in an effort to ensure that reimbursement is not a significant obstacle for providers who recommend continuous infusion therapy and wish to utilize our services. A third-party payer organization is a health care payer or a group of medical services payers that contracts to provide a wide variety of health care services to enrolled members through participating providers such as us. A payer is any entity that pays on behalf of a member patient.

As of December 31, 2022, we had contracts with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, an increase of 4% over the prior year period. Material terms of contracts with third-party payer organizations are typically a pre-negotiated fee schedule rate or a then-current proprietary fee schedule rate for equipment and supplies provided. The majority of these contracts generally provide for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. We also contract with various other third-party payer organizations, Medicaid, commercial Medicare replacement plans, self-insured plans, facilities of our Medicare patients and numerous other insurance carriers. No single payer or customer represented more than 10% of net revenue in 2022, 2021 or 2020.

Competitors

We believe that our competition primarily consists of national, regional, and hospital-owned Durable Medical Equipment providers and service companies, physician providers and home care infusion providers and the competitive products and services they offer. An estimate of the number of competitors is not known or reasonably available, due to the wide variety in type and size of the market participants described below. We are not aware of any industry reports with respect to the competitive market described below. The description of market segments and business activities within those market segments is based on our experiences in the industry.

- National Durable Medical Equipment Providers and Service Companies: Other national providers and service companies have offerings similar to us. These products and service offerings include, but are not limited to, third-party reimbursement, direct rental and sale of infusion electronic and disposal pumps and related products and services for patients in the home, oncology clinics, ambulatory surgery centers, hospitals and other sites of care.

- Regional Durable Medical Equipment Providers: Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers act as distributors for a variety of medical products. We believe regional Durable Medical Equipment provider sales forces generally consist of a relatively small number of salespeople, usually covering several states. Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers tend to carry a limited selection of infusion pumps and their salespeople generally have limited resources. Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers usually do not have 24x7 nursing services. We believe that Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers have relatively few third-party payer contracts, which may prevent these providers from being paid at acceptable levels and may also result in higher out-of-pocket costs for patients.

- Hospital-Owned Durable Medical Equipment Providers: Many hospitals have in-house Durable Medical Equipment providers to supply basic equipment. In general, however, these providers have limited capital and tend to stock a small inventory of infusion pumps. We believe that hospital-owned providers have limited ability to grow because of limited patient populations. Growth from outside of the hospital may pose a challenge because hospitals typically will not provide referrals to competitors, instead preferring to offer patients a choice of non-hospital-affiliated Durable Medical Equipment providers.

- Physician Providers: A limited number of physicians maintain an inventory of their own infusion pumps and provide them to patients for a fee. However, we believe that pump utilization in this area tends to be low and the costs associated with ongoing supplies, preventative maintenance and repairs can be relatively high. Moreover, we believe that a high percentage of Durable Medical Equipment claims by doctors are rejected by payers upon first submission, requiring a physician's staff to spend significant time and effort to resubmit claims and receive payment for treatment. The numerous service and technical questions from patients may present another significant cost to a physician provider's staff.

- Home Care Infusion Providers: Home care infusion providers provide chemotherapy drugs and services to allow for in-home patient treatment. We believe that home care infusion treatment can be very costly and that many patients do not carry insurance coverage that pay for home-based infusion services, resulting in larger out-of-pocket costs. Because home care treatments may take as long as six months, these costs can be high and can result in higher patient co-payments. We believe that home care providers may also be reluctant to offer 24x7 coverage or additional patient visits, due to capped fees.

Regulation of Our Business

Our business is subject to various regulations. Specifically, as a registered Medicare supplier of Durable Medical Equipment and related supplies, we must comply with supplier standards established by CMS regulating Medicare suppliers of Durable Medical Equipment, Prosthetics, Orthotics and Supplies ("DMEPOS Supplier Standards"). The DMEPOS Supplier Standards consist of 30 requirements that must be met in order for a DMEPOS supplier to be eligible to receive payment for a Medicare-covered item. Some of the more significant DMEPOS Supplier Standards require us to (i) advise Medicare beneficiaries of their option to purchase certain equipment, (ii) honor all warranties under state law and not charge Medicare beneficiaries for the repair or replacement of equipment or for services covered under warranty, (iii) permit CMS agents to conduct on-site inspections to ascertain compliance with the DMEPOS Supplier Standards, (iv) maintain liability insurance in prescribed amounts, (v) refrain from contacting Medicare beneficiaries by telephone, except in certain limited circumstances, (vi) answer questions and respond to complaints of beneficiaries regarding the supplied equipment, (vii) disclose the DMEPOS Supplier Standards to each Medicare beneficiary to whom we supply equipment, (viii) maintain a complaint resolution procedure and record certain information regarding each complaint, (ix) maintain accreditation from a CMS approved accreditation organization, and (x) meet certain specified surety bond requirements.

We are also subject to the provisions of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 ("HIPAA"), which are designed to protect the security and confidentiality of certain protected health information. Under HIPAA, we must provide patients access to certain records and must notify patients of our use of protected health information and patient privacy rights. Moreover, HIPAA sets limits on how we may use individually identifiable health information and prohibits the use of patient information for marketing purposes. The adoption of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 ("ARRA") includes a new breach notification requirement that applies to breaches of unsecured health information occurring on or after September 23, 2009. We are subject to regulations in the various states in which we operate. We believe we are in material compliance with all such regulations.

Available Information

Our Internet address is www.infusystem.com. On this website, we post the following filings as soon as reasonably practicable after they are electronically filed with or furnished to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"): our Annual Reports on Form 10-K; our Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q; our Current Reports on Form 8-K; our proxy statements related to our annual stockholders' meetings; and any amendments to those reports or statements. All such filings are available on our website free of charge. The charters of our audit, nominating and governance and compensation committees and our Code of Business Conduct and Ethics Policy are also available on our website and in print to any stockholder who requests them. The content on our website is not incorporated by reference into this Form 10-K unless expressly noted.

Item 1A. Risk Factors.

An investment in our securities involves a high degree of risk. You should consider carefully all of the material risks described below, together with the other information contained in this Form 10-K. If any of the following events occur, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may be materially adversely affected.

RISK FACTORS RELATING TO OUR BUSINESS AND THE INDUSTRY IN WHICH WE OPERATE

Our business is substantially dependent on third-party reimbursement. Any change in the overall health care reimbursement system may adversely impact our business.

Our revenues are substantially dependent on third-party reimbursement. We are paid directly by private insurers and, in some cases, governmental agencies, often on a fixed fee basis, for the use of continuous infusion equipment and related disposable supplies provided to patients. If the average fees allowable by private insurers or governmental agencies were reduced, the negative impact on revenues could have a material effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Also, if amounts owed to us by patients and insurers are reduced or not paid on a timely basis, we may be required to increase our concessions and/or decrease our revenues.

Changes in the health care reimbursement system often create financial incentives and disincentives that encourage or discourage the use of a particular type of product, therapy or clinical procedure. Such changes may be impacted by the growth in ACOs, reduction of providers by payers, the use of lower cost rental networks and other factors. Market acceptance of continuous infusion therapy may be adversely affected by changes or trends within the health care reimbursement system. Changes to the health care reimbursement system that favor other technologies or treatment regimens that reduce reimbursements to providers or treatment facilities, including increasing competitive pressures from home health care and other companies that use our services, may adversely affect our ability to market our services profitably. Overall, such dependency and potential changes could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our business is substantially dependent on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement.

Our revenues are substantially dependent on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement. Due to the complex nature of third-party reimbursement for the use of continuous infusion equipment and related disposable supplies provided to patients, we must estimate, based upon historical averages, the amount of collectible revenue that may be derived from each patient treatment. If average reimbursement rates diverge from historical levels, the estimates of such revenue may diverge from actual collections.

We utilize statistical methods to account for such changes, but there can be no assurance that the revenue reported in any period will ultimately be collected. Any recognized revenue related to third-party reimbursement from prior periods, which remains uncollected until written off from accounts receivable, will negatively impact revenues in the period in which it is written off. Thus, over time, recognized revenue net of concessions will approximate total collections.

The loss of a relationship with one or more third-party payers could negatively impact our business.

Our contracts for reimbursement with third-party payers are often for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. These evergreen contracts are subject to termination upon written notice. One or more terminations could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Any federal government shutdown may adversely impact our business.

Our revenues are dependent on private insurers and governmental agencies. In the absence of any bipartisan agreement in the federal government with respect to payments from governmental agencies, our revenues could be reduced. In addition, any federal government shutdown could also have a material and adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Payer concentration may adversely impact our business.

As of December 31, 2022, we had contracts with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, an increase of 4% over the prior year period. Material terms of contracts with third-party payer organizations are typically a pre-negotiated fee schedule rate or a then-current proprietary fee schedule rate for equipment and supplies provided. The majority of these contracts generally provide for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. We also contract with various other third-party payer organizations, Medicaid, commercial Medicare replacement plans, self-insured plans, facilities of our Medicare patients and numerous other insurance carriers. No single payer represented more than 10% of net revenue in 2022, 2021 or 2020. To the extent such dependency was to occur, significant fluctuations in revenues, results of operations and liquidity could arise if any significant contracted payer reduces its reimbursement for the services we provide.

Our billing process is dependent on meeting payer claims processing guidelines which are subject to change at the discretion of the payers. Such changes would materially impact our ability to bill and the timing of such billings, which could materially and adversely impact our net revenues and cash flows, which impact would be even greater if such changes are made by one of our larger payers.

The continued consolidation of physician practices, outpatient infusion clinics, oncology clinics, homecare providers and hospitals, increases the concentration of decision makers whom either choose to use our ambulatory electronic pumps within our Oncology Business or directly rent, lease or purchase pumps or supplies from us.

While we make every effort to benefit from such concentration, it could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Increased focus on early detection and diagnostics may adversely affect our business.

An increased focus on lowering health care spending via improved diagnostic testing (i.e., defensive medicine) and patient monitoring could materially and negatively affect our business. A large portion of our ambulatory infusion pumps are dedicated to a specific form of cancer (i.e., colorectal). As a result of rising health care costs, there may be a demand for more cost-effective approaches to disease management, specifically for colorectal cancer, as well as for emphasis on screening and accurate diagnostic testing to facilitate early detection of potentially costly, severe afflictions. Any change in the approach to treatment of colorectal cancer could have a material and adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

If future clinical studies demonstrate that oral medications or other therapies that do not use our electronic ambulatory pumps are at least as effective as continuous infusion therapy, our business could be adversely affected.

Ongoing clinical trials are currently evaluating and comparing the therapeutic benefits of current continuous infusion-based regimens with various oral medication regimens. If these clinical trials demonstrate that oral medications provide equal or greater therapeutic benefits and/or demonstrate reduced side effects compared to prior oral medication regimens, our revenues and overall business could be materially and adversely affected. Additionally, if new oral medications or other therapies that do not utilize our ambulatory electronic pumps are introduced to the market that are superior to existing oral therapies, physicians' willingness to prescribe continuous infusion-based regimens could decline, which would materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our success is impacted by the availability of the chemotherapy drugs that are used in our continuous infusion pump systems.

We primarily derive our revenues from the rental of ambulatory infusion pumps to oncology patients through physicians' offices and chemotherapy clinics. A shortage in the availability of chemotherapy drugs that are used in the continuous infusion pump system, which has occurred in the past, could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We are dependent on our Medicare Supplier Number.

We are required to have a Medicare Supplier Number in order to have the ability to bill Medicare for services provided to Medicare patients. Furthermore, all third-party and Medicaid contracts require us to have a Medicare Supplier Number. We are required to comply with Medicare DMEPOS Supplier Standards in order to maintain such number. If we are unable to comply with the relevant standards, we could lose our Medicare Supplier Number. Without such number, we would be unable to continue our various third-party and Medicaid contracts. A significant portion of our revenues are dependent upon our Medicare Supplier Number, the loss of which would materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

The CMS requires that all Durable Medical Equipment providers must be accredited by a CMS-approved accreditation organization. On February 17, 2009, we initially received accreditation from CHAP, and we have remained accredited to date. If we lost our accredited status, our business, financial condition, revenues and results of operations would be materially and adversely affected.

The impact of U.S. health care reform legislation on us remains uncertain.

The ACA has perpetuated the development of alternative provider payment models by CMS and the major national commercial payers. These payment models do not replace the current fee-for-service models nor replace current payer contracts, but rather provide additional financial incentives to certain "accountable" providers to improve quality and lower cost. The implications for the Company will come from the provider networks that are forming in order to integrate and coordinate care under these alternative models with CMS and the commercial payers. These provider networks include ACOs, patient-centered primary care medical homes, specialty medical homes, networks accepting bundled payment programs, and other "performance" networks that contract with CMS and commercial payers under alternative payment models that financially reward improved quality and lower medical cost. The relationship between us and our provider practices and facilities that are participating in these provider networks under alternative payment models will depend on (i) the extent to which these provider networks give priority to the medical cost associated with our Durable Medical Equipment services and (ii) whether our services are seen as part of a care delivery model that delivers higher value – higher quality at a lower cost.

Our failure to perform under these alternative payment models, or under similar models or conditions introduced by future legislation, could have a material adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We rely on independent suppliers for our products. Any delay or disruption in the supply of products, particularly our supply of electronic ambulatory pumps, may negatively impact our operations.

Our infusion pumps and related consumables are obtained from outside vendors. The majority of our new pumps are electronic infusion pumps which are supplied to us by two major suppliers: Smiths Medical, Inc. and Moog Medical Devices Group. The loss or disruption of our relationships with outside vendors, including pumps, parts, or supply recall or pump end-of-life announcements or availability of related proprietary consumable supplies, could subject us to substantial delays in the delivery of pumps or services provided to customers. From time to time, we or our suppliers may experience supply chain disruptions due to circumstances beyond our or our suppliers' control, such as the 2020 outbreak of COVID-19. Significant delays in the delivery or service of pumps or related proprietary consumable supplies could result in possible cancellation of orders and the loss of customers. Our inability to provide pumps to meet delivery schedules could have a material adverse effect on our reputation in the industry, as well as on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We face periodic reviews and billing audits from governmental and private payers and these audits could have adverse results that may negatively impact our business.

As a result of our participation in the Medicaid program and our registration in the Medicare program, we are subject to various governmental reviews and audits to verify our compliance with these programs and applicable laws and regulations. We also are subject to audits under various government programs in which third-party firms engaged by CMS conduct extensive reviews of claims data and medical and other records to identify potential improper payments under the Medicare program. Private pay sources also reserve the right to conduct audits. If billing errors are identified in the sample of reviewed claims, the billing error can be extrapolated to all claims filed which could result in a larger overpayment than originally identified in the sample of reviewed claims. Our costs to respond to and defend reviews and audits may be significant and could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Moreover, an adverse review or audit could result in:

- required refunding or retroactive adjustment of amounts we have been paid by governmental or private payers;
- state or Federal agencies imposing fines, penalties and other sanctions on us;
- loss of our right to participate in the Medicare program, state programs, or one or more private payer networks; or
- damage to our business and reputation in various markets.

Any one of these results could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our failure to maintain controls and processes over billing and collecting could have a significant negative impact on our Consolidated Financial Statements.

The collection of accounts receivable is a significant challenge and requires constant focus and involvement by management and ongoing enhancements to information systems, billing center operating procedures and proper staffing levels. If we are unable to properly bill and collect our accounts receivable, our results could be materially and adversely affected. While management believes that our staffing, controls and processes are satisfactory, there can be no assurance that accounts receivable collectability will remain at current levels.

State licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers are subject to change. If we fail to comply with any state laws, we will be unable to operate as a Durable Medical Equipment supplier in such state and our business operations will be adversely affected.

As a Durable Medical Equipment supplier operating in all 50 states, we are subject to each state's licensure laws regulating Durable Medical Equipment suppliers. State licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers are subject to change and we must ensure that we are continually in compliance with the laws of all 50 states. In the event that we fail to comply with any state's laws governing the licensing of Durable Medical Equipment suppliers, we will be unable to operate as a Durable Medical Equipment supplier in such state until we regain compliance. We may also be subject to certain fines and/or penalties and our business operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Our customer concessions may not be adequate to cover actual losses.

Our third-party payer contracts do not guarantee annual inflationary increases, typical of the Durable Medical Equipment payer contracting environment. Contracted reimbursement rates are either subject to increases or decreases in CMS program rates or, if not indexed to government rates, are frozen until those payer contracts are reopened and renegotiated. While we monitor reimbursement levels to identify specific payer reimbursement rates that have eroded and renegotiate such rates, we may not be able to maintain or improve overall reimbursement levels, thereby compromising the adequacy of the predicted customer concessions.

We may also face reduced reimbursements from private third-party payers. In addition, our customers may be unable to make timely payments to us. Although we maintain allowances for estimated losses resulting from the inability of our customers to make required payments, we cannot guarantee that we will continue to experience the same loss rates that we have in the past. If we begin to experience an increase in our loss rates in excess of our allowances, it could materially and adversely impact our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our growth strategy includes expanding into treatment for cancers other than colorectal cancer. There can be no assurance that continuous infusion-based regimens for these other cancers will become standards of care for large numbers of patients or that we will be successful in penetrating these different markets.

An aspect of our growth strategy is to expand into the treatment of other cancers, such as head, neck and gastric cancers. This population of patients will expand only if clinical trial results for new drugs and new combinations of drugs demonstrate superior outcomes for regimens that include continuous infusion therapy relative to alternatives. No assurances can be given that these new drugs and drug combinations will be approved or will prove superior to oral medication or other treatment alternatives. In addition, no assurances can be given that we will be able to penetrate successfully any new markets that may develop in the future or manage the growth in additional resources that would be required.

The industry in which we operate is intensely competitive and ever-changing. If we are unable to successfully compete with our competitors, our business operations may suffer.

The drug infusion industry is highly competitive. Some of our competitors and potential competitors, including some of the practices that we service, have significantly greater resources than we do for information technology, marketing and sales. As a result, they may be better able to compete for market share, even in areas in which our services may be superior. The industry is subject to technological changes and such changes may put our current fleet of pumps, smart pump licensing, our information technology solutions or our other technological-based solutions at a competitive disadvantage. Furthermore, the healthcare industry, in general, is experiencing market consolidation, reducing the number of decision makers. If we are unable to effectively compete in our market, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may be materially and adversely affected.

Our industry is dependent on regulatory guidelines that affect our billing practices. If our competitors do not comply with these regulatory guidelines, our business could be adversely affected.

Aggressive competitors may not fully comply with rules regarding CMS and other payers' billing and documentation requirements. Competitors, who do not meet the same standards of compliance that we do with respect to billing regulations, may put us at a potential competitive disadvantage. We are a participating provider with Medicare and as of December 31, 2022, we were under contract with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, all of which have very stringent guidelines. If our competitors do not comply with these regulatory guidelines, we could be put at a potential competitive disadvantage and our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be material and adversely affected.

Although we do not manufacture the products we distribute, if one of the products distributed by us proves to be defective or is misused by a health care practitioner or patient, we may be subject to liability that could adversely affect our financial condition and results of operations.

Although we do not manufacture the pumps that we distribute, a defect in the design or manufacture of a pump distributed or serviced by us, or a failure of pumps distributed by us to perform for the use specified, could have a material and adverse effect on our reputation in the industry and subject us to claims of liability for injuries and otherwise. Misuse of the pumps distributed by us by a practitioner or patient that results in injury could similarly subject us to liability. Any substantial underinsured loss could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Furthermore, any impairment of our reputation could have a material and adverse effect on our revenues and prospects for future business.

We intend to continue to pursue opportunities for the further expansion of our business through strategic alliances and/or joint ventures. Future strategic alliances and/or joint ventures may require significant resources and/or result in significant unanticipated costs or liabilities to us.

We intend to continue to pursue opportunities for the further expansion of our business through strategic alliances and/or joint ventures. Any future strategic alliances or joint ventures will depend on our ability to identify suitable partners, negotiate acceptable terms for such transactions and obtain financing, if necessary. These investments require significant managerial attention, which may be diverted from our other operations.

If we engage in strategic acquisitions, we may experience significant costs and difficulty in assimilating operations or personnel, which could threaten our future growth.

If we make any acquisitions, we could have difficulty assimilating operations, technologies and products and services. In addition, we could have difficulty integrating or retaining personnel and maintaining employee morale as we take steps to combine the personnel and business cultures of separate organizations into one and to eliminate duplicate positions and functions. It may also be difficult for us to preserve important relationships with others, such as strategic partners, customers, and suppliers, who may delay or defer decisions on agreements with us, or seek to change existing agreements with us, because of the acquisition. In addition, acquisitions may involve entering markets in which we have no or limited direct prior experience. The occurrence of any one or more of these factors could disrupt our ongoing business, distract our management's and employees' attention from our ongoing business operations, result in decreased operating performance and increase our expenses. Moreover, our profitability may suffer because of acquisition-related costs or amortization of intangible assets. Furthermore, we may have to incur debt or issue equity securities in future acquisitions. The issuance of equity securities would dilute our existing stockholders.

We may be unable to maintain adequate working relationships with health care professionals.

We seek to maintain close working relationships with respected physicians and medical personnel in hospitals and universities. We rely on these professionals to assist us in the development of proprietary service and improvements to complement and expand our existing service and product lines. If we are unable to maintain these relationships, our ability to market and sell new and improved products and services could decrease and future operating results could be unfavorably affected.

If we fail to comply with applicable governmental or accrediting bodies' regulations, we could face substantial penalties and our business, operations and financial condition could be adversely affected.

Certain federal, state health care, and accreditation bodies' laws and regulations, including those pertaining to fraud and abuse and patients' rights, are applicable to our business. The laws that are applicable to our business include:

- the federal health care program Anti-Kickback Statute, which prohibits, among other things, soliciting, receiving or providing remuneration, directly or indirectly, to induce (i) the referral of an individual, for an item or service or (ii) the purchasing or ordering of a good or service, for which payment may be made under federal health care programs such as the Medicare and Medicaid programs;
- federal false claims laws which prohibit, among other things, knowingly presenting, or causing to be presented, claims for payment from Medicare, Medicaid, or other third-party payers that are false or fraudulent, and which may apply to entities like us that promote medical devices, provide medical device management services and may provide coding and billing advice to customers;
- HIPAA, which prohibits executing a scheme to defraud any health care benefit program or making false statements relating to health care matters and which also imposes certain requirements relating to the privacy, security and transmission of individually identifiable health information; and
- state law equivalents of each of the above federal laws, such as anti-kickback and false claims laws that may apply to items or services reimbursed by any third-party payer, including commercial insurers, and state laws governing the privacy and security of health information in certain circumstances, many of which differ in significant ways from state to state and often are not preempted by HIPAA, thus complicating compliance efforts.

If our operations are found to be in violation of any of the laws described above or any other regulations that apply to us, we may be subject to penalties, including civil and criminal penalties, damages, fines and the curtailment or restructuring of our operations. Any penalties, damages, fines, curtailment or restructuring of our operations could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Any action against us for violation of these laws, even if we successfully defend against it, could cause us to incur significant legal expenses and divert our management's attention from the operation of our business. Moreover, achieving and sustaining compliance with applicable federal and state privacy, security and fraud laws may prove costly.

Failure to protect our intellectual property could substantially harm our business and operating results.

In order to protect our trade secrets and other confidential information, we rely in part on confidentiality agreements with our employees, consultants and third parties with whom we have relationships. These agreements may not effectively prevent disclosure of trade secrets and other confidential information and may not provide an adequate remedy in the event of misappropriation of trade secrets or any unauthorized disclosure of trade secrets and other confidential information. In addition, others may independently discover our trade secrets and confidential information and, in such cases, we could not assert any trade secret rights against such parties. Costly and time-consuming litigation could be necessary to enforce or determine the scope of our trade secret rights and related confidentiality and nondisclosure provisions. Failure to obtain or maintain trade secret protection, or our competitors' acquisition of our trade secrets, could materially and adversely affect our competitive business position.

Covenants in our current and any future debt agreements restrict our business.

Our 2021 Credit Agreement contains and the agreements that govern our future indebtedness may contain, covenants that restrict our ability to and the ability of our subsidiaries to, among other things:

- engage in a transaction that results in a change of control, as defined by the 2021 Credit Agreement;
- create, incur, assume or suffer to exist any lien upon any of our property, assets or revenues;
- make certain investments or acquisitions;

- create, incur, assume or suffer to exist certain indebtedness;
- merge, dissolve, liquidate, consolidate or sell all or substantially all of our assets;
- make any disposition or enter into any agreement to make any disposition;
- repurchase outstanding stock from the open market; and
- declare or make, directly or indirectly, any dividend or other restricted payment, or incur any obligation (contingent or otherwise) to do so.

These covenants may restrict our ability to operate our business. Our failure to comply with these covenants could result in an event of default that, if not cured or waived, could result in reduced liquidity for the Company and could have a material and adverse effect on our ability to operate our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Additionally, our ability to pay interest and repay the principal for our indebtedness is dependent upon our ability to manage our business operations, generate sufficient cash flows to service such debt and the other factors discussed in this section. Our 2021 Credit Agreement also contains certain financial covenants. As of December 31, 2022, we were in compliance with all the covenants contained in the 2021 Credit Agreement, however, there can be no assurance that we will be able to manage any of the risks associated with debt agreements successfully.

Economic uncertainty or economic deterioration could adversely affect us.

There continues to be global economic uncertainty, as well as increased inflation, heightened interest rates and a recessionary environment. Ongoing political changes and conflicts in the U.S. and abroad continue to contribute to global economic uncertainty and volatility in the global financial markets. In February 2022, Russian forces launched significant military actions against Ukraine, which has caused significant international conflict, including sanctions, tensions and military actions. In addition, the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic have contributed to economic uncertainty. Continued economic uncertainty may continue to drive stock market and interest rate volatility, increased inflation and adversely impact consumer confidence, product demand, and our ability to refinance our debt. Economic conditions, along with our operating performance, may also materially and adversely impact our ability to access the financial markets. Accordingly, our future business and financial results are subject to uncertainty. If economic conditions deteriorate in the future, our future revenues and financial results could be materially and adversely affected.

Changes in tax laws or challenges to our tax positions could adversely affect our business, results of operations and financial condition.

We are subject to income taxes as well as non-income based taxes in federal and various state jurisdictions. Changes in tax laws, including, for example, those resulting from the U.S. federal tax legislation commonly referred to as the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act, as well as other factors, could cause us to experience fluctuations in our tax obligations and effective tax rates in future periods and otherwise adversely affect our tax positions and/or our tax liabilities. The full impact of the CARES Act on us may change significantly as regulations, interpretations and rulings relating to the CARES Act are issued and additional changes in U.S. federal and state tax laws are made in the future. There can be no assurance that our effective tax rates, tax payments, tax credits or incentives will not be adversely affected by these or other initiatives.

We are subject to audits by tax authorities from time to time in federal and state jurisdictions. Tax authorities may disagree with certain positions we have taken and assess additional taxes and penalties. We regularly assess the likely outcomes of these audits in order to determine the appropriateness of our tax provision. However, there can be no assurance that we will accurately predict the outcomes of these audits, and the actual outcomes of these audits could have a material impact on our results of operations.

The value of our net operating loss carryforwards may become impaired if we do not generate sufficient future taxable income required to utilize all or a portion of our net operating loss carryforwards prior to their expiration.

The Company's U.S. federal net operating loss carryforward for tax purposes was $35.7 million at December 31, 2022, resulting in a federal deferred tax asset of $7.5 million. Approximately $29.1 million of the Company's U.S. federal net operating loss carryforwards will begin to expire in various years beginning in 2031. The Company's realization of its deferred tax assets including the loss carryforwards is dependent upon many factors, including, but not limited to, the Company's ability to generate sufficient taxable income in sufficient amounts. There can be no assurance that we will generate the required amounts of taxable income before the expiration dates are reached.

Cautionary Statement About Forward-Looking Statements

Certain statements contained in this Form 10-K are forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act") and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"). The words "believe," "may," "will," "estimate," "continue," "anticipate," "intend," "should," "plan," "expect," "strategy," "future," "likely," variations of such words, and other similar expressions, as they relate to the Company, are intended to identify forward-looking statements. However, the absence of these words or similar expressions does not mean that a statement is not forward-looking. In connection with the "safe harbor" provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, the Company is identifying certain factors that could cause actual results to differ, perhaps materially, from those indicated by these forward-looking statements. InfuSystem does not intend and does not undertake any obligation to update any forward-looking statement to reflect future events or circumstances after the date of such statements, except as may be required by law. Important factors that could cause our actual results and financial condition to differ materially from the forward-looking statements include, without limitation, those described in "Risk Factors" and elsewhere in this Form 10-K, and the following:

- changes in third-party reimbursement processes, rates, contractual relationships and payer mix;
- our dependence on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement;
- risks associated with the loss of a relationship with one or more third-party payers;
- risks associated with a federal government shutdown;
- risks associated with payer concentration;
- physicians' acceptance of infusion pump therapy over alternative therapies and focus on early detection and diagnostics;
- our dependence on our Medicare Suppler Number, which allows us to bill Medicare for services provided to Medicare patients;
- availability of chemotherapy drugs used in our infusion pump systems;
- our expectations regarding enacted and potential legislative and regulatory changes impacting, among other things, the level of reimbursement received from the Medicare and state Medicaid programs including the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services ("CMS") competitive bidding;
- our dependence upon our suppliers;
- periodic reviews and billing audits from governmental and private payers;
- our ability to maintain controls and processes over billing and collection and the adequacy of our allowance for doubtful accounts and customer concessions;
- our ability to comply with state licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers;
- risks associated with our allowance for doubtful accounts and customer concessions;
- our ability to execute our business strategies to grow our business, including our ability to introduce new products and services;
- industry competition;
- compliance with regulatory guidelines affecting our billing practices;
- defective products manufactured by third-party suppliers;
- our ability to execute on acquisition and joint-venture opportunities and integrate any acquired businesses;
- our ability to maintain relationships with health care professionals and organizations;
- our ability to comply with changing health care regulations;
- our ability to protect our intellectual property;
- our ability to remain in compliance with our credit agreement or future debt agreements;
- general economic uncertainty;
- changes in tax laws or challenges to our tax positions;
- the value of our net operating loss carryforwards may become impaired if we do not generate sufficient future taxable income required to utilize all or a portion of our net operating loss carryforwards prior to their expiration;
- volatility in the market price of our stock;
- the future price of our stock may be negatively affected by not paying dividends;
- potential dilution to current stockholders from the issuance of equity awards;
- we may be subject to limitations on net operating loss carryforwards and certain built-in losses following an ownership change;
- our ability to remediate the material weaknesses in our internal control over financial reporting;
- the long-term effects of the coronavirus ("COVID-19") pandemic, or any other global pandemic or disease outbreak, on our business;

- litigation or other legal or regulatory proceedings in which we may be involved from time to time;
- risks associated with the collection of sales or consumption taxes;
- our ability to implement, both internally and externally, information technology improvements and to respond to technological changes, interruptions and security breaches;
- natural disasters, pandemics, acts of war or terrorism and other external events affecting us, our customers or our suppliers; and
- our ability to hire and retain key employees.

These risks are not exhaustive. Other sections of this Form 10-K include additional factors which could adversely impact our business and financial performance. Moreover, we operate in a very competitive and changing environment. New risk factors emerge from time to time and it is not possible for us to predict all risk factors, nor can we assess the impact of all factors on our business or the extent to which any factor, or combination of factors, may cause actual results to differ materially from those contained in any forward-looking statements. All forward-looking statements made in this Form 10-K speak only as of the date of this report. We do not intend, and do not undertake any obligation, to update any forward-looking statements to reflect future events or circumstances after the date of such statements, except as required by law.

You should not rely upon forward-looking statements as predictions of future events. Our actual results and financial condition may differ materially from those indicated in the forward-looking statements. We qualify all of our forward-looking statements by these cautionary statements. Although we believe that the expectations reflected in the forward-looking statements are reasonable, we cannot guarantee future results, levels of activity, performance or achievements. Therefore, you should not rely on any of the forward-looking statements. In addition, with respect to all of our forward-looking statements, we claim the protection of the safe harbor for forward-looking statements contained in the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995.

PART I

Background

The Company is a Delaware corporation, formed in 2005. It operates through operating subsidiaries, including InfuSystem Holdings USA, Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Holdings"), InfuSystem, Inc., a California corporation ("ISI"), First Biomedical, Inc., a Kansas corporation ("First Biomedical"), and IFC, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("IFC").

Business Concept and Strategy

We are a leading national health care service provider, facilitating outpatient care for Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and health care providers. We provide our products and services to hospitals, oncology practices, ambulatory surgery centers, and other alternate site health care providers. Our headquarters is in Rochester Hills, Michigan, and we operate our business from a total of seven locations in the United States ("U.S.") and Canada.

Our services are provided under a two-platform model. Our lead platform, Integrated Therapy Services ("ITS"), provides the last-mile solution for clinic-to-home healthcare where the continuing treatment involves complex Durable Medical Equipment and services. Our second platform, Durable Medical Equipment Services ("DME Services"), supports our ITS platform and leverages the Company's strong service orientation to win incremental business from our direct payer clients.

We believe InfuSystem has a lot to offer the healthcare community. Over the last 30 plus years, we have developed a unique expertise and service offering that Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and health care providers are using to reduce costs, improve service, and most importantly, provide welcome options for patients who want to continue their healthcare treatments from home. We perfected our ITS model in oncology and have proven that we can extend this model into other Durable Medical Equipment therapies. Key is the ability to leverage our existing platforms – the new therapies do not require building a new infrastructure; we simply add incrementally to the systems already in place (e.g., sales, clinical, logistics, revenue cycle management, and biomedical services).

ITS is presented as a "turnkey" solution allowing our health care provider customers to focus on the practice of medicine. InfuSystem provides the Durable Medical Equipment and treatment consumables, handles the logistics around orders and deliveries, provides 24x7 nursing support relating to the provided equipment, assumes responsibility for third-party payer Durable Medical Equipment billing, and handles biomedical services (inspection, repair, certification and replacement) for the Durable Medical Equipment. DME Services are provided as a "concierge" offering, whereby InfuSystem leverages its strong service orientation to provide incremental services to our health care provider customers on a direct payer model. DME Services include equipment rental and sales, consumable sales, and biomedical support services.

InfuSystem competes for and retains its business primarily on the basis of its long participation and strong reputation in the Durable Medical Equipment space, its long-standing relationships with Durable Medical Equipment manufacturers and its health care provider customers, and the high levels of service it provides. Current barriers to entry for potential competitors are created by our: (i) growing number of third-party payer networks under contract, which included nearly 800 third-party payer networks as of December 31, 2022, an increase of 4% over the prior year period; (ii) economies of scale, which allow for predictable reimbursement and less costly purchase and management of the pumps, respectively; (iii) established, long-standing relationships as a provider of pumps to outpatient oncology practices in the U.S. and Canada; (iv) our large pump fleet of ambulatory and large volume infusion pumps for rent and for sale, which may allow us to be more responsive to the needs of physicians, outpatient oncology practices, hospitals, outpatient surgery centers, homecare practices, patient rehabilitation centers and patients than a new market entrant; (v) seven geographic locations in the U.S. and Canada that allow for same-day or next-day delivery of pumps; (vi) our growing team of field-based and traveling biomedical technicians; and (vii) a wide array of pump repair and service capabilities. We do not perform any research and development on pumps, but we have made, and continue to make, investments in our information technology.

ITS Segment

The ITS segment's core purpose is to seek opportunities to grow our business by leveraging our unique know-how in clinic-to-home health care involving Durable Medical Equipment, our logistics and billing capabilities, our growing network of third-party payers under contract, and our clinical and biomedical capabilities. This leverage may take the form of new products and/or services, strategic alliances, joint ventures and/or acquisitions. The leading service within our ITS segment is to supply electronic ambulatory infusion pumps and associated disposable supply kits to private oncology clinics, infusion clinics and hospital outpatient oncology clinics to be utilized in the treatment of a variety of cancers, including colorectal cancer and other disease states ("Oncology Business"). Colorectal cancer is the fourth most prevalent form of cancer in the U.S., according to the American Cancer Society, and the standard of care for the treatment of colorectal cancer relies upon continuous chemotherapy infusions delivered via ambulatory infusion pumps. One of the goals for the ITS segment is to expand into treatment of other types of cancers. In 2022, our Oncology Business approximated 91% of our total ITS segment net revenues. In 2022, we generated approximately 47% of our total ITS segment net revenues from treatments for colorectal cancer and 44% of our ITS segment net revenues from treatments for non-colorectal disease states. There are a number of approved treatment protocols for pancreatic, head and neck, esophageal and other types of cancers, as well as other disease states which present opportunities for growth. There are also a number of other drugs currently approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (the "FDA"), as well as agents in the pharmaceutical development pipeline, which we believe could potentially be used with continuous infusion protocols for the treatment of diseases other than colorectal cancer. Additional drugs or protocols currently in clinical trials may also obtain regulatory approval over the next several years. If these new drugs or protocols obtain regulatory approval for use with continuous infusion protocols, we expect the pharmaceutical companies to focus their sales and marketing efforts on promoting the new drugs and protocols to physicians.

Furthermore, our Oncology Business focuses mainly on the continuous infusion of chemotherapy. Continuous infusion of chemotherapy can be described as the gradual administration of a drug via a small, lightweight, portable infusion pump over a prolonged period of time. A cancer patient can receive his or her medicine anywhere from one to 30 days per month depending on the chemotherapy regimen that is most appropriate to that individual's health status and disease state. This may be followed by periods of rest and then repeated cycles with treatment goals of progression-free disease survival. This drug administration method has replaced intravenous push or bolus administration in specific circumstances. The advantages of slow continuous low doses of certain drugs are well documented. Clinical studies support the use of continuous infusion chemotherapy for decreased toxicity without loss of anti-tumor efficacy. The 2015 National Comprehensive Cancer Network ("NCCN") Guidelines recommend the use of continuous infusion for treatment of numerous cancer diagnoses. We believe that the growth of continuous infusion therapy is driven by three factors: evidence of improved clinical outcomes; lower toxicity and side effects; and a favorable reimbursement environment.

The use of continuous infusion has been demonstrated to decrease or alter the toxicity of a number of cytotoxic, or cell killing, agents. Higher doses of drugs can be infused over longer periods of time, leading to improved tolerance and decreased toxicity. For example, the cardiotoxicity (heart muscle damage) of the chemotherapy drug Doxorubicin is decreased by schedules of administration according to The Chemotherapy Source Book by Michael C. Perry. Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and decreased white blood cell and platelet counts are all affected by duration of delivery. Continuous infusion can lead to improved tolerance and patient comfort while enhancing the patient's ability to remain on the chemotherapy regimen. Additionally, the lower toxicity profile and resulting reduction in side effects enables patients undergoing continuous infusion therapy to continue a relatively normal lifestyle, which may include continuing to work, going shopping, and caring for family members. We believe that the partnering of physician management and patient autonomy provide for the highest quality of care with the greatest patient satisfaction.

We believe that oncology practitioners have a heightened sensitivity to providing quality service and to their ability to obtain reimbursement for services they provide. Simultaneously, CMS and private insurers are increasingly focused on evidence-based medicine to inform their reimbursement decisions — that is, aligning reimbursement with clinical outcomes and adherence to standards of care. Continuous infusion therapy is a main component of the standard of care for certain types of cancer because clinical evidence demonstrates superior outcomes. Payers' recognition of this benefit is reflected in their relative reimbursement policies for clinical services related to the delivery of this care.

Additional areas of focus for our ITS segment are as follows:

- Pain Management - providing our ambulatory pumps, products, and services for pain management in the area of post-surgical continuous peripheral nerve block.
- Wound Care - launched in November 2022, the Company established a partnership, SI Wound Care, LLC ("SI Wound Care"), with Sanara MedTech Inc. ("Sanara"). The partnership will focus on delivering a complete wound care solution targeted at improving patient outcomes, lowering the cost of care, and increasing patient and provider satisfaction. The partnership is expected to enable InfuSystem to offer innovative products including Cork Medical LLC's ("Cork") negative pressure wound therapy ("NPWT") devices and supplies and Sanara's advanced wound care product line to new customers through the jointly controlled entity.
- Acquisitions - we believe there are opportunities to acquire smaller, regional health care service providers, in whole or in part that perform similar services to us but do not have the national market access, network of third-party payer contracts or operating economies of scale that we currently enjoy. We may also pursue acquisition opportunities of companies that perform similar services, but offer different therapies or utilize different devices.

- Lymphedema Therapy – Lymphedema therapy includes providing patient care and customer service, pneumatic compression devices and associated garments through our partnership with Bio Compression Systems, Inc. to outpatients, initially targeting our existing acute care and oncology customers, estimated to be 20% of the multi-billion-dollar Lymphedema market.
- Information technology-based services - we also plan to continue to capitalize on key new information technology-based services such as EXPRESS, InfuBus or InfuConnect, Pump Portal, DeviceHub and BlockPain Dashboard®.

The payer environment within our ITS segment is in a constant state of change. We continue to extend our considerable breadth of payer networks under contract as patients move into different insurance coverage plans, including Medicaid and Insurance Marketplace products. In some cases, this may slightly reduce our aggregate billed revenues payment rate but result in an overall increase in collected revenues, due to a reduction in concessions. Consequently, we are increasingly focused on revenues net of concessions.

DME Services Segment

Our DME Services segment's core service is to: (i) sell or rent new and pre-owned pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps and other Durable Medical Equipment; (ii) sell treatment-related consumables; and (iii) provide biomedical recertification, maintenance and repair services for oncology practices as well as other healthcare site settings, including hospitals, home care and home infusion providers, skilled nursing and acute care facilities, pain centers and others. We purchase new and pre-owned pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps from a variety of sources on a non-exclusive basis. We repair, refurbish and provide biomedical certification for the devices as needed. The pumps are then available for sale, rental or to be used within our ambulatory infusion pump management service. Our acquisition of FilAMed, a privately-held biomedical services company, on January 31, 2021 has supplemented the Company's existing biomedical recertification, maintenance and repair services for acute care facilities and other alternate site settings including home care and home infusion providers, skilled nursing facilities, pain centers and others. Our acquisition of OB Healthcare Corporation ("OB Healthcare"), a privately-held biomedical services company, on April 18, 2021 further develops and expands InfuSystem's DME Services segment by adding field service capabilities and complements the Company's purchase of FilAMed.

Services

ITS Segment

Our core service within our ITS segment is our Oncology Business. After delivering our ambulatory pumps to oncology offices, infusion clinics, and hospital and outpatient chemotherapy clinics, we then directly bill and collect payment from payers and patients for the use of these pumps. At any given time, our pumps are in the possession of these facilities, on a patient, in transit, or in our facilities for cleaning, calibration and storage as reserves for increased demand.

After a physician determines that a patient is eligible for ambulatory infusion pump therapy, the physician arranges for the patient to receive an infusion pump and provides the necessary chemotherapy drugs. The physician and nursing staff train the patient in the use of the pump and initiate service. The physician bills the payers, which may include Medicare, Medicaid, third-party payer companies or patients for the physician's professional services associated with initiating and supervising the infusion pump administration, as well as the supply of drugs. We directly bill (i) payers, (ii) facilities of our Medicare patients, and (iii) patients for the use of the pump and related disposable supplies. Billing to payers requires coordination with patients and physicians who initiate the service, as physicians' offices must provide us with appropriate documentation (patient's insurance information, physician's order, an acknowledgement of benefits that shows receipt of equipment by the patient, and, in some cases, physician's progress notes) in order for us to submit a bill to the payers. We provide assistance to uninsured patients that cannot afford our pumps via our financial hardship program – a program that usually matches what our physician practices provide as long as the uninsured patients meet certain criteria. This billing process is handled from our Rochester Hills, Michigan location.

In addition to providing high quality and convenient care, we believe that our business offers significant economic benefits for patients, providers and payers.

- Our clinical support team employs oncology, pain, Intravenous Certified, and Oncology Certified registered nurses trained on ambulatory infusion pump equipment who staff our 24x7 customer service hotline to address questions that patients may have about their pump treatment, the infusion pumps or other medical or technical questions related to the pumps.

- Physicians use our services to outsource the capital commitment, pump service, maintenance and billing and administrative burdens associated with pump ownership. Our services also allow the doctor to continue a direct relationship with the patient and to receive professional service fees for setting up the treatment and administering the drugs.

- We provide methods for the physician offices to deliver the appropriate paperwork for billing through a number of electronic means including EXPRESS and InfuConnect reducing the required effort on the employees of the physician offices.

- We believe our services are attractive to payers because such services are generally less expensive than hospitalization or standalone home health care.

Also, within ITS, we offer pain management services via electronic ambulatory infusion pumps for post-operative pain management using our pumps along with a numbing agent and a continuous nerve block catheter – continuous peripheral nerve block ("CPNB"). Using CPNB for the management of post-operative pain, which usually lasts two to three days after surgery, can result in reduced pain for the patient, increased satisfaction scores for the surgical center or hospital, and reduced need for post-operative opioid pain medication. These services include our patient care call center interaction offering support to patients and the review and collection of pain score patient outcome data for outpatient surgery centers using our proprietary BlockPain Dashboard®.

DME Services Segment

Other services we offer are classified under our DME Services segment and include the rental, sale or leasing and servicing of pole-mounted and ambulatory infusion pumps to oncology practices, hospitals and other clinical settings. These pumps are available for daily, weekly, monthly or annual rental periods. We also sell treatment consumables that can be used in conjunction with the pumps we sell and rent.

In addition to sales, rental and leasing services, we also provide biomedical maintenance, repair and certification services for the devices we offer as well as for devices owned by customers but not acquired from us. We operate pump service and repair "Centers of Excellence" from all of our locations across the U.S. and Canada and employ a staff of highly-trained technicians to provide these services. Our main Center of Excellence for service is our Lenexa, Kansas facility. In addition to the maintenance and repair services we perform at these facilities, we offer similar services that can be performed directly at our customer locations nation-wide through our team of field-based and traveling biomedical technicians.

As of December 31, 2022, our rental fleet of pole-mounted pumps, ambulatory pumps and NPWT medical equipment for both our ITS and DME Services segments had a historical cost of $99.2 million, up from $91.9 million at the end of 2021, and included approximately 125 makes and models of equipment dedicated to our rental services. Additionally, as of December 31, 2022 and 2021, we had a fleet of new and used pole-mounted pumps, ambulatory pumps and NPWT medical equipment with a historical cost of $2.8 million and $1.8 million, respectively, for sale or rental.

Information Technology

Our Information Technology ("IT") department is focused on not only supporting our internal IT infrastructure needs, but also supporting our revenue cycle management infrastructure including our electronic medical record technology ("EMR") that allows medical facilities to use our infusion pumps and services via our solutions such as EXPRESS and InfuConnect. This focus has enabled current billing information to be transferred to us from participating facilities electronically and automatically. Our focus on IT solutions resulted in the development of EXPRESS, a product powered by our InfuBus data integration platform, and provides for paperless delivery of the appropriate information for InfuSystem to bill payers that:

- eliminates all paper;
- provides an enhanced visibility as a result of real time status and reporting;
- reduces risk of error;
- automates treatment logs, pump assignments, tracking and physician's orders;
- provides a secure scanner for easy pump assignment to patients; and
- removes interruptions from physician practices' daily schedules, and standardizes data flow for clinics and hospitals with multiple locations.

Relationships with Physician Offices

As of December 31, 2022, we had business relationships with clinical oncologists in over 2,150 outpatient oncology clinics. Although this represents a substantial number of the oncologists in the U.S., we believe that we can continue to expand our network to further penetrate the oncology market. Based on our retention rates and the positive results of our professional customer satisfaction research, we believe our relationships with physician offices are strong.

We believe that, in general, we do not compete directly with hospitals and physician offices to treat patients. Rather, by providing products and services to hospitals and physician offices and other care facilities and providers, we believe that we assist other providers in meeting increasing patient demand and managing institutional constraints on capital and manpower due to the nature of limited resources in hospitals and physician offices.

Physician practices in the oncology field are following the overall healthcare practices trend to consolidate. However, as of December 31, 2022, we had gained more facilities than we had lost. We expect this trend to continue for the foreseeable future.

Employees

As of December 31, 2022, we had 438 employees, including 420 full-time employees and 18 part-time or contract employees. None of our employees are unionized.

Material Suppliers

We supply a wide variety of pumps and associated equipment, as well as disposables and ancillary supplies. The majority of our pumps are electronic infusion pumps. Smiths Medical, Inc. and Moog Medical Devices Group each supplied more than 10% of the ambulatory pumps purchased by us in 2022. The Company has a supply agreement in place with each of these suppliers. Certain "spot" purchases are made on the open market subject to individual negotiation. We also supply NPWT medical equipment, as well as related disposables and ancillary supplies.

Seasonality

Revenues may be seasonal due to the impact of co-pays and deductibles for patients' insurance that traditionally reset each January. This has been further impacted by changes in the insurance industry as it responds to increased government regulation. Also, rental customers tend to make buy versus rent decisions late in the year as customer capital budgets are being finalized, impacting sales revenue in the second half of the year, predominantly in the fourth quarter. Furthermore, as the Company's liquidity has improved, opportunistic pump purchases are made from time to time. These opportunistic pump purchases also allow for opportunistic pump sales, which could be material. The timing of such purchases and sales vary within the course of a year.

Environmental Laws

We are required to comply with applicable federal, state and local environmental laws regulating the disposal of cleaning agents used in the process of cleaning medical equipment, as well as the disposal of sharps and blood products used in connection with the pumps and medical equipment. We do not believe that compliance with such laws has a material effect on our business.

Significant Customers

We have sought to establish contracts with as many third-party payer organizations as commercially practicable, in an effort to ensure that reimbursement is not a significant obstacle for providers who recommend continuous infusion therapy and wish to utilize our services. A third-party payer organization is a health care payer or a group of medical services payers that contracts to provide a wide variety of health care services to enrolled members through participating providers such as us. A payer is any entity that pays on behalf of a member patient.

As of December 31, 2022, we had contracts with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, an increase of 4% over the prior year period. Material terms of contracts with third-party payer organizations are typically a pre-negotiated fee schedule rate or a then-current proprietary fee schedule rate for equipment and supplies provided. The majority of these contracts generally provide for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. We also contract with various other third-party payer organizations, Medicaid, commercial Medicare replacement plans, self-insured plans, facilities of our Medicare patients and numerous other insurance carriers. No single payer or customer represented more than 10% of net revenue in 2022, 2021 or 2020.

Competitors

We believe that our competition primarily consists of national, regional, and hospital-owned Durable Medical Equipment providers and service companies, physician providers and home care infusion providers and the competitive products and services they offer. An estimate of the number of competitors is not known or reasonably available, due to the wide variety in type and size of the market participants described below. We are not aware of any industry reports with respect to the competitive market described below. The description of market segments and business activities within those market segments is based on our experiences in the industry.

- National Durable Medical Equipment Providers and Service Companies: Other national providers and service companies have offerings similar to us. These products and service offerings include, but are not limited to, third-party reimbursement, direct rental and sale of infusion electronic and disposal pumps and related products and services for patients in the home, oncology clinics, ambulatory surgery centers, hospitals and other sites of care.

- Regional Durable Medical Equipment Providers: Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers act as distributors for a variety of medical products. We believe regional Durable Medical Equipment provider sales forces generally consist of a relatively small number of salespeople, usually covering several states. Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers tend to carry a limited selection of infusion pumps and their salespeople generally have limited resources. Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers usually do not have 24x7 nursing services. We believe that Regional Durable Medical Equipment providers have relatively few third-party payer contracts, which may prevent these providers from being paid at acceptable levels and may also result in higher out-of-pocket costs for patients.

- Hospital-Owned Durable Medical Equipment Providers: Many hospitals have in-house Durable Medical Equipment providers to supply basic equipment. In general, however, these providers have limited capital and tend to stock a small inventory of infusion pumps. We believe that hospital-owned providers have limited ability to grow because of limited patient populations. Growth from outside of the hospital may pose a challenge because hospitals typically will not provide referrals to competitors, instead preferring to offer patients a choice of non-hospital-affiliated Durable Medical Equipment providers.

- Physician Providers: A limited number of physicians maintain an inventory of their own infusion pumps and provide them to patients for a fee. However, we believe that pump utilization in this area tends to be low and the costs associated with ongoing supplies, preventative maintenance and repairs can be relatively high. Moreover, we believe that a high percentage of Durable Medical Equipment claims by doctors are rejected by payers upon first submission, requiring a physician's staff to spend significant time and effort to resubmit claims and receive payment for treatment. The numerous service and technical questions from patients may present another significant cost to a physician provider's staff.

- Home Care Infusion Providers: Home care infusion providers provide chemotherapy drugs and services to allow for in-home patient treatment. We believe that home care infusion treatment can be very costly and that many patients do not carry insurance coverage that pay for home-based infusion services, resulting in larger out-of-pocket costs. Because home care treatments may take as long as six months, these costs can be high and can result in higher patient co-payments. We believe that home care providers may also be reluctant to offer 24x7 coverage or additional patient visits, due to capped fees.

Regulation of Our Business

Our business is subject to various regulations. Specifically, as a registered Medicare supplier of Durable Medical Equipment and related supplies, we must comply with supplier standards established by CMS regulating Medicare suppliers of Durable Medical Equipment, Prosthetics, Orthotics and Supplies ("DMEPOS Supplier Standards"). The DMEPOS Supplier Standards consist of 30 requirements that must be met in order for a DMEPOS supplier to be eligible to receive payment for a Medicare-covered item. Some of the more significant DMEPOS Supplier Standards require us to (i) advise Medicare beneficiaries of their option to purchase certain equipment, (ii) honor all warranties under state law and not charge Medicare beneficiaries for the repair or replacement of equipment or for services covered under warranty, (iii) permit CMS agents to conduct on-site inspections to ascertain compliance with the DMEPOS Supplier Standards, (iv) maintain liability insurance in prescribed amounts, (v) refrain from contacting Medicare beneficiaries by telephone, except in certain limited circumstances, (vi) answer questions and respond to complaints of beneficiaries regarding the supplied equipment, (vii) disclose the DMEPOS Supplier Standards to each Medicare beneficiary to whom we supply equipment, (viii) maintain a complaint resolution procedure and record certain information regarding each complaint, (ix) maintain accreditation from a CMS approved accreditation organization, and (x) meet certain specified surety bond requirements.

We are also subject to the provisions of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 ("HIPAA"), which are designed to protect the security and confidentiality of certain protected health information. Under HIPAA, we must provide patients access to certain records and must notify patients of our use of protected health information and patient privacy rights. Moreover, HIPAA sets limits on how we may use individually identifiable health information and prohibits the use of patient information for marketing purposes. The adoption of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 ("ARRA") includes a new breach notification requirement that applies to breaches of unsecured health information occurring on or after September 23, 2009. We are subject to regulations in the various states in which we operate. We believe we are in material compliance with all such regulations.

Available Information

Our Internet address is www.infusystem.com. On this website, we post the following filings as soon as reasonably practicable after they are electronically filed with or furnished to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"): our Annual Reports on Form 10-K; our Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q; our Current Reports on Form 8-K; our proxy statements related to our annual stockholders' meetings; and any amendments to those reports or statements. All such filings are available on our website free of charge. The charters of our audit, nominating and governance and compensation committees and our Code of Business Conduct and Ethics Policy are also available on our website and in print to any stockholder who requests them. The content on our website is not incorporated by reference into this Form 10-K unless expressly noted.

Item 1A. Risk Factors.

An investment in our securities involves a high degree of risk. You should consider carefully all of the material risks described below, together with the other information contained in this Form 10-K. If any of the following events occur, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may be materially adversely affected.

RISK FACTORS RELATING TO OUR BUSINESS AND THE INDUSTRY IN WHICH WE OPERATE

Our business is substantially dependent on third-party reimbursement. Any change in the overall health care reimbursement system may adversely impact our business.

Our revenues are substantially dependent on third-party reimbursement. We are paid directly by private insurers and, in some cases, governmental agencies, often on a fixed fee basis, for the use of continuous infusion equipment and related disposable supplies provided to patients. If the average fees allowable by private insurers or governmental agencies were reduced, the negative impact on revenues could have a material effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Also, if amounts owed to us by patients and insurers are reduced or not paid on a timely basis, we may be required to increase our concessions and/or decrease our revenues.

Changes in the health care reimbursement system often create financial incentives and disincentives that encourage or discourage the use of a particular type of product, therapy or clinical procedure. Such changes may be impacted by the growth in ACOs, reduction of providers by payers, the use of lower cost rental networks and other factors. Market acceptance of continuous infusion therapy may be adversely affected by changes or trends within the health care reimbursement system. Changes to the health care reimbursement system that favor other technologies or treatment regimens that reduce reimbursements to providers or treatment facilities, including increasing competitive pressures from home health care and other companies that use our services, may adversely affect our ability to market our services profitably. Overall, such dependency and potential changes could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our business is substantially dependent on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement.

Our revenues are substantially dependent on estimates of collectible revenue from third-party reimbursement. Due to the complex nature of third-party reimbursement for the use of continuous infusion equipment and related disposable supplies provided to patients, we must estimate, based upon historical averages, the amount of collectible revenue that may be derived from each patient treatment. If average reimbursement rates diverge from historical levels, the estimates of such revenue may diverge from actual collections.

We utilize statistical methods to account for such changes, but there can be no assurance that the revenue reported in any period will ultimately be collected. Any recognized revenue related to third-party reimbursement from prior periods, which remains uncollected until written off from accounts receivable, will negatively impact revenues in the period in which it is written off. Thus, over time, recognized revenue net of concessions will approximate total collections.

The loss of a relationship with one or more third-party payers could negatively impact our business.

Our contracts for reimbursement with third-party payers are often for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. These evergreen contracts are subject to termination upon written notice. One or more terminations could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Any federal government shutdown may adversely impact our business.

Our revenues are dependent on private insurers and governmental agencies. In the absence of any bipartisan agreement in the federal government with respect to payments from governmental agencies, our revenues could be reduced. In addition, any federal government shutdown could also have a material and adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Payer concentration may adversely impact our business.

As of December 31, 2022, we had contracts with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, an increase of 4% over the prior year period. Material terms of contracts with third-party payer organizations are typically a pre-negotiated fee schedule rate or a then-current proprietary fee schedule rate for equipment and supplies provided. The majority of these contracts generally provide for a term of one year, with automatic one-year renewals, unless we or the contracted payer elect not to renew. We also contract with various other third-party payer organizations, Medicaid, commercial Medicare replacement plans, self-insured plans, facilities of our Medicare patients and numerous other insurance carriers. No single payer represented more than 10% of net revenue in 2022, 2021 or 2020. To the extent such dependency was to occur, significant fluctuations in revenues, results of operations and liquidity could arise if any significant contracted payer reduces its reimbursement for the services we provide.

Our billing process is dependent on meeting payer claims processing guidelines which are subject to change at the discretion of the payers. Such changes would materially impact our ability to bill and the timing of such billings, which could materially and adversely impact our net revenues and cash flows, which impact would be even greater if such changes are made by one of our larger payers.

The continued consolidation of physician practices, outpatient infusion clinics, oncology clinics, homecare providers and hospitals, increases the concentration of decision makers whom either choose to use our ambulatory electronic pumps within our Oncology Business or directly rent, lease or purchase pumps or supplies from us.

While we make every effort to benefit from such concentration, it could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Increased focus on early detection and diagnostics may adversely affect our business.

An increased focus on lowering health care spending via improved diagnostic testing (i.e., defensive medicine) and patient monitoring could materially and negatively affect our business. A large portion of our ambulatory infusion pumps are dedicated to a specific form of cancer (i.e., colorectal). As a result of rising health care costs, there may be a demand for more cost-effective approaches to disease management, specifically for colorectal cancer, as well as for emphasis on screening and accurate diagnostic testing to facilitate early detection of potentially costly, severe afflictions. Any change in the approach to treatment of colorectal cancer could have a material and adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

If future clinical studies demonstrate that oral medications or other therapies that do not use our electronic ambulatory pumps are at least as effective as continuous infusion therapy, our business could be adversely affected.

Ongoing clinical trials are currently evaluating and comparing the therapeutic benefits of current continuous infusion-based regimens with various oral medication regimens. If these clinical trials demonstrate that oral medications provide equal or greater therapeutic benefits and/or demonstrate reduced side effects compared to prior oral medication regimens, our revenues and overall business could be materially and adversely affected. Additionally, if new oral medications or other therapies that do not utilize our ambulatory electronic pumps are introduced to the market that are superior to existing oral therapies, physicians' willingness to prescribe continuous infusion-based regimens could decline, which would materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our success is impacted by the availability of the chemotherapy drugs that are used in our continuous infusion pump systems.

We primarily derive our revenues from the rental of ambulatory infusion pumps to oncology patients through physicians' offices and chemotherapy clinics. A shortage in the availability of chemotherapy drugs that are used in the continuous infusion pump system, which has occurred in the past, could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We are dependent on our Medicare Supplier Number.

We are required to have a Medicare Supplier Number in order to have the ability to bill Medicare for services provided to Medicare patients. Furthermore, all third-party and Medicaid contracts require us to have a Medicare Supplier Number. We are required to comply with Medicare DMEPOS Supplier Standards in order to maintain such number. If we are unable to comply with the relevant standards, we could lose our Medicare Supplier Number. Without such number, we would be unable to continue our various third-party and Medicaid contracts. A significant portion of our revenues are dependent upon our Medicare Supplier Number, the loss of which would materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

The CMS requires that all Durable Medical Equipment providers must be accredited by a CMS-approved accreditation organization. On February 17, 2009, we initially received accreditation from CHAP, and we have remained accredited to date. If we lost our accredited status, our business, financial condition, revenues and results of operations would be materially and adversely affected.

The impact of U.S. health care reform legislation on us remains uncertain.

The ACA has perpetuated the development of alternative provider payment models by CMS and the major national commercial payers. These payment models do not replace the current fee-for-service models nor replace current payer contracts, but rather provide additional financial incentives to certain "accountable" providers to improve quality and lower cost. The implications for the Company will come from the provider networks that are forming in order to integrate and coordinate care under these alternative models with CMS and the commercial payers. These provider networks include ACOs, patient-centered primary care medical homes, specialty medical homes, networks accepting bundled payment programs, and other "performance" networks that contract with CMS and commercial payers under alternative payment models that financially reward improved quality and lower medical cost. The relationship between us and our provider practices and facilities that are participating in these provider networks under alternative payment models will depend on (i) the extent to which these provider networks give priority to the medical cost associated with our Durable Medical Equipment services and (ii) whether our services are seen as part of a care delivery model that delivers higher value – higher quality at a lower cost.

Our failure to perform under these alternative payment models, or under similar models or conditions introduced by future legislation, could have a material adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We rely on independent suppliers for our products. Any delay or disruption in the supply of products, particularly our supply of electronic ambulatory pumps, may negatively impact our operations.

Our infusion pumps and related consumables are obtained from outside vendors. The majority of our new pumps are electronic infusion pumps which are supplied to us by two major suppliers: Smiths Medical, Inc. and Moog Medical Devices Group. The loss or disruption of our relationships with outside vendors, including pumps, parts, or supply recall or pump end-of-life announcements or availability of related proprietary consumable supplies, could subject us to substantial delays in the delivery of pumps or services provided to customers. From time to time, we or our suppliers may experience supply chain disruptions due to circumstances beyond our or our suppliers' control, such as the 2020 outbreak of COVID-19. Significant delays in the delivery or service of pumps or related proprietary consumable supplies could result in possible cancellation of orders and the loss of customers. Our inability to provide pumps to meet delivery schedules could have a material adverse effect on our reputation in the industry, as well as on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

We face periodic reviews and billing audits from governmental and private payers and these audits could have adverse results that may negatively impact our business.

As a result of our participation in the Medicaid program and our registration in the Medicare program, we are subject to various governmental reviews and audits to verify our compliance with these programs and applicable laws and regulations. We also are subject to audits under various government programs in which third-party firms engaged by CMS conduct extensive reviews of claims data and medical and other records to identify potential improper payments under the Medicare program. Private pay sources also reserve the right to conduct audits. If billing errors are identified in the sample of reviewed claims, the billing error can be extrapolated to all claims filed which could result in a larger overpayment than originally identified in the sample of reviewed claims. Our costs to respond to and defend reviews and audits may be significant and could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Moreover, an adverse review or audit could result in:

- required refunding or retroactive adjustment of amounts we have been paid by governmental or private payers;
- state or Federal agencies imposing fines, penalties and other sanctions on us;
- loss of our right to participate in the Medicare program, state programs, or one or more private payer networks; or
- damage to our business and reputation in various markets.

Any one of these results could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our failure to maintain controls and processes over billing and collecting could have a significant negative impact on our Consolidated Financial Statements.

The collection of accounts receivable is a significant challenge and requires constant focus and involvement by management and ongoing enhancements to information systems, billing center operating procedures and proper staffing levels. If we are unable to properly bill and collect our accounts receivable, our results could be materially and adversely affected. While management believes that our staffing, controls and processes are satisfactory, there can be no assurance that accounts receivable collectability will remain at current levels.

State licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers are subject to change. If we fail to comply with any state laws, we will be unable to operate as a Durable Medical Equipment supplier in such state and our business operations will be adversely affected.

As a Durable Medical Equipment supplier operating in all 50 states, we are subject to each state's licensure laws regulating Durable Medical Equipment suppliers. State licensure laws for Durable Medical Equipment suppliers are subject to change and we must ensure that we are continually in compliance with the laws of all 50 states. In the event that we fail to comply with any state's laws governing the licensing of Durable Medical Equipment suppliers, we will be unable to operate as a Durable Medical Equipment supplier in such state until we regain compliance. We may also be subject to certain fines and/or penalties and our business operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Our customer concessions may not be adequate to cover actual losses.

Our third-party payer contracts do not guarantee annual inflationary increases, typical of the Durable Medical Equipment payer contracting environment. Contracted reimbursement rates are either subject to increases or decreases in CMS program rates or, if not indexed to government rates, are frozen until those payer contracts are reopened and renegotiated. While we monitor reimbursement levels to identify specific payer reimbursement rates that have eroded and renegotiate such rates, we may not be able to maintain or improve overall reimbursement levels, thereby compromising the adequacy of the predicted customer concessions.

We may also face reduced reimbursements from private third-party payers. In addition, our customers may be unable to make timely payments to us. Although we maintain allowances for estimated losses resulting from the inability of our customers to make required payments, we cannot guarantee that we will continue to experience the same loss rates that we have in the past. If we begin to experience an increase in our loss rates in excess of our allowances, it could materially and adversely impact our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows.

Our growth strategy includes expanding into treatment for cancers other than colorectal cancer. There can be no assurance that continuous infusion-based regimens for these other cancers will become standards of care for large numbers of patients or that we will be successful in penetrating these different markets.

An aspect of our growth strategy is to expand into the treatment of other cancers, such as head, neck and gastric cancers. This population of patients will expand only if clinical trial results for new drugs and new combinations of drugs demonstrate superior outcomes for regimens that include continuous infusion therapy relative to alternatives. No assurances can be given that these new drugs and drug combinations will be approved or will prove superior to oral medication or other treatment alternatives. In addition, no assurances can be given that we will be able to penetrate successfully any new markets that may develop in the future or manage the growth in additional resources that would be required.

The industry in which we operate is intensely competitive and ever-changing. If we are unable to successfully compete with our competitors, our business operations may suffer.

The drug infusion industry is highly competitive. Some of our competitors and potential competitors, including some of the practices that we service, have significantly greater resources than we do for information technology, marketing and sales. As a result, they may be better able to compete for market share, even in areas in which our services may be superior. The industry is subject to technological changes and such changes may put our current fleet of pumps, smart pump licensing, our information technology solutions or our other technological-based solutions at a competitive disadvantage. Furthermore, the healthcare industry, in general, is experiencing market consolidation, reducing the number of decision makers. If we are unable to effectively compete in our market, our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows may be materially and adversely affected.

Our industry is dependent on regulatory guidelines that affect our billing practices. If our competitors do not comply with these regulatory guidelines, our business could be adversely affected.

Aggressive competitors may not fully comply with rules regarding CMS and other payers' billing and documentation requirements. Competitors, who do not meet the same standards of compliance that we do with respect to billing regulations, may put us at a potential competitive disadvantage. We are a participating provider with Medicare and as of December 31, 2022, we were under contract with nearly 800 third-party payer networks, all of which have very stringent guidelines. If our competitors do not comply with these regulatory guidelines, we could be put at a potential competitive disadvantage and our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows could be material and adversely affected.

Although we do not manufacture the products we distribute, if one of the products distributed by us proves to be defective or is misused by a health care practitioner or patient, we may be subject to liability that could adversely affect our financial condition and results of operations.

Although we do not manufacture the pumps that we distribute, a defect in the design or manufacture of a pump distributed or serviced by us, or a failure of pumps distributed by us to perform for the use specified, could have a material and adverse effect on our reputation in the industry and subject us to claims of liability for injuries and otherwise. Misuse of the pumps distributed by us by a practitioner or patient that results in injury could similarly subject us to liability. Any substantial underinsured loss could have a material and adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Furthermore, any impairment of our reputation could have a material and adverse effect on our revenues and prospects for future business.

We intend to continue to pursue opportunities for the further expansion of our business through strategic alliances and/or joint ventures. Future strategic alliances and/or joint ventures may require significant resources and/or result in significant unanticipated costs or liabilities to us.

We intend to continue to pursue opportunities for the further expansion of our business through strategic alliances and/or joint ventures. Any future strategic alliances or joint ventures will depend on our ability to identify suitable partners, negotiate acceptable terms for such transactions and obtain financing, if necessary. These investments require significant managerial attention, which may be diverted from our other operations.

If we engage in strategic acquisitions, we may experience significant costs and difficulty in assimilating operations or personnel, which could threaten our future growth.

If we make any acquisitions, we could have difficulty assimilating operations, technologies and products and services. In addition, we could have difficulty integrating or retaining personnel and maintaining employee morale as we take steps to combine the personnel and business cultures of separate organizations into one and to eliminate duplicate positions and functions. It may also be difficult for us to preserve important relationships with others, such as strategic partners, customers, and suppliers, who may delay or defer decisions on agreements with us, or seek to change existing agreements with us, because of the acquisition. In addition, acquisitions may involve entering markets in which we have no or limited direct prior experience. The occurrence of any one or more of these factors could disrupt our ongoing business, distract our management's and employees' attention from our ongoing business operations, result in decreased operating performance and increase our expenses. Moreover, our profitability may suffer because of acquisition-related costs or amortization of intangible assets. Furthermore, we may have to incur debt or issue equity securities in future acquisitions. The issuance of equity securities would dilute our existing stockholders.

We may be unable to maintain adequate working relationships with health care professionals.

We seek to maintain close working relationships with respected physicians and medical personnel in hospitals and universities. We rely on these professionals to assist us in the development of proprietary service and improvements to complement and expand our existing service and product lines. If we are unable to maintain these relationships, our ability to market and sell new and improved products and services could decrease and future operating results could be unfavorably affected.

If we fail to comply with applicable governmental or accrediting bodies' regulations, we could face substantial penalties and our business, operations and financial condition could be adversely affected.

Certain federal, state health care, and accreditation bodies' laws and regulations, including those pertaining to fraud and abuse and patients' rights, are applicable to our business. The laws that are applicable to our business include:

- the federal health care program Anti-Kickback Statute, which prohibits, among other things, soliciting, receiving or providing remuneration, directly or indirectly, to induce (i) the referral of an individual, for an item or service or (ii) the purchasing or ordering of a good or service, for which payment may be made under federal health care programs such as the Medicare and Medicaid programs;
- federal false claims laws which prohibit, among other things, knowingly presenting, or causing to be presented, claims for payment from Medicare, Medicaid, or other third-party payers that are false or fraudulent, and which may apply to entities like us that promote medical devices, provide medical device management services and may provide coding and billing advice to customers;
- HIPAA, which prohibits executing a scheme to defraud any health care benefit program or making false statements relating to health care matters and which also imposes certain requirements relating to the privacy, security and transmission of individually identifiable health information; and
- state law equivalents of each of the above federal laws, such as anti-kickback and false claims laws that may apply to items or services reimbursed by any third-party payer, including commercial insurers, and state laws governing the privacy and security of health information in certain circumstances, many of which differ in significant ways from state to state and often are not preempted by HIPAA, thus complicating compliance efforts.

If our operations are found to be in violation of any of the laws described above or any other regulations that apply to us, we may be subject to penalties, including civil and criminal penalties, damages, fines and the curtailment or restructuring of our operations. Any penalties, damages, fines, curtailment or restructuring of our operations could materially and adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Any action against us for violation of these laws, even if we successfully defend against it, could cause us to incur significant legal expenses and divert our management's attention from the operation of our business. Moreover, achieving and sustaining compliance with applicable federal and state privacy, security and fraud laws may prove costly.

Failure to protect our intellectual property could substantially harm our business and operating results.

In order to protect our trade secrets and other confidential information, we rely in part on confidentiality agreements with our employees, consultants and third parties with whom we have relationships. These agreements may not effectively prevent disclosure of trade secrets and other confidential information and may not provide an adequate remedy in the event of misappropriation of trade secrets or any unauthorized disclosure of trade secrets and other confidential information. In addition, others may independently discover our trade secrets and confidential information and, in such cases, we could not assert any trade secret rights against such parties. Costly and time-consuming litigation could be necessary to enforce or determine the scope of our trade secret rights and related confidentiality and nondisclosure provisions. Failure to obtain or maintain trade secret protection, or our competitors' acquisition of our trade secrets, could materially and adversely affect our competitive business position.

Covenants in our current and any future debt agreements restrict our business.

Our 2021 Credit Agreement contains and the agreements that govern our future indebtedness may contain, covenants that restrict our ability to and the ability of our subsidiaries to, among other things:

- engage in a transaction that results in a change of control, as defined by the 2021 Credit Agreement;
- create, incur, assume or suffer to exist any lien upon any of our property, assets or revenues;
- make certain investments or acquisitions;

- create, incur, assume or suffer to exist certain indebtedness;
- merge, dissolve, liquidate, consolidate or sell all or substantially all of our assets;
- make any disposition or enter into any agreement to make any disposition;
- repurchase outstanding stock from the open market; and
- declare or make, directly or indirectly, any dividend or other restricted payment, or incur any obligation (contingent or otherwise) to do so.

These covenants may restrict our ability to operate our business. Our failure to comply with these covenants could result in an event of default that, if not cured or waived, could result in reduced liquidity for the Company and could have a material and adverse effect on our ability to operate our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. Additionally, our ability to pay interest and repay the principal for our indebtedness is dependent upon our ability to manage our business operations, generate sufficient cash flows to service such debt and the other factors discussed in this section. Our 2021 Credit Agreement also contains certain financial covenants. As of December 31, 2022, we were in compliance with all the covenants contained in the 2021 Credit Agreement, however, there can be no assurance that we will be able to manage any of the risks associated with debt agreements successfully.

Economic uncertainty or economic deterioration could adversely affect us.

There continues to be global economic uncertainty, as well as increased inflation, heightened interest rates and a recessionary environment. Ongoing political changes and conflicts in the U.S. and abroad continue to contribute to global economic uncertainty and volatility in the global financial markets. In February 2022, Russian forces launched significant military actions against Ukraine, which has caused significant international conflict, including sanctions, tensions and military actions. In addition, the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic have contributed to economic uncertainty. Continued economic uncertainty may continue to drive stock market and interest rate volatility, increased inflation and adversely impact consumer confidence, product demand, and our ability to refinance our debt. Economic conditions, along with our operating performance, may also materially and adversely impact our ability to access the financial markets. Accordingly, our future business and financial results are subject to uncertainty. If economic conditions deteriorate in the future, our future revenues and financial results could be materially and adversely affected.

Changes in tax laws or challenges to our tax positions could adversely affect our business, results of operations and financial condition.

We are subject to income taxes as well as non-income based taxes in federal and various state jurisdictions. Changes in tax laws, including, for example, those resulting from the U.S. federal tax legislation commonly referred to as the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act, as well as other factors, could cause us to experience fluctuations in our tax obligations and effective tax rates in future periods and otherwise adversely affect our tax positions and/or our tax liabilities. The full impact of the CARES Act on us may change significantly as regulations, interpretations and rulings relating to the CARES Act are issued and additional changes in U.S. federal and state tax laws are made in the future. There can be no assurance that our effective tax rates, tax payments, tax credits or incentives will not be adversely affected by these or other initiatives.

We are subject to audits by tax authorities from time to time in federal and state jurisdictions. Tax authorities may disagree with certain positions we have taken and assess additional taxes and penalties. We regularly assess the likely outcomes of these audits in order to determine the appropriateness of our tax provision. However, there can be no assurance that we will accurately predict the outcomes of these audits, and the actual outcomes of these audits could have a material impact on our results of operations.

The value of our net operating loss carryforwards may become impaired if we do not generate sufficient future taxable income required to utilize all or a portion of our net operating loss carryforwards prior to their expiration.

The Company's U.S. federal net operating loss carryforward for tax purposes was $35.7 million at December 31, 2022, resulting in a federal deferred tax asset of $7.5 million. Approximately $29.1 million of the Company's U.S. federal net operating loss carryforwards will begin to expire in various years beginning in 2031. The Company's realization of its deferred tax assets including the loss carryforwards is dependent upon many factors, including, but not limited to, the Company's ability to generate sufficient taxable income in sufficient amounts. There can be no assurance that we will generate the required amounts of taxable income before the expiration dates are reached.

Owens &Minor™

Discipline Responses

Company General Comments: Owens & Minor, a Fortune 500 company, has been in the same business since 1882. We operate over 40 distribution centers throughout the country and ship into all states. All of our distribution centers are fully licensed in their respective resident and adjacent states and several hold multiple licenses to ship nationwide. We take legal compliance seriously and employ a number of individuals whose sole focus is to ensure that we follow all applicable state and federal laws and regulations. Changes to laws and requirements are subjects of ongoing vigilance. While we regret that we have been the subject of any discipline, we believe that these instances should be considered in the context of our size and overall operations in a field of enterprise highly regulated by a multiplicity of agencies. This is a comprehensive list of discipline that Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. has received.

- This is an explanation of a Notice of Fine issued by the Louisiana State Board of Wholesale Drug Distributors against Owens & Minor's Wholesale Distribution Center in St. Rose, Louisiana facility. The citation was issued on April 11, 2002 but related to an inspection conducted on February 1, 2002. The citation referenced violations of regulations on customer license records. All issues had already been rectified to the Department's satisfaction prior to a hearing held on April 9, 2002, and the fine of $5,000 has been fully paid.

- This is an explanation of a citation issued by the California Board of Pharmacy against Owens & Minor's Wholesale Distribution Centers in Livermore and Lathrop, California. The citation was issued in May 2006. The citation referenced violations of regulations regarding timely notification of the Board when a facility's Designated Representative changes. All have been rectified to the Department's satisfaction, and the fine of $500 for both facilities has been fully paid.

- This is an explanation of a report of alleged violations issued by the Florida Department of Health against Owens & Minor's Wholesale Distribution Center in Orlando, Florida. The report was issued in February 2007 and referenced alleged violations of regulations regarding licensing and drug pedigrees. All matters raised in the report were resolved to the Department's satisfaction, the fine in the amount of $285,000 has been fully paid, and the matter is closed.

- This is an explanation of a Settlement Agreement and Disciplinary Order entered into between Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. and the Missouri Board of Pharmacy. The Settlement, executed in May 2008 references violations of regulations regarding temperature controls and monitoring at its Kansas City, Missouri distribution center. The Company remains fully licensed but was placed on probation for a period of 3 years. There was no fine imposed.

- This is an explanation of a Stipulation Order with the Colorado State Board of Pharmacy concerning Owens & Minor's Wholesale Distribution Center in Denver Colorado. The effective date was November 2, 2009. The Order references a violation of regulations regarding the inadvertent purchase and receipt of prescription drugs on March 5, 2009 from one vendor (Hospira) from a location not licensed by the Board to ship Rx products into Colorado. All issues have been rectified to the Board's satisfaction, and the fine of $5,750 has been fully paid.

- This is an explanation of a Settlement Agreement entered into between Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. and the Florida Department of Health. The Settlement, executed in July 2010, references violations of miscellaneous recordkeeping, personnel and license verification regulations in Owens & Minor's Wholesale Distribution Centers in Gainesville and Jacksonville, Florida. The Company and those facilities remained fully licensed but were under probation for a period of 2 years. The fine of $12,500 has been fully paid and the probation period passed without incident in 2012.

- On March 15, 2011, Owens and Minor entered into a Consent Agreement with the Louisiana Board of Wholesale Drug Distributors ("Louisiana Board") to resolve a finding in an inspection report dated December 8, 2010 that Owens & Minor received a product from supplier not licensed to sell or ship drugs into Louisiana. The agreed upon fine of $3,500 has been paid and this matter is now resolved to the satisfaction of the Louisiana Board.

- On July 27, 2011 Owens and Minor entered into a Stipulation and Consent Order with the Vermont Board of Pharmacy with regard to the application for a Third Party Logistics license by its facility in Redlands, California - Owens & Minor Healthcare Logistics. The basis of the order was discipline incurred by the company in other states. There was no specific non-compliance with Vermont law, or any other state regulation by any Owens & Minor facility. No fine was imposed. The license was issued subject to compliance with the laws of Vermont and reporting of future disciplinary actions.

- Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. entered into a Stipulation Order with the Colorado State Board of Pharmacy concerning Owens & Minor's Wholesale Distribution Center in Denver, Colorado. The effective date was August 1, 2012. The Order referenced violations of regulations regarding timely notification of the Board when a facility's Designated Representative changes, and imposed the minimum fine. Colorado law requires that each licensed facility must provide the board with the name of a Designated Representative knowledgeable in regulatory requirements. Those named must meet certain criteria for experience and pass a background check. Changes must be submitted within fourteen calendar days. However due to an oversight, notice that the Designated Representative had been laid off was not sent for ninety-five calendar days. This oversight was pointed out during a routine inspection in February 2012 and corrected the same day. The Stipulation requires that any future changes be made within prescribed time limits, that Owens & Minor promptly pay all fines and charges, and that it comply with all other applicable laws and regulations. All have been rectified to the Board's satisfaction, the fine of $1,100 has been fully paid and there have been no subsequent incidents of non-compliance.

- In February 2013 The Hawaii Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs presented Owens & Minor with a Settlement Agreement assessing a fine of $500.00 for having been disciplined in another jurisdiction. No deficiencies were noted in the operations or compliance activities of any specific Owens & Minor distribution center. This was strictly an administrative matter, a fine for being fined essentially. Owens & Minor signed the Settlement Agreement, paid the fine, and the matter is now satisfactorily closed. This action affected no specific Owens & Minor facility.

- In August of 2012 Owens & Minor took over management of a hospital customer's internal warehouse and medical-surgical product distribution activities to the hospital's facilities and clinics in and around Burlingame, Ca. The facility was not licensed by the California Board of Pharmacy at the time management responsibilities changed. Accordingly, Owens & Minor submitted an application for licensure, and during the pre-licensing inspection, the Board representative took note of the presence of prescription drugs and devices that had been received and stored in the warehouse prior to the hospital's decision to outsource this activity to Owens & Minor. No other deficiencies or issues were identified, and the Board issued Owens & Minor a Wholesale Distributor's license shortly thereafter. In March of 2013, the Board issued Owens & Minor a citation for operating an unlicensed facility, assessing a fine of $2,500, but imposing no other sanctions. All issues have been rectified to the Board's satisfaction, the fine has been fully paid, and the matter is now closed. This action involved only the Owens & Minor distribution in Burlingame CA, and no others.

- This is notice of an action by Kentucky Board of Pharmacy. In December 2014, Owens & Minor entered into an Agreed Order with the Board of Pharmacy concerning Owens & Minor's tardy formal notice to the Board of its closing of a wholesale distribution center in Louisville, KY in 2013. The Board assessed a fine of $500.00. Owens & Minor signed the Order, paid the fine and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- In April 2015, Owens & Minor entered into a Stipulation and Consent Order with the Vermont Board of Pharmacy in connection with an application submitted by our distribution center in Flower Mound, Texas to ship products into Vermont. Owens & Minor failed to disclose any of the discipline that occurred prior to July of 2010 and also failed to disclose Vermont's discipline and the resulting conditions. This was strictly an administrative error and the Board assessed a fine of $1,000. In addition to the fine, Owens & Minor agrees to notify the Board within ten business days of any discipline imposed upon it in any jurisdiction, any charges of unprofessional conduct in any other jurisdiction, and any charges that it violated any probations or conditions it is currently required to follow.

- In January 2016, Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. entered into a Stipulation and Consent Order with the Alabama State Board of Pharmacy for the most recent discipline received in Vermont for their Flower Mound, TX facility. This was strictly an administrative matter, a fine for being fined essentially. Owens & Minor signed the Settlement Agreement, paid the fine of $10,000, and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- On April 28, 2016, the Hawaii Board of Pharmacy approved the Final Consent Order and Settlement Agreement for PHA 2015-92-L in the matter of Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. ("Owens & Minor") and the Hawaii Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs (DCCA), which provided for a fine of $5,000.00. Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS) § 436B-19(13) permits the Hawaii DCCA to impose discipline on a licensee for disciplinary action taken by another state. No deficiencies were noted in the operations or compliance activities of any specific Owens & Minor distribution center. This was strictly an administrative matter, a fine for being fined essentially. Owens & Minor signed the Settlement Agreement, paid the fine, and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- On May 25, 2016, the Wisconsin Pharmacy Examining Board issued a Final Decision & Order regarding Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. and discipline received by Owens & Minor in the state of Vermont. No deficiencies were noted in the operations or compliance activities of any specific Owens & Minor distribution center. This was strictly an administrative matter, a fine for being fined in another jurisdiction essentially. Owens & Minor signed a Stipulation, paid a $1,120.00 fine, and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- On January 3, 2017, Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. entered into a Stipulation and Final Agency Order with the Colorado State Board of Pharmacy for discipline received for its Denver, CO facility. The discipline regarded the tardy formal notification to the Board of a change in Designated Representative. The Board assessed a fine of $1,150.00. Owens & Minor signed the Order, paid the fine and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- In June, 2017, the Hawaii Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs presented Owens & Minor with a Settlement Agreement assessing a fine of $250.00 for discipline received from the Colorado State Board of Pharmacy for its Denver, CO facility due to a tardy notification of a change in Designated Representative. This was strictly an administrative fine for being disciplined in another jurisdiction. Owens & Minor signed the Settlement Agreement, paid the fine, and the matter is now satisfactorily closed. It should also be noted that the Honolulu facility closed on December 31, 2016.

- On April 26, 2018, Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. entered into a Settlement Agreement with the State of Florida Department of Business & Professional Regulation regarding the tardy formal notification to the Board of a change in Designated Representative and the imposition of discipline by another state, also regarding a tardy notification of change in Designated Representative. The Department assessed a fine of $2,250.00 and determined that the agreement will not be deemed to constitute discipline within the meaning of Florida pharmacy laws. Owens & Minor signed the Order, paid the fine and the matter is now closed.

- On November 28, 2018, Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. entered into a Stipulation and Final Agency Order with the Colorado State Board of Pharmacy regarding the tardy formal notification to the Board of a change in Designated Representative as well as failure to review its policy and procedure manual. The Department assessed a fine of $6,900.00, and the matter is now closed.

- On February 25, 2019, Owens & Minor received a citation issued by the California Board of Pharmacy against Owens & Minor's Louisville facility. The citation referenced violations of regulations regarding timely notification of the Board when a facility's Designated Representative changes. No fine has been assessed with the citation and no proof of abatement has been ordered. The matter is now closed.

- On March 19, 2019, the Florida Department of Business & Professional Regulations presented Owens & Minor with a Settlement Agreement assessing a fine of $3,000.00 for discipline received from the Colorado State Board of Pharmacy for its Denver, CO facility due to a tardy notification of a change in Designated Representative. This was strictly an administrative fine for being disciplined in another jurisdiction. Owens & Minor signed the Settlement Agreement, paid the fine, and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- On April 19, 2019, the Colorado Department of Regulatory Agencies, Division of Professions and Occupations presented Owens & Minor with a Letter of Admonishment recognizing that Owens & Minor failed to timely submit an application and fee for a change of Designated Representative for the Chicago, IL facility. This was strictly an open public record and reportable action and no such fine was given. Owens & Minor did not initiate formal disciplinary hearings to adjudicate the conduct and has accepted the letter for public record. This matter is closed.

- On December 11, 2019, the Colorado Department of Regulatory Agencies, Division of Professions and Occupations presented Owens & Minor with a Stipulation and Final Agency Order regarding the tardy formal notification to the Board of a change of Designated Representative. The Department assessed a fine of $5,000.00. Owens & Minor signed the Stipulation agreement, paid the fine, and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- On September 10, 2020, the Colorado Department of Regulatory Agencies, Division of Professions and Occupations presented Owens & Minor with a Stipulation and Final Agency Order regarding the failure of the Designated Representative to review, sign and date its policy and procedure manual within a year of the previous date it was reviewed. The Department assessed a fine of $1,150. Owens & Minor signed the Stipulation agreement, paid the fine, and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- On December 22, 2020, Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. entered into a Stipulation and Final Agency Order from the State of Florida, Department of Business & Professional Regulation under Case #'s 2020-007156; 2020-007158; 2020-007161; 2020-007162 for the 2019 Colorado State Board of Pharmacy discipline that was issued for failure to notify within 30 days of a change of DR at the facility located at 473 Tower Blvd., Carol Stream, IL 60188. In lieu of a hearing, the Board resolved this case by means of a stipulated agreement pursuant to the following terms: Settlement in the amount of $5000.00. Owens & Minor signed the Order, paid the fine and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

- On July 28, 2022, Owens & Minor Distribution, Inc. entered into a Stipulation and Final Agency Order from the State of Colorado Department of Regulatory Agencies under Case # 2019-2092 (court case # 2022-0006) for the 2018 failure to notify the board within 30 days of a change of DR at the facility located at 5125 Ontario Mills Parkway, Ontario, CA 91764. In lieu of a hearing, the Board resolved this case by means of a stipulated agreement pursuant to the following terms: Settlement in the amount of $1,150.00 Owens & Minor signed the Order, paid the fine and the matter is now satisfactorily closed.

CREDIT AGREEMENT

THIS CREDIT AGREEMENT dated as of June 5, 2012 (the " Credit Agreement "), is by and among OWENS & MINOR DISTRIBUTION, INC., a Virginia corporation and OWENS & MINOR MEDICAL, INC., a Virginia corporation (together, the " U.S. Borrowers "), OWENS & MINOR, INC., a Virginia corporation (the " Parent "), certain domestic subsidiaries of the Parent as may be parties hereto from time to time (together with the Parent, the " Guarantors "), the Banks (as defined herein), JPMORGAN CHASE BANK, N.A., as syndication agent and WELLS FARGO BANK, N.A., as administrative agent for the Banks (in such capacity, the " Administrative Agent ").

WITNESSETH

WHEREAS, the U.S. Borrowers have requested that the Banks provide $350,000,000 in credit facilities for the purposes set forth herein, and the Banks are willing to do so on the terms and conditions set forth herein.

NOW, THEREFORE, IN CONSIDERATION of the premises and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which are hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto agree as follows:

SECTION 1

DEFINITIONS AND ACCOUNTING TERMS

1.1 Definitions.

As used herein, the following terms shall have the meanings herein specified unless the context otherwise requires. Defined terms herein shall include in the singular number the plural and in the plural the singular:

" Acquisition ", by any Person, means the purchase or acquisition by such Person of any Capital Stock of another Person (other than a member of the Consolidated Group) or substantially all of the Property (other than Capital Stock) of another Person (other than a member of the Consolidated Group), whether or not involving a merger or consolidation with such other Person.

" Additional Commitment Bank " has the meaning set forth in Section 2.11(d).

" Additional Credit Party " means each Domestic Subsidiary of the Parent that becomes a Guarantor after the Closing Date by execution of a Joinder Agreement.

" Administrative Agent " means the Person identified as such in the heading hereof, together with any permitted successors and assigns.

" Administrative Agent's Office " means the Administrative Agent's address as set forth on Schedule 11.1, or such other address or account as the Administrative Agent may from time to time notify in writing to the Borrowers, the Banks, the Issuing Bank and the Swingline Bank.

" Administrative Questionnaire " means an Administrative Questionnaire in a form supplied by the Administrative Agent.

" Affiliate " means, with respect to any Person, any other Person directly or indirectly controlling (including but not limited to all directors and executive officers of such Person), controlled by or under direct or indirect common control with such Person. A Person shall be deemed to control a corporation if such Person possesses, directly or indirectly, the power (i) to vote 10% or more of the securities having ordinary voting power for the election of directors of such corporation or (ii) to direct or cause direction of the management and policies of such corporation, whether through the ownership of voting securities, by contract or other agreement.

" Agent Parties " has the meaning set forth in Section 11.1(c).

" Aggregate Revolving Committed Amount " has the meaning assigned to such term in Section 2.1(a).

" Alternative Currency " means each of Euro, Sterling, Yen and each other currency (other than Dollars) that is approved in accordance with Section 1.6.

" Alternative Currency Equivalent " means, at any time, with respect to any amount denominated in Dollars, the equivalent amount thereof in the applicable Alternative Currency as determined by the Administrative Agent or the Issuing Bank, as the case may be, at such time on the basis of the Spot Rate (determined in respect of the most recent Revaluation Date) for the purchase of such Alternative Currency with Dollars.

" Alternative Currency Sublimit " means, an amount equal to $100,000,000. The Alternative Currency Sublimit is part of, and not in addition to, the Aggregate Revolving Committed Amount.

" Anti-Terrorism Law " means the USA PATRIOT ACT or any other statute, regulation, executive order, or other law pertaining to the prevention of future acts of terrorism, in each case as such law may be amended from time to time.

" Applicable Lending Office " means, as to any Bank, the office or offices of such Bank described as such in such Bank's Administrative Questionnaire, or such other office or offices as a Bank may from time to time notify the Borrower Representative and the Administrative Agent.

" Applicable Percentage " means for any day, the rate per annum set forth below, based on the better of (y) the Debt Ratings and (z) the Consolidated Total Leverage Ratio then in effect, it being understood that the Applicable Percentage for (i) Base Rate Loans shall be the percentage set forth under the column "Base Rate Margin", (ii) Eurocurrency Rate Loans shall be the percentage set forth under the column "Eurocurrency Margin", (iii) Daily LIBOR Swingline Loans shall be the percentage set forth under the column "Eurocurrency Margin", (iv) Standby Letter of Credit Fee shall be the percentage set forth under the column "Eurocurrency Margin" and (v) the Unused Fee shall be the percentage set forth under the column "Unused Fee":

Level	Debt Ratings	Consolidated Leverage Ratio	Eurocurrency Margin	Base Rate Margin	Unused Fee
I	BB-/Ba3 or lower	≥ 2.5 to 1.0	2.250%	1.250%	0.425%
II	BB/Ba2	< 2.5 to 1.0 but ≥ 2.0 to 1.0	2.000%	1.000%	0.350%
III	BB+/Ba1	< 2.0 to 1.0 but ≥ 1.5 to 1.0	1.750%	0.750%	0.275%
IV	BBB-/Baa3	< 1.5 to 1.0 but ≥ 1.0 to 1.0	1.500%	0.500%	0.225%
V	BBB/Baa2	< 1.0 to 1.0 but ≥ 0.5 to 1.0	1.375%	0.375%	0.200%
VI	BBB+/Baa1 or better	< 0.5 to 1.0	1.250%	0.250%	0.175%

At such times as the Applicable Percentage is determined by the Debt Ratings, the Applicable Percentage shall be determined in accordance with the above pricing grid based on the Parent's status as determined from its then current Moody's Rating and S&P Rating. If there is a split rating, the Applicable Percentage shall be based upon the Level indicated by the higher of the two ratings unless there is a two or more level difference in the levels indicated by each of the two available ratings, in which case the Level that is one level below the higher rating shall apply. Should the Parent not have any Debt Rating, the corporate credit or issuer rating of the Parent will be used in lieu thereof, or if no such rating is available, then the Consolidated Total Leverage Ratio shall be used to determine the Applicable Percentage. For purposes of the above pricing grid, any change in the Applicable Percentage shall occur on the date that is five (5) Business Days following any change in the Moody's Rating and the S&P Rating for the Parent.

At such times as the Applicable Percentage is determined by the Consolidated Leverage Ratio, the Applicable Percentage shall, in each case, be determined and adjusted quarterly on the date five (5) Business Days after the date by which the Borrowers are required to provide the quarterly or annual compliance certificate and related financial statements in accordance with the provisions of Sections 7.1(a) and (b), as appropriate; provided that:

(i) the Applicable Percentage in effect from the Closing Date through the fifth Business Day immediately following the date a compliance certificate is required to be delivered pursuant to Section 7.1(b) for the fiscal quarter ending September 30, 2012 shall be determined based upon Pricing Level V, and

(ii) notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event an annual or quarterly compliance certificate and related financial statements are not delivered timely to the Administrative Agent by the date required by Sections 7.1(a) and (b), as appropriate, the Applicable Percentage, in each case, shall be based on the better of (A) the Debt Rating and (B) Pricing Level I until the date five (5) Business Days after such compliance certificate and related financial statements are delivered to the Administrative Agent.

Subject to the qualifications set forth above, the Applicable Percentage, in each case, shall be effective from an interest determination date until the next interest determination date. The Administrative Agent shall determine the appropriate Applicable Percentages promptly upon receipt of, and based on the information contained in, the quarterly or annual compliance certificates and related financial statements. The Administrative Agent shall promptly notify the Borrower Representative and the Banks of any change in the Applicable Percentage. Such determinations by the Administrative Agent shall be conclusive absent manifest error. Adjustments in the Applicable Percentage shall be effective as to existing Extensions of Credit as well as new Extensions of Credit made thereafter. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this definition, the determination of the Applicable Percentage for any period shall be subject to the provisions of Section 3.15(c).

"Applicable Time" means, with respect to any borrowings and payments in any Alternative Currency, the local time in the place of settlement for such Alternative Currency as may be determined by the Administrative Agent or the L/C Issuer, as the case may be, to be necessary for timely settlement on the relevant date in accordance with normal banking procedures in the place of borrowing or payment.

" Applicant Foreign Borrower " has the meaning specified in Section 2.12.

" Approved Fund " means any Fund that is administered or managed by (a) a Bank, (b) an Affiliate of a Bank or (c) an entity or an Affiliate of an entity that administers or manages a Bank.

" Arrangers " means, collectively, Wells Fargo Securities, LLC and J.P. Morgan Securities LLC in their capacities as joint lead arrangers and joint book managers.

" Assignee Group " means two or more Eligible Assignees that are Affiliates of one another or two or more Approved Funds managed by the same investment advisor.

" Asset Disposition " shall mean and include the sale, lease or other disposition (or the entering into a contract or other agreement that, upon consummation, will result in the sale, lease or other disposition) of any Property by any member of the Consolidated Group (including the Capital Stock of a Subsidiary) other than (A) the sale or other disposition of inventory in the ordinary course of business, (B) the sale, lease or other disposition of machinery, equipment and other assets no longer used or useful in the conduct of such member's business and (C) the sale or financing of Receivables and Receivables Related Assets pursuant to the terms of a Qualified Securitization Transaction permitted hereunder.

" Assignment and Assumption " means an assignment and assumption entered into by a Bank and an Eligible Assignee (with the consent of any party whose consent is required by Section 11.3(b)), and accepted by the Administrative Agent, in substantially the form of Schedule 11.3(b) or any other form approved by the Administrative Agent.

" Bankruptcy Code " means the Bankruptcy Code in Title 11 of the United States Code, as amended, modified, succeeded or replaced from time to time.

" Bankruptcy Event " means, with respect to any Person, the occurrence of any of the following with respect to such Person: (i) a court or governmental agency having jurisdiction in the premises shall enter a decree or order for relief in respect of such Person in an involuntary case under any applicable bankruptcy, insolvency or other similar law now or hereafter in effect, or appointing a receiver, liquidator, assignee, custodian, trustee, sequestrator (or similar official) of such Person or for any substantial part of its Property or ordering the winding up or liquidation of its affairs; or (ii) there shall be commenced against such Person an involuntary case under any applicable bankruptcy, insolvency or other similar law now or hereafter in effect, or any case, proceeding or other action for the appointment of a receiver, liquidator, assignee, custodian, trustee, sequestrator (or similar official) of such Person or for any substantial part of its Property or for the winding up or liquidation of its affairs, and such involuntary case or other case, proceeding or other action shall remain undismissed, undischarged or unbonded for a period of sixty consecutive days; or (iii) such Person shall commence a voluntary case under any applicable bankruptcy, insolvency or other similar law now or hereafter in effect, or consent to the entry of an order for relief in an involuntary case under any such law, or consent to the appointment or taking possession by a receiver, liquidator, assignee, custodian, trustee, sequestrator (or similar official) of such Person or for any substantial part of its Property or make any general assignment for the benefit of creditors; or (iv) such Person shall be unable to, or shall admit in writing its inability to, pay its debts generally as they become due.

" Banks " means each Person identified as a "Bank" on the signature pages hereto and its successors and assigns.

" Base Rate " means for any day a fluctuating rate per annum equal to the highest of (a) the Federal Funds Rate plus 0.50%, (b) the rate of interest in effect for such day as publicly announced from time to time by Wells Fargo Bank as its "prime rate: and (c) the Eurocurrency Rate plus 1.0%. The "prime rate" is a rate set by Wells Fargo Bank based upon various factors including Wells Fargo Bank's costs and desired return, general economic conditions and other factors, and is used as a reference point for pricing some loans, which may be priced at, above, or below such announced rate. Any change in such "prime rate" announced by Wells Fargo Bank shall take effect at the opening of business on the day specified in the public announcement of such change.

"Base Rate Loan" means a Loan that bears interest at a rate based on the Base Rate. All Base Rate Loans shall be denominated in Dollars.

"Borrower Materials" has the meaning set forth in Section 7.1.

"Borrower Representative" has the meaning set forth in Section 2.9.

"Borrowers" means the U.S. Borrowers, as identified in the heading hereof, together with any Foreign Borrowers and permitted successors and assigns.

"Borrowing" means a borrowing consisting of simultaneous Loans of the same type and, in the case of Eurocurrency Rate Loans, having the same Interest Period made by each of the Banks pursuant to Section 2.2.

"Business Day" means any day other than a Saturday, Sunday or other day on which commercial banks are authorized to close under the Laws of, or are in fact closed in, the state where the Administrative Agent's Office with respect to Obligations denominated in Dollars is located and:

(a) if such day relates to any interest rate settings as to a Eurocurrency Rate Loan denominated in Dollars, any fundings, disbursements, settlements and payments in Dollars in respect of any such Eurocurrency Rate Loan, or any other dealings in Dollars to be carried out pursuant to this Agreement in respect of any such Eurocurrency Rate Loan, means any such day on which dealings in deposits in Dollars are conducted by and between banks in the London interbank eurodollar market;

(b) if such day relates to any interest rate settings as to a Eurocurrency Rate Loan denominated in Euro, any fundings, disbursements, settlements and payments in Euro in respect of any such Eurocurrency Rate Loan, or any other dealings in Euro to be carried out pursuant to this Agreement in respect of any such Eurocurrency Rate Loan, means a TARGET Day;

(c) if such day relates to any interest rate settings as to a Eurocurrency Rate Loan denominated in a currency other than Dollars or Euro, means any such day on which dealings in deposits in the relevant currency are conducted by and between banks in the London or other applicable offshore interbank market for such currency; and

(d) if such day relates to any fundings, disbursements, settlements and payments in a currency other than Dollars or Euro in respect of a Eurocurrency Rate Loan denominated in a currency other than Dollars or Euro, or any other dealings in any currency other than Dollars or Euro to be carried out pursuant to this Agreement in respect of any such Eurocurrency Rate Loan (other than any interest rate settings), means any such day on which banks are open for foreign exchange business in the principal financial center of the country of such currency.

"Capital Lease" means any lease the payments and obligations with respect to which would be required to be capitalized in accordance with GAAP.

1. Has the corporation, any owner(s), shareholder(s) or partner(s) with at least 10% interest or partners with any interest, ever been charged, or convicted of a felony or gross misdemeanor (including by way of a guilty plea or no contest plea)?	Based on records available to it and to the best of its knowledge, Abbott Laboratories Inc. (ALI), the prospective licensee, has not been charged or convicted of a felony or gross misdemeanor (including by way of a guilty plea or no contest plea) since 2004. Abbott In May 2012, Abbott, the parent company of the prospective licensee identified in Section 9 of the Wholesaler Application Addendum, pleaded guilty to one misdemeanor violation of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act for misbranding as part of a settlement with U.S. federal and 49 state authorities, plus the District of Columbia, to resolve all outstanding issues regarding an investigation of past sales and marketing practices relating to its neurologic medication Depakote. Abbott and the Department of Justice, as reflected in the plea agreement, agreed that the conduct that gave rise to the conviction relates solely to the research-based pharmaceutical business that later became part of Abbvie, and that, from the time of the separation of Abbvie, Abbott no longer had any obligations under the plea agreement, nor would the Department of Justice treat Abbott as having a conviction under the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. Effective January 2, 2013, Abbott separated that research-based pharmaceutical business, including its U.S. pharmaceutical business, the business responsible for Depakote, into a new, independent publicly traded company, Abbvie.
2. Has the corporation, any owner(s), shareholder(s) or partner(s) with at least 10% interest or partners with any interest, ever been denied a license, permit or certificate of registration?	Based on records available to them and to the best of their knowledge, ALI and Abbott have not been denied a license, permit or certificate of registration material to Abbott's operations since 2004.
3. Has the corporation, any owner(s), shareholder(s) or partner(s) with at least 10% interest or partners with any interest, ever been subject of an administrative action or proceeding relating to the pharmaceutical industry?	Based on records available to it and to the best of its knowledge, and excluding the research-based pharmaceutical business that separated into a new, independent publicly traded company in 2013 (Abbvie), ALI has not been the subject of an administrative action or proceeding relating to the pharmaceutical industry since 2004. Abbott In May 2022, Abbott agreed to enter into a consent decree with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) related to its Sturgis, Mich., infant formula plant. The decree is an agreement between FDA and Abbott on the steps necessary to resume production and maintain the facility. This is not related to the pharmaceutical industry and does not affect any other Abbott plant or operation, including the operations of the Applicant. See also Abbott's response to Question 1 above.

4. Has the corporation, any owner(s), shareholder(s) or partner(s) with at least 10% interest or partners with any interest, ever been found guilty, pled guilty or entered a plea of nolo contendere to any offense federal or state, related to controlled substances?	Based on records available to them and to the best of their knowledge, ALI and Abbott have not been found guilty, pled guilty or entered a plea of nolo contendere to any offense federal or state, related to controlled substances since 2004.
5. Has the corporation, any owner(s), shareholder(s) or partner(s) with at least 10% interest or partners with any interest, ever surrendered a license, permit or certificate of registration voluntarily or otherwise (other than upon voluntary close of a facility)?	Based on records available to them and to the best of their knowledge, ALI and Abbott have not surrendered a license, permit or certificate of registration voluntarily or otherwise (other than upon voluntary close of a facility) material to Abbott's operations since 2004.

PART I

GENERAL DEVELOPMENT OF BUSINESS

Abbott Laboratories is an Illinois corporation, incorporated in 1900. Abbott's* principal business is the discovery, development, manufacture, and sale of a broad and diversified line of health care products.

NARRATIVE DESCRIPTION OF BUSINESS

Abbott has four reportable segments: Established Pharmaceutical Products, Diagnostic Products, Nutritional Products, and Medical Devices.

Established Pharmaceutical Products

These products include a broad line of branded generic pharmaceuticals manufactured worldwide and marketed and sold outside the United States in emerging markets. These products are generally sold directly to wholesalers, distributors, government agencies, health care facilities, pharmacies, and independent retailers from Abbott-owned distribution centers and public warehouses, depending on the market served. Certain products are co-marketed or co-promoted with, or licensed from, other companies.

The principal products included in the broad therapeutic area portfolios of the Established Pharmaceutical Products segment are:

- gastroenterology products, including Creon™, for the treatment of pancreatic exocrine insufficiency associated with several underlying conditions, including cystic fibrosis and chronic pancreatitis; Duspatal™ and Dicetel™, for the treatment of irritable bowel syndrome or biliary spasm; Heptral™, Transmetil™, and Samyr™, for the treatment of intrahepatic cholestasis (associated with liver disease) or depressive symptoms; and Duphalac™, for regulation of the physiological rhythm of the colon;
- women's health products, including Duphaston™, for the treatment of many different gynecological disorders; and Femoston™, a hormone replacement therapy for postmenopausal women;
- cardiovascular and metabolic products, including Lipanthyl™ and TriCor™, for the treatment of dyslipidemia; Teveten™ and Teveten™ Plus, for the treatment of essential hypertension; and Physiotens™, for the treatment of hypertension; and Synthroid™, for the treatment of hypothyroidism;
- pain and central nervous system products, including Serc™, for the treatment of Meniere's disease and vestibular vertigo; Brufen™, for the treatment of pain, fever, and inflammation; and Sevedol™, for the treatment of severe migraines; and
- respiratory drugs and vaccines, including the anti-infective clarithromycin (sold under the trademarks Biaxin™, Klacid™, and Klaricid™); and Influvac™, an influenza vaccine.

The Established Pharmaceutical Products segment directs its primary marketing efforts toward building strong brands with key stakeholders, including consumers, pharmacists, physicians, and other healthcare providers. Government agencies are also important customers.

Competition in the Established Pharmaceutical Products segment is generally from other health care and pharmaceutical companies. In addition, the substitution of generic drugs for the brand prescribed and introduction of additional forms of already marketed established products by generic or branded competitors may increase competitive pressures.

* As used throughout the text of this report on Form 10-K, the term "Abbott" refers to Abbott Laboratories, an Illinois corporation, or Abbott Laboratories and its consolidated subsidiaries, as the context requires.

Diagnostic Products

These products include a broad line of diagnostic systems and tests manufactured, marketed, and sold worldwide. These products are generally marketed and sold directly to blood banks, hospitals, commercial laboratories, clinics, physicians' offices, retailers, government agencies, alternate care testing sites, and plasma protein therapeutic companies from Abbott owned distribution centers, public warehouses or third party distributors.

The principal products included in the Diagnostic Products segment are:

- core laboratory systems in the areas of immunoassay, clinical chemistry, hematology, and transfusion medicine, including the Alinity® family of instruments, ARCHITECT®, ABBOTT PRISM®, and Cell-Dyn®, with assays used for screening and/or diagnosis for cancer, cardiac, metabolics, drugs of abuse, fertility, general chemistries, infectious diseases such as hepatitis and HIV, therapeutic drug monitoring, and a suite of SARS-CoV-2 serology assays;
- molecular diagnostics polymerase chain reaction (PCR) instrument systems, including Alinity® m and m2000™ that automate the extraction, purification, and preparation of DNA and RNA from patient samples, and detect and measure infectious agents including HIV, hepatitis, HPV, sexually transmitted infections, and SARS-CoV-2; and products for oncology with the Vysis® FISH product line of genomic-based tests;
- point of care systems, including the i-STAT® and next-generation i-STAT® Alinity® and cartridges for testing blood gas, chemistry, electrolytes, coagulation and immunoassay;
- rapid diagnostics lateral flow testing products in the area of infectious diseases, including respiratory viruses such as SARS-CoV-2 and influenza, HIV, hepatitis, and tropical diseases such as malaria and dengue fever, molecular point-of-care testing for HIV, including the m-PIMA® HIV-1/2 Viral Load Test, and for SARS-CoV-2 and influenza A & B, RSV and strep A, including the ID NOW® rapid molecular system; cardiometabolic testing, including Afinion® and Cholestech™ platforms and tests; a toxicology business for drug and alcohol testing; and remote patient monitoring and consumer self-testing; and
- informatics and automation solutions for use in laboratories, including laboratory automation systems, the RALS® point of care solution, and AlinIQ®, a suite of informatics tools and professional services.

The Diagnostic Products segment's products are subject to competition in technological innovation, price, convenience of use, service, instrument warranty provisions, product performance, laboratory efficiency, long-term supply contracts, and product potential for overall cost-effectiveness and productivity gains. Some products in this segment can be subject to rapid product obsolescence or regulatory changes. Although Abbott has benefited from technological advantages of certain of its current products, these advantages may be reduced or eliminated as competitors introduce new products.

Nutritional Products

These products include a broad line of pediatric and adult nutritional products manufactured, marketed, and sold worldwide. These products are generally marketed and sold directly to consumers and to institutions, wholesalers, retailers, health care facilities, government agencies, and third-party distributors from Abbott-owned distribution centers or third-party distributors.

The principal products included in the Nutritional Products segment are:

- various forms of prepared infant formula and follow-on formula, including Similac®, Similac Pro-Advance®, Similac® Advance®, Similac® Advance® Non-GMO, Similac Pro-Sensitive®, Similac Sensitive®, Similac Sensitive® Non-GMO, Go&Grow by Similac®, Similac® NeoSure®, Similac® Organic, Similac® Special Care®, Similac Total Comfort®*, Similac® For Supplementation, Isomil® Advance®, Isomil®, Alimentum®, Gain™, Grow™, Similac En Mei Li™, and Eleva™;
- adult and other pediatric nutritional products, including Ensure®, Ensure Plus®, Ensure® Enlive®, Ensure® (with NutriVigor®), Ensure® Max Protein, Ensure® High Protein, Glucerna®, Glucerna Hunger Smart®, ProSure™, PediaSure®, PediaSure SideKicks®, PediaSure® Peptide, EleCare®, Juven®, Abound™, Pedialyte® and Zone Perfect®; and

- nutritional products used in enteral feeding in health care institutions, including Jevity®, Glucerna® 1.2 Cal, Glucerna® 1.5 Cal, Osmolite®, Oxepa®, Freego™ (Enteral Pump) and Freego™ sets, Nepro®, and Vital®

* These products are available with 2'-FL HMO (Human Milk Oligosaccharide) in several markets.

Primary marketing efforts for nutritional products are directed toward consumers or to securing the recommendation of Abbott's brand of products by physicians or other health care professionals. In addition, certain nutritional products sold as Similac®, Gain™, Grow™, Eleva™, PediaSure®, PediaSure SideKicks®, Pedialyte®, Ensure®, Zone Perfect®, and Glucerna® are also promoted directly to the public by consumer marketing efforts in select markets where appropriate.

Competition for nutritional products in the segment is generally from other diversified consumer and health care manufacturers. Competitive factors include consumer advertising, formulation, packaging, scientific innovation, price, retail distribution, and availability of product forms. A significant aspect of competition is the search for ingredient innovations. The introduction of new products by competitors, changes in medical practices and procedures, and regulatory changes can result in product obsolescence. In addition, private label and local manufacturers' products may increase competitive pressure.

Medical Devices

These products include a broad line of rhythm management, electrophysiology, heart failure, vascular and structural heart devices for the treatment of cardiovascular diseases, and diabetes care products for people with diabetes, as well as neuromodulation devices for the management of chronic pain and movement disorders. Medical devices are manufactured, marketed and sold worldwide. In the United States, depending upon the product, medical devices are generally marketed and sold directly to wholesalers, hospitals, ambulatory surgery centers, physicians' offices, and distributors from Abbott-owned distribution centers and public warehouses. Outside the United States, sales are made either directly to customers or through distributors, depending on the market served.

The principal products included in the Medical Devices segment are:

- rhythm management products, including Assurity MRI® and Endurity MRI® pacemaker systems, Ellipse®, Fortify Assura®, and Gallant™ implantable cardioverter defibrillators and Gallant and Quadra Assura MP® implantable cardioverter defibrillator with cardiac resynchronization therapy and MultiPoint® Pacing technology; and Confirm Rx® implantable cardiac monitor;
- electrophysiology products, including the TactiCath® family of ablation catheters and FlexAbility® irrigated ablation catheters, Ampere® RF ablation generator, EnSite® family of cardiac mapping systems; and the Advisor® HD Grid mapping catheter;
- heart failure related products, including the HeartMate™ left ventricular device family and the CardioMEMS® HF System pulmonary artery sensor, a heart failure monitoring system;
- vascular products, including the XIENCE™ family of drug-eluting coronary stent systems developed on the Multi-Link Vision® platform, StarClose SE® and Perclose ProGlide® vessel closure devices, TREK® coronary balloon dilatation products, Hi-Torque Balance Middleweight Universal II® guidewires, Supera® Peripheral Stent System, a peripheral vascular stent system, Acculink®/Accunet® and Xact®/Emboshield NAV6®, carotid stent systems, and the OPTIS® integrated system with the Dragonfly OPTIS® imaging catheter and PressureWire® fractional flow reserve measurement systems;
- structural heart products, including MitraClip®, a percutaneous mitral valve repair system; Trifecta® Valve with Glide™ Technology, a surgical tissue heart valve; Portico® transcatheter aortic heart valve; Regent™ mechanical heart valve; Amplatzer® PFO occluders, Amplatzer Amulet® occluder devices; the Tendyne® Transcatheter Mitral Valve Implantation (TMVI) system; and the TriClip® Transcatheter Tricuspid Valve Repair System;
- continuous glucose and blood glucose monitoring systems, including test strips, sensors, data management decision software, and accessories for people with diabetes, under the FreeStyle® brand such as the FreeStyle Libre® system; and

- neuromodulation products, including spinal cord stimulators Proclaim® Elite and Proclaim® XR Recharge-free implantable pulse generators (IPG) and Prodigy MRI® IPG, each with BurstDR® stimulation, and Proclaim® DRG IPG, a neurostimulation device designed for dorsal root ganglion therapy, for the treatment of chronic pain disorders; and the Infinity® Deep Brain Stimulation System with directional lead technology for the treatment of movement disorders.

These products are subject to competition in technological innovation, price, convenience of use, service, product performance, long-term supply contracts, and product potential for overall cost-effectiveness and productivity gains. Some products in this segment can be subject to rapid product obsolescence or regulatory changes. Although Abbott has benefited from technological advantages of certain of its current products, these advantages may be reduced or eliminated as competitors introduce new products.

INFORMATION WITH RESPECT TO ABBOTT'S BUSINESS IN GENERAL

Sources and Availability of Raw Materials

Abbott purchases, in the ordinary course of business, raw materials and supplies essential to Abbott's operations from numerous suppliers in the United States and around the world. There have been no recent significant availability problems or supply shortages for raw materials or supplies.

Patents, Trademarks, and Licenses

Abbott is aware of the desirability for patent and trademark protection for its products. Accordingly, where possible, patents and trademarks are sought and obtained for Abbott's products in the United States and countries of interest to Abbott. Abbott owns or has licenses under a substantial number of patents and patent applications. Principal trademarks and the products they cover are discussed in the Narrative Description of Business on pages 1 through 4. These, and various patents which expire during the period 2021 to 2041, in the aggregate, are believed to be of material importance in the operation of Abbott's business. Abbott believes that no single patent, license, or trademark is material in relation to Abbott's business as a whole.

Seasonal Aspects, Customers, and Renegotiation

There are no significant seasonal aspects to Abbott's business. Abbott has no single customer that, if the customer were lost, would have a material adverse effect on Abbott. No material portion of Abbott's business is subject to renegotiation of profits or termination of contracts at the election of a government.

Environmental Matters

Abbott believes that its operations comply in all material respects with applicable laws and regulations concerning environmental protection. Regulations under federal and state environmental laws impose stringent limitations on emissions and discharges to the environment from various manufacturing operations. Abbott's capital and operating expenditures for pollution control in 2020 were not material and are not expected to be material in 2021.

Abbott has been identified as one of many potentially responsible parties in investigations and/or remediations at several locations in the United States, including Puerto Rico, under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, commonly known as Superfund. Abbott is also engaged in remediation at several other sites, some of which are owned by Abbott, in cooperation with the Environmental Protection Agency or similar agencies. While it is not feasible to predict with certainty the final costs related to those investigations and remediation activities, Abbott believes that such costs, together with other expenditures to maintain compliance with applicable laws and regulations concerning environmental protection, should not have a material adverse effect on Abbott's financial position, cash flows, or results of operations.

Human Capital

The sustainability of Abbott's business depends on attracting, engaging and developing talented people with diverse backgrounds who share Abbott's mission to help people live their healthiest possible lives. Abbott provides its employees opportunities to grow and develop their careers, market competitive compensation and benefit programs, and the satisfaction of being part of a global company dedicated to improving health in more than 160 countries.

As of December 31, 2020, Abbott employed approximately 109,000 people, 70% of whom were employed outside of the U.S. Women represented 47% of Abbott's U.S. workforce, 45% of its global workforce, and 39% of its managers.

Health and Safety

The health, safety and wellness of its employees is an Abbott priority embedded at every level of its business. Abbott's integrated Environmental, Health and Safety organization governs health, safety and wellness at Abbott's facilities. Abbott also maintains global policies and standards for managing employee health and safety.

Abbott takes a holistic approach to employee well-being. Abbott's global wellness programs are designed to meet the unique needs of employees across businesses and geographies and offer a wide range of programs, including supporting the mental, financial and physical health of employees and their families. For example, for over 20 years, Abbott has annually offered Exercise Across Abbott, which is a four-week physical wellness program that encourages employees to team up with colleagues and track how many minutes they exercise each day. Over 22,000 Abbott employees across 72 countries took part in 2020.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, Abbott has taken aggressive steps to limit exposure and enhance the safety of facilities for its employees, including implementing mandatory temperature screening and social distancing, providing and requiring the use of personal protective equipment, and at most U.S. facilities, onsite COVID-19 testing.

Talent Management

Abbott has an integrated global talent management process that is designed to identify and assess talent across the organization and provide equal and consistent opportunities for employees to develop their skills. All levels of employees participate in Abbott's annual performance management process to create development plans that support their particular career objectives, and Abbott provides a broad range of training, mentoring and other development opportunities to help its employees meet these objectives. The board of directors conducts an annual Talent Management Review, focusing on development of talent, diversity, and succession planning for critical positions. Similar reviews take place at every level of Abbott to develop talent and diversity across the organization.

Diversity and Inclusion

Abbott is committed to developing a workplace that is inclusive for all. Abbott ties executive compensation to human capital management, including diversity outcomes, to sustain an inclusive culture and the fair and balanced treatment of Abbott's employees.

Abbott's employee networks play an important role in building an inclusive culture across all Abbott operations. A member of Abbott's senior management serves as a sponsor for each of these networks, helping to align their objectives with Abbott's business strategies. Abbott has ten such networks, which are: Advancing Professionals Network (supporting early career employees), Asian Leadership and Cultural Network, Black Business Network, Flex Network (employees with part-time and flexible schedules), LA VOICE Network (supporting Hispanic and Latino employees), People with Disabilities Network, PRIDE (supporting LGBTQ employees), Veterans Network, Women Leaders of Abbott, and Women in STEM.

Abbott offers professional development programs, which provide recent college graduates the opportunity to rotate through different areas of Abbott, often with the chance to work outside their home country. In 2020, 52% of the participants were women. Also, Abbott hosts hundreds of college students for paid internships. In 2020, 55% of the U.S. interns were women and 39% were minorities. Further, Abbott has operated a STEM internship program for high school students in the U.S. since 2012. The program's objective is to increase the number of students pursuing STEM-related careers and contribute to a more diverse talent pipeline for Abbott. In 2020, 58% of the STEM interns were women and 71% were minorities.

Compensation and Benefits

Abbott is committed to building, retaining, and motivating a diverse talent pipeline that can meet the current and future needs of its businesses. To that end, Abbott provides market competitive compensation, healthcare benefits, pension and/or retirement savings plans, and several programs to facilitate employees building an ownership stake in Abbott, including a global long-term incentive program for employees generally beginning at the manager level. Abbott also has procedures and processes focused on providing employees equitable compensation, regardless of race or gender or other personal characteristics.

Regulation

The development, manufacture, marketing, sale, promotion, and distribution of Abbott's products are subject to comprehensive government regulation by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and similar international regulatory agencies. Government regulation by various international, supranational, federal and state agencies addresses (among other matters) the development and approval to market Abbott's products, as well as the inspection of, and controls over, research and laboratory procedures, clinical investigations, product approvals and manufacturing, labeling, packaging, supply chains, marketing and promotion, pricing and reimbursement, sampling, distribution, quality control, post-market surveillance, record keeping, storage, and disposal practices. In addition, Abbott's clinical laboratories and associated testing services are subject to comprehensive government regulation, including registration, certification, and licensure, by federal, state, and local agencies, such as the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, and their respective foreign counterparts. Certain of these agencies require our clinical laboratories to meet quality assurance, quality control, and personnel standards and undergo inspections.

During the COVID-19 public health emergency, many pandemic-related products (including diagnostic tests) were authorized by regulators for emergency use solely during the pandemic. In addition, many governments enacted policies to expedite or promote access to health care in order to slow or stop the spread of the virus. Examples include expansion of telehealth coverages and increased reimbursements for diagnostic testing. It is uncertain when the public health emergency will end and to what extent these policies will continue or revert back to previous policies.

Abbott's international operations are also affected by trade and investment regulations in many countries. These may require local investment, restrict Abbott's investments, or limit the import of raw materials and finished products.

Abbott's laboratory facilities and home monitoring services, which provide services, related products and medical devices to consumers, are subject to additional laws and regulations applicable to health care providers and suppliers that submit claims for reimbursement to third-party payors. In the United States, Medicare, Medicaid, and other third-party payors may from time to time conduct inquiries, claims audits, investigations, and enforcement actions relating to the claims or enrollment criteria.

Abbott is subject to laws and regulations pertaining to health care fraud and abuse, including state and federal anti-kickback, anti-self-referral, and false claims laws in the United States. Prescription drug, nutrition, and medical device manufacturers such as Abbott are also subject to taxes, as well as application, product, user, establishment, and other fees. Governmental agencies can also invalidate intellectual property rights.

Compliance with these laws and regulations is costly and materially affects Abbott's business. Among other effects, health care regulations and significant changes thereto (such as the introduction of the Medical Device Regulation and the In Vitro Diagnostic Medical Device Regulation in the European Union) substantially increase the time, difficulty, and costs incurred in developing, obtaining and maintaining approval to market, and marketing newly developed and existing products. Abbott expects this regulatory environment will continue to require significant technical expertise and investment to ensure compliance. Failure to comply can delay the release of a new product or result in regulatory and enforcement actions, the seizure or recall of a product, the suspension or revocation of the authority necessary for a product's production and sale, suspension or revocation of billing privileges, and other civil or criminal sanctions, including fines and penalties. Similarly, compliance with the laws and regulations governing clinical laboratories and testing services requires specialized expertise. Failure to comply with these regulatory requirements can result in sanctions, including suspension, revocation, or limitation of a laboratory's certification, which is necessary to conduct business, as well as significant fines or criminal penalties.

Abbott's business can also be affected by ongoing studies of the utilization, safety, efficacy, and outcomes of health care products and their components that are regularly conducted by industry participants, government agencies, and others. These studies can call into question the utilization, safety, and efficacy of previously marketed products. In some cases, these studies have resulted, and may in the future result, in the discontinuation of marketing of such products in one or more countries, and may give rise to claims for damages from persons who believe they have been injured as a result of their use.

Access to human health care products continues to be a subject of investigation and action by governmental agencies, legislative bodies, and private organizations in many countries. A major focus is cost containment. Efforts to reduce health care costs are also being made in the private sector, notably by health care payors and providers, which have instituted various cost reduction and containment measures. Abbott expects insurers and providers will continue attempts to reduce the cost or utilization of health care products. Many countries control the price of health care products directly or indirectly, through reimbursement, payment, pricing, or coverage limitations. Budgetary pressures on health care payors may also heighten the scope and severity of pricing pressures on Abbott's products for the foreseeable future. In the United States, the federal government regularly evaluates reimbursement for medical devices, diagnostics, supplies, and other products, as well as the procedures in which these products may be used. The government follows a diagnosis-related group (DRG) payment system for certain institutional services provided under Medicare or Medicaid and has implemented a prospective payment system (PPS) for services delivered in hospital outpatient, nursing home, and home health settings. DRG and PPS entitle a health care facility to a fixed reimbursement based on the diagnosis and/or procedure rather than actual costs incurred in patient treatment, thereby increasing the incentive for the facility to limit or control expenditures for many health care products. Other payment methodology changes have been proposed and implemented from time to time. For example, Medicare implemented a competitive bidding system for certain durable medical equipment (including diabetes products), enteral nutrition products, and supplies. Additionally, the Protecting Access to Medicare Act established a new payment system for clinical laboratory tests in 2018.

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (the Affordable Care Act) includes provisions known as the Physician Payments Sunshine Act, which requires manufacturers of drugs, devices, and medical supplies covered under Medicare and Medicaid to record any transfers of value to physicians and teaching hospitals and to report this data to the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services for subsequent public disclosure. In October 2018, the Substance Use Disorder Prevention that Promotes Opioid Recovery and Treatment for Patients and Communities Act significantly expanded the types of healthcare providers for which reporting is required, beginning with reports filed in 2022. Similar reporting requirements have also been enacted on the state level domestically, and an increasing number of governments worldwide either have adopted or are considering similar laws requiring transparency of interactions with health care professionals. Failure to report appropriate data may result in civil or criminal fines and/or penalties.

Policy changes or implementation of new health care legislation could result in significant changes to health care systems. In the United States, this could include potential modification, including expansion or repeal of all or parts of the Affordable Care Act.

The regulation of data privacy and security, and the protection of the confidentiality of certain personal information (including patient health information, financial information and other sensitive personal information), is increasing. For example, the European Union, various other countries, and various U.S. states (e.g., California) have enacted stricter data protection laws that contain enhanced financial penalties for noncompliance. Similarly, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has issued rules governing the use, disclosure, and security of protected health information, and the FDA has issued further guidance concerning cybersecurity for medical devices. In addition, certain countries have issued or are considering "data localization" laws, which limit companies' ability to transfer protected data across country borders. Failure to comply with data privacy and security laws and regulations can result in business disruption and enforcement actions, which could include civil or criminal penalties. Transferring and managing protected information will become more challenging as laws and regulations are enacted or amended, and Abbott expects there will be increasing complexity in this area.

Governmental cost containment efforts also affect Abbott's nutritional products business. In the United States, for example, under regulations governing the federally funded Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children, all states must have a cost containment program for infant formula. As a result, through competitive bidding states obtain rebates from manufacturers of infant formula whose products are used in the program.

Abbott expects debate to continue at all government levels worldwide over the manufacture, quality assurance requirements, marketing authorization processes, post-market surveillance requirements, availability, method of delivery, and payment for health care products and services, as well as data privacy and security. Abbott believes that future legislation and regulation in the markets it serves could affect the timing and expense associated with bringing health care products or services to market, access to health care products and services, increase rebates, reduce prices or reimbursements or the rate of price increases for health care products and services, change health care delivery systems, create new fees and obligations for the pharmaceutical, nutrition, diagnostic, and medical device industries, or require additional reporting and disclosure. It is not possible to predict the extent to which Abbott or the health care industry in general might be affected by the matters discussed above.

INTERNET INFORMATION

Copies of Abbott's Annual Report on Form 10-K, Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q, Current Reports on Form 8-K, and amendments to those reports filed or furnished pursuant to Section 13(a) or 15(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 are available free of charge through Abbott's investor relations website (www.abbottinvestor.com) as soon as reasonably practicable after Abbott electronically files the material with, or furnishes it to, the Securities and Exchange Commission (the Commission). These reports and other information are also available, free of charge, at www.sec.gov.

Abbott's corporate governance guidelines, outline of directorship qualifications, code of business conduct and the charters of Abbott's audit committee, compensation committee, nominations and governance committee, and public policy committee are all available on Abbott's investor relations website (www.abbottinvestor.com).

ITEM 1A. RISK FACTORS

In addition to the other information in this report, the following risk factors should be considered before deciding to invest in any of Abbott's securities. Additional risks and uncertainties not presently known to Abbott, or risks Abbott currently considers immaterial, could also affect Abbott's actual results. Abbott's business, financial condition, results of operations, or prospects could be materially adversely affected by any of these risks.

Business and Operational Risks

Abbott may acquire other businesses, license rights to technologies or products, form alliances, or dispose of or spin-off businesses, which could cause it to incur significant expenses and could negatively affect profitability.

Abbott may pursue acquisitions, licensing arrangements, and strategic alliances, or dispose of or spin-off some of its businesses, as part of its business strategy. Abbott may not complete these transactions in a timely manner, on a cost-effective basis, or at all, and may not realize the expected benefits. If Abbott is successful in making an acquisition, the products and technologies that are acquired may not be successful or may require significantly greater resources and investments than originally anticipated. Abbott may not be able to integrate acquisitions successfully into its existing business or transition disposed businesses efficiently, and could incur or assume significant debt and unknown or contingent liabilities. Abbott could also experience negative effects on its reported results of operations from acquisition or disposition-related charges, amortization of expenses related to intangibles and charges for impairment of long-term assets. These effects could cause a deterioration of Abbott's credit rating, result in increased borrowing costs and interest expense, and decrease liquidity.

Abbott depends on sophisticated information technology systems and maintains protected personal data, and a cyber attack or other breach affecting these information technology systems or protected data could have a material adverse effect on Abbott's results of operations.

Similar to other large multi-national companies, the size and complexity of the information technology systems on which Abbott relies for both its infrastructure and products makes them susceptible to a cyber attack, malicious intrusion, breakdown, destruction, loss of data privacy, or other significant disruption. These systems have been and are expected to continue to be the target of malware and other cyber attacks. In addition, third party hacking attempts may cause Abbott's information technology systems and related products, protected data, or proprietary information to be compromised or stolen. A significant attack or other disruption could result in adverse consequences, including increased costs and expenses, manufacturing challenges or disruption, problems with product functionality, damage to customer relations, lost revenue, and legal or regulatory penalties.

Abbott also collects, manages and processes protected personal data, including protected health information, in connection with certain medical products and service offerings. Abbott is subject to certain regional and local data protection laws that prohibit or restrict the transfer of protected data across country borders. For additional information concerning data privacy and security regulation, see the discussion in "Regulation" under Item 1, "Business." A breach of protected personal information could result in adverse consequences, including regulatory inquiries or litigation, increased costs and expenses, reputational damage, lost revenue, and fines or penalties.

Abbott invests in its systems and technology and in the protection of its products and data to reduce the risk of an attack or other significant disruption, and monitors its systems on an ongoing basis for any current or potential threats and for changes in technology and the regulatory environment. There can be no assurance that these measures and efforts will prevent future attacks or other significant disruptions to any of the systems on which Abbott relies or that related product issues will not arise in the future. Similarly, there can be no assurance that third party information technology providers with whom Abbott contracts will not suffer a significant attack or disruption that impacts customers like Abbott. Any significant breach, attack or other disruption involving Abbott's systems or products could have a material adverse effect on Abbott's business.

Abbott's research and development efforts may not succeed in developing commercially successful products and technologies, which may cause Abbott's revenue and profitability to decline.

To remain competitive, Abbott must continue to launch new products and technologies. To accomplish this, Abbott commits substantial efforts, funds, and other resources to research and development. A risk of failure is inherent in the research and development of new products and technologies. Abbott must make ongoing substantial expenditures without any assurance that its efforts will be commercially successful. Failure can occur at any point in the process, including after significant funds have been invested.

Promising new products and technologies may fail to reach the market or may only have limited commercial success because of efficacy or safety concerns, failure to achieve positive clinical outcomes, inability to obtain necessary regulatory approvals, limited scope of approved uses, excessive costs to manufacture, failure to establish or maintain intellectual property rights, or infringement of the intellectual property rights of others. Even if Abbott successfully develops new products or enhancements or new generations of Abbott's existing products, they may be quickly rendered obsolete by changing customer preferences, changing industry or regulatory standards, or competitors' innovations. Innovations may not be accepted quickly in the marketplace because of, among other things, entrenched patterns of clinical practice or uncertainty over third-party reimbursement. Abbott cannot state with certainty when or whether any of its products under development will be launched, whether it will be able to develop, license, or otherwise acquire compounds or products, or whether any products will be commercially successful. Failure to launch successful new products or technologies, or new indications or uses for existing products, may cause Abbott's products or technologies to become obsolete, causing Abbott's revenues and operating results to suffer.

The manufacture of many of Abbott's products is a highly exacting and complex process, and if Abbott or one of its suppliers encounters problems manufacturing products, Abbott's business could suffer.

The manufacture of many of Abbott's products is a highly exacting and complex process, due in part to strict regulatory requirements. Problems may arise during manufacturing for a variety of reasons, including equipment malfunction, failure to follow specific protocols and procedures, problems with raw materials, natural disasters, and environmental factors. In addition, single suppliers are currently used for certain products and materials. If problems arise during the production of a lot or batch of product, those products may have to be discarded. If problems are not discovered before the product is released to the market, recall and product liability costs may also be incurred. Any of these events could, among other things, lead to increased costs, lost revenue, damage to customer relations, time and expense spent investigating the cause and, depending on the cause, similar losses with respect to other lots, batches or products. To the extent Abbott or one of its suppliers experiences significant manufacturing problems, this could have a material adverse effect on Abbott's revenues and profitability.

Abbott has significant indebtedness, which could adversely affect its business, including decreasing its business flexibility.

As of December 31, 2020, Abbott's consolidated indebtedness was approximately $18.7 billion. This consolidated indebtedness could have the effect, among other things, of reducing Abbott's flexibility to respond to changing business and economic conditions, and reducing funds available for working capital, capital expenditures, acquisitions, and other general corporate purposes.

Further, Abbott may be required to raise additional financing for working capital, capital expenditures, future acquisitions or other general corporate purposes. Abbott's ability to arrange additional financing or refinancing will depend on, among other factors, Abbott's financial position and performance, as well as prevailing market conditions and other factors beyond Abbott's control. Consequently, Abbott cannot assure that it will be able to obtain additional financing or refinancing on terms acceptable to Abbott or at all, which could adversely impact Abbott's ability to make scheduled payments with respect to its consolidated indebtedness and its profitability and financial condition.

Additionally, further borrowing could cause a deterioration of Abbott's credit ratings. Abbott's credit ratings reflect each credit rating agency's then opinion of Abbott's financial strength, operating performance, and ability to meet its debt obligations. Adverse changes in Abbott's credit ratings may result in increased borrowing costs for future long-term debt or short-term borrowing facilities and may limit financing options, including access to the unsecured borrowing market. Abbott may also be subject to additional restrictive covenants that would reduce flexibility.

Legal and Regulatory Risks

Abbott is subject to numerous governmental regulations and it can be costly to comply with these regulations and to develop compliant products and processes.

Abbott's products are subject to rigorous regulation by the FDA and numerous international, supranational, federal, and state authorities. The process of obtaining regulatory approvals to market a drug, medical device, or diagnostic product can be costly and time-consuming, and approvals might not be granted for future products, or additional indications or uses of existing products, on a timely basis, if at all. Delays in the receipt of, or failure to obtain, approvals for future products, or new indications and uses, could result in delayed realization of product revenues, reduction in revenues, and substantial additional costs.

In addition, no assurance can be given that Abbott will remain in compliance with applicable FDA and other regulatory requirements once approval or marketing authorization has been obtained for a product. These requirements include, among other things, regulations regarding manufacturing practices, product labeling, and advertising and postmarketing reporting, including adverse event reports and field alerts. Many of Abbott's facilities and procedures and those of Abbott's suppliers are subject to ongoing regulation, including periodic inspection by the FDA and other regulatory authorities. Abbott must incur expense and spend time and effort to ensure compliance with these complex regulations. Possible regulatory actions for non-compliance could include warning letters, fines, damages, injunctions, civil penalties, recalls, seizures of Abbott's products, and criminal prosecution.

These actions could result in, among other things, substantial modifications to Abbott's business practices and operations, refunds, recalls, or seizures of Abbott's products; a total or partial shutdown of production in one or more facilities while Abbott or Abbott's suppliers remedy the alleged violation; the inability to obtain future pre-market approvals or marketing authorizations; and withdrawals or suspensions of current products from the market. Any of these events could disrupt Abbott's business and have a material adverse effect on Abbott's revenues, profitability and financial condition.

Laws and regulations affecting government benefit programs could impose new obligations on Abbott, require Abbott to change its business practices, and restrict its operations in the future.

Abbott's industry is subject to various international, supranational, federal, and state laws and regulations pertaining to government benefit program reimbursement, price reporting and regulation, and health care fraud and abuse, including anti-kickback and false claims laws, and international and individual state laws relating to pricing and sales and marketing practices. Violations of these laws may be punishable by criminal and/or civil sanctions, including, in some instances, substantial fines, imprisonment, and exclusion from participation in government health care programs, including Medicare, Medicaid, and Veterans Administration health programs in the U.S. These laws and regulations are broad in scope and they are subject to evolving interpretations, which could require Abbott to incur substantial costs associated with compliance or to alter one or more of its sales or marketing practices. In addition, violations of these laws, or allegations of such violations, could disrupt Abbott's business and result in a material adverse effect on Abbott's revenues, profitability, and financial condition.

Changes in the health care regulatory environment may adversely affect Abbott's business.

Both in the U.S. and internationally, government authorities may enact changes in regulatory requirements, make legislative or administrative reforms to existing reimbursement programs, make adverse decisions relating to Abbott's products' coverage or reimbursement, or make changes to patient access to health care, all of which could adversely impact the demand for and usage of Abbott's products or the prices that Abbott's customers are willing to pay for them.

Further, in the U.S., a number of the provisions of the Affordable Care Act and the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010 address access to health care products and services. These provisions may be modified, expanded, repealed, or otherwise invalidated, in whole or in part. Future rulemaking could affect rebates, prices or the rate of price increases for health care products and services, or required reporting and disclosure. Abbott cannot predict the timing or impact of any future rulemaking or changes in the law.

For additional information concerning health care regulation, see the discussion in "Regulation" under Item 1, "Business."

The expiration or loss of patent protection and licenses may affect Abbott's future revenues and operating income.

Many of Abbott's businesses rely on patent and trademark and other intellectual property protection. Although most of the challenges to Abbott's intellectual property have come from other companies, governments may also challenge intellectual property protections. To the extent Abbott's intellectual property is successfully challenged, invalidated, or circumvented or to the extent it does not allow Abbott to compete effectively, Abbott's businesses could suffer. To the extent that countries do not enforce Abbott's intellectual property rights, Abbott's future revenues and operating income could be reduced. Any material litigation regarding Abbott's patents and trademarks is described in the section captioned "Legal Proceedings."

Significant safety concerns could arise for Abbott's products, which could have a material adverse effect on Abbott's revenues and financial condition.

Health care products typically receive regulatory approval based on data obtained in controlled clinical trials of limited duration. Following regulatory approval, these products will be used over longer periods of time in many patients. Investigators may also conduct additional, and perhaps more extensive, studies. If new safety issues are reported, Abbott may be required to amend the conditions of use for a product. For example, Abbott may be required to provide additional warnings on a product's label or narrow its approved intended use, either of which could reduce the product's market acceptance. If serious safety issues arise with an Abbott product, sales of the product could be halted by Abbott or by regulatory authorities. Safety issues affecting suppliers' or competitors' products also may reduce the market acceptance of Abbott's products.

In addition, in the ordinary course of business, Abbott is the subject of product liability claims and lawsuits alleging that its products or the products of other companies that Abbott promotes have resulted or could result in an unsafe condition for, or injury to, patients. Product liability claims and lawsuits, safety alerts or product recalls, and other allegations of product safety or quality issues, regardless of their validity or ultimate outcome, may have a material adverse effect on Abbott's business and reputation and on Abbott's ability to attract and retain customers. Consequences may also include additional costs, a decrease in market share for the products, lower income or exposure to other claims. Product liability losses are self-insured. Product liability claims could have a material adverse effect on Abbott's profitability and financial condition.

Economic and Industry Risks

Abbott is subject to risks related to public health crises, such as widespread outbreaks of infectious diseases like the COVID-19 pandemic.

As a global healthcare company, public health crises, such as the widespread outbreaks of infectious diseases like the COVID-19 pandemic, may negatively impact Abbott's operations. Health concerns and significant changes in political or economic conditions caused by such outbreaks can cause significant reductions in demand for routine diagnostic testing and medical device procedures or increased difficulty in serving customers, disrupt manufacturing and supply chains, and negatively affect our operations as well as the operations of our suppliers, distributors and other third-party partners. Furthermore, such widespread outbreaks may impact the broader economies of affected countries, including negatively impacting economic growth, the proper functioning of financial and capital markets, foreign currency exchange rates, and interest rates.

With regard to the COVID-19 pandemic, the FDA issued Emergency Use Authorizations (EUAs) for several COVID-19 related products in 2020, including Abbott diagnostic tests. EUAs are authorized for the duration of the COVID-19 public health emergency unless sooner terminated or revoked. Abbott is actively pursuing the FDA's customary regulatory approval process for these diagnostic tests which has uncertainty as discussed in "Abbott is subject to numerous governmental regulations and it can be costly to comply with these regulations and to develop compliant products and processes" in "Legal and Regulatory Risks" under "Item 1A. Risk Factors."

Due to the unpredictability of the duration and impact of the current COVID-19 pandemic, the extent to which the COVID-19 pandemic will have a material effect on Abbott's business, financial condition or results of operations is uncertain. A more detailed discussion on the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on Abbott's business is contained in the "Financial Review" section in Item 7, Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of this report.

Abbott is subject to cost containment efforts that could cause a reduction in future revenues and operating income.

In the United States and other countries, Abbott's businesses have experienced downward pressure on product pricing. Cost containment efforts by governments and private organizations are described in greater detail in the section captioned "Regulation." To the extent these cost containment efforts are not offset by greater patient access to health care or other factors, Abbott's future revenues and operating income will be reduced.

Competitors' intellectual property may prevent Abbott from selling its products or have a material adverse effect on Abbott's future profitability and financial condition.

Competitors may claim that an Abbott product infringes their intellectual property. Resolving an intellectual property infringement claim can be costly and time consuming and may require Abbott to enter into license agreements. Abbott cannot guarantee that it would be able to obtain license agreements on commercially reasonable terms. A successful claim of patent or other intellectual property infringement could subject Abbott to significant damages or an injunction preventing the manufacture, sale or use of affected Abbott products. Any of these events could have a material adverse effect on Abbott's profitability and financial condition.

New products and technological advances by Abbott's competitors may negatively affect Abbott's results of operations.

Abbott's products face intense competition from competitive products. Competitors' products may be safer, more effective, more effectively marketed or sold, or have lower prices or superior performance features than Abbott's products. Abbott cannot predict with certainty the timing or impact of the introduction of competitors' products.

Fluctuation in foreign currency exchange rates may adversely affect our financial statements and Abbott's ability to realize projected sales and earnings.

Although Abbott's financial statements are denominated in U.S. dollars, a significant portion of Abbott's revenues and costs are realized in other currencies. Sales outside of the United States in 2020 made up approximately 62 percent of Abbott's net sales. Abbott's profitability is affected by movement of the U.S. dollar against other currencies. Fluctuations in exchange rates between the U.S. dollar and other currencies may also affect the reported value of Abbott's assets and liabilities, as well as its cash flows. Some foreign currencies are subject to government exchange controls. While Abbott enters into hedging arrangements to mitigate some of its foreign currency exposure, Abbott cannot predict with any certainty changes in foreign currency exchange rates or its ability to mitigate these risks.

Information on the impact of foreign exchange rates on Abbott's financial results is contained in the "Financial Review — Results of Operations" section in Item 7, Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations of this report. A discussion of the steps taken to mitigate the impact of foreign exchange is contained in Item 7A, Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosures about Market Risk in Abbott's 2020 Form 10-K. Information on Abbott's hedging arrangements is contained in Note 12 to the consolidated financial statements in this report.

Deterioration in the economic condition and credit quality of certain countries may negatively affect Abbott's results of operations.

Unfavorable economic conditions in certain countries may increase the time it takes to collect outstanding trade receivables. Financial instability and fiscal deficits in these countries may result in additional austerity measures to reduce costs, including health care. Deterioration in the quality of sovereign debt, including credit downgrades, could increase Abbott's collection risk where a significant amount of Abbott's receivables in these countries are with governmental health care systems or where Abbott's customers depend on payment by government health care systems.

The international nature of Abbott's business subjects it to additional business risks that may cause its revenue and profitability to decline.

Abbott's business is subject to risks associated with managing a global supply chain and doing business internationally. Sales outside of the United States in 2020 made up approximately 62 percent of Abbott's net sales. Additional risks associated with Abbott's international operations include:

- differing local product preferences and product requirements;

- trade protection measures, including tariffs, import or export licensing requirements, and changes to international trade agreements;
- difficulty in establishing, staffing, and managing operations;
- differing labor regulations;
- potentially negative consequences from changes in or interpretations of tax laws;
- political and economic instability, including sovereign debt issues;
- restrictions on local currency conversion and/or cash extraction;
- price controls, limitations on participation in local enterprises, expropriation, nationalization, and other governmental action;
- inflation, recession, and fluctuations in interest rates;
- diminished protection of intellectual property; and
- potential penalties or other adverse consequences for violations of anti-corruption, anti-bribery, and other similar laws and regulations, including the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and the U.K. Bribery Act.

Events contemplated by these risks may, individually or in the aggregate, have a material adverse effect on Abbott's revenues and profitability.

Other factors can have a material adverse effect on Abbott's future profitability and financial condition.

Many other factors can affect Abbott's profitability and its financial condition, including:

- changes in or interpretations of laws and regulations, including changes in accounting standards, taxation requirements, product marketing application standards, product labeling standards, source and use laws, and environmental laws;
- differences between the fair value measurement of assets and liabilities and their actual value, particularly for pensions, retiree health care, stock compensation, intangibles, goodwill, and contingent consideration, and for contingent liabilities such as litigation, the absence of a recorded amount, or an amount recorded at the minimum, compared to the actual amount;
- changes in the rate of inflation (including the cost of raw materials, commodities, and supplies), interest rates, market value of Abbott's equity investments, and the performance of investments held by Abbott or Abbott's employee benefit trusts;
- changes in the creditworthiness of counterparties that transact business with or provide services to Abbott or Abbott's employee benefit trusts;
- changes in business, economic, and political conditions, including war, political instability, terrorist attacks, the threat of future terrorist activity and related military action, global climate, extreme weather and natural disasters, the cost and availability of insurance due to any of the foregoing events, labor disputes, strikes, slow-downs, or other forms of labor or union activity, and pressure from third-party interest groups;
- changes in Abbott's business units and investments and changes in the relative and absolute contribution of each to earnings and cash flow resulting from evolving business strategies, changing product mix, changes in tax laws or tax rates both in the U.S. and abroad and opportunities existing now or in the future;
- changes in the buying patterns of a major distributor, retailer, or wholesale customer resulting from buyer purchasing decisions, pricing, seasonality, or other factors, or other problems with licensors, suppliers, distributors, and business partners; and
- legal difficulties, any of which could preclude or delay commercialization of products or adversely affect profitability, including claims asserting statutory or regulatory violations, and adverse litigation decisions.

CAUTIONARY STATEMENT REGARDING FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Form 10-K contains forward-looking statements that are based on management's current expectations, estimates, and projections. Words such as "expects," "anticipates," "intends," "plans," "believes," "seeks," "estimates," "forecasts," variations of these words, and similar expressions are intended to identify these forward-looking statements. Certain factors, including but not limited to those identified under "Item 1A. Risk Factors" of this Form 10-K, may cause actual results to differ materially from current expectations, estimates, projections, forecasts, and from past results. No assurance can be made that any expectation, estimate, or projection contained in a forward-looking statement will be achieved or will not be affected by the factors cited above or other unknown or future events. Abbott undertakes no obligation to release publicly any revisions to forward-looking statements as the result of subsequent events or developments, except as required by law.

ITEM 1B. UNRESOLVED STAFF COMMENTS

None.

ITEM 2. PROPERTIES

As of December 31, 2020, Abbott owned or leased properties totaling approximately 43 million square feet, of which approximately 65% is owned by Abbott. Abbott's principal corporate offices are located in Illinois and are owned by Abbott.

Abbott operates 93 manufacturing facilities globally. Abbott's facilities are deemed suitable and provide adequate productive capacity. The manufacturing facilities are used by Abbott's reportable segments as follows:

Reportable Segments	Manufacturing Sites
Medical Devices	27
Diagnostic Products	24
Established Pharmaceutical Products	28
Nutritional Products	14
Worldwide Total	93

Abbott's research and development facilities in the United States are primarily located in California, Illinois, Minnesota, New Jersey, and Ohio. Abbott also has research and development facilities in various other countries, including China, Colombia, India, Singapore, Spain, and the United Kingdom.

There are no material encumbrances on the properties.

ITEM 3. LEGAL PROCEEDINGS

Abbott is involved in various claims, legal proceedings and investigations. While it is not feasible to predict the outcome of such pending claims, proceedings and investigations with certainty, management is of the opinion that their ultimate resolution should not have a material adverse effect on Abbott's financial position, cash flows, or results of operations.

ITEM 4. MINE SAFETY DISCLOSURES

SPECIAL CAUTIONARY NOTICE REGARDING FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

Certain matters discussed in this report, including matters discussed under the captions "Business" and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations," may constitute forward-looking statements for purposes of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (Securities Act), and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (Exchange Act), and involve known and unknown risks, uncertainties and other factors that may cause our actual results, performance or achievements to be materially different from the future results, performance or achievements expressed or implied by such forward-looking statements. In some cases, you can identify forward-looking statements by words such as "anticipate," "believe," "contemplate," "continue," "could," "estimate," "expect," "intend," "may," "plan," "potential," "predict," "project," "seek," "should," "target," "will," "would" or the negative of these words or other comparable terminology, although not all forward-looking statements contain these identifying words.

All written or oral forward-looking statements attributable to us are expressly qualified in their entirety by these cautionary statements. In addition, with respect to all of our forward-looking statements, we claim the protection of the safe harbor for forward-looking statements contained in the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Such forward-looking statements include, but are not limited to, statements about:

- our ability to obtain and maintain regulatory approvals for our product candidates, including TG-1701, TG-1801, and Azercabtagene Zapreleucel (azer-cel), as well as any other product candidates, and our ability to maintain regulatory approval of BRIUMVI® (ublituximab) for the treatment of relapsing forms of multiple sclerosis (RMS) in the United States (U.S.), the European Union (EU) and the United Kingdom (UK);
- our ability to adapt and expand our commercial infrastructure to successfully launch, market and sell BRIUMVI and our other product candidates;
- our ability to maintain a reliable supply of our products that meets market demand;
- the success of the ongoing commercialization of BRIUMVI or any future products or combinations of products, including the anticipated rate and degree of market acceptance and pricing and reimbursement;
- the initiation, timing, progress and results of our pre-clinical studies and clinical trials;
- our ability to advance drug candidates into, and successfully complete, clinical trials;
- our ability to develop, formulate, manufacture and commercialize our product candidates;
- our ability to establish and maintain contractual relationships and partnerships, on commercially reasonable terms, with third parties for manufacturing, distribution, marketing and supply and a range of other support functions for our clinical development and commercialization efforts;
- the implementation of our business model and strategic plans for our business and drug candidates;
- the scope of protection we are able to establish and maintain for intellectual property rights covering our product and product candidates;
- estimates of our expenses, future revenues, capital requirements and our needs for additional financing;
- our ability to maintain and establish collaborations and enter into strategic arrangements, if desired;
- our ability to meet any of our financial projections or guidance, including without limitation short and long-term revenue projections or guidance and changes to the assumptions underlying those projections or guidance;
- our ability to obtain sufficient capital to fund our planned operations;
- our financial performance and cash burn management;
- our ability to maintain or obtain adequate product liability and other insurance coverage; and
- developments relating to our competitors and our industry.

SUMMARY RISK FACTORS

Our business is subject to a number of risks of which you should be aware before making an investment decision. The risks described below are a summary of the principal risks associated with an investment in us and are not the only risks we face. You should carefully consider these risks, the risk factors in Item 1A, and the other reports and documents that we have filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

Risks Related to Commercialization

- If we are unable to maintain current approval of BRIUMVI, our business will be materially harmed.
- We cannot predict when or if we will obtain regulatory approval to commercialize our product candidates, including TG-1701 and TG-1801 in B-cell disorders or azer-cel in non-oncology indications.
- We have limited experience operating as a commercial company, and, as a result, the marketing and sale of BRIUMVI for the treatment of RMS may be less successful than anticipated.
- If BRIUMVI or any of our future product candidates (if approved) do not achieve broad market acceptance among physicians, patients, payors or the medical community, the revenues that we generate from product sales will be limited.
- If the market opportunities for BRIUMVI and any future products for which we may receive approval, including TG-1701 or TG-1801 in B-cell disorders or azer-cel in non-oncology indications, are smaller than we estimate or if any approval we obtain is based on a narrower patient population or the labeling includes warnings or limitations that are not acceptable to patients or healthcare providers, our revenue will be adversely affected.
- We face substantial competition for treatments for our target indications, including from companies with greater resources than we have, which may result in others commercializing drugs before or more successfully than we do, which could result in the reduction or elimination of our commercial opportunity.
- If we are unable to generate sufficient revenue, we may need to raise substantial additional capital to sustain our business.
- Product liability lawsuits could cause us to incur substantial liabilities and limit product commercialization.

Risks Related to Drug Development and Regulatory Approval

- If we are unable to obtain or maintain regulatory approval for our product or product candidates and ultimately cannot commercialize one or more of them, or if we experience significant delays in doing so, our business will be materially harmed
- Our product and product candidates may cause undesirable side effects that could delay or prevent their regulatory approval or significantly limit their commercial profile following marketing approval, if any, or result in withdrawal from the market if approved
- Because results of preclinical studies and early clinical trials are not necessarily predictive of future results, any product candidate we advance may not have favorable results in later clinical trials. Moreover, interim, "top-line," and preliminary data from our clinical trials that we announce or publish may change, or the perceived product profile may be impacted, as more patient data or additional endpoints are analyzed.
- Any products or product candidates we may advance through clinical development are subject to extensive regulation, which can be costly and time consuming, cause unanticipated delays, or prevent the receipt of the required approvals.

Risks Related to Governmental Regulation of the Pharmaceutical Industry

- We are subject to extensive regulation, including new legislative and regulatory proposals, including efforts to control, set or cap pricing for approved drugs, which may increase our costs and adversely affect our ability to market our products, obtain collaborators and raise capital.
- If we fail to comply with various healthcare laws and regulations, we may incur losses or be subject to liability.
- If we fail to comply with regulatory requirements, any product candidate may fail to receive regulatory approval and any product for which we obtain marketing approval could be subject to restrictions or withdrawal from the market and we may be subject to penalties.

Risks Related to our Dependence on Third Parties

- Our reliance on third parties for commercial and clinical supply of raw materials and our product and product candidates increases the risk that we will not have sufficient quantities of our product or product candidates or such quantities at an acceptable cost or quality, which could delay, prevent or impair our development or commercialization efforts.
- If the third parties on which we rely to conduct our clinical trials and generate clinical, preclinical, and other data necessary to support our regulatory applications do not perform their services as required, we may not be able to obtain regulatory approval for or commercialize our product or product candidates when expected or at all.
- Because we have in-licensed our product and product candidates from third parties, any dispute with, or non-performance by our licensors will adversely affect our ability to develop and commercialize the applicable product.

Risks Related to Intellectual Property

- Our success depends upon our ability to obtain and protect our intellectual property, and if the scope of our patent protection obtained is not sufficiently broad, our competitors could develop and commercialize products similar or identical to ours, and our ability to successfully commercialize our products may be impaired.
- Our patent protection could be reduced or eliminated for non-compliance with various procedural and other requirements imposed by governmental patent agencies.
- We may need to license certain intellectual property from third parties, and such licenses may not be available or may not be available on commercially reasonable terms.
- If we or our partners are sued for infringing intellectual property rights of third parties, it will be costly and time consuming to defend against such lawsuits, and an unfavorable outcome in any such lawsuit would have a material adverse effect on our business.
- If we are unable to protect the confidentiality of our trade secrets, our business may be significantly harmed.

Risks Related to our Financial Position and Need for Additional Capital

- We have incurred significant operating losses since our inception, and we may incur losses in the future.
- While we do not expect to need to raise additional capital, we may need to do so. If we are unable to raise capital, if needed, we may be required to delay, limit, reduce or eliminate some of our drug development programs or commercialization efforts.
- Our level of indebtedness and debt service obligations could adversely affect our financial condition and may make it more difficult for us to fund our operations.

General Risk Factors

- Public health issues including an epidemic or global pandemic, including the pandemic caused by COVID-19, could have an adverse impact on our financial condition and results of operations and other aspects of our business.
- Patients and healthcare providers have raised concerns that immunosuppressive products, like anti-CD20 antibodies and other B-cell targeted agents, may increase the risk of acquiring COVID-19 or lead to more severe complications upon infection. These concerns may impact the commercial potential for BRIUMVI and other immunosuppressive products that we have in development.
- We will need to develop and expand our business, and we may encounter difficulties in managing this development and expansion.
- Our ability to continue our clinical development and commercialization activities will depend on our ability to attract and maintain key management and other personnel.
- Certain of our executive officers, directors and other stockholders own more than 5% of our outstanding common stock and may be able to influence our management and the outcome of matters submitted to shareholders for approval.
- Certain anti-takeover provisions in our charter documents and Delaware law could make a third-party acquisition more difficult, which could limit the price investors might be willing to pay for our common stock.
- Our stock price is, and we expect it to remain, volatile, which could limit investors' ability to sell stock at a profit and could subject us to securities and shareholder derivative litigation.
- Significant disruptions of information technology systems, breaches of data security or unauthorized disclosures of sensitive data could harm our business and subject us to liability or reputational damage.

The foregoing is only a summary of some of our risks. These and other risks are discussed more fully in the section entitled "Risk Factors" in Part I, Item 1A and elsewhere in this Annual Report on Form 10-K (our Risk Factors).

ITEM 1. BUSINESS.

OVERVIEW

TG Therapeutics is a fully-integrated, commercial stage, biopharmaceutical company focused on the acquisition, development and commercialization of novel treatments for B-cell mediated diseases. In addition to a research pipeline including several investigational medicines, TG has received approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for BRIUMVI® (ublituximab-xiiy) for the treatment of adult patients with relapsing forms of multiple sclerosis (RMS), to include clinically isolated syndrome, relapsing-remitting disease and active secondary progressive disease, in adults, as well as approval by the European Commission (EC) and the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) for BRIUMVI to treat adult patients with RMS who have active disease defined by clinical or imaging features in Europe and the United Kingdom (UK), respectively. We also actively evaluate complementary products, technologies and companies for in-licensing, partnership, acquisition and/or investment opportunities.

Business Highlights

FDA Approval and U.S. Launch of BRIUMVI

On December 28, 2022, we announced that the FDA granted approval of ublituximab, now referred to as BRIUMVI, for the treatment of RMS, to include clinically isolated syndrome, relapsing-remitting disease, and active secondary progressive disease, in adults. BRIUMVI is an anti-CD20 monoclonal antibody approved for patients with RMS that can be administered in a one-hour infusion following the starting dose. Approval was granted for this indication based on data from the ULTIMATE I & II Phase 3 trials, which demonstrated superiority over teriflunomide in significantly reducing the annualized relapse rate (ARR, the primary endpoint), the number of T1 Gd-enhancing lesions and the number of new or enlarging T2 lesions. Results from the ULTIMATE I & II trials were published in August 2022 in The New England Journal of Medicine.

On January 26, 2023, we announced the commercial launch of BRIUMVI, making it available to physicians and patients. We are committed to helping patients access BRIUMVI through the BRIUMVI Patient Support Program, which we launched following the approval, additional information can be found at www.briumvi.com.

Ex-U.S. Commercialization of BRIUMVI

On June 1, 2023, we announced that the EC granted approval of BRIUMVI for the treatment of adult patients with RMS who have active disease defined by clinical or imaging features.

On August 1, 2023, we announced an agreement with Neuraxpharm Pharmaceuticals, S.L. (Neuraxpharm), a leading European specialty pharmaceutical company focused on the treatment of central nervous system (CNS) disorders, for the ex-U.S. commercialization of BRIUMVI.

On November 1, 2023, we announced that we also received approval by the MHRA for BRIUMVI to treat adult patients with RMS with active disease defined by clinical or imaging features in the UK.

On February 26, 2024, we announced the commercial launch of BRIUMVI in the European Union (EU) by Neuraxpharm, with BRIUMVI made available for commercial sale in Germany, with additional EU markets expected to follow.

Pipeline Expansion

On January 9, 2024, we entered into an agreement with Precision BioSciences, Inc. (Precision) to acquire a worldwide license to Precision's Azercabtagene Zapreleucel (azer-cel), an allogeneic CD19 CAR T cell therapy program for autoimmune diseases and all other non-oncology indications. Azer-cel is an allogeneic (off the shelf) CAR T program, and the Company has near term plans to evaluate the program in multiple autoimmune indications.

CORPORATE INFORMATION

We were incorporated in Delaware in 1993. Our executive offices are located at 3020 Carrington Mill Blvd, Suite 475, Morrisville, North Carolina, 27560. Our telephone number is 1-877-575-TGTX(8489), and our e-mail address is info@tgtxinc.com.

We maintain a website with the address www.tgtherapeutics.com and maintain various social media accounts, including but not limited to X (formerly Twitter) and LinkedIn. We also maintain websites related to BRIUMVI, including but not limited to www.BRIUMVI.com, and www.BRIUMVIPATIENTSUPPORT.com. We make available free of charge through our corporate website our annual reports on Form 10-K, quarterly reports on Form 10-Q and current reports on Form 8-K, as well as any amendments to these reports, as soon as reasonably practicable after we electronically file such material with, or furnish such material to, the SEC. We are not including the information on our website or our social media accounts as a part of, nor incorporating either by reference into, this report. The SEC maintains a website that contains annual, quarterly, and current reports, proxy statements, and other information that issuers (including us) file electronically with the SEC. The SEC's website address is http://www.sec.gov.

In addition, we intend to use our corporate website, SEC filings, press releases, public conference calls and webcasts as well as social media to communicate with our subscribers and the public. It is possible that the information we post on social media could be deemed to be material information. Therefore, in light of the SEC's guidance, we encourage investors, the media and others interested in us to review the information we post on the U.S. social media channels listed on our website.

STRATEGY

As a fully-integrated, commercial stage biopharmaceutical company focused on the acquisition, development and commercialization of novel treatments for B cell mediated diseases, our key corporate objectives include:

- Successfully commercializing BRIUMVI in the U.S. for relapsing forms of multiple sclerosis;
- Building upon the BRIUMVI approval to evaluate other uses for BRIUMVI in additional MS indications and/or other autoimmune diseases;
- Continuing to expand our pipeline with mechanisms of importance to B-cell mediated diseases;
- Evaluating potential strategic collaborations to maximize the value of our programs and B-cell directed platform; and
- Maintaining our "patient first" culture as we grow our business.

Our Approach and Platform

Our approach to drug development is centered on developing therapies for B-cell mediated diseases. Our process begins by identifying validated targets against B-cell mediated diseases, and then searching for and, ideally, acquiring what we believe to be "best-in-class" compounds with complementary mechanisms against these targets.

Our preference is to identify targets for which there is human clinical proof of concept that the mechanism is active in B-cell mediated diseases and then to identify drug candidates that effectively modulate the desired molecular target. We identify these drug candidates at academic centers of excellence or in development at biotech companies or pharmaceutical companies globally. Our current drug candidates were acquired through license agreements, collaborations, or joint ventures with biopharmaceutical companies located globally. This approach enables us to minimize target risk while looking for the best available drug candidates around the world. By focusing on B-cell mediated diseases and targets with a known activity profile, we believe that we can quickly identify the patients most likely to respond, resulting in a more efficient development path with the potential for a greater likelihood of success.

Our approach is enabled by our clinical development platform which includes an internal team with a deep understanding of B-cell mediated diseases and significant experience successfully obtaining FDA approval for innovative treatments for these complex diseases.

AUTOIMMUNE DISEASE OVERVIEW

An autoimmune disease occurs when the body's immune system attacks and destroys healthy body tissue by mistake. There are currently more than 80 types of autoimmune disorders that have been identified. Some of these diseases may result from inappropriate production of antibodies from the B-cells. These antibodies cannot discriminate "self" from "non-self," and inadvertently mount a disabling immune response against normal organs. Some of these diseases may not be antibody mediated but may still result from aberrant activity of B-cells. Examples of common and very debilitating autoimmune disorders for which abnormally functioning B-cells have been implicated include multiple sclerosis (MS) and rheumatoid arthritis (RA).

The Company's current focus is on MS

Multiple Sclerosis Overview

RMS is a chronic demyelinating disease of the central nervous system (CNS) and includes people with relapsing-remitting multiple sclerosis (RRMS) and people with secondary progressive multiple sclerosis (SPMS) who continue to experience relapses. RRMS is the most common form of MS and is characterized by episodes of new or worsening signs or symptoms (relapses) followed by periods of recovery. MS is the most prevalent chronic inflammatory disease of the CNS. It is estimated that nearly 1 million people are living with MS in the United States and over 2.3 million people world-wide are living with MS.

OUR PRODUCTS

We currently license worldwide development and commercial rights, subject to certain limited geographical restrictions, for all of our products under development. The following table summarizes the current status for our lead drug candidates as of February 2024.

Clinical Drug Candidate: (molecular target)	Initial Target Disease	Stage of Development (trial name)
Ublituximab (anti-CD20 mAb)	Relapsing Forms of Multiple Sclerosis (RMS)	APPROVED
TG-1701 (BTK inhibitor)	B-cell disorders	Phase 1 trial
TG-1801 (anti-CD47/CD19 bispecific mAb)	B-cell disorders	Phase 1 trial
Azer-cel	Auto-immune disorders	Phase 1 (pending)

BRIUMVI (ublituximab-xiiy) Overview

BRIUMVI is the first and only anti-CD20 monoclonal antibody approved for the treatment of RMS, to include clinically isolated syndrome, relapsing-remitting disease, and active secondary progressive disease, in adults, that can be administered in a twice a year one-hour infusion following the starting dose.

Late-Stage Clinical Development of Ublituximab-xiiy

ULTIMATE I & II Trials Evaluating Single Agent Ublituximab in RMS: ULTIMATE I and ULTIMATE II are two independent Phase 3 trials. Each trial is a global, randomized, multi-center, double-blinded, double-dummy, active-controlled study evaluating the efficacy and safety/tolerability of ublituximab-xiiy (450mg dose administered by one hour intravenous infusion every six months, following a Day 1 infusion of 150mg over four hours, and a Day 15 infusion of 450mg over one hour) to teriflunomide (14mg oral tablets taken once daily) in subjects with RMS. The primary endpoint for each study was ARR following 96 weeks of treatment. This program was led by Lawrence Steinman, MD, George A. Zimmermann Professor and Professor of Pediatrics, Neurology and Neurological Sciences at Stanford University.

In December 2020, we announced positive topline results from the ULTIMATE I & II trials. Both studies met their primary endpoint of significantly reducing ARR over a 96-week period ($p<0.005$ in each study) with ublituximab-xiiy demonstrating an ARR of <0.10 in each of the studies. Relative reductions of approximately 60% and 50% in ARR over teriflunomide were observed in ULTIMATE I & II, respectively. Key secondary magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) endpoints were also met.

On August 22, 2022, the full results from the ULTIMATE I & II trials were published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

ENHANCE Phase 3b Trial: On October 11, 2023, we presented the first data from the ENHANCE Phase 3b trial evaluating BRIUMVI in patients with RMS who switch from another anti-CD20 therapy to BRIUMVI. The presentation occurred at the 2023 European Committee for Treatment and Research in Multiple Sclerosis Annual Meeting. In this study, patients with low levels of B-cells as pre-specified in the protocol are eligible to proceed directly to a full dose of BRIUMVI 450mg without receiving a 150 mg loading dose. As of the presentation, 13 patients switched from Ocrevus to BRIUMVI 450mg as a 2-hour infusion with no infusion related reactions reported and no unexpected side effects. An additional 2 patients switched from Ocrevus to BRIUMVI 450mg as a 1-hour infusion again with no infusion related reactions reported and no unexpected side effects. The study has continued to enroll patients at 450mg as a 1-hour infusion and additional data is expected to be reported during the course of 2024.

U.S. Commercialization of BRIUMVI (ublituximab-xiiy)

On December 28, 2022, we announced the FDA approval of BRIUMVI (ublituximab-xiiy) for the treatment of RMS, to include clinically isolated syndrome, relapsing-remitting disease, and active secondary progressive disease, in adults, primarily based on results from the ULTIMATE I & II Phase 3 trials, and on January 26, 2023, we announced the U.S. commercial launch of BRIUMVI, making it available to physicians and patients. On July 1, 2023, the permanent J-Code for BRIUMVI (J2329) became effective.

Ex-U.S. Commercialization of BRIUMVI

On June 1, 2023, we announced that the EC granted approval of BRIUMVI for the treatment of adult patients with RMS who have active disease defined by clinical or imaging features. With this approval, the centralized marketing authorization is valid in all EU member states, Iceland, Norway and Liechtenstein.

On August 1, 2023, we announced an agreement with Neuraxpharm, a leading European specialty pharmaceutical company focused on the treatment of CNS disorders, for the Ex-US commercialization of BRIUMVI. Under the terms of the commercialization agreement, we received an upfront payment of $140 million, and are eligible to receive an additional $12.5 million upon launch in the first EU country and up to an additional $492.5 million in milestone-based payments on achievement of certain launch and commercial milestones. The total deal is valued at up to $645 million in upfront and milestone payments. In addition, we will receive tiered double-digit royalties on net product sales up to 30%. In exchange, Neuraxpharm will have the exclusive right to commercialize BRIUMVI in certain territories outside the United States, Canada and Mexico, the commercialization rights for which had been previously retained by TG, thus excluding certain Asian countries subject to previously existing partnerships. We retain an option to buy back all rights under the commercialization agreement for a period of two years in the event of a change in control of TG.

On November 1, 2023, we announced that we also received approval by the MHRA for BRIUMVI to treat adult patients with RMS with active disease defined by clinical or imaging features in the UK.

On February 26, 2024, we announced the commercial launch of BRIUMVI in the European Union (EU) by Neuraxpharm, with BRIUMVI made available for commercial sale in Germany, with additional EU markets expected to follow.

TG-1701 (BTK inhibitor) Overview

TG-1701 is a novel, orally available and covalently-bound Bruton's tyrosine kinase (BTK) inhibitor that exhibits strong selectivity to BTK in in vitro kinase screening.

B-cell receptor (BCR) signaling is crucial for normal B-cell development and supports the survival and growth of B-cells.

We are currently evaluating TG-1701 in a Phase 1, multi-center, dose-escalation clinical trial in patients with B-cell malignancies. Data from this trial was last presented at the 2021 American Society of Hematology (ASH) annual meeting.

TG-1801 (anti-CD47/anti-CD19 bispecific monoclonal antibody) Overview

TG-1801 is a potentially first-in-class, bispecific CD47 and CD19 antibody. It is the first therapy to target both CD19, a B-cell specific marker widely expressed across B-cell malignancies, and CD47, the "don't eat me" signal used by both healthy and tumor cells to evade macrophage mediated phagocytosis.

In the first quarter of 2019, we commenced a Phase 1 first-in-human, dose-escalation study of TG-1801 in patients with B-cell lymphoma. In December 2022, preliminary results from this first-in-human Phase 1 study were presented at the 64th American Society of Hematology (ASH) Annual Meeting & Exposition. TG-1801 was well tolerated as monotherapy and in combination with ublituximab with no maximum tolerable dose (MTD) identified and exhibited preliminary signs of efficacy in a variety of relapsed or refractory B-cell lymphomas.

In the first half of 2021, we commenced a second Phase 1 study of TG-1801 in the U.S. to continue dose optimization as monotherapy.

Azercabtagene Zapreleucel (azer-cel)

Azer-cel is an allogeneic (off-the-shelf) CD19 CAR T cell therapy program for autoimmune diseases and all other non-oncology indications. Made from donor-derived T cells modified using a proprietary ARCUS genome editing technology, azer-cel recognizes the well characterized B-cell surface protein CD19, an important and validated target in several B-cell cancers and autoimmune diseases. Azer-cel is designed to avoid graft-versus-host disease (GvHD), a significant complication associated with other donor-derived, cell-based therapies. The Company has near term plans to evaluate the program in autoimmune indications.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY AND PATENTS

General

Our goal is to obtain, maintain and enforce patent protection for our products, formulations, processes, methods and other proprietary technologies, preserve our trade secrets, and operate without infringing on the proprietary rights of other parties, both in the United States and in other countries. Our policy is to actively seek to obtain, where appropriate, the broadest intellectual property protection possible for our product candidates, proprietary information and proprietary technology through a combination of contractual arrangements and patents, both in the U.S. and elsewhere in the world.

We also depend upon the skills, knowledge and experience of our scientific and technical personnel, as well as that of our advisors, consultants and other contractors. This knowledge, trade secrets, proprietary information and experience we call "know-how." To help protect our proprietary know-how, which is not patentable, and for inventions for which patents may be difficult to enforce, we rely on trade secret protection and confidentiality agreements to protect our interests. To this end, we seek to protect our proprietary technology and processes, in part, by entering into confidentiality agreements with our collaborators, scientific advisors, employees and consultants, and invention assignment agreements with our employees and consultants. There can be no assurance, however, that we can prevent unauthorized disclosure or use of our trade secrets, know-how and proprietary information despite the existence of confidentiality agreements.

Patents and other proprietary rights are crucial to the development of our business. We will be able to protect our proprietary technologies from unauthorized use by third parties only to the extent that our proprietary rights are covered by valid and enforceable patents, supported by regulatory exclusivity or are effectively maintained as trade secrets. We have a number of issued patents and pending patent applications related to our compounds and other technology, but we cannot guarantee the scope of protection of the issued patents, or that such patents will survive a validity or enforceability challenge, or that any of the pending patent applications will issue as patents.

Generally, patent applications in the U.S. are maintained in secrecy for a period of 18 months or more. Since publication of discoveries in the scientific or patent literature often lags behind actual discoveries, we are not certain that we were the first to make the inventions covered by each of our issued patents and pending patent applications or that we were the first to file patent applications covering such inventions. The patent positions of biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies are highly uncertain and involve complex legal and factual questions. To date, there has been no consistent policy regarding the breadth of claims allowed in biotechnology patents. Therefore, we cannot predict the breadth of claims that may be ultimately allowed from our pending patent applications, cannot predict whether the claims in our issued patents will be invalidated or modified through the district courts, Patent Trial and Appeal Board (PTAB) proceedings, or reexamination proceedings at the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO), and thus cannot predict the enforceability of the claims in our issued patents or the claims that may ultimately issue from our pending patent applications. Third parties or competitors may challenge or circumvent our patents or patent applications, if issued. If our competitors prepare and file patent applications in the U.S. that claim technology also claimed by us in a pending patent application or issued patent, we may have to participate in interference proceedings to determine priority of invention, which could result in substantial cost, even if the eventual outcome is favorable to us. Because of the extensive time required for development, testing and regulatory review of a potential product, it is possible that before we commercialize any of our products, any related patent may expire or remain in existence for only a short period following commercialization, thus reducing any advantage of the patent. However, the life of a patent covering a product that has been subject to regulatory approval may have the ability to be extended through the patent restoration program, although any such extension could still be minimal. If a patent is issued to a third party containing one or more preclusive or conflicting claims, and those claims are ultimately determined to be valid and enforceable, we may be required to obtain a license under such patent or to develop or obtain alternative technology. In the event of litigation involving a third-party claim, an adverse outcome in the litigation could subject us to significant liabilities to such third party, require us to seek a license for the disputed rights from such third party, and/or require us to cease use of the technology. Further, our breach of an existing license or failure to obtain a license to technology required to commercialize our products may seriously harm our business. We also may need to commence litigation to enforce any patents issued to us or to determine the scope and validity of third-party proprietary rights. Litigation would involve substantial costs.

TG Therapeutics, Inc.
Incentive Compensation Recovery Policy

1.0 General.

1.1 TG Therapeutics, Inc. (the "Company") has adopted this Policy in accordance with the applicable listing standards of Nasdaq and Rule 10D-1 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), which require listed companies to adopt and comply with a compensation recovery policy. To the extent this Policy is in any manner deemed inconsistent with such listing standards, this Policy shall be treated as retroactively amended to be compliant with such listing standard.

1.2 The effective date of this Policy is October 2, 2023 (the "Effective Date").

2.0 Definitions. The following words and phrases shall have the following meanings for purposes of this Policy:

2.1 Accounting Restatement. An "Accounting Restatement" means an accounting restatement due to the material noncompliance of the Company with any financial reporting requirement under the securities laws, including any required accounting restatement to correct an error in previously issued financial statements that is material to the previously issued financial statements, or that would result in a material misstatement if the error were corrected in the current period or left uncorrected in the current period.

2.2 Board. The "Board" means the Board of Directors of the Company.

2.3 Compensation Committee. The "Compensation Committee" means the Compensation Committee of the Board.

2.4 Erroneously Awarded Compensation. "Erroneously Awarded Compensation" is the amount of Incentive-Based Compensation Received that exceeds the amount of Incentive-Based Compensation that otherwise would have been Received had it been determined based on the restated amounts, computed without regard to any taxes paid. For Incentive-Based Compensation based on stock price or TSR, where the amount of Erroneously Awarded Compensation is not subject to mathematical recalculation directly from the information in an Accounting Restatement: (i) the amount shall be based on a reasonable estimate of the effect of the Accounting Restatement on the stock price or TSR upon which the Incentive-Based Compensation was Received, and (ii) the Company shall maintain documentation of the determination of that reasonable estimate and provide such documentation to Nasdaq.

2.5 Executive Officer. The term "Executive Officer" means the executive officers identified by the Company in the Company's filings with the SEC pursuant to Item 401(b) of Regulation S-K and the officers required to file reports under Section 16 of the Exchange Act.

2.6 Financial Reporting Measure. A "Financial Reporting Measure" is any measure that is determined and presented in accordance with the accounting principles used in preparing the Company's financial statements, and any measure that is derived wholly or in part from such measure. Stock price and TSR (and any measures that are derived wholly or in part from stock price and TSR) are also Financial Reporting Measures. A Financial Reporting Measure need not be presented within the Company's financial statements or included in a filing with the SEC.

2.7 Incentive-Based Compensation. The term "Incentive-Based Compensation" means any compensation (whether cash-based or equity-based) that is granted, earned, or vested based wholly or in part upon the attainment of a Financial Reporting Measure. Please refer to Appendix A to this Policy for a list of examples of Incentive-Based Compensation.

2.8 Nasdaq. "Nasdaq" means the Nasdaq Capital Market. In the event the Company's securities become listed on a different national securities exchange or national securities association in the future, then following such new listing, references to Nasdaq shall be deemed to refer to such other national securities exchange or national securities association.

2.9 Policy. "Policy" means this Incentive Compensation Recovery Policy.

2.10 Received. Incentive-Based Compensation is deemed "Received" in the Company's fiscal period during which the Financial Reporting Measure specified in the Incentive-Based Compensation award is attained, even if the payment or grant of the Incentive-Based Compensation occurs after the end of that period. For the avoidance of doubt, Incentive-Based Compensation that is subject both to one or more Financial Reporting Measures and to a service-based vesting condition shall be considered to be "Received" when the relevant Financial Reporting Measures are achieved, even if the Incentive-Based Compensation continues to be subject to the service-based vesting condition.

2.11 SEC. "SEC" means the United States Securities and Exchange Commission.

2.12 TSR. "TSR" means total stockholder return.

3.0 Statement of Policy.

3.1 In the event that the Company is required to prepare an Accounting Restatement, the Company will recover reasonably promptly the amount of all Erroneously Awarded Compensation Received by a person:

i. After beginning service as an Executive Officer;

ii. Who served as an Executive Officer at any time during the performance period for that Incentive-Based Compensation;

iii. While the Company has a class of securities listed on Nasdaq; and

iv. During the three completed fiscal years immediately preceding the date that the Company is required to prepare the Accounting Restatement and any transition period (that results from a change in the Company's fiscal year) within or immediately following those three completed fiscal years. For purposes of this Policy, a transition period between the last day of the Company's previous fiscal year and the first day of its new fiscal year that comprises a period of nine to twelve months would be deemed a completed fiscal year.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, this Policy shall only apply to Incentive-Based Compensation Received on or after the Effective Date.

3.2 The Company's obligation to recover Erroneously Awarded Compensation pursuant to this Policy is not dependent on when the restated financial statements are filed.

3.3 For purposes of determining the relevant recovery period under this Policy, the date that the Company is required to prepare an Accounting Restatement is the earliest to occur of: (i) the date the Board, a committee of the Board, or the officer or officers of the Company authorized to take such action if Board action is not required, concludes, or reasonably should have concluded, that the Company is required to prepare an Accounting Restatement; or (ii) the date a court, regulator, or other legally authorized body directs the Company to prepare an Accounting Restatement.

3.4 The Company must recover Erroneously Awarded Compensation in compliance with this Policy except to the extent that the conditions of paragraphs (i), (ii) or (iii) in this Section 3.4 are met, and the Compensation Committee, or in the absence of such a committee, a majority of the independent directors serving on the Board, has determined that recovery would be impracticable.

i. The direct expense paid to a third party to assist in enforcing this Policy would exceed the amount to be recovered. Before concluding that it would be impracticable to recover any amount of Erroneously Awarded Compensation based on expense of enforcement, the Company shall make a reasonable attempt to recover such Erroneously Awarded Compensation, document such reasonable attempt(s) to recover, and provide that documentation to Nasdaq.

ii. Recovery would violate home country law where that law was adopted prior to November 28, 2022. Before concluding that it would be impractical to recover any amount of Erroneously Awarded Compensation based on violation of home country law, the Company shall obtain an opinion of home country counsel, acceptable to Nasdaq, that recovery would result in such a violation, and provide such opinion to Nasdaq.

iii. Recovery would likely cause an otherwise tax-qualified retirement plan, under which benefits are broadly available to employees of the Company, to fail to meet the requirements of 26 U.S.C. 401(a)(13) or 26 U.S.C. 411(a) and regulations thereunder.

3.5 The Company shall not indemnify any Executive Officer or former Executive Officer against (i) the loss of Erroneously Awarded Compensation pursuant to this Policy, or (ii) any claims relating to the Company's enforcement of its rights under this Policy. Similarly, the Company shall not adopt or enter into any plan or agreement that exempts any Incentive-Based Compensation that is granted, paid or awarded to an Executive Officer or former Executive Officer from the application of this Policy. This Policy shall supersede any such plan or agreement, whether entered into before, on or after the Effective Date of this Policy. In addition, the Company shall not reimburse any Executive Officer or former Executive Officer for premiums on, or otherwise subsidize or pay for, an insurance policy that would cover such person's potential clawback obligations under this Policy.

3.6 The Compensation Committee shall determine, in its sole discretion, the appropriate means to seek recovery of any Erroneously Awarded Compensation, which may include, without limitation: (i) requiring cash reimbursement; (ii) seeking recovery or forfeiture of any gain realized on the vesting, exercise, settlement, sale, transfer or other disposition of equity-based awards; (iii) offsetting the amount to be recouped from any compensation otherwise owed by the Company to the Executive Officer or former Executive Officer; (iv) cancelling outstanding vested or unvested equity awards; or (v) taking any other remedial and recovery action permitted by law, as determined by the Compensation Committee.

3.7 The Compensation Committee shall determine the repayment schedule for any Erroneously Awarded Compensation in a manner that complies with the "reasonably prompt" requirement set forth in Subsection 3.1. The determination with respect to "reasonably prompt" recovery may vary from case to case, and the Compensation Committee may amend or supplement this Policy to further describe what repayment schedule satisfies this requirement.

3.8 The Company shall file all disclosures with respect to this Policy in accordance with the requirements of the U.S. Federal securities laws, including the disclosure required by the applicable SEC filings.

4.0 Application to Additional Persons.

4.1 In addition to the Executive Officers and former Executive Officers, this Policy shall apply to any other employee of the Company or its parent or subsidiaries designated by the Compensation Committee as a person covered by this Policy (each, an "Other Covered Person").

4.2 Unless otherwise determined by the Compensation Committee, this Policy shall apply to an Other Covered Person as if such individual was an Executive Officer during the relevant periods described in Section 3.0.

4.3 Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Compensation Committee may, in its discretion, limit recovery of Erroneously Awarded Compensation from an Other Covered Person to situations in which an Accounting Restatement was caused or contributed to by the Other Covered Person's fraud, willful misconduct or gross negligence.

4.4 In addition, the Compensation Committee shall have discretion as to (i) whether to seek to recover Erroneously Awarded Compensation from an Other Covered Person, (ii) the amount of the Erroneously Awarded Compensation to be recovered from an Other Covered Person, and (iii) the method of recovering any such Erroneously Awarded Compensation from an Other Covered Person. In exercising such discretion, the Compensation Committee may take into account such considerations as it deems appropriate, including whether the assertion of a claim may violate applicable law or prejudice the interests of the Company in any related proceeding or investigation.

5.0 Interpretation; Enforcement

5.1 The Compensation Committee shall have full authority to interpret and enforce this Policy to the fullest extent permitted by law.

5.2 Any determination by the Compensation Committee with respect to this Policy shall be final, conclusive, and binding on all interested parties.

5.3 To the extent an Executive Officer, former Executive Officer or Other Covered Person refuses to pay to the Company any Erroneously Awarded Compensation, the Company shall have the right to sue for repayment or, to the extent legally permitted, to enforce such person's obligation to make payment by withholding unpaid or future compensation.

6.0 Non-Exclusivity

6.1 The Company's rights to recoupment under this Policy are in addition to other rights the Company may have against any Executive Officer, former Executive Officer or Other Covered Person, including any remedies at law or in equity. Application of this Policy does not preclude the Company from taking other actions to enforce the obligations of an Executive Officer, former Executive Officer or Other Covered Person to the Company, including termination of employment or institution of legal proceedings. Nothing in this Policy shall be viewed as limiting the right of the Company or the Compensation Committee to pursue recoupment under or as provided by the Company's plans, awards, policies or agreements or the applicable provisions of any law, rule or regulation (including, without limitation, Section 304 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002).

6.2 If the requirement to recover Erroneously Awarded Compensation is triggered under this Policy, then, in the event of any actual or alleged conflict between the provisions of this Policy and a similar clause or provision in any of the Company's plans, awards, policies or agreements, this Policy shall be controlling and determinative; provided that, if such other plan, award, policy or agreement provides that a greater amount of compensation shall be subject to clawback, the provisions of such other plan, award, policy or agreement shall apply to the amount in excess of the amount subject to clawback under this Policy.

7.0 Amendment

7.1 The Compensation Committee may amend this Policy, provided that any such amendment does not cause this Policy to violate applicable listing standards of Nasdaq or Rule 10D-1 under the Exchange Act.

APPENDIX A

Examples of Incentive-Based Compensation

Examples of compensation that constitutes Incentive-Based Compensation for purposes of this Policy include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Non-equity incentive plan awards earned based wholly or in part on satisfying a Financial Reporting Measure performance goal;
- Bonuses paid from a "bonus pool," the size of which is determined based wholly or in part on satisfying a Financial Reporting Measure performance goal;
- Other cash awards based wholly or in part on satisfying a Financial Reporting Measure performance goal;
- Equity-based awards (e.g., restricted stock, restricted stock units, performance share units, stock options, and stock appreciation rights) that are granted or become vested based wholly or in part on satisfying a Financial Reporting Measure performance goal; and
- Proceeds received upon the sale of shares acquired through an incentive plan that were granted or vested based wholly or in part on satisfying a Financial Reporting Measure performance goal.

Examples of compensation that does not constitute Incentive-Based Compensation for purposes of this Policy include the following:

- Salaries or salary increases for which the increase is not contingent upon the attainment of a Financial Reporting Measure performance goal;
- Bonuses paid solely at the discretion of the Compensation Committee or Board that are not paid from a bonus pool, the size of which is determined based wholly or in part on satisfying a Financial Reporting Measure performance goal;
- Bonuses paid solely upon satisfying one or more subjective standards (e.g., demonstrated leadership) and/or completion of a specified employment period;
- Non-equity incentive plan awards earned solely upon satisfying one or more strategic measures (e.g., consummating a merger or divestiture) or operational measures (e.g., opening a specified number of business locations, completion of a project, or increase in market share); and
- Equity awards for which the grant is not contingent upon achieving any Financial Reporting Measure performance goal and vesting is contingent solely upon completion of a specified employment period and/or attaining one or more non-Financial Reporting Measures.

This visit was the initial inspection of this firm following receipt of application for registration and licensure with NCDA&CS Food & Drug Protection. The purpose of this inspection was to verify compliance with NCGS §106 Article 12 (Food, Drugs and Cosmetics) and Article 12A (Wholesale Prescription Drug Distributors).

Upon arrival, credentials were presented to, and Notice of Inspection issued to Mr. Mike Day, Senior Director Market Access Operations. He and Mr. Thomas Lander, Vice President Market Access, answered questions regarding business operations.

TG Therapeutics, Inc. is a biopharmaceutical company focused on the development and commercialization of novel treatments for B-cell malignancies and autoimmune disease. The firm has received approval from the United States Federal Drug Administration (FDA) for BRIUMVI™ (ublituximab-xiiy), for treatment of adult patients with relapsing forms of multiple sclerosis. BRIUMVI™ is manufactured by a contract manufacturing operation, Samsung Biologics Co., Ltd, located in South Korea. The drug product is then stored, managed, and distributed by a licensed external Third-Party Logistics Provider, Cardinal Health 105 dba Specialty Pharmaceutical Services located in LaVergne, TN. Accordingly, this corporate office location will not be used for storage and distribution of any prescription drugs.

There were no significant objectionable conditions noted during the inspection, and registration as a Virtual Manufacturer is approved.

This firm will be re-inspected on a routine or as-needed basis.

Article 12, §106-140 of the North Carolina Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act is quoted below:

§106-140. (a) For the purposes of enforcement of this Article, the Commissioner or any of his authorized agents, are authorized upon presenting appropriate credentials and a written notice to the owner, operator or agent in charge, (1) To enter at reasonable times any factory, warehouse or establishment in which food, drugs, devices or cosmetics are manufactured, processed, or packed or held for introduction into commerce or after such introduction or to enter any vehicle being used to transport or hold such foods, drugs, devices or cosmetics in commerce; and (2) To inspect at reasonable times and in a reasonable manner such factory, warehouse, establishment or vehicle and all pertinent equipment, finished or unfinished materials, containers and labeling therein, and to obtain samples necessary to the endorsement of this Article. In the case of any factory, warehouse, establishment, or consulting laboratory in which any food, drug, device or cosmetic is manufactured, processed, analyzed, packed or held, the inspection shall extend to all things therein (including records, files, papers, processes, controls and facilities) bearing on whether any food, drug, device or cosmetic which is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this Article or which may not be manufactured, introduced into commerce or sold or offered for sale by reason of any provision of this Article, has been or is being manufactured, processed, packed, transported or held in any such place or otherwise bearing on violation of this Article. No inspection authorized by the preceding sentence shall extend to a. Financial data, b. Sales data other than shipment data, c. Personnel data (other than data as to qualifications of technical and professional personnel performing functions subject to this Article), d. Pricing data, and e. Research data (other than data relating to new drugs and antibiotic drugs, subject to reporting and inspection under lawful regulations issued pursuant to section 505 (i) or (j) or section 507 (d) or (g) of the federal act, and data, relating to other drugs, which in the case of a new drug would be subject to reporting or inspection under lawful regulations issued pursuant to section 505 (j) of the federal act). Such inspection shall be commenced and completed with reasonable promptness. The provisions of the second sentence of this subsection shall not apply to such classes of persons as the Board may by regulation exempt from the application of this section upon a finding that inspection as applied to such classes of persons in accordance with this section is not necessary for the protection of the public health. (3) To have access to and to copy all records of carriers in commerce showing the movement in commerce of any food, drug, device, or cosmetic, or the holding thereof during or after such movement, and the quantity, shipper and consignee thereof: Provided, that evidence obtained under this subsection shall not be used in a criminal prosecution of the person from whom obtained; and provided further, that carriers shall not be subject to the other provisions of this Article by reason of their receipt, carriage, holding, or delivery of food, drugs, devices or cosmetics in the usual course of business as carriers. (b) Upon completion of any such inspection of a factory, warehouse, consulting laboratory or other establishment and prior to leaving the premises, the authorized agent making the inspection shall give to the owner, operator, or agent-in-charge a report in writing setting forth any conditions or practices observed by him which in his judgment indicate that any food, drug, device or cosmetic in such establishment: (1) Consists in whole or in part of any filthy, putrid, or decomposed substance; or (2) Has been prepared, packed or held under insanitary conditions whereby it may have become contaminated with filth or whereby it may have been rendered injurious to health. (c) If the authorized agent making any such inspection of a factory, warehouse or other establishment has obtained any salable product samples in the course of the inspection, upon completion of the inspection and prior to leaving the premises he shall offer reasonable payment for any such product samples. (d). It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture to make or cause to be made examination of samples secured under the provisions of this section to determine whether or not any provision of this Article is being violated.

PHARMACEUTICAL WHOLESALER SURETY BOND

Application/License No. _____

Teleflex LLC (Applicant/Principal), doing or intending to do business as a pharmaceutical wholesaler, whose address for purposes of service is 11245 North Distribution Cove, Olive Branch, MS 38654 (Address of Applicant/Principal), as PRINCIPAL, and Atlantic Specialty Insurance Company (Surety Company), a corporation organized under the laws of the state of New York (State of Incorporation) and authorized to transact a general surety business in the State of Nevada, whose address for purposes of service is 605 Highway 169 North, Suite 600, Plymouth, MN 55441 (Address of Surety) as SURETY, are held and firmly bound unto the State of Nevada and to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy for the penal sum of ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS ($100,000.00), for which payment we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns jointly and severally, by these presents. This bond term shall become effective on September 19, 2019 (Effective Date).

WHEREAS, the provisions of Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) 639.515 require that the Applicant/Principal file or have on file with the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) a bond in the sum of $100,000.00 payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy and this bond is executed and tendered in accordance therewith. This bond secures payment of any administrative fines imposed by the Board pursuant to NRS 639.255 and any costs incurred by the Board regarding the license of Applicant/Principal that are impose pursuant to NRS 622.400 or 622.410 which the Applicant/Principal fails to pay.

THIS BOND is subject to the following conditions:

(1) This bond shall be deemed continuous in form and shall remain in full force and effect and shall run concurrently with the license period for which the license is granted and each and every succeeding license period or periods for which said Applicant/Principal may be licensed, after which liability hereunder shall cease except as to any liability or indebtedness therefore incurred or accrued hereunder.
(2) This bond is executed by the Applicant/Principal and the Surety to comply with the provisions of NRS 639.515 and said bond shall be subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof.
(3) The Surety, its successors and assigns, are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond.
(4) The limitations of the liability of the Surety and the conditions of the bond are set forth in NRS 639.515. Any claim by the Board may be made directly to the Surety and need not be preceded by the filing of any action in a proper court. Payment of any such claim shall be payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy.
(5) The aggregate liability of the Surety hereunder on all claims whatsoever shall not exceed the penal sum of this bond in any event.
(6) This bond may not be cancelled by the Surety without first giving the Board written notice at least thirty days in advance of any intent to cancel the bond.
(7) The Applicant/Principal and Surety may be served with notices, papers and other documents at the addresses given above.

I certify or declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the State of Nevada, that I have executed the foregoing bond on behalf of the Surety under an unrevoked power of attorney.

In witness whereof, each party to this bond has caused it to be executed on this 19th day of September, 2019.

THIRD AMENDED AND RESTATED LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY AGREEMENT

This Third Amended and Restated Limited Liability Company Agreement of Teleflex LLC is effective as of December 16, 2023 (the "Effective Date").

RECITALS

A. Teleflex LLC, a Delaware limited liability company (the "Company"), was formed by Teleflex Incorporated (the "Initial Member") on August 20, 2018 by the filing of the certificate of formation of the Company (as amended from time to time, the "Certificate") with the Office of the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware.

B. Prior to the Effective Date, the Initial Member was the sole member of the Company and the Company was governed pursuant to the terms and provisions of that certain Limited Liability Company Agreement of Teleflex LLC dated August 20, 2018.

C. On February 21, 2020, Teleflex Life Sciences Limited, a company formed and existing under the laws of Malta, having its registered office at 171, Old Bakery Street, Valletta, VLT 1455, Malta, and registered with the Malta Business Registry under registration number C94305 ("TLS"), acquired the Initial Member's Interest in the Company and became a member of the Company (the "TLS Acquisition").

D. Following the Acquisition, the Company issued an additional Interest in the Company to Teleflex General Partner LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("TGP"), the Company was governed pursuant to the terms and provisions of that certain Amended and Restated Limited Liability Company Agreement of Teleflex LLC dated February 21, 2020, and TLS and TGP were the members of the Company.

E. On December 15, 2023, TLS assigned and transferred its 99.999% Interest in the Company to Teleflex Medical Devices LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("TMD"), and TMD was admitted as a member of the Company, together with TGP, and the Company was governed pursuant to the terms and provisions of that certain Second Amended and Restated Limited Liability Company Agreement of Teleflex LLC dated December 15, 2023 (the "Prior Agreement").

F. On the Effective Date, TMD assigned and transferred its 99.999% Interest in the Company (the "Assignment") to Teleflex Technologies LLC, a Delaware limited liability company ("TTech"), and TTech was admitted as a member of the Company, together with TGP.

TTech and TGP, as the members of the Company following the Assignment, desire to amend and restate the Second A&R Agreement in its entirety to provide for the terms and provisions relating to their ongoing ownership and management of the Company.

Accordingly, the parties hereto agree as follows:

ARTICLE I
DEFINITIONS

Capitalized terms used but not otherwise defined in this agreement have the meanings given those terms in Exhibit A.

ARTICLE II
GENERAL PROVISIONS

2.1 Formation of Limited Liability Company

The Company was formed as a Delaware limited liability company on August 20, 2018, by the filing of the Certificate with the Office of the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware under and pursuant to the Act. The Manager will file or cause to be filed all such other certificates, notices, statements, amendments or other instruments required by law for the continued operation of the Company as a limited liability company.

2.2 Name of Company

The name of the Company is "Teleflex LLC." The business of the Company may be conducted under any name chosen by the Manager, and the Manager may, in its sole discretion consistent with the requirements of the Act, change the name of the Company from time to time.

2.3 Principal Place of Business; Registered Agent for Process

(a) The principal office of the Company will be at such place as the Manager may designate, in its sole discretion, from time to time.

(b) The registered office of the Company in the State of Delaware will be at such place as the Manager may designate, in its sole discretion, from time to time. The registered agent of the Company in the State of Delaware to accept service of process will be such Person as the Manager may designate, in its sole discretion, from time to time.

2.4 Term of Company

The term of the Company commenced on the date the Certificate was filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware in accordance with the Act and will continue until terminated pursuant to Section 9.1.

2.5 Purposes

The Company is organized for the purpose of carrying on any lawful business, as determined appropriate by the Manager. Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, the Company may execute and deliver and perform all contracts and other undertakings and engage in all the activities and transactions that may, in the opinion of the Manager, be necessary or advisable to carry out the foregoing purposes, subject to the limitations contained in this agreement and the Act. The Manager shall cause the Company to be qualified or registered under applicable laws of any jurisdiction in which the Company transacts business and shall be authorized to execute, deliver and file any certificates and documents necessary to effect such qualification or registration, including without limitation the appointment of agents for service of process in such jurisdictions.

2.6 Title to Company Property

All property owned by the Company is to be deemed to be owned by the Company as an entity, and the Members will not have any direct ownership interest in any such property.

2.7 Failure to Observe Formalities

A failure to observe any formalities or requirements of this agreement, the Certificate or the Act will not be grounds for imposing personal liability on the Members or the Manager for liabilities of the Company.

2.8 Liability of the Members to Third Parties; No Reliance by Third-Party Creditors

(a) Except as otherwise provided in the Act, the Members will not be personally liable for any debt, obligation or liability of the Company, whether arising in contract or otherwise, by reason of being a member of the Company.

(b) This agreement is entered into by the Members for the exclusive benefit of the Members and their successors and assigns. This agreement is expressly not intended for the benefit of any creditor of the Company or any other Person. Except and only to the extent provided by applicable statute, no such creditor or third party has any rights under this agreement or any agreement between the Company and the Members with respect to any contributions or otherwise.

ARTICLE III
MEMBERS

3.1 Members

TTech is admitted as a member of the Company. The Members of the Company are TTech and TGP. As of the Effective Date, all Interests are held by the Members and Company is owned exclusively by the Members pursuant to the terms of this agreement. No Interest in the Company shall be represented by a separate certificate.

3.2 Capital

The Members shall be obligated to contribute capital to the Company in such amounts and at such times as may be determined by the Manager in its sole discretion. For the avoidance of doubt, the Manager is under no obligation to require the Members to contribute capital to the Company, but may do so in its sole discretion. Any capital contributions required shall be funded by the Members in proportion to their respective Percentage Interests.

ARTICLE IV
ALLOCATION OF NET INCOME AND NET LOSS

All items of Net Income or Net Loss will be allocated exclusively to the Members in proportion to their respective Percentage Interests.

DISTRIBUTIONS

Net Cash Flow and Company assets in kind will be distributed in such amounts, and at such times as the Manager may in its absolute discretion determine. Any such distribution will be made exclusively to the Members in proportion to their respective Percentage Interests.

ARTICLE VI
MANAGEMENT

6.1 Management Vested in the Manager

As provided and subject to the terms herein, the Manager has the authority to manage the business and affairs of the Company.

6.2 Manager

6.2.1 Appointment of Manager

The Manager shall be TGP.

6.2.2 Term of Manager

The Manager will hold office until such Manager dies, resigns or is otherwise removed pursuant to Section 6.2.3. Any Manager may resign at any time by delivering written notice to the Members. Any such resignation will be effective upon delivery thereof unless the notice of resignation specifies a later effective date. The acceptance of such resignation by the Members will not be necessary to make it effective.

6.2.3 Removal of Manager

A Manager may be removed with or without cause at any time by the unanimous written consent of the Members.

6.2.4 Filling a Vacancy

Any vacancy occurring with respect to the office of the Manager shall be filled by an appointee designated by the unanimous written consent of the Members. The term of any replacement Manager will extend to the remainder of the term of the departed Manager.

6.3 Compensation

Unless approved by the unanimous written consent of the Members, the Manager will not be paid any compensation in connection with their service as a Manager. Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, no Manager is precluded from serving the Company in any other capacity and receiving compensation therefor.

6.4 Authority of the Manager

6.4.1 Authority of the Manager

Except as otherwise provided herein, the Manager is vested with complete management and control of the affairs of the Company, except to the extent that the Manager delegates authority to one or more Officers or other Persons designated by the Manager. Except as otherwise provided herein, the Manager has the power and authority to do all things necessary or proper to carry out the purposes of the Company. All actions taken by the Manager will be subject to the terms of this agreement. In its capacity as Manager, the Manager is specifically authorized to execute authorized instruments, documents, agreements, contracts and other undertakings on behalf and in the name of the Company, and parties dealing with the Company are entitled to rely on the authority of the Manager to execute such documents on behalf of the Company. In addition, the Manager may delegate to one or more Persons the authority to execute authorized instruments, documents, agreements, contracts and other undertakings on behalf and in the name of the Company.

6.4.2 Limitation on Authority of the Manager

The Manager, without the unanimous written consent of the Members, has no authority to:

(a) cause the issuance or sale of any additional Interests in the Company;

(b) amend this agreement;

(c) effect a merger of the Company or the sale, lease, exchange or other disposition of all, or substantially all, the Company's property, or any other similar business combination pursuant to which any Interest of the Company is converted into or exchanged for cash, securities or other property of an acquiring entity or any of its affiliates;

(d) cause the Company to acquire any business by sale, lease, assignment or other transfer or conveyance of assets, property or securities or by merger or other form of business combination or otherwise, or make any agreement or become obligated to do so;

(e) do any act that would contravene this agreement;

(f) do any act that would make it impossible to carry on the ordinary business of the Company; or

(g) possess Company property, or assign rights in Company property, for other than a Company purpose.

6.5 Obligations of Manager

The Manager is to devote such business time to the Company as may be reasonably necessary to manage the affairs and activities of the Company.

6.6 Payment and Reimbursement of Expenses

The Company will reimburse the Manager and the Members for all reasonable expenses incurred by them on behalf of the Company.

ARTICLE VII
OFFICERS

7.1 Authority to Delegate to Officers

The Manager has the power and authority to appoint Officers of the Company. Officers have such authority, perform such duties and hold office for such period as may be prescribed by the Manager. The Manager may delegate to any Officer the power to appoint any subordinate Officers and to prescribe their respective terms of office, authority and duties. Any two or more offices may be held by the same Person. Unless an Officer dies, resigns or is removed from office, he or she will hold office until his or her successor is appointed.

7.2 Resignation or Removal

Any Officer of the Company may resign from such position by delivering written notice of the resignation to the Manager. Any Officer may be removed by the Manager, with or without cause, upon receiving written notice from the Manager. Election or appointment of an Officer will not of itself create any contractual right to continued employment, compensation or other benefit from the Company. Vacancies in any office caused by any reason may be filled by the Manager by selecting an individual to act during the unexpired term.

7.3 Salaries

The compensation of any Officers, agents or other employees of the Company is to be fixed by the Manager, and may be changed from time to time by the Manager.

7.4 Signing Authority

The Manager may authorize any Officer or Officers, or agent or agents, to enter into any contract or execute and deliver any instrument in the name of and on behalf of the Company. Such authority may be general or confined to specific instances. All checks, drafts or other orders for the payment of money, notes or other evidences of indebtedness issued in the name of the Company may be signed by such Officer or Officers, or agent or agents, of the Company as is from time to time determined by the Manager and in such manner as is from time to time determined by the Manager.

7.5 Appointment of Officers

As of the Effective Date, the Officers of the Company are as follows:

- Jay White, President;
- Mikhail Kryukov, Vice President
- Matthew Howald, Vice President and Treasurer

- John R. Deren, Vice President; and
- Daniel V. Logue, Secretary.

INDEMNIFICATION

8.1 Limitation on Liability

No Member, Manager or Officer, or employee, shareholder, member, partner, delegate or agent thereof, will be liable, responsible or accountable in damages or otherwise to the Company or the Members for any act or omission by any such Person if such Person acted in good faith and in a manner in which he, she or it believed to be in the best interests of the Company unless such conduct constitutes fraud, gross negligence, willful misconduct or a material breach of this agreement.

8.2 Indemnification

To the fullest extent not prohibited by law, the Company will indemnify and hold harmless the Members, each Manager and each Officer, and each employee, shareholder, member, partner, delegate or agent thereof, from and against any and all losses, claims, demands, costs, damages, liabilities (joint and several), expenses of any nature (including without limitation attorneys' fees and disbursements), judgments, fines, settlements and other amounts arising from any and all claims, demands, actions, suits or proceedings, civil, criminal, administrative or investigative, in which such Person may be involved or threatened to be involved, as a party or otherwise, arising out of or incidental to any business of the Company transacted or occurring while such Person was a member, Manager or Officer, or employee, shareholder, member, partner, delegate or agent thereof, regardless of whether such Person continues in such capacity at the time any such liability or expense is paid or incurred, except for fraud, gross negligence, willful misconduct or bad faith on the part of such Person. The indemnification provided by this Section 8.2 will be in addition to any other rights to which those indemnified may be entitled under any agreement, as a matter of law or equity, or otherwise, and will continue as to a Person who has ceased to serve in their capacity, and will inure to the benefit of the heirs, successors, assigns and administrators of the Person so indemnified. With respect to the satisfaction of any indemnification of the above-mentioned Persons, only assets of the Company will be available therefor and the Members will not have any personal liability therefor. Any indemnification required hereunder to be made by the Company will be made promptly after the liability, loss, damage, cost or expense is incurred or suffered. The Manager may establish reasonable procedures for the submission of claims for indemnification pursuant to this Section 8.2, determination of the entitlement of any Person thereto and review of any such determination.

8.3 Advancement of Expenses

The right to indemnification conferred in this Article VIII includes the right to be paid by the Company the expenses incurred in defending any proceeding in advance of its final disposition. An advancement of expenses must be made upon delivery to the Company of an undertaking, by or on behalf of such indemnitee, to repay all amounts so advanced if it is ultimately determined by final judicial decision from which there is no further right to appeal that such indemnitee is not entitled to be indemnified for such expenses under this Section 8.3.

ARTICLE IX
DISSOLUTION AND TERMINATION

9.1 Events of Dissolution

(a) The Company may be dissolved on a date designated by the Manager.

(b) Subject to the foregoing, the death, retirement, resignation, expulsion, bankruptcy or dissolution of a Member or the occurrence of any other event that terminates the continued membership of a Member will not cause the Company to be dissolved or its affairs to be wound up, and upon the occurrence of any such event, the limited liability company will be continued without dissolution.

9.2 Effectiveness of Dissolution

Dissolution of the Company will be effective on the date on which the event occurs giving rise to the dissolution, but the Company may not terminate until the assets of the Company have been distributed as provided herein. Notwithstanding the dissolution of the Company, prior to the termination of the Company, as aforesaid, the business of the Company and the affairs of the Members, as such, will continue to be governed by this agreement. Upon dissolution, the Manager must cause the assets of the Company to be liquidated and must cause the proceeds thereof to be applied and distributed as contemplated by this agreement.

9.3 Distributions Upon Liquidation

Distributions upon liquidation of the Company, after payment to all creditors, are to be made to the Members in proportion to their respective Percentage Interests.

ARTICLE X
BOOKS, RECORDS AND BANK ACCOUNTS

10.1 Books and Records

(a) The books and records of the Company will be maintained at the principal office of the Company.

(b) The Company will maintain with its books and records the following: (1) a current list of the full name and last known address of the Members; (2) a copy of the Certificate, and all certificates of amendment thereto; (3) copies of the Company's federal, state and local tax returns and reports, if any, for the three most recent fiscal years; (4) copies of this agreement and any amendments thereto; and (5) copies of all financial statements for the Company for the three most recent fiscal years.

10.2 Bank Accounts

The Manager is responsible for causing one or more accounts to be maintained in a bank (or banks), as necessary, which accounts are to be used for the payment of expenditures incurred in connection with the business of the Company, and in which are to be deposited any and all cash receipts. All such amounts are to be received, held and disbursed by the Company for the purposes specified in this agreement. There may not be deposited in any of such accounts any funds other than funds belonging to the Company, and no other funds will in any way be commingled with such funds.

ARTICLE XI
MISCELLANEOUS

11.1 Successors and Assigns

This agreement, and each and every provision hereof, will be binding on and will inure to the benefit of the Members, their respective successors, heirs, successors in title and assigns, and each and every successor in interest to any Member, whether such successor acquires an Interest by way of gift, purchase, foreclosure or by any other method, will hold such Interest subject to all the terms and provisions of this agreement.

11.2 Amendment of Agreement

Except as otherwise provided herein, this agreement may be amended only upon the unanimous written consent of the Members.

11.3 Captions

Titles or captions of articles or sections contained in this agreement are inserted only as a matter of convenience and for reference, and in no way define, limit, extend or describe the scope of this agreement or the intent of any provisions hereof.

11.4 Applicable Law

This agreement and the rights and obligations of the parties hereunder are to be governed by and interpreted, construed and enforced in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware (regardless of the choice of law principles of the State of Delaware or of any other jurisdiction).

11.5 Severability

If any provision of this agreement is held by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, void or unenforceable, the remainder of the provisions shall remain in full force and effect and shall in no way be affected, impaired or invalidated.

IMPOSITION OF CIVIL FINE
Case # 2023-000288

I, John Richardson, as an agent for Top Rx, LLC admit and agree the Alaska Board of Pharmacy (Board) has jurisdiction over the subject matter of Out-of-State Wholesale Drug Distributor License No. 191040, and over this Imposition of Civil Fine.

1. On October 02, 2022, we appointed a new Facility Manager in reference to License #191040.
2. On February 06, 2023, the Board received our Change of Facility Manager/ Pharmacist-in-Charge form with the new Facility Manager notification; 131 days after the Facility Manager change occurred.
3. This is a violation of 12 AAC 52.635(a).

We admit that as a result of these facts, grounds exist for possible denial of licensure or other disciplinary sanctions of my license pursuant to AS 08.01.75 and 12 AAC 52.635(a). We are agreeing to this Imposition of a Civil Fine of three hundred dollars ($300) in cash, certified check, ~~or money order payable to the "State of Alaska"~~ within ninety (90) days after this Imposition of Civil Fine is accepted by the Board.

We have the right to consult with an attorney, and a right to an administrative hearing on the facts in this case. We understand and agree by voluntarily signing this Imposition of Civil Fine, we are waiving our rights to counsel and to a hearing on this matter.

ORDER

The Alaska Board of Pharmacy (Board), having examined the Imposition of Civil Fine, Case No. 2023-000288, regarding License No. #191040, for failure to timely notify the Board of a Facility Manager change, hereby adopts the Imposition of Civil Fine.

The Board has determined this is a technical violation of professional licensing statutes and regulations, therefore this matter can be resolved with a civil fine.

This Imposition of Civil Fine takes effect immediately upon signature of this Order in accordance with the approval of the Board.

PHARMACEUTICAL WHOLESALER SURETY BOND

Application/License No. WH00698

TopRx, LLC (Applicant/Principal), doing or intending to do business as a pharmaceutical wholesaler, whose address for purposes of service is 2950 Brother Boulevard, Suite 102, Bartlett, TN 38133 (Address of Applicant/Principal), as PRINCIPAL, and Harco National Insurance Company (Surety Company), a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Illinois (State of Incorporation) and authorized to transact a general surety business in the State of Nevada, whose address for purposes of service is 550 Kirkland Way, Suite 400, Kirkland, WA 98033 (Address of Surety) as SURETY, are held and firmly bound unto the State of Nevada and to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy for the penal sum of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS ($25,000.00), for which payment we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns jointly and severally, by these presents. This bond term shall become effective on 11/01/2020 (Effective Date).

WHEREAS, the provisions of Nevada Revised Statue (NRS) 639.515 and Nevada Administrative Code (NAC) 639.5937 require that the Applicant/Principal file or have on file with the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) a bond in the sum of $25,000.00 payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy and this bond is executed and tendered in accordance therewith. This bond secures payment of any administrative fines imposed by the Board pursuant to NRS 639.255 and any costs incurred by the Board regarding the license of Applicant/Principal that are impose pursuant to NRS 622.400 or 622.410 which the Applicant/Principal fails to pay.

THIS BOND is subject to the following conditions:

(1) This bond shall be deemed continuous in form and shall remain in full force and effect and shall run concurrently with the license period for which the license is granted and each and every succeeding license period or periods for which said Applicant/Principal may be licensed, after which liability hereunder shall cease except as to any liability or indebtedness therefore incurred or accrued hereunder.
(2) This bond is executed by the Applicant/Principal and the Surety to comply with the provisions of NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937 and said bond shall be subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof.
(3) The Surety, its successors and assigns, are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond.
(4) The limitations of the liability of the Surety and the conditions of the bond are set forth in NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937. Any claim by the Board may be made directly to the Surety and need not be preceded by the filing of any action in a proper court. Payment of any such claim shall be payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy.
(5) The aggregate liability of the Surety hereunder on all claims whatsoever shall not exceed the penal sum of this bond in any event.
(6) This bond may not be cancelled by the Surety without first giving the Board written notice at least thirty days in advance of any intent to cancel the bond.
(7) The Applicant/Principal and Surety may be served with notices, papers and other documents at the addresses given above.

I certify or declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the State of Nevada, that I have executed the foregoing bond on behalf of the Surety under an unrevoked power of attorney.

In witness whereof, each party to this bond has caused it to be executed on this 11th day of September, 2020.

Hi Maria,

I've requested a check from accounting for the fingerprint processing fee. I apologize for not including it.

The signed surety bond and full list of employees will be included along with the check.

As far as the FDA labeler associated with Durvet, for our OTC products it is 30798 for our script items (VetTek) it is 60270. Is that what you are looking for?

PHARMACEUTICAL WHOLESALER SURETY BOND

Bond No. 100330243

Application/License No. _____

Durvet, Inc. (Applicant/Principal), doing or intending to do business as a pharmaceutical wholesaler, whose address for purposes of service is 100 SE Magellan Drive Blue Springs, MO 64014 (Address of Applicant/Principal), as PRINCIPAL, and Merchants Bonding Company (Mutual) (Surety Company), a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Iowa (State of Incorporation) and authorized to transact a general surety business in the State of Nevada, whose address for purposes of service is 6700 Westown Parkway, West Des Moines, IA 50266 (Address of Surety) as SURETY, are held and firmly bound unto the State of Nevada and to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy for the penal sum of ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS ($100,000.00), for which payment we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns jointly and severally, by these presents. This bond term shall become effective on January 10, 2024 (Effective Date).

WHEREAS, the provisions of Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) 639.515 require that the Applicant/Principal file or have on file with the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) a bond in the sum of $100,000.00 payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy and this bond is executed and tendered in accordance therewith. This bond secures payment of any administrative fines imposed by the Board pursuant to NRS 639.255 and any costs incurred by the Board regarding the license of Applicant/Principal that are impose pursuant to NRS 622.400 or 622.410 which the Applicant/Principal fails to pay.

THIS BOND is subject to the following conditions:

(1) This bond shall be deemed continuous in form and shall remain in full force and effect and shall run concurrently with the license period for which the license is granted and each and every succeeding license period or periods for which said Applicant/Principal may be licensed, after which liability hereunder shall cease except as to any liability or indebtedness therefore incurred or accrued hereunder.
(2) This bond is executed by the Applicant/Principal and the Surety to comply with the provisions of NRS 639.515 and said bond shall be subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof.
(3) The Surety, its successors and assigns, are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond.
(4) The limitations of the liability of the Surety and the conditions of the bond are set forth in NRS 639.515. Any claim by the Board may be made directly to the Surety and need not be preceded by the filing of any action in a proper court. Payment of any such claim shall be payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy.
(5) The aggregate liability of the Surety hereunder on all claims whatsoever shall not exceed the penal sum of this bond in any event.
(6) This bond may not be cancelled by the Surety without first giving the Board written notice at least thirty days in advance of any intent to cancel the bond.
(7) The Applicant/Principal and Surety may be served with notices, papers and other documents at the addresses given above.

I certify or declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the State of Nevada, that I have executed the foregoing bond on behalf of the Surety under an unrevoked power of attorney.

In witness whereof, each party to this bond has caused it to be executed on this 10th day of January, 20 24.

MERCHANTS
BONDING COMPANY

POWER OF ATTORNEY

Know All Persons By These Presents, that MERCHANTS BONDING COMPANY (MUTUAL) and MERCHANTS NATIONAL BONDING, INC., both being corporations of the State of Iowa, d/b/a Merchants National Indemnity Company (in California only) (herein collectively called the "Companies") do hereby make, constitute and appoint, individually, their true and lawful Attorney(s)-in-Fact, to sign its name as surety(ies) and to execute, seal and acknowledge any and all bonds, undertakings, contracts and other written instruments in the nature thereof, on behalf of the Companies in their business of guaranteeing the fidelity of persons, guaranteeing the performance of contracts and executing or guaranteeing bonds and undertakings required or permitted in any actions or proceedings allowed by law.

This Power-of-Attorney is granted and is signed and sealed by facsimile under and by authority of the following By-Laws adopted by the Board of Directors of Merchants Bonding Company (Mutual) on April 23, 2011 and amended August 14, 2015 and adopted by the Board of Directors of Merchants National Bonding, Inc., on October 16, 2015.

"The President, Secretary, Treasurer, or any Assistant Treasurer or any Assistant Secretary or any Vice President shall have power and authority to appoint Attorneys-in-Fact, and to authorize them to execute on behalf of the Company, and attach the seal of the Company thereto, bonds and undertakings, recognizances, contracts of indemnity and other writings obligatory in the nature thereof."

"The signature of any authorized officer and the seal of the Company may be affixed by facsimile or electronic transmission to any Power of Attorney or Certification thereof authorizing the execution and delivery of any bond, undertaking, recognizance, or other suretyship obligations of the Company, and such signature and seal when so used shall have the same force and effect as though manually fixed."

In connection with obligations in favor of the Florida Department of Transportation only, it is agreed that the power and authority hereby given to the Attorney-in-Fact includes any and all consents for the release of retained percentages and/or final estimates on engineering and construction contracts required by the State of Florida Department of Transportation. It is fully understood that consenting to the State of Florida Department of Transportation making payment of the final estimate to the Contractor and/or its assignee, shall not relieve this surety company of any of its obligations under its bond.

In connection with obligations in favor of the Kentucky Department of Highways only, it is agreed that the power and authority hereby given to the Attorney-in-Fact cannot be modified or revoked unless prior written personal notice of such intent has been given to the Commissioner-Department of Highways of the Commonwealth of Kentucky at least thirty (30) days prior to the modification or revocation.

In Witness Whereof, the Companies have caused this instrument to be signed and sealed this 10th day of January 2024.

PLAINTIFFS' FIRST AMENDED PETITION AND JURY DEMAND

TO THE HONORABLE JUDGE OF THE COURT:

Plaintiffs, RITA DIANE NEWSOM, individually and as successor-in-interest to WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR., Deceased, and WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, III, Individually, file this original petition and jury demand against the Defendants listed below, and allege as follows:

DISCOVERY-CONTROL PLAN

1. Plaintiffs intend to conduct discovery under Level 2 of Texas Rules of Civil Procedure 190.3 and affirmatively plead that this suit is not governed by the expedited actions process in Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 169 because Plaintiffs seeks monetary relief over $250,000.

CLAIM FOR RELIEF

2. Plaintiffs seek monetary relief over $1,000,000. Plaintiffs further seek any relief in equity to which they are entitled.

PARTIES

3. Plaintiffs RITA DIANE NEWSOM and WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, III, reside in Mount Vernon, Texas.

4. as "Old JJCI" and "New JJCI."

14. Defendant, KENVUE INC. ("Kenvue") a foreign corporation organized and existing under the law of the State of Delaware whose principal office is located in the State of New Jersey, may be served with process by serving the Texas Secretary of State at 1019 Brazos Street, Austin, Texas 78701, as its agent for service because Defendant engages in business in Texas but does not maintain a regular place of business in Texas or a designated agent for service process, and this suit arose from Defendant's business in this state. Defendant may be served with process through the Secretary of State for the State of Texas at its domicile registered agent: The Corporation Trust Company, Corporation Trust Center, 1209 Orange St., Wilmington, DE 19801. This Defendant is being sued as a manufacturer of asbestos-containing Johnson's talc powder. Kenvue is sued individually and as successor in interest to Johnson & Johnson subsidiaries named Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc., both prior to and after its 2021 restructurings and colloquially known as "Old JJCI" and "New JJCI."

15. Defendant, MONSANTO COMPANY, a Delaware Corporation with its principal place of business in the State of Missouri, may be served with process by serving its registered agent, Corporation Service Company d/b/a CSC-Lawyers Incorporated, 211 E. 7th Street, Suite 620, Austin, TX 78701. This Defendant is being sued as a supplier of asbestos-containing talcum powder and cosmetic products.

JURISDICTION

16. The Court has subject-matter jurisdiction over the lawsuit because the amount in controversy exceeds this Court's minimum jurisdictional requirements.

17. The Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant MILWHITE, INC. f/k/a THE MILWHITE CO., as successor-in-interest to WESTEX MINERALS, INC. f/k/a WESTEX TALC CORPORATION because Defendant is a Texas Corporation whose registered office is located in Cameron County, Texas.

18. The Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant TRACTOR SUPPLY CO. OF TEXAS, LP a/k/a TRACTOR SUPPLY COMPANY, because Defendant is a Texas Corporation whose registered office is located in Williamson County, Tennessee.

VENUE

19. Venue is proper in Harris County, Texas on the grounds that the cause of action, or a part thereof, accrued and/or arose in Harris County. Since this Court has venue as to any one claim or cause of action as against any one Defendant, this Court has venue as to all Defendants joined in this cause and as to all claims or causes of action properly joined in this cause.

20. This action is brought, and these allegations are made pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.031.

FACTS

21. Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. was wrongfully exposed to and inhaled, ingested, or otherwise absorbed asbestos fibers, an inherently dangerous and toxic substance, as described below:

a. WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. was born and raised on a dairy farm. Between 1947 and 1967, the farm had roughly 200 dairy cows, as well as goats and horses ranging in number from dozens to hundreds over time.

b. In or around 1967 WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. and RITA DIANE NEWSOM expanded operations of the dairy farm. Over time, the number of dairy cows grew to roughly 400-500. The farm was also home to more than 100 horses and hundreds of goats.

c. The dairy cows, horses, and goats had to be treated with various livestock dusts to prevent bacterial infection and/or infestation with parasitic insects such as lice, ticks, and mosquitos.

d. WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. routinely used products designed, manufactured, distributed, and/or sold by Defendants to treat the livestock as described above. These products were powders that became airborne and generated respirable dust when applied. A major component of these products was asbestos-containing talc.

e. WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. frequently and routinely applied the above-described livestock dusts that were designed, manufactured, distributed, and/or sold by Defendants. He also frequently and routinely worked in close proximity to others applying the above-described livestock dusts. By virtue of his work with or around these products, WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. frequently and routinely inhaled asbestos fibers that were emitted from the products that were designed, manufactured, distributed, and/or sold by Defendants.

22. Each and every allegation in this Petition is expressly made in the alternative to, as well as in addition to, every other allegation.

FACTS RELATING TO SUCCESOR LIABILITY BETWEEN DEFENDANTS KENVUE, J&J, JANSSEN, AND HOLDCO

23. "Defendants" and/or "Johnson & Johnson Defendants" as used in this and the subsequent section of the Complaint refers to and means Defendants Johnson & Johnson, Kenvue, Janssen, Holdco, and the John Doe parties, either or both in their own right or as corporate successor to an entity or person whose acts, omissions, undertakings, or activities are attributed to it by contract or operation of law.

a. The Assets and Business of JJCI Were Transferred to Defendants

24. The Declaration of John K. Kim in Support of First Day Pleadings in LTL's second Bankruptcy filing on April 4, 2023 ("Kim LTL Decl."), In re: LTL Management LLC, Case No.: 23-12825, United States Bankruptcy Court District of New Jersey ("LTL 2"), summarizes J&J's and its affiliates' corporate history that is pertinent to the claims alleged herein against the Defendants as follows:

a) "J&J, a New Jersey company incorporated in 1887, first began selling JOHNSON'S® Baby Powder in 1894, launching its baby care line of products."

b) "In 1972, J&J established a formal operating division for its baby products business, which included JOHNSON'S® Baby Powder.... J&J transferred all its assets and liabilities associated with the baby products division to J&J Baby Products."

c) "In 1981, J&J Baby Products transferred all its assets, except those assets allocated to its diaper programs, to Omni Education Corporation ("Omni"), a wholly owned subsidiary of J&J Baby Products. In turn, Omni assumed all liabilities of J&J Baby Products except those liabilities related to its diaper program. Immediately following the transaction, J&J Baby Products merged into another subsidiary of J&J and was renamed Personal Products Company, and Omni changed its name to Johnson & Johnson Baby Products Company."

d) "In 1988, Johnson & Johnson Baby Products Company transferred all its assets in respect of its baby products business to Johnson & Johnson Dental Products Company, which assumed all of its liabilities and was renamed Johnson & Johnson Consumer Products, Inc."

e) "In 1997, Johnson & Johnson Consumer Products, Inc. changed its name to Johnson & Johnson Consumer Companies, Inc. ("J&J Consumer Companies")."

f) "In 2015, J&J Consumer Companies merged with and into an affiliate, which then merged into McNeil-PPC, Inc. The resulting entity was renamed Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc. (including all former names and historical forms, "Old JJCI")."

g) "Old JJCI became responsible for all claims alleging that JOHNSON'S® Baby Powder and other talc-containing products cause cancer or other diseases.... Old JJCI also became responsible for all claims alleging that Shower to Shower products, which contained talc, cause cancer or other diseases."

25. Each and every one of the J&J's corporate entities, including itself and its affiliated companies involved or associated with talc business and Products, were at all times material to this case aware that raw talc ingredient and/or resulting talc-based Products contained asbestos, and each and all collectively actively concealed such fact from the public for decades.

26. Prior to the implementation of J&J's multifaceted restructuring of its consumer product subsidiaries in 2021, Old JJCI and its predecessors milled, manufactured, labeled, sold, supplied, distributed, and/or marketed asbestos-containing Products to which Plaintiffs and/or Decedents were exposed.

27. In an effort to avoid or eliminate J&J's and Old JJCI's respective responsibility and liability for injuries and harm caused by Johnson & Johnson Baby Powder, as well as other talc Products, in or about October 2021, Old JJCI underwent a series of corporate restructuring transactions under Texas state corporation and business law in which it split itself into two separate entities through a device referred to as a "divisive merger," more commonly known as the "Texas Two Step."

28. The corporate restructuring was designed and undertaken with the intent to isolate the talc liabilities of Old JJCI into a newly invented company created by J&J called "LTL Management LLC" ("LTL"). "LTL" is an acronym for "Legacy Talc Liability."

29. LTL was immediately thereafter put into a Chapter 11 Bankruptcy wherein LTL and other J&J entities sought the protection of the Bankruptcy Code's processes and machinery to obtain a stay of all pending litigation and construct an aggregate resolution of its outstanding present and future asbestos liabilities that would foreclose jury trials and reduce the compensation they would owe to those harmed by its Products and their families, given that J&J and its subsidiaries were increasingly being held liable by juries in lawsuits brought by talc asbestos claimants and were being ordered to pay compensatory and exemplary damages.

30. As part of J&J's liability avoidance/limiting corporate restructuring, all of the productive assets of Old JJCI, including those used to manufacture and market J&J Baby Powder, were transferred to a newly minted corporate entity named "Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc." ("New JJCI"). New JJCI upon receipt of the Old JJCI's operating assets continued to sell J&J Baby Powder, as had Old JJCI before it.

31. Over the objection of tens of thousands of personal injury and wrongful death tort plaintiffs, the Bankruptcy Court presiding over LTL's 2021 bankruptcy case stayed and enjoined prosecution of all litigation against not only the Debtor LTL but all cosmetic talc injury related litigation involving J&J and New JJCI.

32. During LTL's bankruptcy proceedings, representatives of the affected personal injury and wrongful death tort victims challenged J&J's Texas Two Step scheme before the Bankruptcy Court. After losing their challenges before the Bankruptcy Court, they were ultimately successful on appeal before the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, which on January 30, 2023, ruled that the Bankruptcy filing by LTL was not proper and ordered that LTL's 2021 Bankruptcy case be dismissed. In re: LTL Management, LLC, No. 22-0007, 2023 WL 2760479 (3d Cir., decided Jan. 30, 2023; opinion entered Mar. 31, 2023).

33. LTL's efforts to obtain re-argument before the Third Circuit panel hearing its appeal or an en banc hearing were denied, and the Appeals Court's mandate to the Bankruptcy Court was issued by the Third Circuit Clerk on March 31, 2023, thereby triggering the lower court's duty to enter an order dismissing the case.

34. Within hours of the LTL Bankruptcy Court issuing its ensuing dismissal order on April 4, 2023, LTL filed a second Chapter 11 petition for bankruptcy protection in the same court seeking the same relief as in the dismissed case, claiming its funding sources and arrangements had been replaced and reconfigured in such way that purportedly overcomes the Third Circuit's reasons for ordering the earlier bankruptcy case be dismissed.

35. Unbeknownst to Plaintiffs, during the time the Third Circuit Court of Appeals was considering the propriety of LTL's bankruptcy filing, New JJCI began the process of moving its assets and business to yet another J&J subsidiary, Defendant Kenvue Inc., by transfers through JJCI's direct parent, Defendant Janssen Pharmaceuticals, Inc.

36. According to the Kim Declaration, as part of J&J's further corporate restructuring, New JJCI changed its name to "Johnson & Johnson Holdco (NA) Inc." ("Holdco"), a New Jersey corporation. His declaration before the Bankruptcy Court additionally revealed that "in early January 2023, [New JJCI] transferred its Consumer Business assets to its parent entity." See Kim LTL Decl. at ¶26.

37. While Mr. Kim's declaration does not expressly state who the parent entity is, a careful examination of the affidavit demonstrates that Janssen Pharmaceuticals, Inc, is the parent entity of New JJCI. Id. Figure 1 below is from an Exhibit to Mr. Kim's Declaration and shows that Janssen is the parent that received all of the JJCI assets used to manufacture, market, and sell J&J Baby Powder.

38. Accordingly, under New Jersey law, Janssen is a successor to Old JJCI and responsible for the contractual undertakings and tortious conduct of Old JJCI.

39. The information gleaned from Mr. Kim's Declaration and a J&J subsidiary's SEC filings shows that J&J is in the process once again of manipulating assets and responsibilities related to the sale of J&J's Baby Powder.

41. Kenvue acknowledged in its SEC S-1 filing that it may be held accountable for the harm caused by the talc-based PRODUCTS it is responsible for: "It is also possible that various parties will seek to bring and will be successful in bringing claims against us, including by raising allegations that we are liable for the Talc-Related Liabilities." Id.

42. Kenvue further acknowledged itself as the company responsible for the manufacture of Johnson's Baby Powder indicating that it "may be subject to additional claims . . . related to the sale of talc-based Johnson's Baby Powder in markets where we have discontinued this product (such as in the United States and Canada), including potential governmental inquiries, investigations, claims and consumer protection cases from state attorneys general." Id. (emphasis added).

43. Kenvue also acknowledged that it is "responsible for all liabilities on account of or relating to harm arising out of, based upon, or resulting from, directly or indirectly, the presence of or exposure to talc or talc-containing products sold outside the United States or Canada." Id.

44. As such, Kenvue is responsible individually and as successor to all predecessor entities involved in the manufacturing, marketing, and sale of the asbestos-containing talc PRODUCTS to which the Plaintiffs and/or Decedents were exposed.

b. Defendants Continue the Business of JJCI, Including the Johnson's Baby Powder Product Line

45. In its SEC registration filing, Kenvue sets forth the products that it claims to manufacture and sell in the United States. In this regard, Kenvue represented to the SEC and the public: "A number of our products marketed in the United States, including many of our products in our Skin Health and Beauty segment, are considered cosmetics regulated by the FDA through the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act. Our cosmetic products include Aveeno Restorative Skin Therapy Oat Repairing Cream, Aveeno Restorative Skin Therapy Sulfate-Free Body Wash, Johnson's Baby Powder and certain of our Listerine mouthwash products." (Kenvue Inc. Form S-1 Registration Statement Under the Securities Act of 1933 (Jan. 4, 2023)). (emphasis added).

46. The bottle for the cornstarch-based formulation Johnson's® Baby Powder, which is sold today in the United States, states: "For over 125 years JOHNSON's® formulas have been specially designed for baby's unique and delicate skin. Great for kids and adults too!"

47. Kenvue admits in its SEC filing that while J&J transitioned to a cornstarch-based formula for Johnson's® Baby Powder in the United States and Canada in 2020, it is still distributing talc-based Johnson's® Baby Powder in other markets and will continue to do so until sometime in 2023. Id. at 63, 330.

48. It remains possible today, through Amazon's online shopping website, to purchase talc-based Johnson's Baby Powder and have it delivered to New Jersey. (Transcript of Motions May 24, 2023, Naranjo, et. al., v. Johnson & Johnson, et al., Vol. 1 of 2, at 44:18-45:10).

49. Kenvue's website lists Johnson's as one of its "iconic brands" under the categories of "Skin health & Beauty – Face & body" and "Essential health – Baby care". https://www.kenvue.com/brands.

50. Following the link to the Johnson's brand page, one finds Johnson's Baby Powder, amongst a variety of baby care products. https://www.johnsonsbaby.com/baby-products.

51. On Kenvue's Johnson's brand website's FAQ page, under the questions "Why did Johnson's® reformulate?" and "How have the Johnson's® products changed?" Kenvue indicates it has generally reformulated its line of Johnson's baby products recently based on its continued scientific research and input from parents. https://www.johnsonsbaby.com/faq#why-did-johnson-s-reformulate and https://www.johnsonsbaby.com/faq#how-have-the-johnson-s-products-changed. As with its corn-starch-based Johnson's Baby Powder, Kenvue continues to market these reformulated products under the trusted Johnson's brand name.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS PERTAINING TO THIS SPECIFIC MATTER AS RELATED TO DEFENDANTS KENVUE, J&J, JANSSEN, AND HOLDCO

a. Overview of Talc & the Products

52. Talc is an inorganic magnesium silicate mineral that may occur in a variety of forms (massive or platy, foliated, and fibrous).

53. Talc is used in a wide array of industrial, commercial and cosmetic substances. It is the main substance in talcum powders, talc-based body powders, and the products.

54. Talc is mined from deposits in the earth that can contain asbestos, heavy metals (nickel, cadmium, cobalt, chromium, arsenic, etc.), and other toxic minerals.

55. Johnson & Johnson Defendants manufactured and marketed Johnson's Baby Powder.

56. Johnson & Johnson began the manufacture of Johnson's Baby Powder in approximately 1894.

57. In the late 1970's, Johnson & Johnson incorporated a new division that over several name changes became Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc. ("JJCI"), Kenvue Inc., and/or LTL Management LLC, that sold Johnson's Baby Powder.

58. Although JJCI manufactured the product, starting in the late 1970's, critical decisions concerning safety and health were made by Johnson and Johnson including marketing, public relations, interaction with federal authorities, fraudulent concealment, and the refusal to warn people like the plaintiff that Johnson's Baby Powder was capable of causing cancer.

59. Johnson and Johnson at all times relevant hereto represented to consumers, doctors, regulators and courts that JBP was safe and free of asbestos.

60. During all relevant times, Johnson's Baby Powder® was composed primarily of talc along with other constituent elements found in talc such as asbestos, fibrous talc, and heavy metals (e.g., nickel, cadmium, cobalt, chromium, arsenic), and fragrance chemicals.

61. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants obtained the talc for Johnson's Baby Powder from various sources including Guangxi, China, the Fontana mine in the Germanasca Valley and Val Chisone region in Italy, as well as the Johnson, Hammondsville, Rainbow, Hamm, and Argonaut mines in Vermont (collectively referred to as "Vermont mines"). See 2/15/2019 Deposition of Musco 63:7–64:5 (Hammondsville and Johnson mines were sources of cosmetic talc for Johnson's Baby Powder); see also 3/8/2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco 451:2–453:22 (Emtal 500 from Johnson Mine used in Cosmetics); 10/29/1982 Deposition of Roger Miller; see also July 22, 2019 Trial Testimony of John Hopkins Barden et al. v. Johnson & Johnson at 18:15-19:21.

62. From approximately 1967 until 2003, the primary source of talc for the products was Vermont mines including the Hammondsville, Rainbow, Hamm, and Argonaut mines. The mines were owned and operated by Johnson & Johnson's subsidiary, Windsor Minerals, with Johnson & Johnson exercising control over all key decisions concerning the mines.

63. Over time, the trade names for the talc ore used by the Johnson & Johnson Defendants in Johnson's Baby Powder and Shower to Shower included "Emtal," "Grade 66," "Grade 96," "1615," "Italian 00000," and "Supra" all of which contain asbestos.

64. At all relevant times, a feasible and safe alternative to talc has existed. For example, cornstarch is an organic carbohydrate that is quickly broken down by the body with no known adverse health effects. Cornstarch powders have been sold and marketed for the same uses as the products with nearly the same effectiveness as talcum powders. See Johnson & Johnson baby Powder Questions and Answers, October 1985 (JNJ 000011777); cornstarch "can be absorbed into the body, tending not to cause severe granuloma as may be the case with talc." November 3, 1964 Letter to Ashton from Stalker (JNJ 000332195). See also Johnson's baby powder, pure cornstarch, being marketed as "a change for the better."

65. At relevant times, the Johnson & Johnson Defendants advertised and marketed their "Johnson's Baby Powder" product as a symbol of "freshness" and "comfort," eliminating friction on the skin, absorbing "excess wetness" to keep skin feeling dry and comfortable, and "clinically proven gentle and mild." Johnson & Johnson induced people through advertisements to dust themselves with this product to mask odors. Johnson's Baby Powder bottle specifically targets women, stating: "For you, use every day to help feel soft, fresh, and comfortable." See P-121 (excerpts from www.johnsonbaby.com and www.showertoshower.com; Shower to Shower Task Force – BP Brainstorm July 14, 2004 (JNJ 000058760); and P-49 (picture of Johnson & Johnson's Baby Powder bottle).

66. Although the labels on the bottles for Johnson & Johnson Baby Powder have changed over time, the core message has been the same: that people can safely use the products on their bodies.

b. Asbestos and Other Constituents in Talc

67. The products contain asbestos and fibrous talc and Defendants failed to warn the public, including Plaintiff, about the fact that the products contained such carcinogenic substances.

68. Beginning in the 1930s, medical and scientific literature emerged indicating talc was commonly, if not invariably, contaminated with substances known or suspected of being carcinogenic, such as asbestos. Over the next several decades, a growing body of medical and scientific literature demonstrated that direct and secondary exposure to talc, including asbestos-containing talc, was hazardous to exposed persons' health in that it could cause lung disease, cancer and death.

69. The United States Geological Survey on Commercial Talc Production conducted in 1965, as well as those dating back to the 1800s, noted the presence of tremolite, anthophyllite and chrysotile commonly among those minerals found within talc deposits.

70. In 1968, a scientific study of store-bought, commercially available talcum powders conducted by the Occupational Health Program, National Center for Urban Industrial Health, was published and presented by the American Industrial Hygiene Association revealing that, contrary to popular belief, talcum powders were not entirely pure, but rather contained various fibrous minerals, including tremolite, anthophyllite, and chrysotile. This was not unexpected, as the study explains, because these types of fibers are often present in fibrous talc mineral deposits like those mined by Defendants for use in the Products. Available documents indicate that during the same year and in the years following, at least one company began testing store-bought talcum powders for asbestos content. Despite tests showing some commercial talcum powders contained asbestos, there is no evidence that these positive results or the brand names of contaminated products were communicated to any governmental agency, the media or the public. The study concluded that "[a]ll of the 22 talcum products analyzed have a . . . fiber content . . . averaging 19%. The fibrous material was predominantly talc but probably contained minor amounts of tremolite, anthophyllite, and chrysotile [asbestos-like fibers] as these are often present in fibrous talc mineral deposits . . . Unknown significant amounts of such materials in products that may be used without precautions may create an unsuspected problem." L. J. Cralley et al., Fibrous and Mineral Content of Cosmetic Talcum PRODUCT, 29 AM. INDUSTRIAL HYGIENE ASSOC. J. 350-354 (1968).

71. In 1971, the New York City Environmental Protection Administration Air Resources Board conducted a study of two "leading" brands of talcum powder using transmission electron microscopy ("TEM") and X-ray diffraction analysis ("XRD") and found them to contain 5-25% tremolite and anthophyllite asbestos fibers.

72. A 1976 follow-up study of commercially available talcum products concluded that "[t]he presence in these products of asbestiform anthophyllite and tremolite, chrysotile, and quartz indicates the need for a regulatory standard for cosmetic talc . . . We also recommend that evaluation be made to determine the possible health hazards associated with the use of these products." Arthur Rohl, et al., Consumer talcums and powders: mineral and chemical characterization, 2 J. Tox. Envtl. Health 255-284 (1976).

73. In 1981, Lockey in Nonasbestos fibrous materials (1981), reported that talc frequently exists in complex deposits containing quartz and asbestos, and that talc free from asbestos also contains talc in fibrous form.

74. Paoletti et al. Evaluation by Electron Microscopy Techniques of Asbestos Contamination in Industrial, Cosmetic, and Pharmaceutical Talcs (1983), analyzed talc powders from national and international markets in order to assess their fiber contents and the proportion of asbestos in the fibrous material. Analysis of talcum powder samples revealed that the powders contained fiber content up to 30% of total particles. About a half of the talc powders revealed the presence of asbestos.

75. In 1991, Alice Blount tested talcum powder mined from Vermont, including Johnson's Baby Powder, and found that the powder contained asbestos fibers and needles. Blount, A M. "Amphibole Content of Cosmetic and Pharmaceutical Talcs." Environmental Health Perspectives 94 (August 1991): 225–30; See also Deposition of Alice Blount (April 13, 2018) at 30:16-33:8; 47:15-25.

76. On November 14, 2018, Drs. William Longo and Mark Rigler published a report detailing results from tests they performed on samples of Johnson and Johnson talc products provided by the Johnson & Johnson Defendants dating from the 1960s to the early 2000s. 68% of the samples tested contained amphibole asbestos. The authors further found that 98% of the samples contained fibrous talc.

77. In 2019, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) contracted AMA Analytical Services, Inc. to test samples of talc-containing cosmetics, including Johnson's Baby Powder. AMA identified chrysotile asbestos and talc fibers in a sample of Johnson's Baby Powder. As a result, Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc. issued a recall of all bottles (approximately 33,000) from the sampled lot.

c. Johnson & Johnson Concealed Evidence of Asbestos in the Products Despite Knowing the Risks to Consumers

78. Beginning at least in the 1950s, Johnson & Johnson tested its talc for contaminant or co-minerals, including "asbestos" and "tremolite," because the company knew they are deleterious minerals that could be harmful to a person's health and thus should not be found in talc-based cosmetic products.

79. At all times relevant hereto the Johnson & Johnson Defendants understood the dangers posed by asbestos exposure and that asbestos was a known contaminant of talc used in cosmetic and industrial products.

80. Internally, Johnson and Johnson historically defined "asbestos" as "the fibrous serpentine chrysotile and the fibrous forms of ... anthophyllite, ... tremolite, and actinolite." See Deposition of John Hopkins, August 16, 2018 at 174:24–175:23.

81. In addition to conducting its own internal tests described above, Johnson & Johnson hired testing laboratories, such as the Battelle Memorial Institute, McCrone Associates, the Colorado School of Mines Research Institute, and others to test for asbestos contamination (or co-mineralization) in the source talc ore used to manufacture Johnson's Baby Powder and Johnson & Johnson cosmetic products.[1]

82. All of these testing laboratories found asbestos minerals both in the source talc ore

and Johnson & Johnson's cosmetic talc products.2

83. Tests performed by the Johnson & Johnson Defendants and its consultants in the 1960s, 1970s, 1980s, and 1990s demonstrated that there was asbestos in the talc mined from Johnson & Johnson's Vermont mines.3

84. Contaminants satisfying Johnson & Johnson's own definition of asbestos have been found in Johnson & Johnson talc, include "chrysotile," "tremolite," "anthophyllite," and/or "actinolite". See, e.g., 12/4/1970 Colorado School of Mines Institute testing results; 6/30/1971 Colorado School of Mines Institute testing results; Barden Trial Ex. P3695-082-86: Summary chart of testing of Johnson's Baby Powder detecting asbestos and asbestos minerals.

85. The existence of laboratory tests finding asbestos in Johnson &Johnson cosmetic talc products and source talc used in those products was verified by Johnson & Johnson under cross examination in recent litigation. See Trial Testimony of John Hopkins from Barden et al v. J&J, 8/14/19 at 148:17-21.

86. As detailed in the following paragraphs, Johnson & Johnson executives acknowledged and communicated internally about the results of testing demonstrating the presence of asbestos in Johnson & Johnson's consumer talc products and the source ore used to make these products.

87. In 1972 for example, Johnson & Johnson's Al Goudie confirmed that McCrone found trace tremolite and that these findings are "not new." See handwritten note from W. Nashed to Dr. Goudie.

88. In May 1973, Roger Miller, the President of Johnson & Johnson's mining company, Windsor Minerals, informed Dr. Dewitt Petterson of Johnson & Johnson that "the ore body contains actinolite." See 5/1/1973, Memo from R.N. Miller to Dr. Petterson. This talc ore body was actively used to produce Johnson & Johnson's cosmetic talc products.

89. One week later, Johnson & Johnson's William Ashton informed Dr. Petterson that "[t]he first showing of actinolite we know about is October 1972." See 5/8/1973, Memo from W. Ashton to D. Petterson.

90. In April 1969, Johnson & Johnson discussed the need to firm up the company's position on tremolite in talc because of potential dangers to human health and safety noted in the medical literature and by environmental health agencies. See April 9, 1969 Ashton to Hildick Smith - Alternate Domestic Talc Sources File No. 101.

91. Johnson & Johnson was concerned that the presence of tremolite in its cosmetic talc products, and thus, the resultant inhalation of talc with these needle-like crystalline structures, was related to the rising incidence of pulmonary diseases and cancer and increased the risk that the company would be drawn into litigation relating to these diseases and cancer. See April 15, 1969 Thompson to Ashton - Alternate Domestic Talc Sources File No. 101.

92. In July 1971, Johnson & Johnson reported a conversation with Dr. Clark Cooper, a professor at the School of Public Health at the University of California, Berkley, who expressed his concern that there is no place for asbestos in talc and any talc with asbestos should be removed from the market. See 7/30/1971 Hildick Smith to R.A. Fuller). According to Dr. Cooper, no level of asbestos in talc is acceptable for cosmetic use. Id.

93. Johnson & Johnson was aware of studies demonstrating that both talc and asbestos have been found in the tissue of women who never worked with asbestos or talc. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 83:6-11.

94. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants have known for many years that the talc used in Johnson's Baby Powder could be inhaled and reach deep into the lung.

95. For decades, the Johnson & Johnson Defendants (and their predecessors) have known about the dangers of talc powder inhalation during the normal and expected use of its talc-based cosmetic products, especially to babies. Id. at 111:2–112:15; see also id. at 116:11–119:18 and 5/27/2009 email from Nancy Musco.

d. Defendants' Actions in Response to the Evidence of Cancer Risk

96. In response to the publication of the studies referenced above and governmental and consumer safety inquiries, the Johnson & Johnson Defendants have always assured consumers that asbestos has never been found in Johnson's Baby Powder and it never will. Historically, when pressed, Johnson & Johnson always responded that there is no evidence that Johnson's Baby Powder contained any amount of asbestos and there never was.

97. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants repeatedly informed consumers and the public that "Baby Powder does not contain asbestos and never will. We test every single lot to ensure it." See 12/19/2018 Johnson & Johnson Ad.

98. Johnson's Baby Powder product label says it was the "Purest Protection" and it was advertised as "the best you can buy" and "the purest."

99. The intent of these representations to consumers has always been "to reassure them they could feel safe and comfortable using Johnson's Baby Powder because it does not contain asbestos" and to convey that in using Johnson's Baby Powder, there was "zero chance" of exposing their families to asbestos. See February 15, 2019, Deposition of Nancy Musco at 39:7–42:8.

100. The statements made to consumers by the Johnson & Johnson Defendants, including that Johnson's Baby Powder does not contain asbestos and that there was "zero chance" consumers were exposing their families to asbestos, were false when they were made, and the Johnson & Johnson Defendants knew they were false when they made those statements.

101. As a direct result of the Johnson & Johnson Defendants' false representations that Johnson's Baby Powder never contained asbestos, millions of people, including babies, were unwittingly and needlessly exposed to asbestos.

102. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants have never communicated to the public or federal government that it knew that its asbestos containing talc-based cosmetic products would be aerosolized and inhaled during normal use.

103. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants have never placed warnings on its talc-based powder products about the potential hazards presented by the product being aerosolized in normal application.

104. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants never placed warnings on its talc-based powder products about the risk of asbestos exposure.

105. Johnson & Johnson purposely withheld from their spokespeople, whose job it was to communicate the "no evidence of asbestos" message, any reports indicating there was in fact evidence of asbestos in Johnson's Baby Powder.

106. In 1973, Cosmetic Toiletry and Fragrance Association ("CTFA"), now known as Personal Care Products Council ("PCPC"), the trade association utilized by the defendants to protect their interests, created a talc subcommittee and the Scientific Advisory Committee to develop a testing methodology for detecting asbestos in talc. Initially, PCPC designated a group of its members to test talc grades used in talcum powder utilizing the methodology proposed by the FDA in its notice of rulemaking. Six samples of talc used in commercially available talcum powders, plus one talc sample purposely spiked with tremolite and chrysotile, were circulated among the members, including representatives of Defendants. Of the eight participating members, four found asbestos in every sample, three did not find asbestos in any sample (including the spiked sample), and one found asbestos only in the spiked sample. In conclusion, all members agreed that the best and most reliable method of detecting asbestos in talc is not optical microscopy, but rather TEM and electron diffraction. The same members, however, dispensed with this analytical method, claiming TEM and electron diffraction equipment was too expensive, despite Defendants then owning or having unfettered access to same.

107. Going forward, the difference between what the Johnson & Johnson Defendants knew diverged from what they were representing to the FDA. Defendants and others in the industry knew that there was no such thing as asbestos-free talc—only talc in which asbestos could not be detected using the adopted and most economical analytical methodology, XRD, which at the time could not accurately identify chrysotile asbestos in talc, nor detect tremolite asbestos contamination levels below 2-5%.

108. Defendants and third parties collectively met with and corresponded with PCPC and also met with the FDA to individually and collectively advocate for the use of "voluntary" XRD testing of miniscule portions of the tons of talc to be used in consumer products. Defendants' "voluntary" method—that was developed collectively by Defendants and advocated to the FDA in lieu of regulations requiring asbestos labeling or warnings on talcum powder products—was inadequate because levels of asbestos contamination in talc commonly fell below the detection limit of XRD. Defendants knew that the XRD detection limits were inadequate. Defendants also knew that asbestos contamination was not uniformly distributed, such that the miniscule amounts tested would not reveal the true level of contamination in talc products, such as those to which Plaintiff was exposed.

109. In support of their voluntary XRD methodology, which was finally published in 1977, PCPC produced letters to the FDA written by its members, including Defendants, identifying tests conducted showing talcum powder products did not contain asbestos. Defendants, however, never informed the FDA of the hundreds of positive tests showing talc and talcum powders contained asbestos and other carcinogens. Defendants made and published representations claiming that their testing method was adequate, that they were ensuring that talcum powder products were safe, and that the talc reaching consumers was "safe," despite having substantial knowledge and evidence to the contrary. Defendants intentionally and knowingly did so to avoid FDA regulations that may have required them to place warnings regarding the asbestos content of their products, and thereby inform the public, including Plaintiff, that talc-containing products contained asbestos.

110. The Defendants have represented to various news media outlets and the public at large that their products are "asbestos-free" when, in fact they were aware that their products did test positive for asbestos and those that did not were merely the result of inadequate and imprecise testing methods. "No asbestos detected" means something much different than "no asbestos," but due to Defendants' repeated conflation of the terms, the public has been led to erroneously believe talc products are safe.

111. Between 1970 and the 1990s, tests conducted by and on behalf of Defendants and the talc industry continued to show that talc and talcum powder products contained asbestos as well as other constituents such as fibrous talc, cadmium, cobalt, chromium, copper, iron, manganese, and nickel. None of the results of the positive tests were ever produced or made known to any regulatory agency until late 2019, and only after knowledge of their existence became known in civil litigation.

112. Since at least 1979, Defendants have conducted a campaign to convince the public that their products are regulated by the FDA, their tests are conducted pursuant to FDA regulations, and that talcum powder products are, therefore, safe when in fact the FDA has never been granted the regulatory authority by Congress to regulate cosmetics, including talcum powders.

113. Defendants, collectively by their agreement and conspiracy, controlled industry standards regarding the testing, manufacture, sale, distribution and use of talcum powder products, and controlled the level of knowledge and information available to the public, including Plaintiff, regarding the hazards of exposure to carcinogens, including talc, asbestos, and fibrous talc. Defendants knowingly and intentionally released, published and disseminated invalid, inaccurate, outdated and misleading scientific data, literature containing misinformation and false statements regarding the health risks associated with the use of talc and talcum powder products, including those to which Plaintiff was exposed.

114. Defendants, while cognizant of the aforementioned data, deliberately chose to ignore the health and safety issues raised in the data and embarked upon a plan of deception intended to deprive the public at large, including Plaintiff, of alarming medical and scientific findings surrounding the safety of asbestos -containing talc and talcum powder products, many of which remained in their exclusive possession and under their exclusive control.

115. Defendants conspired and/or acted in concert with each other and/or with other entities through agreement and consciously parallel behavior: (a) to withhold from users of their products—and from persons who Defendants knew and should have known would be exposed thereto—information regarding the health risks of asbestos, talc, and other carcinogens contained in the products ; (b) to eliminate or prevent investigation into the health hazards of exposure to asbestos, talc and other carcinogens in the products; (c) to ensure that asbestos-containing talc and talcum powder products became widely used in commerce, irrespective of the potential and actual risk of harm to the users and consumers from the asbestos, talc and other carcinogens therein; and (d) to falsely represent that talc and talcum powder products, including those of Defendants, were safe for use by consumers.

116. McCrone Associates, the laboratory selected by several talc producers—including Defendants—to analyze their products, was already using TEM for asbestos analysis. An article by McCrone and Stewart from 1974 describes the advantages of TEM for asbestos analysis and states that TEM "only recently installed in our laboratory will undoubtedly be the ideal instrument for the detection and identification of very fine asbestos fibers."

117. The "Method J4-1," published on October 7, 1976, states that TEM-SAED "offers greater sensitivity, but is not presented since it is unsuitable for normal quality control applications." The published J4-1 method did not rely on TEM, but on XRD with "the level of detection of amphibole by this method [being] 0.5% and above." PCPC met with and corresponded with Defendants and third parties to advocate to the FDA for the use of inadequate XRD testing on miniscule portions of the tons of talc obtained from the mining sources to be used in the consumer products, followed by tests by TEM when XRD was positive or suspicious.

118. This voluntary testing method was developed by PCPC and Defendants and was advocated to the FDA by Defendants, among others, in lieu of regulations requiring labeling and warnings on talcum powder products, even though Defendants knew that the J4-1 method would not reveal the true level of asbestos in the talc that reached consumers. In fact, the first "round robin" tests, which analyzed a "PCPC Tremolite-Spiked Talc," resulted in 6 of 7 participating laboratories failing to detect the tremolite.

119. In other words, 84% of the industry's laboratories failed to detect asbestos in a sample known to contain tremolite asbestos while using the J4-1 method. There is no evidence that the Defendants ever shared this remarkable failure with the FDA or the public.

120. The FDA, and ultimately Plaintiff, directly and/or indirectly relied upon false representations regarding the safety of cosmetic talc. In fact, an FDA letter dated January 11, 1979, states "In cooperation with scientists from industry, our scientists have been making progress in the development of such regulatory methods." The continuing lack of FDA awareness regarding Defendants' misrepresentations and concealment was obvious seven years later. In a response to a July 11, 1986 Citizen Petition requesting an asbestos warning label on cosmetic talc, the FDA stated that an "analytical methodology was sufficiently developed" to ensure that "such talc [is] free of fibrous amphibole..." The J4-1 method has continued for the past four decades to be the cosmetic talc industry's method for "ensuring" "asbestos-free" talc.

121. In 1990, Kremer and Millette published a TEM method for analysis of asbestos in talc with a theoretical detection limit of about 0.00005%. Despite such improvements in analytical techniques, the cosmetic talc industry continues, three decades later, to use and promote its antiquated and wholly inadequate J4-1 method.

122. In response to safety issues related to talc and talc-based body powders, the CTFA formed the Talc Interested Party Task Force (TIPTF). The TIPTF, which was originally formed in anticipation of litigation related safety issues, periodically convened, including in the 1970s and 1980s, to defend talc in response to safety concerns about talc. The TIPTF once again convened in and around 1992 to combat the United States National Toxicology Program's study. Defendant Johnson & Johnson was one of the primary actors and contributors to the TIPTF. See Talc Interested Party Task Force Draft Minutes, July 21, 1993 (JNJ000011704), Talc Interested Party Task Force Memorandum February 13, 1998P-83 (LUZ011963); and see February 18, 2016 Deposition of Mark Pollak Exhibit No. 2 Spreadsheet: Talc IP – Revenue Received; Date Initiated: 08/17/92.

123. The stated purpose of the TIPTF was to pool financial resources of these companies in an effort to collectively defend the use of talc and, specifically, talc-based body powders at all costs, in anticipation of future litigation, ensure self-regulation, and to prevent local, state or federal regulation of any type over this industry. Johnson & Johnson wielded considerable influence on TIPTF. TIPTF hired scientists to perform biased research regarding the safety of talc. Members of TIPTF, including Johnson & Johnson, edited reports of the scientists hired by this group before they were submitted to governmental agencies and/or released to the consuming public. Members of TIPTF knowingly released false information about the safety of talc to the consuming public, and used political and economic influence on local, state and federal regulatory bodies regarding talc. These activities were conducted by these companies and organizations, including Johnson & Johnson, over the past four (4) decades in an effort to prevent regulation of talc and to create confusion to the consuming public about the true hazards of talc relative to cancer. See Talc Interested Party Task Force Draft Minutes, July 21, 1993 (JNJ000011704); Luzenac America Slideshow (JNJTALC000249618); CTFA Memorandum July 17, 1992 (JNJ000021035); Luzenac America Call Report November 8, 1993(P-66 (IMERYS-A_0006056); Letter from Alfred Wehner to Chudkowski, September 17, 1997 (JNJ000040596); Narrative Talc – NTP Regulatory Challenge (IMERYS-A_0021921); Facsimile from Zazenski to Ashton, March 26, 2002 (JNJ000000636); Cosmetics Consultant Update Kollmar to Bernstein et al, September 12, 2000 (JNJTALC000716846); Talc Franchise to C.D. Simons, August 3, 1992 (JNJTALC000224218).

124. In and around the mid-1970s, the Cosmetic Ingredient Review ("CIR") was formed to give the cosmetic industry more credibility for self-regulation. Since that time, CIR has reviewed the safety of ingredients used in the cosmetic and personal care products industry. Although Defendants have, at all relevant times, promoted CIR as an independent, regulatory body, CIR is an organization within and wholly funded by PCPC, to which Defendants regularly contributed.

125. Over the years, CIR has reviewed thousands of ingredients used in the cosmetics industry but has only found 12 ingredients to be "unsafe for use in cosmetics." In contrast, CIR has deemed approximately 1,800 ingredients to be "safe as used." Additionally, the CIR Expert Panel annually holds two-day quarterly meetings to review substances. Over the course of these annual meetings, the panel is able to review about 500 ingredients per year. On average, only about 20 minutes are spent discussing the safety of each ingredient.

126. The CIR did not begin to review talc until after the first lawsuit alleging a link between talc use and ovarian cancer was filed. Upon information and belief, during the CIR review process, Defendants, influenced the CIR scientists writing and performing the review and, ultimately, edited the reviews in a biased manner. Not surprisingly, when CIR published its final report in 2015, it found talc to be safe as used in cosmetics.

127. In addition, Defendants procured and disseminated false, misleading, and biased information regarding the safety of talc, talc-based body powders and the products to the public, and used influence over federal, state and local governmental and regulatory bodies regarding talc and talc-based body powder. See Letter from Alfred Wehner to Chudkowski, September 17, 1997 (JNJ000040596); Johnson's Baby Powder Major Opportunities, August 5, 1992 (JNJ000021093); and Litigation Issues, February 26, 2002 (IMERYS-A_0013094).

128. Defendants engaged in wrongful conduct and were negligent and created a dangerous and unreasonable risk of harm to others, including Plaintiff, by mining, milling, processing, supplying, distributing, designing, manufacturing, and selling talcum powder products which contained asbestos and fibrous talc, which Defendants knew or should have known were dangerous and posed substantial risks of harm to others, including Plaintiff.

129. Defendants have long employed and/or consulted with doctors, scientists, geologists, mineralogists, and toxicologists, and they have maintained extensive medical and scientific libraries and archives containing materials relating to the health hazards of talc and the presence of asbestos and asbestiform talc fibers in talc and talc deposits. Despite the wealth of knowledge, Defendants continued to mine, mill, process, supply, distribute, design, manufacture, and sell talcum powder products which Defendants knew or should have known were dangerous and posed substantial risks of harm to others, including Plaintiff.

e. Johnson & Johnson had an Independent Duty to Ensure the Safety of All Johnson & Johnson Products

130. Johnson & Johnson, through its Chief Medical Officer, had the independent and ultimate responsibility for the safety of talc and all products developed and sold by all J&J subsidiaries, including Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc.

131. Johnson & Johnson, through its Chief Medical Officer, had the independent and ultimate responsibility for the safety of talc and all products developed and sold by all J&J subsidiaries, including Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc.

132. As described by Ed Kuffner, MD., the Johnson & Johnson Consumer Inc. Chief Medical Officer, JJCI had a Consumer Medical Safety Committee (CMSC) which was initially responsible for the review of safety of consumer products produced by JJCI at that sector level but that J&J had a separate and distinct J&J Medical Safety Council (JJMSC) responsible for all products sold by any J&J Subsidiary. Testimony of Ed Kuffner, MD, In re: LTL Management LLC, November 5, 2021, at 396-398. One of the products within the JJMSC was Johnsons Baby Powder.

133. The Chair of the JJMSC was not an employee of JJCI. Rather, the Chair of the JJMSC was J&J's Chief Medical Officer, employed by defendant J&J. Id. at 398. While the JJMSC had representatives from different J&J subsidiaries within the Consumer Products, Pharmaceuticals, and Medical Devices divisions, the Committee Chair was the J&J Chief Medical Officer, who had ultimate responsibility to make decisions regarding safety of any product sold by any subsidiaries.

134. J&J's internal Policies and Procedures described the JJMSC as the highest body of the Johnson & Johnson Enterprise engaged in "setting the standards for medical safety" across the J&J enterprise. According to J&J Policies and Procedures, the role of the JJMSC was to: (a)"Set [] medical safety standards to protect safety of patients, consumers, and users of products marketed by Johnson & Johnson companies"; and (b) To "provid[e] review and consultation on matters of medical safety at the Enterprise level." Id. at 401. The purpose of the JJMSC was to review and, where necessary, correct the safety decisions made by subsidiaries like JJCI to "to make sure that they are in accord with the overall safety standards of" J&J. Id. at 404.

135. The independent decision-making authority of the J&J CMO over any product sold by any subsidiary—including the products—is clear. According to the J&J Policies and Procedures, the J&J Chief Medical Officer makes the final decision on any issue relating to safety and can summarily overrule every member of the JJMSC.

136. In a formal public video released by Johnson & Johnson in 2017, made by the J&J Chief Medical Officer, Joanne Waldstreicher, M.D., J&J made clear that all issues concerning the safety of all J&J products reside in the hands of the J&J Chief Medical Officer. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=yhhaD03Vjeo. According to Dr. Waldstreicher, the J&J Chief Medical Officer's authority "includes changes to development programs, labeling updates, warnings, and, when necessary, product withdrawals." Dr. Waldstreicher further explained that, as the J&J employee responsible for safety of all J&J products, she was central in evaluating the safety of all products sold across the J&J enterprise. "When questions are raised regarding the safety of our products, members of the OCMO team are dedicated to understanding the concerns."

137. According to Mr. Kim, LTL Chief Legal Officer and former J&J Associate General Counsel, the role of J&J as described in the J&J Policies and Procedures has long been the practice at J&J.

f. Defendants Misrepresented or Concealed Information about Asbestos in the Products from the Government and the Public

138. Since the early 1970's the FDA has repeatedly asked Johnson & Johnson whether its talc-based products contained asbestos, including whether there was any evidence of any amount of asbestos in any Johnson & Johnson cosmetic talc product. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 87:10-23; 88:20-24.

139. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants' answer to the FDA's inquiries was always the same: there is no evidence of any amount of asbestos in any Johnson & Johnson cosmetic talc product. Id. at 89:3-8.

140. While Johnson & Johnson's CEO has recently proclaimed that "we have always cooperated fully and openly with the FDA and other regulators and have given them full access to our talc testing results" the record is to the contrary. See December 19, 2018 Johnson & Johnson Ad; see also, Alex Gorsky Video4 (Johnson & Johnson claims that it "has cooperated fully with the U.S. FDA and other global regulators providing them with all the information they requested over decades.").

141. In the early 1970s, independent scientists publicly reported finding asbestos in Johnson & Johnson talc products. See 11/10/1971, Letter from A.M. Langer to G. Hildick-Smith, 9/9/1975, Memo from G. Lee Re: A.M. Langer Analysis of Talcum Powder Products – Edinburgh Meeting, and Meeting with Dr. Langer on July 9 Concerning Analytical Analysis of Talc.

142. In response, Johnson & Johnson sought to discredit the independent scientists' results and hired consultants to refute the asbestos in talc findings. Some of Johnson & Johnson's experts found asbestos when evaluating consumer talc products. These results were reported to Johnson & Johnson though the company never provided those results to the FDA. Johnson & Johnson's claim that it provided the FDA with its "entire background file on asbestos talc testing" related to the company's cosmetic talc products was untrue because it never provided the FDA with the test results it received that identified asbestos in its talc and cosmetic talc products. See February 19, 2019

Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 184:20–185:9.

143. Johnson & Johnson did not tell the FDA that it possessed test results finding asbestos in the mine ore and the finished talc product, nor did it give those results to the FDA. Id. at 105:2-5.

144. Under cross-examination, Johnson & Johnson's representative was forced to admit that despite claiming that it provided all testing to the FDA, Johnson & Johnson never provided any results of asbestos testing of its talc products or ore to the FDA for the Vermont mine after 1973. See March 6, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 293:12–294:19. These include tests in which fibers matching the Johnson & Johnson definition of asbestos were found. Id. at 349:6–353:23.

145. Since the early 1970s, Johnson & Johnson represented to the FDA that there was no tremolite or fibrous talc in its talc-based cosmetic products. Id. at 89:17–90:8); see also 7/21/1971 J&J Memo to File: Special Talc Project No. 503 FDA Meeting.

146. Over the course of more than 4 decades, Johnson & Johnson represented to the FDA "over and over again" that there is not a single instance or report of asbestos – including chrysotile asbestos – in its products. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 98:10-19.

147. Beginning in early 1970s, Johnson & Johnson represented to the FDA that its data "conclusively proves that Johnson's Baby Powder is free of asbestos." Id. at 90:9-23; see also 9/21/1971 Letter from W. Nashed to FDA Director R. Schaffner ("It is seen that the data conclusively proves that Johnson's Baby Powder is free of asbestos.")

148. Johnson & Johnson has represented to the FDA that "no amphibole materials have been detected" in the company's talc-based products. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 99:2-21; see also 3/15/1976 Letter from G. Lee re: Examination of Asbestos in Talc at 6.

149. When pressed, Johnson & Johnson went so far as to represent to the FDA that "there wasn't a shred of evidence to support the idea that either our Johnson's Baby Powder or Shower to Shower contained any chrysotile asbestos." See 12/13/1972 J&J Memo re: Meeting Nov. 1, 1972 with Dr. Schaffner – FDA; see also February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson 90:24–91:18.

150. Johnson & Johnson knew that its standby consultant McCrone purposely omitted findings of asbestos in its talc-based products because it "would only tend to confuse the issue perhaps with the FDA" and offered that if Johnson & Johnson "decide[d] to use these reports with the FDA" to "please call us." See 10/12/1971 Letter from G. Grieger to A. Goudie; see also March

6, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 327:14–328:21.

151. As a part of its testing and reporting protocol for the Johnson & Johnson Defendants' talc-based products, McCrone would segregate any test results that were positive for the presence of asbestos in talc ore or cosmetic talc products from those that allegedly found "no quantifiable" asbestos. For instance, on April 29, 1986, under McCrone Project No. ME-2275 and Purchase Order WS-0503, McCrone authored two separate reports of test results for Windsor Minerals. The first was for 11 talc samples in which "no quantifiable" amounts of asbestiform were found. The second was for the three talc samples (noticeably extracted from the numbering sequence) in which traces of chrysotile were found. Compare Nancy Musco Dep. Ex. 8B, Tab 73 with 4/29/1986 Edley Samples.

152. As further explained in the paragraphs below, McCrone and the Johnson & Johnson Defendants worked together to manipulate the asbestos testing results of Johnson & Johnson products done by outside laboratories and reported those manipulated findings to the FDA as negative results.

153. Although aware of McCrone reports to the contrary, Johnson & Johnson represented to the FDA that its consultant McCrone Associates never found asbestos in the talc ore that was used to make the PRODUCTS. Deposition of Susan Nicholson At 316:8-23; see also id. 326:20–327:2 (Johnson & Johnson cites McCrone tests to the FDA to support its position that there was "no evidence" of asbestos in the Shower to Shower product). This statement to the FDA was false.

154. In 1972, after Johnson & Johnson was notified that an FDA consultant found asbestos in the Johnson & Johnson talc products, Johnson & Johnson hired Professor Hutchinson from the Minnesota Space Center to privately test the products with the intention of refuting the FDA consultant's findings.

155. On September 20, 1972, in anticipation of a meeting with the FDA to discuss the asbestos test results, Johnson & Johnson executives arranged for its consultant, Ian Stewart of McCrone, to meet with Professor Hutchinson in the Chicago O'Hare airport. At that meeting, Professor Hutchinson informed Ian Stewart that he found "incontrovertible asbestos" in Johnson & Johnson's talc-based products. See handwritten notes by Professor Hutchinson. From there Mr. Stewart, on behalf of Johnson & Johnson, flew directly to Washington DC to meet with the FDA to discuss test results. Mr. Stewart never disclosed Dr. Hutchinson's findings of asbestos to the FDA. See Ian Stewart Traveling Expense report.

156. Thereafter, Professor Hutchinson provided Johnson & Johnson with a formal report documenting his asbestos findings with photographs of the asbestos he found in the Johnson & Johnson products. Johnson & Johnson produced excerpts of the report to the FDA, removing all references to Professor Hutchinson's "incontrovertible" findings of chrysotile asbestos. See March 6, 2019 Deposition of Nicholson at 339:20–341:9, 345:11-21.

157. Johnson & Johnson similarly never informed the FDA that it was aware of additional evidence demonstrating the presence of actinolite in Johnson's Baby Powder. Id. at 325:4-15. For example, Johnson & Johnson did not submit a March 1974 test result from Professor Reynolds at Dartmouth College that "Actinolite is the dominant fiberform amphibole in the ore and talc product provided by Windsor Minerals." Id. at 346:24–347:2; see also JNJ 000266903 (3/1974 Memo re: Analysis of Talc Products and Ores for Asbestiform Amphiboles).

158. Instead, Johnson & Johnson submitted test results to the FDA from Dartmouth claiming that no amphiboles were found in the company's talc products. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 158:10–159:1.

159. As part of its plan to mislead the FDA and falsely claim its talc ore and cosmetic talc products were free of any asbestos, Johnson & Johnson hired outside consultants to conduct tests of Johnson & Johnson talc products using test methods Johnson & Johnson knew would not detect asbestos at low levels. Id. at 196:19-24, 197:24–198:8.

160. Thereafter, Johnson & Johnson submitted test reports to the FDA as proof that its talc was asbestos free knowing that the methods used would not detect asbestos at low levels and, thus, were not reliable to rule out the presence of asbestos. See March 6, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 255:23-256:4.

161. Instead of utilizing a method it knew was sensitive enough to find asbestos at low levels, Johnson & Johnson routinely used a testing method that was not sufficient to detect asbestos at those level and continued to submit the same false negative testing results to the FDA. This method was known as J4-1.

162. The J4-1 testing method utilized "XRD" as the initial screen to determine if any further testing was necessary (with a level of detection of about 1%). See CTFA Method J4-1 Part I & Part II. If the XRD test result was negative, no more testing would occur, and the sample would be reported as "none detected." This process virtually guaranteed that low levels of asbestos would never be found.

163. Johnson & Johnson similarly knew that XRD could not detect chrysotile at levels below two or three percent of the talc product and was also incapable of detecting low levels of tremolite. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 196:19-198:8.

164. In the unlikely event an XRD test result was positive, Johnson & Johnson implemented a second step, polarized light microscopy ("PLM"), but instructed the PLM analyst not to count all of the fibers he or she would actually see under the microscope. See CTFA Method J4-1 Part I & Part II. Short fibers, below a defined size, recognized as carcinogenic, were excluded from any reporting. According to the J4-1 method, a fiber must have an aspect ratio (length to width) of 5:1 or greater, and both dispersion testing and fibrous morphology criteria must be satisfied before a particle can be identified as asbestiform. Id. and see JNJNL61_000005032 (5/21/1995, Johnson & Johnson TM7024 TEM Analysis of Talc for Asbestiform Minerals).

165. Johnson & Johnson knew and was advised of other methods of testing talc that were sensitive enough to detect the presence of small fibers of asbestos in its talc ore and/or cosmetic talc products and, thus, provide more accurate results than the testing it purposely utilized to increase the likelihood of negative results. One of those methods was the "pre-concentration" method. See JNJ 000268037 (12/27/1973 Colorado School of Mines Research Institute report); 6/6/1973, Memo JNJAZ55_000005081 to Pooley from Rolle; JNJ000266903 (3/1974 Memo from R.C. Reynolds, Jr. to Windsor Minerals, Inc.)("a concentration technique is mandatory because it brings the amphiboles into a reasonable concentration range for optical or other methods of analysis."); JNJNL61_000007330 (Special Talc Studies Monthly Report, March, 1974 – Assay Methods for Asbestos Minerals in Talc); JNJ 000250919 (3/11/1974, Memo from J.P. Schelz to F.R. Rolle); JNJNL61_000062964 (11/26/1974, Memo from J.P. Schelz to F.R. Rolle) (collectively referred to as "concentration method").

166. Internal Johnson & Johnson memoranda prove the company considered "the limitation" of the concentration method "is that it may be too sensitive" and when used found traces of tremolite which the J&J testing methods would fail to expose. JNJAZ55_00001892 (5/16/1973, Memo from F.R. Rolle to T.H. Shelley).

167. When Johnson & Johnson consultant, Dr. Fred Pooley, told Johnson & Johnson that the concentration method was being used in Great Britain, the method was rejected by Johnson & Johnson as not "in the worldwide company interest." JNJNL61_000062953 (2/18/1975 Johnson & Johnson Limited letter to Johnson & Johnson).

168. Although many of Johnson & Johnson's consultants — including the Colorado Research School of Mines, Professor Pooley of Cardiff University, Professor Reynolds of Dartmouth College, and Professor Alice Blount of Rutgers University — found asbestos in Johnson & Johnson's talc-based cosmetic products using the pre-concentration method, the company did not provide any of those test results to the FDA. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 172:8-15.

169. Johnson & Johnson was also urged by its consultants to use TEM to test for asbestos as it was far more sensitive than the J4-1 method used by Johnson & Johnson. See, e.g., (JNJNL61_000006726 (5/18/1973, Message on from G.E. Heinze to W. Ashton et al. – Talc Symposium), JNJ 000035507 (9/30/1992, Notes on Meeting with Professor F. Pooley, Cardiff) ("TEM is the only suitable method for looking for fibers of biologically relevant dimensions in lungs, therefore it is logical to use the same technique for examining mineral products for biologically relevant fibers."); Johnson & Johnson correspondence at FDA_FOIA_013573 ("I think we all recognize XRD, PCM, and PLM are simply not sensitive enough to provide complete assurance that the talc is free of detectable asbestos.").

170. Eventually, Johnson & Johnson began to use TEM as a testing method on a limited basis, but implemented a TEM reporting methodology designed to yield negative, rather than accurate results. In this regard, Johnson & Johnson intentionally limited the amount of each sample that was analyzed and required a high fiber count of the same mineral type before a positive result could be reported. Johnson & Johnson called its method TM7024.

171. According to Johnson & Johnson's TM7024 method, Johnson & Johnson would report the test results as negative and "not quantifiable" unless the scientist, who was directed to look only at approximately 10 percent of the material available to examine under the microscope, counted 5 or more asbestos fibers of the same variety. JNJNL_000005032 (5/21/1995, Johnson & Johnson TM7024 TEM Analysis of Talc for Asbestiform Minerals). Thus, even if the examiner counted as many as 16 asbestos fibers (i.e. four fibers each of tremolite, actinolite, anthophyllite, and chrysotile) looking only at 10 % of the sample seen under the microscope, it would be reported as not finding asbestos or "not quantifiable."

172. Johnson & Johnson's position about the scientific propriety of its TM7024 testing protocol was and remains inconsistent with that of environmental and health agencies. The United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") has refused to limit its concern to only the type of identifiable asbestos fibers Johnson & Johnson instructs its microscopists to count. See 4/20/2006

US EPA Region IX Response to the November 2005 R.J. Lee Group, Inc.

173. To further reduce the likelihood of detecting asbestos in its cosmetic talc ore, Johnson & Johnson required J4-1 method testing on only a composite from every two silos of talc (each silo containing hundreds of tons of talc), TM7024 testing only quarterly from a composite of all siloed talc, and a monthly composite of float feed. JNJMX68_000002913_(10/4/1984, Memo from J.A. Molnar to B. Semple, on Evaluation Program for Talc). As a result, the total amount of talcum powder Johnson & Johnson ever put under a microscope to test for asbestos was approximately 1/100 of a breath mint by weight. January 29, 2020 Trial Testimony of Matthew Sanchez at 134:19:135:20.

174. Even though Johnson & Johnson tested miniscule amounts of product, and utilized methods specifically designed to yield negative results, asbestos was still found in Johnson & Johnson's cosmetic talc. See J&J-414 (Hopkins 28) chart of various testing results. Upon information and belief, Johnson & Johnson did not produce these asbestos-positive test results to the public until 2017.

175. In 1976, Johnson & Johnson rejected the FDA's request to provide the results of its respective periodic monitoring for asbestos. See March 6, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 255:17-256:6.)

176. Johnson & Johnson also submitted false and misleading statements through its trade association (CTFA).

177. In March of 1976, the CTFA told the FDA that all industry testing had shown all talcum powder products to be completely free of asbestos. See Letter to Eiermann from Estrin, March 15, 1976 (JNJ000330157).

178. On March 15, 1976, George Lee, Director of Applied Research for Johnson & Johnson, wrote to the CTFA, with the "understanding that you would wish to submit this information to the FDA," that it was "erroneously reported in 1971 that our powder contained asbestos," that the Vermont talc is "highly purified," and that Johnson & Johnson confirms the "absence of asbestos materials in this talc." See Letter from Lee to Estrin, March 15, 1976 WCD000009. This false information was then transmitted by the CTFA to the FDA to "give assurance as to the freedom from contamination by asbestos form materials of cosmetic talc products." See Ltr. to Eiermann from Estrin, March 15, 1976 (JNJ000330157).

179. Two weeks later, on March 31, 1976, Johnson & Johnson met privately in Hillside, New Jersey. During this meeting, Defendants congratulated themselves on the "success" of the "presentations" to the FDA and agreed that they should not bind themselves to having to further update the FDA. See Talc Subcommittee Minutes, March 31, 1976 (JNJ000299024).

180. On March 1, 1978, John Schelz, the Chairman of the CTFA Task Force On Round Robin Testing and then current employee of Johnson & Johnson, instructed the CTFA to "destroy your copy of the table" containing the results of the CTFA Task Force on Round Robin Testing of Consumer Talcum Products for Asbestiform Amphibole Minerals. See JNJNL_000062534 (3/1/1978 correspondence from Johnson & Johnson to the CTFA).

181. Decades after asbestos was first reported, Johnson & Johnson continued to represent to the FDA that it had confirmed "the absence of asbestiform minerals" in its finished talc-based products. See JNJ 000021285 (6/27/1995 Comments of CTFA in Response to a Citizens Petition at 7-8).

182. As recent as 2016, the Johnson & Johnson Defendants represented to the FDA that no asbestos structures have ever been found in its talc-based products in any testing anywhere in the world. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 99:18–100:9; see also JNJ 000489313 (3/17/2016 J&J Response to FDA Request for Information on Talc at 12). This statement made to the FDA was false.

183. In about 2013, while editing information for its website, Johnson & Johnson even acknowledged internally that it "cannot say our talc-based consumer products have always been asbestos free"5 but made the representations anyhow. See Draft 1 – Copy for SafetyandCareCommitment Website.

g. Johnson & Johnson Destroyed or Secreted Away Relevant Evidence.

184. Johnson & Johnson has had the duty to preserve evidence and documents relevant to foreseeable litigation, including the responsibility to suspend any document destruction policies beginning 1969, and certainly no later than 1971.

185. Defendant Johnson & Johnson intentionally failed to preserve relevant documents generated in litigation in a number of cases filed against it between 1960s to the 1990s.

186. Since at least 1969, Johnson & Johnson was aware that it was foreseeable and likely that it would be sued in personal injury litigation alleging pulmonary injuries – including asbestos-related disease – attributable to Johnson & Johnson's talc-based products.

5 See n. 3 & 4, supra.

187. On April 15, 1969, Dr. T.M. Thompson, Medical Director for Johnson & Johnson, wrote to Mr. William H. Ashton, a Johnson & Johnson executive supervising the company's talc-based products, to advise him of danger relative to "inhalation" of the "spicule" or "needle-like" crystals of tremolite in Johnson & Johnson's talc. See JNJ000087991 (4/15/1969 Letter from T. Thompson to W. Ashton Re: Alternate Domestic Talc Sources) ("[S]ince pulmonary diseases, including inflammatory, fibroplastic and neoplastic types, appear to be on the increase, it would seem prudent to limit any possible content of tremolite in our powder formulations to an absolute minimum.").

188. Although Dr. Thompson states that he was not aware of "any litigation involving either skin or lung penetration by our talc formulations," he cautioned Mr. Ashton that "since the usage of these products is so widespread, and the existence of pulmonary disease is increasing, it is not inconceivable that [Johnson & Johnson] could become involved in litigation in which pulmonary fibrosis or other changes might be rightfully or wrongfully attributed to inhalation of our powder formulations." Id. To that end, Dr. Thompson recommended that "someone in the Law Department should be consulted with regard to the defensibility of our position in the event that such a situation could ever arise." Id.; see also February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 64:18–68:1.

189. Dr. Thompson further forewarned Mr. Ashton that the company could confront a situation where the company would be more or less compelled to remove its talc products "if it became known that our talc formulations contained any significant amount of Tremolite." See JNJ000087991 (4/15/1969 Letter from T. Thompson to W. Ashton Re: Alternate Domestic Talc Sources).

190. Dr. Thompson's prediction of litigation came to fruition shortly thereafter. By the early 1970's, Johnson and Johnson was involved in litigating and planning its defense to personal injury cases related to its talc products.

191. Through the litigation process, Johnson & Johnson has been forced to identify documents from as early as 1971 (and from every year thereafter) relating to "ongoing," "pending," and "anticipated" litigation regarding Johnson's Baby Powder. See February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 74:23–76:7, 93:3-16.

192. Since at least 1971, Johnson & Johnson has known and recognized that information and documentation in the company's possession relevant to or produced in any particular talc-based lawsuit would be relevant to discovery in future talc-based cases. Id. at 25:13-20.

193. Johnson & Johnson has reported that during the 1970s alone, the company was sued in talc-based cases in nearly each year of the decade. Id. at 81:25–82:18. Although Johnson & Johnson was legally obligated to retain the evidence, it claims it does not know where the documents and evidence related to these cases are located or whether they even exist. Id. at 78:25-79:23; 80:6-81:24.

194. While the evidence from the cases is missing, documents listed on Johnson & Johnson's privilege log related to these cases date back to 1971 and every year thereafter. Id. at 93:3-16. The cases described on the log indicate the records from which were spoliated and no longer exist include litigation involving both industrial talc and Johnson's Baby Powder. Id. at 93:17-94:16.

195. The destruction or secreting away of evidence began at least as early as the 1970's. In 1977, for example, the Talc Task Force conducted "round robin" testing of talcum powder products manufactured by member companies.

196. John P. Schelz, a Johnson & Johnson employee and chair of the Talc Task Force, coordinated the testing and review of the testing data. See Task Force Member Letter, June 10, 1977 (JNJ 000250596).

197. Once the testing data was received, Schelz compiled the data in a table and assigned each sample a coded value. He then created a separate "code key" to interpret the coded value assigned to each sample.

198. He did not send the code key to any of the other companies. See Ltr. to Haynes from Schelz, March 1, 1978 (JNJ 000265120).

199. Schelz sent the only other copy of the code key to Charles Haynes at PCPC with instructions to destroy the code key after Haynes called the companies to inform them of the results. Id.

200. Upon information and belief, both Schelz and Haynes destroyed the code keys to the "round robin" testing results. As a result, it's impossible to determine which products were tested. Id.

201. All companies involved in the "round robin" testing agreed to the process of destroying the code key.

202. The information contained in files of cases involving injuries sustained from Johnson and Johnson's industrial talc are highly relevant to this case as it was the same used in JBP. See Affidavit of Roger Miller, Edley v. Windsor Minerals, Inc., No. MID-L-075913-86 (N.J. Super. Ct. Middlesex County).

203. According to Johnson & Johnson's own records prior to 2000, there were personal injury cases involving Johnson's Baby Powder filed and pending with future cases anticipated.

204. Although Johnson & Johnson, by its own admission, had an obligation to preserve evidence once litigation concerning the health effects of its talc products was foreseeable, it failed to do so. See February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 278:24-280:23.

205. Johnson & Johnson knew and understood that evidence adduced in litigation concerning the health effects of its talc products would be material and relevant to other anticipated cases. Id. Yet Johnson & Johnson failed to preserve records from any of the lawsuits that alleged injuries as a result of Johnson's Baby Powder, talc, or asbestos, even though Johnson & Johnson knew that relevant and material documents existed and were in its possession.

206. While Johnson and Johnson internally recognized there could be dire consequences for failing to preserve evidence there is no record of a litigation hold ever being imposed prior to 1997. Even then, Johnson & Johnson's General Counsel John O'Shaughnessy only preserved evidence when there was a case actually pending and not when anticipated. See June 29, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 310:20-311:5.

207. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants did not retain any samples of its talc ore or milled talc used in its talc-based cosmetic products, which it tested regularly, albeit insufficiently, for the presence of asbestos and asbestiform minerals at any time until 2017. See October 18, 2018 Deposition of James Mittenthal at 405:22-407:9; 424:2-425:7.

208. The entries on the Johnson & Johnson privilege log indicate that samples of talcum powder used in litigation existed at the time the litigation in the 1970s, 1980's and 1990's was pending, but those samples were destroyed. Id. at 93:17-94:16. The relevance of those samples were acknowledged by Johnson and Johnson internally on numerous occasions.

209. Although litigation was pending and anticipated, the samples chosen by Johnson & Johnson specifically to create test results were not retained under the company's evidence retention schedules and were not subject to any litigation-hold. Id. at 371:14-374:9; 384:8-387:4; 405:22-

210. Johnson & Johnson's failure to institute a litigation hold also made certain that the testing results were destroyed in accordance with its document retention policy. Id. at 405:22-407:1.

211. At all times relevant to this current lawsuit, Johnson & Johnson has been in complete control of all aspects of the domestic and foreign subsidiaries implicated in its talc, including, but not limited to, the testing of talc source ore mines and testing of finished Johnson's Baby Powder end-products. Johnson & Johnson knew, or should have known, that this material would be material in pending and anticipated cases alleging injury resulting from exposure to its talc products and, therefore, had a duty to preserve that testing evidence. Johnson & Johnson destroyed those testing results and discarded its samples of talc.

212. Johnson & Johnson failed to preserve talc samples maintained in its museum after 1982 when the museum was suspended, even though litigation was pending and anticipated at that time. See July 12, 2018 Deposition of Margaret Gurowitz at 157:24–159:17.

213. The Johnson & Johnson Defendants did not instruct its consultants that repeatedly tested its talc ore and products to retain the samples tested, even though litigation was pending and anticipated. See, e.g., Id. 158:12–159:16. Although the Johnson & Johnson Defendants were acutely aware that it was McCrone's policy to dispose of samples 30 days after testing results were generated, it never instructed McCrone to retain any samples including the samples specifically tested for purposes of litigation. See, e.g., 1/28/87 McCrone Letter at JNJTALC000387715.

214. Johnson & Johnson failed to retain all test results for the presence of asbestos and asbestiform minerals of the talc ore and milled talc used in its talc-based cosmetic products. See Deposition of James Mittenthal at 405:22-406:24.

215. Even after a litigation hold was finally issued, Johnson & Johnson failed to retain samples from its Worldwide Talc Survey. See JNJNL_000015761 (10/20/2000 Letter).

216. From the 1950s to the 2000s, Defendant Johnson & Johnson (or outside laboratories, including RJ Lee and McCrone) tested samples of talc for asbestos content.

217. Upon information and belief, Defendant Johnson & Johnson failed to ensure the preservation of these samples, TEM grids, count sheets, photomicrographs, and other documents generated during the testing and, as a result, the samples, TEM grids, count sheets, photomicrographs, and other documents generated during the testing were destroyed.

218. Any test results that Johnson & Johnson has not yet produced are presumed to be destroyed, as the disposal of these results was mandated by the company's evidence retention scheduled absent a litigation hold, which Johnson & Johnson never issued. Id.

219. In addition to final testing results, Johnson & Johnson failed to preserve any of the original scientific data underlying these results. Besides failing to retain the actual talc ore and milled talc samples, Johnson & Johnson did not retain photomicrographs, count sheets, or TEM grids and knowingly allowed for this evidence to be destroyed.

220. This missing scientific data is of utmost importance to the fair and proper vetting of Johnson & Johnson's defense. The limited underlying scientific data that still exists confirms that the reports of "no detectable" asbestos are belied by the underlying scientific data, which shows evidence of asbestos. Compare page 1 with pages 4 and 10 in 11/26/1990 McCrone letter to Michael J. Keener Re: sample analysis. There are countless similar non-detect letters with no underlying data.

221. Plaintiff is clearly hampered in the ability to prove Plaintiff's case by the intentional destruction of the samples and underlying testing data as evidenced by the fact that the underlying data that mistakenly avoided the shredder prove that tests Johnson & Johnson asserts were negative prove the J&J talc was contaminated with asbestos. See ¶187.

222. The destruction of the underlying testing data is not limited to McCrone but extends to all outside consultants hired by Johnson & Johnson. For example, while the University of Minnesota found asbestos in Johnson & Johnson talc while litigation was pending against Johnson & Johnson the photomicrographs underlying the reported findings of asbestos minerals are missing. See March 6, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 333:8-23.

223. In 1989, after facing litigation related to its talc-based products for nearly two decades and anticipating further litigation, Johnson & Johnson intentionally destroyed records relating to its Hammondsville, Vermont mining operations. JNJ 000240739 (11/23/1993 Denton to Ashton and Jones at p. 3).

224. Johnson & Johnson has represented that "[i]f we had any reason to believe our talc was unsafe, it would be off our shelves immediately." See 12/19/2018 Johnson & Johnson Ad.

225. Yet in the Joly case, Johnson & Johnson's Medical Services Department – including the company's Medical Director – recognized that the plaintiff, who had used Johnson's Baby Powder for years, had "scarring of lung tissue [that] was noted on x-ray." Furthermore, "Pulmonary function studies revealed very severe obstruction of the small airways. Consumer did not respond to bronchodilators. Talc crystals were identified in the consumer's sputum." See February 15, 2019

Deposition of Nancy Musco Dep. 155:18–158:25; see also JNJ 000058414 (5/10/1985 J&J Ingestions and Inhalations Memorandum).

226. Besides this report, Johnson & Johnson has not located its records related to the Joly litigation even though Mr. George Lee, a Johnson & Johnson scientist, had a file on the case in his possession as late as July 1988. See February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 170:16–172:20. Yet, J&J's designated corporate representative concerning the history and substance of prior litigation was not supplied with a single piece of paper regarding the Joly case. Id. at 159:21-161:11.

227. Evidence indicates that Johnson & Johnson historically preserved no records whatsoever from the majority of cases in which it has been sued for causing talc related injuries.

228. For those cases where there is at least some documentation, Johnson & Johnson either lost or destroyed most of the material evidence related to historical litigation alleging asbestos-related disease from its talc-based products. See e.g., March 8, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 361:24-362:17 (missing Westfall photographs); February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco Dep. 232:9-1 (missing Edley interrogatories); id. at 111:23–112:3 (no records from the Cunningham case); id. at 112:10-25 (no records from the Kreppel case); id. at 113:12–114:3) (no records from the Lopez case); id. at 114:19-22 (no records from the Sheldon case).

229. Despite being involved in countless cases dating back to 1971, Johnson & Johnson could only locate two sets of discovery responses for its corporate representative to review. See id. at 202:2-13.

230. In this litigation, Johnson & Johnson has repeatedly asserted the relevance of its communications with the FDA concerning the safety of talc. Johnson & Johnson once maintained a paper file documenting all of its telephone conversations with the FDA related to its talc-based cosmetic products dating to the early 1970s. See February 19, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 48:9–15. The "FDA Call File" was destroyed while litigation was pending depriving all future litigants including the plaintiff herein of the evidence concerning Johnson & Johnson's extensive discussions with the FDA. See id. at 113:25–114:19.

231. Johnson & Johnson once maintained toxicology information in boxes and binders. This toxicology information contained in those files was never disclosed and apparently missing.

232. William Ashton otherwise known within J&J as "Mr. Talc" was intimately involved in issues affecting the safety of talc for the entire length of his career at Johnson & Johnson spanning many decades. As part of his responsibility, Ashton maintained his own set of files concerning J&J talc. Those files concerning talc and asbestos maintained by William Ashton, while litigation was pending remain unaccounted for. See Note from Rebecca Farlow to William Ashton with a "list of TALC files from the last case."

233. According to Johnson and Johnson, McCrone was the primary outside consultant charged with testing J&J talc for asbestos. The original McCrone testing files were sent to in house counsel while litigation was pending. Instead of producing those files to litigants alleging talc related injuries, the files were secreted away in the offices of outside counsel. See Letter Dated 1/3/1995 and June 29, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 24:10-25:1; 155:12-156:3; 251:14-252:13. When some McCrone testing results were finally produced after 2016 the complete McCrone the files secreted away in the offices of outside counsel were not produced. Virtually all of the underlying scientific data was either lost or destroyed.

h. Johnson & Johnson Made Material Misrepresentations to Courts and Litigants for More Than 40 Years

234. That Johnson & Johnson intentionally destroyed and secreted away evidence is demonstrated by its representations to Courts, litigants and regulators that the evidence never existed in the first place.

235. Johnson & Johnson knowingly and intentionally concealed relevant and discoverable evidence and made repeated false and misleading statements to plaintiffs, their counsel and the courts, ultimately leading to the dismissal of numerous cases. Upon dismissal of the cases, Johnson & Johnson destroyed all relevant records, including any discovery.

236. Despite being involved in litigation for decades, upon information and belief, Johnson & Johnson never produced a single positive asbestos test in any case prior to 2017, even when specifically requested. See Deposition March 8, 2019 of Nancy Musco at 420:19–424:13; see also February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 262:2-13.

237. Many of the same Johnson & Johnson executives who were involved in discussions with the FDA about the company's talc-based cosmetic products were involved in defending Johnson & Johnson in litigation alleging asbestos-related injuries from Johnson's Baby Powder and other talc-based cosmetic products. See March 8, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 381:25–383:23.

238. In litigation involving its talc products, Johnson & Johnson was repeatedly asked whether the talc used in any of its talc-based cosmetic products contained any amount of asbestos. February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 37:1-20.

239. In defending against litigation, Johnson & Johnson represented to plaintiffs' counsel that "there was no evidence" of asbestos in the cosmetic talc used in Johnson's Baby Powder or Johnson & Johnson's Shower to Shower. See March 8, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 400:12–401:15.

240. Johnson and Johnson clearly understood there was a difference between representing that evidence existed that Johnson and Johnson disagrees with and the representation that no evidence exists at all. See February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 173:10-21 and June 30, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 466:12-20. These representations exemplified Johnson & Johnson's pattern and practice in defending talc-injury litigation, which was to conceal all evidence of asbestos in its cosmetic talc products and represent that no such evidence ever existed. See March 8, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 400:12–401:15.

241. J&J in-house counsel, John O'Shaughnessy admitted under oath that he supervised litigation where J&J asserted under oath Johnson's Baby Powder never contained asbestos in any form or tremolite. See June 23, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 289:4-22.

242. In furtherance of this practice, Johnson & Johnson routinely provided sworn affidavits from company executives asserting that there was no evidence of asbestos in the talc used for Johnson & Johnson cosmetic products. See March 8, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 415:8–417:7.

243. Johnson & Johnson similarly repeatedly certified answers to interrogatories in asbestos-injury cases stating that there was never any evidence of asbestos in any Johnson & Johnson cosmetic talc product. See February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 139:8-22.

A. Westfall v. Whittaker Clark & Daniels*, et al., No. 79-0269 (D.R.I.)

244. In 1979, David Howard Westfall filed an asbestos death lawsuit in the United States District Court for the District of Rhode Island captioned Westfall v. Whittaker Clark & Daniels, et al., C.A. No. 79-0269 (hereinafter referred to as "Westfall"), arising out of exposure to asbestos-containing talc products sourced from the Vermont mines.

245. The Westfall case focused on talc mined from the Johnson Mine which was owned by Johnson and Johnson until 1967 when it sold the mine to Engelhard Corporation.

246. While the Johnson mine sold primarily industrial grade talc it also sold talc for use in Johnson's baby powder until 1967 when sales were suspended because of the high arsenic content of the talc coming out of the Johnson mine. See Eastern Magnesia Talc Co., Inc.'s The Cosmetics Industry outline; June 12, 1991 Deposition of Roger Miller at 45:6-19.

247. After the sale of the Johnson Mine, this sales of talc from the Johnson Mine for use in Johnson's Baby Powder ceased.

248. The Westfall lawsuit initially named J&J's subsidiary Windsor Mineral Inc.6 as a defendant. Windsor Mineral in turn sued Engelhard Corporation.

249. Numerous high level J&J executives participated in the case including George Lee (Director of Applied Research), Windsor Mineral President Roger Miller, J&J General Counsel John Beidler, J&J Medical Director, Bruce Semple, and "Mr. Talc" William Ashton.

250. During the course of the case numerous scientists testified that the Johnson Mine contained asbestos including the head Engelhard scientist Glenn Hemstock and company mineralogist Peter Gale. Peter Gale testified that he identified chrysotile asbestos in talc taken from the Johnson Mine by "using selected area electron diffraction in conjunction with transmission electron microscopy". See April 26, 1983 Deposition of Peter Gale in Westfall. Similarly, Glenn Hemstock, chief scientist at Engelhard, testified that his department also found chrysotile in both the raw ore and finished talc. See March 16, 1983 Deposition of Glenn Hemstock in Westfall.

251. After the evidence of asbestos contamination came out, the case was quietly settled and all evidence of asbestos contamination including sworn testimony of all of the scientists was placed under seal. See Stipulation and Order of Confidentiality relating to document disclosure from Westfall case.

B. Gambino v. Johnson & Johnson Baby Products Co., No. L-064200-83 (N.J. Super.)

252. In the same year the Westfall case was quietly settled, 1983, Johnson & Johnson was named as a defendant in another product liability action captioned Gambino v. Johnson & Johnson Baby Products Company, Docket No. L-064200-83, Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Middlesex County (hereinafter "Gambino").

253. In Gambino, the plaintiff alleged that his talcosis diagnosis was a direct result of exposure to and use of Johnson's Baby Powder. Although documents were once in the control of Johnson & Johnson's Legal department, no evidence from the case exists with the exception of the complaint and answers to one set of interrogatories. See February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 105:16–107:5.

6 Johnson & Johnson sold Windsor Minerals sold to Cyprus Mines Corporation in 1989.

254. Johnson & Johnson never issued a litigation hold during the Gambino proceedings and presumably any other case involving talc used in its cosmetic talc products until 1997. See October 19, 2018 Deposition of James Mittenthal at 478:1-481:9.

C. Yuhas v. Windsor Minerals, Inc., et al.*, No. MID-L-029706-84 (N.J. Super.); Edley v. Windsor Minerals Inc., et al., No. MID-L-075913-86 (N.J. Super.)

255. In 1986, the Edley case was filed in Middlesex County New Jersey. Mr. Edley alleged he developed asbestosis as a result of working with talc from Johnson & Johnson's Vermont talc mine.

256. On August 27, 1986, John Beidler, the same J&J in house counsel who worked on the Westfall case, wrote to the plaintiff's attorney Ronald Grayzel demanding a dismissal and citing to the New Jersey frivolous lawsuit statute as a veiled threat. In his letter, J&J's Beidler represented "All of the talc mined by Windsor Minerals, Inc., whether it is ultimately sold to industrial users or used in Johnson's Baby Powder, is sampled and tested for the presence of asbestos. No evidence of the presence of asbestos in Windsor Minerals' product has ever been revealed by this testing. Attached as Exhibit 'A' is a true copy of a recent report of that testing." (Beidler cited as precedent another case dismissed two months earlier based upon the same representations). See August 27, 1986 Johnson & Johnson letter from John Beidler to Ronald Grayzel Re: Edley v. Windsor Minerals, Inc.. No other testing reports including those finding asbestos in the Vermont talc were referenced or turned over.

257. After Mr. Edley refused to dismiss his case, J&J sent another letter to Mr. Grayzel demanding dismissal citing as precedent another case dismissed based upon the same representations. Attached to the letter was an affidavit of the President of Windsor Minerals, Roger Miller, parroting the representation of J&J's counsel "All of the talc mined by Windsor Minerals, Inc., whether it is ultimately sold to industrial users or used in Johnson's Baby Powder, is sampled and tested for the presence of asbestos. No evidence of the presence of asbestos in Windsor Minerals' product has ever been revealed by this testing. See Affidavit of Roger Miller, Edley v. Windsor Minerals, Inc., No. MID-L-075913-86 (N.J. Super. Ct. Middlesex County.) (emphasis added).

258. Roger Miller's affidavit makes no distinction between industrial and cosmetic talc stating unequivocally the same talc was used in both products.

259. Roger Miller's affidavit attached an Exhibit "A", was the report of a 1987 assay by McCrone that found "no quantifiable amounts of asbestiform minerals" in Windsor talc samples. Id.

260. Not disclosed was the scheme to use as code language "non quantifiable" in the reports from McCrone to cover up asbestos findings. That scheme is disclosed in the correspondence between Roger Miller, the author of the Edley Affidavit, and McCrone Laboratories.

261. On August 22, 1985, the year prior to the filing of the Edley case, McCrone sent a letter to J&J subsidiary Windsor Minerals advising that chrysotile asbestos was found in J&J talc. See August 22, 1985 McCrone letter to Arthur LaPierre Re: McCrone Project No. ME-1862.

262. Upon finding out about the report, Windsor Minerals President Miller wrote to McCrone admonishing "We received on August 22, the enclosed report on these samples mailed to another Company employee. The August 22, report is couched in substantially different language than earlier reports. As I explained to you on my visit to Chicago it is very important that specific language be used." See September 10, 1985 Windsor Minerals letter to Ian Stewart Re: methodology and reports.

263. After receiving the letter from Miller, McCrone issued a new report omitting the asbestos findings and substituting the code words "non quantifiable" indicating the test of the J&J talc was negative for asbestos. See October 8, 1985 McCrone letter to Roger Miller Re: McCrone Project No: ME-1862.

264. Not only did Johnson & Johnson use code words to cover up the McCrone asbestos findings, it failed to disclose numerous other tests in possession of J&J reporting asbestos in J&J talc. See for example 10/27/1972, McCrone report, 2/11/1974, McCrone to JJ Rolle; 4/24/1974, McCrone report, 5/8/1974, McCrone report; 7/8/1974, McCrone to J.J. Rolle, 10/10/1974, McCrone to Windsor Minerals Inc., 7/1/1975, McCrone to Windsor Minerals Inc., 9/11/1975, Stewart to V. Zeitz, 10/5/1978, McCrone to Windsor Minerals Inc.; 8/22/1985, McCrone to Windsor Minerals Inc., McCrone Images of Plate 46770 4678, June 4, 1962 Battelle letter to Ashton Re: field work in Chester, Vermont, September 3, 1971 McCrone preliminary report to Dr. Goudie, May 9, 1974 Windsor MA Number 3295, Examination of Talc Ores and Products from the Argonaut Ore Body, March 4, 2014 Mount Sinai letter to Steven Smith Re: Cashmere Bouquet powder, September 1, 1983 McCrone letter to Roger Miller Re: fiber count analysis purchase order R-503, November 2, 1984 McCrone letter to Roger Miller Re: analyses for four air filter samples, and August 8, 1986 Roger Miller handwritten notes Re: sample origins.

265. In urging the Edley plaintiff to agree to dismiss his case, Johnson & Johnson cited to a similar case named Yuhas where the plaintiff had previously agreed to dismiss his case based upon a similar false affidavit. See Windsor Ans. to Yuhas Compl. and Stip. of Dismissal.

266. In a recent trial in the same Middlesex County courthouse, Johnson & Johnson's corporate representative was forced to admit under oath that the representations made in Miller's affidavit were false and perjurious. See July 23, 2019 John Hopkins Trial Transcript Barden et al v. J&J at 189:1–195:4.

267. In reliance upon the fraudulent affidavits and affirmations, Mr. Edley voluntarily dismissed his case as Yuhas did before him. See, e.g., Stipulation of Dismissal, R.B. Grayzel; Yuhas dismissal.

268. By the end of 1987 at least three documented cases were dismissed based upon the representation that no evidence existed reporting asbestos in J&J talc. See June 30, 2019 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 478:11-480:14. As numerous pre-1987 files are missing, the question remains how many other plaintiffs met the same fate.

D. Countless fraudulent dismissals followed in the 1980s and 1990s.

269. When Johnson & Johnson entered into negotiations with Cyprus to sell its wholly-owned subsidiary, Windsor Minerals Inc., the parties included an indemnification provision for then-current asbestos-in-talc litigation. See Cyprus Agreement of Transfer.

270. The agreement provided the details of numerous claims and lawsuits regarding injuries allegedly due to asbestos and talc on file at the time. Id.

271. "Exhibit I" to Indemnification agreement establishes that Johnson & Johnson was aware of substantial pending and probable asbestos-in-talc litigation involving Windsor Minerals Inc., including the cases of 982 plaintiffs, all of whom suffered from asbestos-related diseases and attributed their injuries to exposure to asbestos and asbestos-containing talc. Id.

272. While scant evidence exists from the approximate 1000 dismissed cases involving Windsor Minerals, discovery has disclosed false sworn discovery responses as well as affidavits similar to that used to secure dismissals in the Edley and Yuhas cases executed by Roger Miller and other Johnson & Johnson executives.

273. On July 8, 1988, a year after executing his affidavit in the Edley case, Roger Miller executed another sworn affidavit attesting — "All of the talc mined by Windsor Minerals, Inc. has been regularly sampled and tested for the presence of asbestos. No evidence of the presence of asbestos in Windsor Mineral, Inc.'s product has ever been revealed by this testing." See Affidavit of Roger Miller, Andonian v. A.C. & S, Inc., No. ACV-88-6-1731 (Summit Cnty. Ct. Comm. Pls.) (emphasis added).

274. On the same date in a different case, Roger Miller again swore — "All of the talc mined by Windsor Minerals, Inc. has been regularly sampled and tested for the presence of asbestos. No evidence of the presence of asbestos in Windsor Mineral, Inc.'s [product] has ever been revealed by this testing." See Affidavit of Roger Miller, Miller v. A.C. & S, Inc., No. ACV884-1087 (Summit Cnty. Ct. Comm. Pls.) (emphasis added).

E. The Ashton Affidavit

275. Pending at the time against J&J were an additional 1827 cases alleging injury from talc exposure from the Johnson mine. Also named in the cases was Engelhard as a result of purchasing the Johnson mine from J&J.

276. After Engelhard threatened to sue J&J for selling the Johnson mine to Engelhard J&J decided to cooperate with Engelhard in an effort to obtain dismissals of pending cases. According to J&J's in house counsel "[wh]at we did was we participated in this affidavit and Mr. Ashton wrote the affidavit to protect Johnson &Johnson's interests." See June 30, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 525:5-15.

277. In order to extricate itself from responsibility, similar to Roger Miller, Johnson and Johnson arranged for J&J executive William Ashton to execute a false affidavit under oath in Somerset County, New Jersey that "From the 1940s through the 1980s, talc mined in Vermont and specifically, the talc mined by Engelhard Corporation (and its predecessors) from the talc mine located in Johnson, Vermont (the "Johnson mine") has been considered to be talc free from contamination by asbestos." See Affidavit of William Ashton (Somerset Cnty., N.J.).

278. According to Johnson and Johnson's privilege log, the Ashton Affidavit is acknowledged as directly relevant to "ongoing and anticipated Johnson Baby Powder litigation." See entry specifying May 5, 1989 memo from Dembrow to Ashton.

279. Attached to the Ashton affidavit in support of the no asbestos assertion was the deposition of Alfred Chidester, J&J's expert from the Westfall case. Having worked on the Westfall case, Ashton was intimately familiar with the proof from that case.

280. Conspicuously missing from the Ashton affidavit was any reference to the depositions of the scientists in the Westfall case unequivocally stating there was in fact asbestos in the mine.

281. Thereafter, the Ashton affidavit was sent to numerous plaintiffs' attorneys around the country demanding dismissal of the cases asserting that the talc from the mine "did not contain asbestos." See May 17, 1989 Cahill letter to Schwartz Re: Tireworkers' Asbestos Litigation).

282. The affidavit was even submitted to the Federal Judge in charge of all of the federal asbestos cases in the country with the representation that "Mr. Ashton concludes that our client's talc did not contain asbestos." See August 14, 1985, Victoria N. Komarnicki letter to Judge Weiner Re: Tireworkers' Litigation.

283. Upon information and belief in excess of 10,000 cases were ultimately dismissed using the Ashton affidavit.

F. Ritter v. Cyprus, et al., No. 93-5121-CV-8 (W.D. Mo.)

284. In 1993, Johnson & Johnson was implicated and participated in the defense of Ritter v. Cyprus et al. (hereinafter "Ritter"), related to injuries caused by Johnson & Johnson's talc products. See 10/17/1994 Luzenac America Inc. letter to Johnson & Johnson.

285. During that case, McCrone sent its entire original testing file to J&J in house counsel John O'Shaugnesssy. See January 3, 1995 McCrone letter to John O'Shaughnessy Re: McCrone Project No. IL-2689.

286. Apparently O'Shaugnessy then shared all or part of the original file including the underlying scientific data with its expert Barry Doolan who confirmed the tests in the file reported that the J&J talc contained chrysotile asbestos. See April 4, 1995 Johnson & Johnson Memo Re: Site visit to Vermont Mines and Interview with Barry Doolan).

287. The McCrone file was secreted away by sending the file offsite to J&J outside counsel. See June 30, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 442:22-443:1; 443:19-444:7. See also January 3, 1995 McCrone letter to John O'Shaughnessy Re: McCrone Project No. IL-2689.

288. Discussions between Johnson & Johnson and its talc supplier, Cyprus, regarding the Ritter litigation confirmed that Johnson & Johnson and its talc supplier destroyed all samples of talc tested for the presence of asbestos, including the samples tested by Johnson & Johnson's retained laboratory, McCrone Associates. See 10/19/2018 October 19, 2018 Deposition of James Mittenhal at 496:21:14–504:1.

289. Despite being properly requested, the related documents, information, and samples, was never identified, disclosed, or produced in litigation.

290. After J&J recieived the original McCrone file, Roger Miller once again swore under oath that no fiber form materials were ever found in the J&J talc. with J&J's corporate counsel, John O'Shaugnessey defending him. See apperance page from April 16, 1995 Roger Miller deposition.

G. Selby v. Johnson & Johnson, et al.*, No. 670577 (Cal. Sup. Ct.)

291. In 1994, Marlene Selby and Lowell Wayne Selby filed a lawsuit in the Superior Court of California, County of San Diego, captioned Selby v. Johnson & Johnson, et al. (hereinafter "Selby"), alleging that Mrs. Selby's lung injury was caused as a direct result of exposure to Johnson's Baby Powder.

292. In Selby, Johnson & Johnson once again made the false representation in answers to interrogatories that its talc products never contained asbestos. See April 20, 1994 Johnson & Johnson's Supplemental Responses to Plaintiffs' Special Interrogatories in Selby.

H. Coker v. Johnson & Johnson, et al.*, No. D-157,746 (Tex. 136th Judicial Dist. Ct.)

293. In September 1997, Darlene Coker and her husband, Roy Coker, filed suit against Johnson & Johnson Consumer Companies and others in the 136th Judicial District Court of Jefferson County, Texas ("Coker").

294. Despite its subsidiaries being named in the complaint, Johnson & Johnson's Corporate Counsel John O'Shaughnessy dictated the strategy and actively participated in the defense of the companies. See June 30, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 209:21-210:1. On May 6, 1998, Johnson & Johnson served its responses to plaintiffs' interrogatories and requests for production ("Coker discovery responses").

295. In Johnson & Johnson's "Preliminary Statement" in the Coker discovery responses, Johnson & Johnson, stated in pertinent part:

> Johnson & Johnson Consumer Companies, Inc. (hereinafter Johnson & Johnson) states that in the preparation of its responses to plaintiffs requests and interrogatories, it has made, and continues to make, a concerted good faith effort to collect all of the requested information or documents from Johnson & Johnson as well as any relevant predecessors and vendors.

> when the requested information is readily available from documents, the documents will be produced as noted in individual interrogatory responses.

Id.

296. In the Coker discovery responses, Johnson & Johnson concealed and refused to produce documents from any analyses of Johnson's Baby Powder for fibrous material or for asbestiform material, objecting that such requests for documents constituted a "fishing expedition," even though Johnson & Johnson knew that relevant and material documents showing the asbestos content of Johnson & Johnson's cosmetic talc products existed. Id.

297. Johnson & Johnson concealed and refused to produce in response to plaintiffs' discovery requests, any geological surveys or documents regarding the source mines for Johnson & Johnson's talc products despite knowingly possessing documents relating to the Vermont mines, which were owned and operated by Johnson & Johnson's wholly-owned subsidiary prior to 1989.

298. Johnson & Johnson concealed and refused to produce in response to plaintiffs' discovery requests in Coker any documents evidencing or relating to tests, studies, investigations, or analyses of Johnson's Baby Powder for the presence of asbestos at the request of, or by, Johnson & Johnson, members of the CTFA, Johnson & Johnson's talc suppliers, the federal government, McCrone, E.S. Laboratories, Colorado School of Mines Research Institute, Bain Environmental, or other outside laboratories in the 1950, 1960s, or 1970s, despite Johnson & Johnson's knowledge that relevant and material documents existed and were in its possession. See May 7, 1998 J&J interrogatory responses in Coker.

299. Johnson & Johnson concealed and refused to turn over these documents despite knowing that it had an obligation to turn over what was requested. See February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 279:11-17.

300. In response to plaintiffs' questioning regarding whether Colorado School of Mines

Research Institute or McCrone "found the presence of asbestos or asbestiform minerals" in its testing of Johnson & Johnson talcum products, Johnson & Johnson objected, asserting that such a request violated the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure as it requested proprietary and trade secret information and required each witness "to speculate and provide an expert opinion that [the] witness is not qualified to express." See March 8, 2019 Deposition of Musco at 402:4–405:21.

301. Notably, the Colorado School of Mines Research Institute, who had been retained by Johnson & Johnson since the 1950s, repeatedly and consistently detected the presence of asbestos in Johnson & Johnson's talc sources, yet Johnson & Johnson failed to disclose this information or produce said testing results during the Coker litigation.

302. Similarly, McCrone Associates, also retained by Johnson & Johnson since the 1970s, repeatedly and consistently detected the presence of asbestos in Johnson & Johnson's talc sources, yet Johnson & Johnson failed to disclose this information or produce said testing results during the Coker litigation.

303. When McCrone files were subpoenaed by the plaintiff, J&J asserted that the testing information were trade secrets. See October 27, 1997 letter from Hobson's office to Appleman Re: Coker enclosing Affidavit of Return Services. As explained by J&J's general counsel, John O'Shaughnessy, the reason the testing documents were not turned over was because they "were so sensitive that disclosure of them were so sensitive without certain protections would harm the business of the company." See June 30, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 657:15-658:12.

304. During the course of the case, J&J's talc supplier Luzenac sent J&J's counsel all of its testing documents concerning Italian talc going back to 1982. See April 17, 1998 Facsimile from Jean-Pierre Grange to John O'Shaughnessy. Instead of turning the documents over in litigation, they were also secreted away in the offices of outside counsel. See June 30, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 442:10-20.

305. Finally, Johnson & Johnson was aware that E.S. Laboratories, who had also been retained by Johnson & Johnson, reported a finding of 1% chrysotile asbestos in Italian talc A.G.T. 1615, the same talc source used in Johnson's Baby Powder and Shower to Shower, but Johnson & Johnson never disclosed this information during the Coker litigation.

306. Instead, while defending against the plaintiffs' claim, Johnson & Johnson represented to the plaintiffs' counsel that "there was no evidence" of asbestos in the cosmetic talc used in Johnson's Baby Powder and Johnson & Johnson's Shower to Shower. See March 8, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 400:12–401:15.

307. In defending the Coker case, Johnson & Johnson contacted Dr. Alice M. Blount, Ph.D., a Rutgers University professor and researcher who had studied the asbestos content of various cosmetic talc products about serving as the company's consultant. Subsequently, on April 23, 1998, Dr. Blount advised Johnson & Johnson's counsel that the "Sample I" referred to in her 1991 paper "Amphibole Content of Cosmetic and Pharmaceutical Talcs" was a sample from Johnson & Johnson's Vermont mines that was found to have contained asbestos. See JNJ 000064241 (4/23/1998 correspondence from Dr. Blount). In this letter, Dr. Blount states "[a]s I told you, I believe that Johnson & Johnson's Vermont talc contains trace amounts of asbestos..." Id.

308. Sample I in Dr. Blount's study was found to contain asbestos at levels that would not have been identified using the industry-created procedure, the J4-1 method, for which Johnson & Johnson had advocated, used in-house, and required its outside laboratories to use. Sample I was a sample of Johnson's Baby Powder, though the identity of its manufacturer was not disclosed in Blount's article. Johnson & Johnson concealed this information and never disclosed it to the plaintiffs during litigation. Id.

309. Johnson & Johnson thus knew that Dr. Blount had found asbestos in Johnson's Baby Powder but concealed this fact and never informed the plaintiffs or their counsel of this fact.

310. It was no secret that Alice Blount found asbestos in cosmetic talc as it was published in the open literature and so important was ultimately published by IARC. See April 23, 1998 letter from Alice Blount to Raymond Hatcher enclosing report & Arsenic, Metals, Fibres, and Dusts, Volume 100C A Review of Human Carcinogens.

311. What was kept and remained a secret, however, was that it was Johnson and Johnson's talc that contained the asbestos. The secret was relayed to people inside J&J but went no further until it was turned over by mistake in a lawsuit. See June 30, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 638:4-19.

I. Krushinski v. Johnson & Johnson Baby Products Co., Docket No. MID-L-9389-99 (N.J. Super.)

312. In Krushinski v. Johnson & Johnson Baby Products Co., Docket No. MID-L-9389-99, Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Middlesex County (hereinafter "Krushinski") Johnson & Johnson again objected to producing scientific testing to determine whether there are any health risks in Johnson's Baby Powder as confidential, proprietary trade secrets. See Krushinski

Interrogatories at 3.

313. In Krushinski, Johnson & Johnson controlled all discovery provided and caused certified interrogatories to be served swearing that "talc used in the manufacture of Johnson's Baby Powder never contained asbestos in any form, or tremolite." Id. at 7 (emphasis added); see also February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 123:18–124:1.

314. Johnson & Johnson has since been forced to admit that these interrogatories, which were answered in conjunction with the company's lawyers, are false. See July 22, 2019 Trial Testimony of John Hopkins in Barden et al. v. J&J at 139:14–140:15.

315. Johnson & Johnson also admitted that it cannot be sure that the information that was available to it during the pendency of the Gambino case was available to it years later in the Krushinski case.

316. Yet, Johnson & Johnson knew there was tremolite in Johnson's Baby Powder when responding to the Krushinski discovery requests. See March 6, 2019 Deposition of Susan Nicholson at 319:21–320:2.

317. In making representations in asbestos-injury litigation, Johnson & Johnson knew there was a difference between representing that there is "no evidence" of asbestos contamination and acknowledging that evidence exists, but claiming it is unreliable. Despite this knowledge, Johnson & Johnson, through its general counsel, chose to represent that there was "no evidence" of asbestos contamination. See February 15, 2019 Deposition of Nancy Musco at 173:10-21 and June 30, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 466:12-20.

318. The answers swearing that there was never any evidence of any form of asbestos or tremolite were approved by J&J's in house counsel. See June 29, 2021 Deposition of John O'Shaughnessy at 37:15-21.

319. In certifying answers to interrogatories, it was Johnson & Johnson's pattern and practice that its representative signing the responses never independently verify whether the information supplied was truthful and complete.

J. Durham v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., No. 05C-07-136 ASB (Del. Sup. Ct. New Castle Cnty.)

320. On September 19, 2006, Johnson & Johnson Executive John Hopkins executed another fraudulent affidavit swearing:

a. "The conclusion of the Audits was that for both of the Italian and Vermont mines, there was zero evidence of asbestos in the geology and mineralogy of the mines."

b. "For the talc sources in use in the United States over the period 1955-2002, there has never been an instance of asbestos contamination."

c. "No evidence of asbestos in the mineralogy and geology in the talc mines supplying Johnson & Johnson in the United States"

d. "No evidence of asbestos contamination in each production batch sampling as certified by the suppliers, from the period 1975 – date."

e. "It may be concluded that there has never been asbestos contamination of the talc used by Johnson & Johnson in the United States from the period in question, 1955-2002." See September 14, 2006 Durham v. Met Life Hopkins Affidavit.

321. According to Hopkins, Pooley who was a consultant to J&J, reported zero evidence of asbestos in the Italian and Vermont mines.

322. Unfortunately, evidence discovered years later prove unequivocally that Hopkins's representations concerning Pooley were false.

323. As early as 1972, Pooley conducted analysis of samples of Italian talc from the mine used to produce Johnson's Baby Powder and concluded that "the only asbestos type mineral to be found in the hand samples was tremolite." See University College Cardiff, An Examination of Italian Mine Samples and Relevant Powders, Conclusions.

324. Hopkins's representations concerning Pooley's analysis of Vermont talc was equally false. As reported on May 16,1973, internally at J&J, Pooley found asbestos "tremolite-type in Vermont." See JNJAZ55_00001892 (5/16/1973, Memo from F.R. Rolle to T.H. Shelley).

325. Apparently forgetting the substance of his own sworn testimony, years later the same John Hopkins would testify that similar affidavits executed by Windsor Minerals were in fact false. See July 23, 2019 Trial Testimony of John Hopkins in Barden et al v. J&J at 189:1–195:4.

K. Lopez v. J&J (2007)

326. In 2007, Roger Miller testified McCrone never found asbestos in any mine. See January 16, 2007 Deposition of Roger Miller, 84:12-15.

327. Miller went on to testify specifically that the testing of the Argonaut mine, which was the primary mine at the time used to manufacture Baby powder, "never revealed" any asbestos. Id. at. 103:10-104:13.

328. That testimony is proven false by numerous reports including the report issued by McCrone before the mine was officially opened finding Chrysotile asbestos throughout the mine. See April 24, 1974 McCrone Examination of Talc Samples, Argonaut Ore Body.

L. Payan v. CBS Corp., et al.*, Caso No. BC 608412 (Cal. Sup. Ct., Los Angeles Cnty.)

329. While the majority of the early litigation files are now missing, the evidence demonstrates that the false representations continued into the second decade of the 21st century as evidenced in the Payan case. Accordingly, on July 7, 2016, Dr. John Hopkins executed another fraudulent affidavit swearing (See July 7, 2016 Affidavit of John Hopkins):

a. "Confirmation of the absence of asbestos on a historical basis has been reported in a Johnson & Johnson internal report from 1966 that summarized the results of 13 samples of talc from the Company Museum and dating from the period 1910-1964."

b. "The conclusion of the Audit was that there was zero evidence of asbestos in the geology and mineralogy of the Italian mine."

c. "Based on the absence of asbestos contamination in historical talc samples; an in-house raw material specification requirement dating from at least 1949, for absence of asbestos in talc; no evidence of asbestos in the mineralogy and geology in the talc mines supplying Johnson & Johnson in the United States; and no evidence of asbestos contamination in each production batch sampling as certified by the suppliers, from the period of 1975 to the present, it is my expert opinion that Johnson & Johnson baby powder ... was not contaminated with asbestos."

COUNT ONE
ALLEGATIONS AGAINST TALC MANUFACTURING DEFENDANTS

330. Plaintiffs allege that Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. was exposed to asbestos, and/or asbestos-containing products, and/or asbestos-containing talc, and/or other finished and unfinished asbestos-containing talcum powder products, and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades through the use of asbestos-containing livestock powder products. Each Defendant corporation or its predecessor-in-interest is, or at times material hereto, has been engaged in the mining, processing, and/or manufacturing, sale, and distribution of asbestos, and/or asbestos-containing products, and/or asbestos-containing talc, and/or other finished and unfinished asbestos-containing talcum powder products, and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Defendants' Products"). Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. was exposed to, on numerous occasions, to Defendants' Products which were produced and/or sold by Defendants and in so doing, inhaled great quantities of asbestos fibers. Further, Plaintiffs allege, as more specifically set out below, that Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. has suffered injuries, illnesses, and disabilities proximately caused by his exposure to Defendants' Products which were designed, manufactured, and sold by Defendants. In that each exposure to Defendants' Products caused or contributed to Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. injuries, illnesses, and disabilities, Plaintiffs say that the doctrine of joint and several liabilities should be extended to apply to each Defendant herein.

331. Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. was exposed to Defendants' Products that were manufactured, designed and/or distributed by the Defendants and/or their predecessors-in-interest through his personal use of asbestos-containing body powders. Plaintiffs would show that the defective design and condition of Defendants' Products rendered Defendants' Products unreasonably dangerous, and that Defendants' Products were in this defective condition at the time they were designed by and/or left the hands of Defendants. Plaintiffs would show that Defendants' Products were defective in the manner in which they were marketed for their failure to contain or include warnings regarding potential asbestos health hazards associated with the use of or the exposure to Defendants' Products. Plaintiffs would show that this market defect rendered Defendants' Products unreasonably dangerous at the time they were designed or left the hands of the Defendants. Plaintiffs would show that Defendants are liable in product liability including, but not limited to, strict product liability for the above-described defects.

332. The Defendants are or were engaged in the business of selling, manufacturing, producing, designing, and/or otherwise putting into the stream of commerce Defendants' Products, and those Products, without substantial change in the condition in which they were sold, manufactured, produced, designed, and/or otherwise put into the stream of commerce, were a proximate and/or producing cause of the injuries, illnesses, and disabilities of Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR..

333. Defendants knew that Defendants' Products would be used without inspection for defects and, by placing them on the market, represented that they would safely do the job for which they were intended, which must necessarily include being safe for personal use, handling and/or application.

334. Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. was unaware of the hazards and defects in Defendants' Products which made them unsafe for purposes of personal use, handling, and/or application. Similarly, Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. was unaware of the hazards and defects in Defendants' Products.

335. During the periods that Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. was exposed to Defendants' Products which were manufactured and sold by various Defendants, those Products were being utilized in a manner which was intended by Defendants.

336. In the event that Plaintiffs are unable to identify each injurious exposure to Defendants' Products, Plaintiffs would show the Court that the Defendants named herein represent and/or represented a substantial share of the relevant market of Defendants' Products at all times material to this cause of action. Consequently, each Defendant should be held jointly and severally liable under the doctrines of enterprise liability, market-share liability, concert of action and alternative liability, among others.

337. The injuries, illnesses and disabilities of Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. are a direct and proximate result of the negligence of each Defendant and/or its predecessor-in-interest in that said entities produced, designed, sold and/or otherwise put into the stream of commerce Defendants' Products which the Defendants knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, were deleterious and highly harmful to Decedent's health and well-being. Certain Defendants created hazardous and deadly conditions to which Decedent was exposed and which caused Decedent to be exposed to a large amount of asbestos fibers. The Defendants were negligent in one, some and/or all of the following respects, among others, same being the proximate cause of Decedent's injuries, illnesses, disabilities, and death:

a. in failing to timely and adequately warn Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. and others of the dangerous characteristics and serious health hazards associated with the personal use of and exposure to Defendants' Products;
b. in failing to place timely and adequate warnings on the containers of Defendants' Products or on Defendants' Products themselves to warn of the dangers to health of coming into contact with Defendants' Products;
c. in failing to develop and utilize a substitute material or design to eliminate asbestos fibers in Defendants' Products;

d. in failing to properly design and manufacture Defendants' Products for safe use under conditions of use that were reasonably anticipated;

e. in failing to properly test Defendants' Products before they were released for consumer use; and

f. in failing to recall and/or remove Defendants' Products from the stream of commerce despite knowledge of the unsafe and dangerous nature of Defendants' Products.

COUNT TWO
ALLEGATIONS AGAINST ASBESTOS-CONTAINING TALC SUPPLIER AND ASBESTOS-CONTAINING PRODUCT SUPPLIER DEFENDANTS

338. All of the allegations contained in the previous paragraphs are realleged.

339. For all pertinent times, TRACTOR SUPPLY CO. OF TEXAS, LP a/k/a TRACTOR SUPPLY COMPANY ("Supplier Defendants"), sold, distributed, and supplied asbestos-containing talc, and/or asbestos-containing products, and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades that Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. came in contact with and inhaled during his personal use of asbestos-containing body powders.

340. Supplier Defendants, as manufacturers, miners, shippers, distributors, and suppliers of asbestos-containing talc, and/or asbestos-containing products, and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades to various locations owned and/or operated by asbestos product manufacturers are liable to Plaintiffs for their failure to warn of the health hazards of exposure to asbestos and failure to design and package their products so as to adequately protect and warn users and bystanders of the dangers of exposure to asbestos.

341. Further, Supplier Defendants made misrepresentations regarding the safety of asbestos to the asbestos-product manufacturers, thereby fraudulently inducing other sophisticated users to use Supplier Defendants' asbestos-containing talc, and/or asbestos-containing products, and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades instead of other types. As such, Supplier Defendants are liable to Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. for his suffering and injuries from a disease caused by exposure to Supplier Defendants' asbestos-containing talc, and/or asbestos-containing products, and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades because Supplier Defendants' fraudulent misrepresentations were detrimentally relied upon (1) by asbestos-product manufacturers incorporating Supplier Defendants' asbestos-containing talc and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades into their finished products and (2) by Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. who was exposed to the asbestos-containing talc, and/or asbestos-containing products, and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades.

342. Supplier Defendants are further liable to Plaintiffs because they knew or should have known that the asbestos-containing talc, and/or asbestos-containing products, and/or raw asbestos fiber of various kinds and grades which they sold and supplied were unreasonably dangerous in normal use, and their failure to communicate this information constitutes negligence, gross negligence, and grounds for strict liability. This negligence was the cause of Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.'s injuries including, but not limited to, asbestos-related mesothelioma and other ill health effects.

COUNT THREE CONSPIRACY ALLEGATIONS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS

343. All of the allegations contained in the previous paragraphs are re-alleged herein.

344. Plaintiffs further allege that Defendants and/or their predecessors-in-interest knowingly agreed, contrived, combined, confederated, and conspired among themselves and with other entities to cause Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.'s illnesses, injuries and disabilities by exposing his to harmful and dangerous Defendants' Products. Defendants and other entities further knowingly agreed, contrived, combined, confederated, and conspired to deprive Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. of the opportunity of informed free choice as to whether to use Defendants' Products or to expose himself to said dangers. Defendants committed the above-described wrongs by willfully misrepresenting and suppressing the truth as to the risks and dangers associated with the use of and exposure to Defendants' Products

345. In furtherance of said conspiracies, Defendants performed the following overt acts:

a. for many decades, Defendants individually, jointly, and in conspiracy with each other and other entities have been in possession of medical and scientific data, literature and test reports, which clearly indicated that talc can be contaminated with asbestos, the inhalation of asbestos dust and fibers resulting from the ordinary and foreseeable use of Defendants' Products was unreasonably dangerous, hazardous, deleterious to human health, carcinogenic, and potentially deadly;

b. despite the medical and scientific data, literature and test reports possessed by and available to Defendants, Defendants individually, jointly, and in conspiracy with each other and other entities fraudulently, willfully, and maliciously:

i. withheld, concealed, and suppressed said medical and scientific data, literature and test reports regarding the risks of cancer, mesothelioma and other illnesses and diseases from Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. who was using and being exposed to Defendants' Products;

ii. caused to be released, published and disseminated medical and scientific data, literature and test reports containing information and statements regarding the risks of cancer, mesothelioma and other illnesses and diseases, which Defendants knew were incorrect, incomplete, outdated and misleading; and

iii. distorted the results of medical examinations conducted upon workers and/or individuals such as Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR., who were using or in close proximity to Defendants' Products and being exposed to the inhalation of asbestos dust and fibers, by falsely stating and/or concealing the nature and extent of the harm to which Decedent and others such as Decedent have suffered.

c. Other conspirators participating in the conspiracy, or in ongoing or subsequent conspiracies (hereinafter called the "conspirators"), were member companies in the Quebec Asbestos Mining Association, and/or Asbestos Textile Institute, and/or the Industrial Hygiene Foundation, and/or the Cosmetic Toiletry and Fragrance Association (now Personal Care Products Council). Acting in concert, the conspirators fraudulently misrepresented to the public and public officials, inter al/a, that asbestos did not cause cancer and that the disease asbestosis had no association with pleural and pulmonary cancer and affirmatively suppressed information concerning the carcinogenic and other adverse effects of asbestos exposure on the human respiratory and digestive systems.

d. In addition, Defendants contrived, combined, confederated and conspired through a series of industry trade meetings and the creation of organizations such as the Air Hygiene Foundation (later the Industrial Hygiene Foundation) to establish authoritative standards for the control of industrial dusts which would act as a defense in personal injury lawsuits, despite knowing that compliance with such standards would not protect individuals such as Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. from contracting an asbestos-related disease or cancer.

e. In furtherance of said conspiracies, Defendants and/or their co-conspirators contributed to cause the establishment of a Threshold Limit Value for asbestos exposure and contributed to the maintenance of such Threshold Limit Value despite evidence that this supposed "safe" level of exposure to asbestos would not protect the health of individuals such as Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. even if complied with.

f. As the direct and proximate result of the false and fraudulent representations, omissions and concealments set forth above, Defendants individually, jointly, and in conspiracy with each other intended to induce Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. to rely upon said false and fraudulent representations, omissions and concealments, to continue to expose himself to the dangers inherent in the use of and exposure to Defendants' Products, which caused the release of respirable asbestos fibers.

346. Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. reasonably and in good faith relied upon the false and fraudulent representations, omissions and concealments made by Defendants regarding the nature of Defendants' Products.

347. As a direct and proximate result of Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. reliance on Defendants' false and fraudulent representations, omissions and concealments, Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. sustained damages including injuries, illnesses and disabilities and was deprived of the opportunity of informed free choice in connection with the use of and exposure to Defendants' Products.

COUNT FOUR
GROSS NEGLIGENCE ALLEGATIONS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS

348. All of the allegations contained in the previous paragraphs are re-alleged herein.

349. The actions and inactions of Defendants and their predecessors-in-interest, as specifically alleged hereinabove, whether taken separately or together, were of such a character as to constitute a pattern or practice of gross negligence, intentional, wrongful conduct and/or malice resulting in damages and injuries to Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.. Defendants' conduct was specifically intended by Defendants to cause substantial injury to Decedent or was carried out by Defendants with a conscious and flagrant disregard for the rights, safety and welfare of others and with actual awareness on the part of Defendants that the conduct would, in reasonable probability, result in human deaths and/or great bodily harm. More specifically, Defendants and their predecessors-in-interest consciously and/or deliberately engaged in oppression, fraud, willfulness, wantonness and/or malice with regard to Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. and should be held liable in punitive and exemplary damages to Plaintiffs.

COUNT FIVE NEGLIGENCE PER SE ALLEGATIONS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS

350. All of the allegations contained in the previous paragraphs are re-alleged herein.

351. The actions of all Defendants also constituted negligence per se.

352. Each Defendant violated federal and state regulations relating to asbestos exposure. Such violations constitute negligence per se or negligence as a matter of law. Further, each such violation resulted in dangerous and unlawful exposures to asbestos for Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.. Plaintiffs are not making any claims under federal law; instead, Plaintiffs are simply using the violation of federal standards as proof of liability on their state-law theories. Further, the reference to Federal regulations does not create a Federal question. See Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, Inc. v. Thompson, 478 U.S. 804 (1986). Any removal on this basis will be met with an immediate motion for remand and for sanctions.

353. The negligence per se of each Defendant was a proximate cause of Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.'s injuries, illnesses, disabilities, and death.

COUNT SIX
LOSS OF CONSORTIUM ALLEGATIONS AGAINST ALL DEFENDANTS

354. Plaintiff, RITA DIANE NEWSOM, brings this cause of action against Defendants for the loss of consortium in the marital relationship between his spouse, WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR., and himself. Plaintiff RITA DIANE NEWSOM has suffered damages, both past and future, as a result of the acts and omissions of the Defendants described herein. The physical injuries to WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. were directly and proximately caused by Defendants and the injuries to WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. have detrimentally impaired the love, companionship, comfort, affection, solace, moral support, and physical assistance in the operating and maintaining a home that Plaintiff RITA DIANE NEWSOM once shared in their marital relationship, causing Plaintiff RITA DIANE NEWSOM pain and suffering in the past and to which he will in all likelihood continue to suffer in the future.

DAMAGES

355. The conduct of Defendants, as alleged hereinabove, was a direct, proximate, and producing cause of the damages resulting from the asbestos-related lung disease of Decedent, and of the following general and special damages including:

(a) Damages to punish Defendants for proximately causing Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.'s untimely injuries, illness, disabilities and death;

(b) The conscious physical pain and suffering and mental anguish sustained by Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR. while she was alive;

(c) The physical impairment suffered by Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR., while she was alive;

(d) The disfigurement suffered by Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.;

(e) Reasonable and necessary medical expenses incurred by Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.;

(f) Reasonable funeral and burial expenses incurred by the Estate of WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.;

Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.'s lost earnings and net accumulations;

(g) Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.'s mental anguish caused by the extraordinarily increased likelihood of developing (or the progression and recurrence of) asbestos-related cancer of the lungs, mesothelioma, and other cancers due to said exposure to products manufactured, sold, and distributed by the named Defendants;

(h) The past and future loss of the care, maintenance services, support, advice, counsel, and consortium, which Decedent's spouse would have received from Decedent prior to his illness and death caused by his exposure to asbestos;

(i) Punitive and exemplary damages; and

(j) All forms of pecuniary damages, and loss of inheritance suffered by RITA DIANE NEWSOM as a consequence of the death of WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.

(k) Any and all recoverable survival and wrongful death damages on behalf of all statutory beneficiaries of WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.

356. By their acts and omissions described herein, Defendants intentionally, knowingly, and recklessly caused serious bodily injury to Decedent within the meaning of Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §41.008(c)(7) and Tex. Penal Code §22.04.

357. Plaintiffs filed suit within two (2) years of the date of Decedent WAYMON CARL NEWSOM, JR.'s death as a result of his asbestos-related conditions.

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Plaintiffs demand judgment against the Defendants, and each of them, jointly and severally, for general damages, for their costs expended herein, for interest on said judgment from the date this action accrued until paid, at the legal rate, and for such other and further relief, both at law and in equity, to which Plaintiffs may show themselves justly entitled.

JURY DEMAND

Plaintiffs demand that all issues of fact in this case be tried to a properly impaneled jury.

PHARMACEUTICAL WHOLESALER SURETY BOND

Bond No. 1106885

Application/License No. _____

KULZER, LLC (Applicant/Principal), doing or intending to do business as a pharmaceutical wholesaler, whose address for purposes of service is 4315 S Lafayette Blvd South Bend, IN 46614 (Address of Applicant/Principal), as PRINCIPAL, and THE HANOVER INSURANCE COMPANY (Surety Company), a corporation organized under the laws of the state of NH (State of Incorporation) and authorized to transact a general surety business in the State of Nevada, whose address for purposes of service is 440 Lincoln Street Worcester, MA 01653 (Address of Surety) as SURETY, are held and firmly bound unto the State of Nevada and to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy for the penal sum of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS ($25,000.00), for which payment we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns jointly and severally, by these presents. This bond term shall become effective on January 26, 2024 (Effective Date).

WHEREAS, the provisions of Nevada Revised Statue (NRS) 639.515 and Nevada Administrative Code (NAC) 639.5937 require that the Applicant/Principal file or have on file with the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) a bond in the sum of $25,000.00 payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy and this bond is executed and tendered in accordance therewith. This bond secures payment of any administrative fines imposed by the Board pursuant to NRS 639.255 and any costs incurred by the Board regarding the license of Applicant/Principal that are impose pursuant to NRS 622.400 or 622.410 which the Applicant/Principal fails to pay.

THIS BOND is subject to the following conditions:

(1) This bond shall be deemed continuous in form and shall remain in full force and effect and shall run concurrently with the license period for which the license is granted and each and every succeeding license period or periods for which said Applicant/Principal may be licensed, after which liability hereunder shall cease except as to any liability or indebtedness therefore incurred or accrued hereunder.
(2) This bond is executed by the Applicant/Principal and the Surety to comply with the provisions of NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937 and said bond shall be subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof.
(3) The Surety, its successors and assigns, are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond.
(4) The limitations of the liability of the Surety and the conditions of the bond are set forth in NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937. Any claim by the Board may be made directly to the Surety and need not be preceded by the filing of any action in a proper court. Payment of any such claim shall be payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy.
(5) The aggregate liability of the Surety hereunder on all claims whatsoever shall not exceed the penal sum of this bond in any event.
(6) This bond may not be cancelled by the Surety without first giving the Board written notice at least thirty days in advance of any intent to cancel the bond.
(7) The Applicant/Principal and Surety may be served with notices, papers and other documents at the addresses given above.

I certify or declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the State of Nevada, that I have executed the foregoing bond on behalf of the Surety under an unrevoked power of attorney.

In witness whereof, each party to this bond has caused it to be executed on this 26th day of January, 2024.

- Please contact this office immediately if any information on this license is incorrect.
- This license must be displayed at the address licensed.
- The license renewal application and fee are due every two years BEFORE the anniversary date. Please note that it is the responsibility of the license holder to remit the licensure fee before the expiration date, whether a payment notice is received or not. Failure to submit the renewal fee before the expiration date will result in a $100.00 delinquency fee for each location and must be remitted before the license will be issued.
- A license that is amended, including a change of name, ownership, legal entity, or a notification of a change in the location of a licensed place of business will require submission of new application and fee. Applications for these changes can be downloaded from our website at www.dshs.texas.gov.
- Please submit written notice if you close or sell your business.
- If you have any questions or desire additional information concerning the application process or this license, please contact the Drug and Device Business Filing and Verification Unit at (512) 834-6727. PHARMACEUTICAL WHOLESALER SURETY BOND

Bond No. K41801694

Application/License No. _____

LiteCure, LLC (Applicant/Principal), doing or intending to do business as a pharmaceutical wholesaler, whose address for purposes of service is 3300 Eagle Parkway, Suite 170, Fort Worth, TX 76177 (Address of Applicant/Principal), as PRINCIPAL, and Federal Insurance Company (Surety Company), a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Indiana (State of Incorporation) and authorized to transact a general surety business in the State of Nevada, whose address for purposes of service is 202B Hall's Mill Road, Whitehouse Station, NJ 08889 (Address of Surety) as SURETY, are held and firmly bound unto the State of Nevada and to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy for the penal sum of ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS ($100,000.00), for which payment we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns jointly and severally, by these presents. This bond term shall become effective on November 10, 2023 (Effective Date).

WHEREAS, the provisions of Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) 639.515 require that the Applicant/Principal file or have on file with the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) a bond in the sum of $100,000.00 payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy and this bond is executed and tendered in accordance therewith. This bond secures payment of any administrative fines imposed by the Board pursuant to NRS 639.255 and any costs incurred by the Board regarding the license of Applicant/Principal that are impose pursuant to NRS 622.400 or 622.410 which the Applicant/Principal fails to pay.

THIS BOND is subject to the following conditions:

(1) This bond shall be deemed continuous in form and shall remain in full force and effect and shall run concurrently with the license period for which the license is granted and each and every succeeding license period or periods for which said Applicant/Principal may be licensed, after which liability hereunder shall cease except as to any liability or indebtedness therefore incurred or accrued hereunder.
(2) This bond is executed by the Applicant/Principal and the Surety to comply with the provisions of NRS 639.515 and said bond shall be subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof.
(3) The Surety, its successors and assigns, are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond.
(4) The limitations of the liability of the Surety and the conditions of the bond are set forth in NRS
639.515. Any claim by the Board may be made directly to the Surety and need not be preceded by the filing of any action in a proper court. Payment of any such claim shall be payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy.
(5) The aggregate liability of the Surety hereunder on all claims whatsoever shall not exceed the penal sum of this bond in any event.
(6) This bond may not be cancelled by the Surety without first giving the Board written notice at least thirty days in advance of any intent to cancel the bond.
(7) The Applicant/Principal and Surety may be served with notices, papers and other documents at the addresses given above.

I certify or declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the State of Nevada, that I have executed the foregoing bond on behalf of the Surety under an unrevoked power of attorney.

In witness whereof, each party to this bond has caused it to be executed on this 8th day of November, 2023.

PHARMACEUTICAL WHOLESALER SURETY BOND

Bond No. 6213034584

Application/License No. _____

QuVa Pharma, Inc. (Applicant/Principal), doing or intending to do business as a pharmaceutical wholesaler, whose address for purposes of service is 12620 West Airport Blvd. Ste. 130 Sugar Land, Texas 77478 (Address of Applicant/Principal), as PRINCIPAL, and United States Fire Insurance Company (Surety Company), a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Delaware (State of Incorporation) and authorized to transact a general surety business in the State of Nevada, whose address for purposes of service is 305 Madison Avenue, Morristown, NJ 07960 (Address of Surety) as SURETY, are held and firmly bound unto the State of Nevada and to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy for the penal sum of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS ($25,000.00), for which payment we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns jointly and severally, by these presents. This bond term shall become effective on 03/21/2024 (Effective Date).

WHEREAS, the provisions of Nevada Revised Statue (NRS) 639.515 and Nevada Administrative Code (NAC) 639.5937 require that the Applicant/Principal file or have on file with the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) a bond in the sum of $25,000.00 payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy and this bond is executed and tendered in accordance therewith. This bond secures payment of any administrative fines imposed by the Board pursuant to NRS 639.255 and any costs incurred by the Board regarding the license of Applicant/Principal that are impose pursuant to NRS 622.400 or 622.410 which the Applicant/Principal fails to pay.

THIS BOND is subject to the following conditions:

(1) This bond shall be deemed continuous in form and shall remain in full force and effect and shall run concurrently with the license period for which the license is granted and each and every succeeding license period or periods for which said Applicant/Principal may be licensed, after which liability hereunder shall cease except as to any liability or indebtedness therefore incurred or accrued hereunder.
(2) This bond is executed by the Applicant/Principal and the Surety to comply with the provisions of NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937 and said bond shall be subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof.
(3) The Surety, its successors and assigns, are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond.
(4) The limitations of the liability of the Surety and the conditions of the bond are set forth in NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937. Any claim by the Board may be made directly to the Surety and need not be preceded by the filing of any action in a proper court. Payment of any such claim shall be payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy.
(5) The aggregate liability of the Surety hereunder on all claims whatsoever shall not exceed the penal sum of this bond in any event.
(6) This bond may not be cancelled by the Surety without first giving the Board written notice at least thirty days in advance of any intent to cancel the bond.
(7) The Applicant/Principal and Surety may be served with notices, papers and other documents at the addresses given above.

I certify or declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the State of Nevada, that I have executed the foregoing bond on behalf of the Surety under an unrevoked power of attorney.

In witness whereof, each party to this bond has caused it to be executed on this 21st day of March, 2024.

PHARMACEUTICAL WHOLESALER SURETY BOND

Bond No. 800171895

Application/License No. _____

ReCor Medical, Inc. (Applicant/Principal), doing or intending to do business as a pharmaceutical wholesaler, whose address for purposes of service is 1049 Elwell Court, Palo Alto, CA 94303 (Address of Applicant/Principal), as PRINCIPAL, and Atlantic Specialty Insurance Company (Surety Company), a corporation organized under the laws of the state of New York (State of Incorporation) and authorized to transact a general surety business in the State of Nevada, whose address for purposes of service is 605 Highway 169 North, Suite 800, Plymouth, MN 55441 (Address of Surety) as SURETY, are held and firmly bound unto the State of Nevada and to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy for the penal sum of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS ($25,000.00), for which payment we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns jointly and severally, by these presents. This bond term shall become effective on February 14, 2024. (Effective Date).

WHEREAS, the provisions of Nevada Revised Statue (NRS) 639.515 and Nevada Administrative Code (NAC) 639.5937 require that the Applicant/Principal file or have on file with the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) a bond in the sum of $25,000.00 payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy and this bond is executed and tendered in accordance therewith. This bond secures payment of any administrative fines imposed by the Board pursuant to NRS 639.255 and any costs incurred by the Board regarding the license of Applicant/Principal that are impose pursuant to NRS 622.400 or 622.410 which the Applicant/Principal fails to pay.

THIS BOND is subject to the following conditions:

(1) This bond shall be deemed continuous in form and shall remain in full force and effect and shall run concurrently with the license period for which the license is granted and each and every succeeding license period or periods for which said Applicant/Principal may be licensed, after which liability hereunder shall cease except as to any liability or indebtedness therefore incurred or accrued hereunder.
(2) This bond is executed by the Applicant/Principal and the Surety to comply with the provisions of NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937 and said bond shall be subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof.
(3) The Surety, its successors and assigns, are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond.
(4) The limitations of the liability of the Surety and the conditions of the bond are set forth in NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937. Any claim by the Board may be made directly to the Surety and need not be preceded by the filing of any action in a proper court. Payment of any such claim shall be payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy.
(5) The aggregate liability of the Surety hereunder on all claims whatsoever shall not exceed the penal sum of this bond in any event.
(6) This bond may not be cancelled by the Surety without first giving the Board written notice at least thirty days in advance of any intent to cancel the bond.
(7) The Applicant/Principal and Surety may be served with notices, papers and other documents at the addresses given above.

I certify or declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the State of Nevada, that I have executed the foregoing bond on behalf of the Surety under an unrevoked power of attorney.

In witness whereof, each party to this bond has caused it to be executed on this 14th day of February, 2024.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that ATLANTIC SPECIALTY INSURANCE COMPANY, a New York corporation with its principal office in Plymouth, Minnesota, does hereby constitute and appoint: Andrea Allman, each individually if there be more than one named, its true and lawful Attorney-in-Fact, to make, execute, seal and deliver, for and on its behalf as surety, any and all bonds, recognizances, contracts of indemnity, and all other writings obligatory in the nature thereof; provided that no bond or undertaking executed under this authority shall exceed in amount the sum of: unlimited and the execution of such bonds, recognizances, contracts of indemnity, and all other writings obligatory in the nature thereof in pursuance of these presents, shall be as binding upon said Company as if they had been fully signed by an authorized officer of the Company and sealed with the Company seal. This Power of Attorney is made and executed by authority of the following resolutions adopted by the Board of Directors of ATLANTIC SPECIALTY INSURANCE COMPANY on the twenty-fifth day of September, 2012:

Resolved: That the President, any Senior Vice President or Vice-President (each an "Authorized Officer") may execute for and in behalf of the Company any and all bonds, recognizances, contracts of indemnity, and all other writings obligatory in the nature thereof, and affix the seal of the Company thereto; and that the Authorized Officer may appoint and authorize an Attorney-in-Fact to execute on behalf of the Company any and all such instruments and to affix the Company seal thereto; and that the Authorized Officer may at any time remove any such Attorney-in-Fact and revoke all power and authority given to any such Attorney-in-Fact.

Resolved: That the Attorney-in-Fact may be given full power and authority to execute for and in the name and on behalf of the Company any and all bonds, recognizances, contracts of indemnity, and all other writings obligatory in the nature thereof, and any such instrument executed by any such Attorney-in-Fact shall be as binding upon the Company as if signed and sealed by an Authorized Officer and, further, the Attorney-in-Fact is hereby authorized to verify any affidavit required to be attached to bonds, recognizances, contracts of indemnity, and all other writings obligatory in the nature thereof.

This power of attorney is signed and sealed by facsimile under the authority of the following Resolution adopted by the Board of Directors of ATLANTIC SPECIALTY INSURANCE COMPANY on the twenty-fifth day of September, 2012:

Resolved: That the signature of an Authorized Officer, the signature of the Secretary or the Assistant Secretary, and the Company seal may be affixed by facsimile to any power of attorney or to any certificate relating thereto appointing an Attorney-in-Fact for purposes only of executing and sealing any bond, undertaking, recognizance or other written obligation in the nature thereof, and any such signature and seal where so used, being hereby adopted by the Company as the original signature of such officer and the original seal of the Company, to be valid and binding upon the Company with the same force and effect as though manually affixed.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, ATLANTIC SPECIALTY INSURANCE COMPANY has caused these presents to be signed by an Authorized Officer and the seal of the Company to be affixed this twenty-seventh day of April, 2020.

Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements

1. Reporting Entity

Otsuka Holdings Co., Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as the "Company") is a company incorporated in Japan. The addresses of its registered head office and principal business office are disclosed on the Company's website (URL https://www.otsuka.com/en/). The consolidated financial statements of the Company, which were prepared with the end of the fiscal year on December 31, 2022, comprise the Company and its subsidiaries (hereinafter referred to as the "Group") and interests in its associates.

The details of businesses and principal business activities of the Group are provided in Note "5. Operating Segments."

2. Basis of Preparation

(1) Compliance with IFRS

Pursuant to the provision of Article 93 of the Ordinance on Consolidated Financial Statements, the consolidated financial statements of the Company have been prepared in compliance with IFRS since the Company qualifies as a "Specified Company under Designated International Accounting Standards" prescribed in Article 1-2 of the Ordinance.
The Company's consolidated financial statements for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2022 were approved on March 24, 2023 by Tatsuo Higuchi, President and Representative Director, CEO, and Yuko Makino, Executive Director, CFO.

(2) Basis of measurement

The consolidated financial statements have been prepared on a historical cost basis except for financial instruments and other items measured at fair value.

(3) Functional currency and presentation currency

The consolidated financial statements are presented in Japanese yen, which is the Company's functional currency, and figures are rounded down to the nearest million yen.

(4) New standards not yet adopted

Among the standards and interpretations newly issued or amended by the date of approval that is provided in "(1) Compliance with IFRS," there were no new or amended standards and interpretations that have been early adopted by the Group as of December 31, 2022. The impact of the adoption of these standards and interpretations has not been provided because it is expected to be insignificant.

3. Significant Accounting Policies

(1) Basis of consolidation

(i) Subsidiaries

Subsidiaries are entities that are controlled by the Group. The Group controls an investee when the Group has power over the investee, is exposed or has rights to variable returns arising from the Group's involvement in the investee and has an ability to affect those returns through its power over the investee.

The financial statements of subsidiaries are included in the consolidated financial statements from the date that the Group obtains control until the date that control is lost.

If any accounting policies applied by a subsidiary differ from those applied by the Group, adjustments are made to the subsidiary's financial statements when needed. The balances of receivables and payables among the Group and inter-company transactions as well as unrealized gains or losses arising from inter-company transactions are offset in preparing the consolidated financial statements.

When the ownership interest in a subsidiary is partially disposed of, the transaction is accounted for as an equity transaction if the Group retains control over the subsidiary. Any difference between the amount of adjustment to the non-controlling interests and the fair value of the consideration paid or received is recognized directly in equity attributable to owners of the Company.

If the Group loses control over the subsidiary, gains or losses derived from such loss are recognized in profit or loss.

(ii) Associates

Associates are entities over which the Group has significant influence in terms of financial and operating policies but which the Group does not control or jointly control. The Group is presumed to have significant influence over another entity when it holds at least 20% but 50% or less of the voting rights of the entity.

Investments in associates are recognized at cost at the time of acquisition and subsequently accounted for using the equity method. Goodwill recognized on acquisition is included in investments in associates. Because such goodwill is not separately recognized, it is not tested for impairment separately. Instead, the entire amount of the investments in associates is tested for impairment as a single asset whenever objective evidence indicates that the investments in associates may be impaired.

If any accounting policies applied by an associate differ from those applied by the Group, adjustments are made to the associate's financial statements when needed.

When the Group has retained interests after losing significant influence, these interests are measured at fair value and any difference between the fair value and the carrying amount of the investment as of the date on which the equity method was discontinued is recognized in profit or loss.

(2) Business combinations

Business combinations are accounted for using the acquisition method.

Goodwill is measured as the excess of the aggregate of the consideration transferred, the amount of non-controlling interests in the acquiree and the acquisition-date fair value of the acquirer's previously held equity interest in the acquiree over the net of the acquisition-date amounts of the identifiable assets acquired and the liabilities assumed. In case the identifiable net asset exceeds the aggregate of the consideration and others, such excess is immediately recognized in profit or loss.

The consideration transferred is calculated as the sum of the acquisition-date fair values of the assets transferred by the acquirer, the liabilities incurred by the acquirer to former owners of the acquiree and the equity interests issued by the acquirer. The consideration transferred includes any assets or liabilities resulting from a contingent consideration arrangement. The amount of non-controlling interests in the acquiree at the acquisition date is measured for each business combination either at fair value or as the present ownership instruments' proportionate share in the recognized amounts of the acquiree's identifiable net assets.

Identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed at the acquisition date are measured at fair value as of the acquisition date, except for limited exceptions based on the requirements of IFRS 3 "Business Combinations."

Transaction costs incurred in relation to business combinations are recognized as expenses when they are incurred.

If the initial accounting for business combinations is incomplete by the end of the fiscal year in which the business combinations occur, the Group reports provisional amounts for the items for which the accounting is incomplete. Those provisional amounts recognized at the acquisition date are retrospectively adjusted to reflect new information obtained during the measurement period about facts and circumstances that existed as of the acquisition date and, if known at the acquisition date, would have affected the measurement of the amounts recognized. Additional assets or liabilities are recognized if new information is known to have resulted in the additional recognition of assets or liabilities. The measurement period does not exceed one year.

(3) Foreign currency translation

(i) Foreign currency transactions

Foreign currency transactions are translated to the functional currencies at exchange rates on the transaction dates or exchange rates which are close to the actual rate on the transaction dates. Foreign currency monetary assets and liabilities are translated into the functional currency at the exchange rate on each reporting date. Non-monetary assets and liabilities that are measured at fair value in a foreign currency are translated into the functional currency using the exchange rate at the date of measurement. Non-monetary assets and liabilities that are measured at cost in a foreign currency are translated into the functional currency using the spot exchange rate on the date of the original transaction.
Translation differences arising from translations or settlements are recognized as profit or loss. However, equity instruments measured through other comprehensive income as well as the effective portion of translation differences arising from hedging instruments related to cash flow hedges used to hedge foreign currency risk are recognized as other comprehensive income.

(ii) Foreign operations

The assets and liabilities of foreign operations are translated into Japanese yen at the exchange rate on each reporting date. The revenues and expenses of foreign operations are translated into Japanese yen at the average exchange rate for the reporting period. Translation differences arising from translation of financial statements of foreign operations are recognized as other comprehensive income. The exchange differences on translation of foreign operations are recognized in profit or loss for periods in which foreign operations are disposed.

(4) Financial instruments

(i) Financial assets

i) Initial recognition and measurement

Trade and other receivables are initially recognized on the date when they are incurred. All other financial assets are initially recognized on the contract date when the Group becomes a party to the contract of the instruments.

At initial recognition, all financial assets, except for those measured at fair value through profit or loss, are measured at fair value plus directly attributable transaction costs. However, trade receivables that do not contain a significant financing component are measured at the transaction price.
Transaction costs of financial assets measured through profit or loss are recognized in profit or loss.

At initial recognition, financial assets are classified as (a) financial assets measured at amortized cost, (b) debt instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income, (c) equity instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income or (d) financial assets measured at fair value through profit or loss.

(a) Financial assets measured at amortized cost
Financial assets are classified as financial assets measured at amortized cost if both of the following conditions are met.

- The financial assets are held within a business model whose objective is to hold financial assets in order to collect contractual cash flows.
- The contractual terms of the financial asset give rise on specified dates to cash flows that are solely payments of principal and interest on the principal amount outstanding.

(b) Debt instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income

Financial assets are classified as debt instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income if both of the following conditions are met.

- The financial asset is held within a business model whose objective is achieved by both collecting contractual cash flows and selling financial assets.
- The contractual terms of the financial asset give rise on specified dates to cash flows that are solely payments of principal and interest on the principal amount outstanding.

(c) Equity instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income

For investments in some equity instruments, the Group has chosen an irrevocable option to present subsequent changes in the fair value of investments that are neither 'held for trading' nor 'contingent consideration recognized by an acquirer in a business combination to which IFRS 3 "Business Combinations" applies,' in other comprehensive income. The Group classifies such investments as equity instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income.

(d) Financial assets measured at fair value through profit or loss

Financial assets, except for financial assets measured at amortized cost and equity instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income stated above, are classified as financial assets measured at fair value through profit or loss.

ii) Subsequent measurement

After initial recognition, financial assets are measured according to their classification as follows:

(a) Financial assets measured at amortized cost

Financial assets measured at amortized cost are measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. Amortization by using the effective interest method and any gains or losses on derecognition are recognized in profit or loss.

(b) Equity instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income

Equity instruments measured at fair value through other comprehensive income are measured at fair value. Any changes in fair value are recognized in other comprehensive income. When such financial assets are derecognized, the accumulated other comprehensive income is transferred to retained earnings. Meanwhile, dividends from such financial assets are recognized as profit or loss.

(c) Financial assets measured at fair value through profit or loss

Financial assets measured at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value, and any changes in their fair value are recognized in profit or loss.

iii) Impairment

With regard to impairment of financial assets measured at amortized cost, the Group recognizes an allowance for expected credit losses on such financial assets.

At each reporting date, the Group evaluates whether the credit risk on financial instruments has increased significantly after initial recognition.

If credit risk on financial instruments has not increased significantly after initial recognition, the allowance for those instruments is measured at an amount equal to the 12-month expected credit losses. If credit risk on financial instruments has increased significantly after initial recognition, the allowance for such financial instruments is measured at an amount equal to the lifetime expected credit losses.

The Group considers that there has been a significant increase in credit risk when contractual payments are more than 30 days past due. The assessment of whether or not credit risk has increased significantly takes into account all relevant current information that is reasonably available to the Group, as well as past due information.

However, with regard to trade receivables that do not contain a significant financing component, the allowance is always measured at an amount equal to the lifetime expected credit losses, regardless of whether or not there has been a significant increase in credit risk after initial recognition.

iv) Derecognition

The Group derecognizes financial assets only when the contractual rights to the cash flows from the financial assets expire, or when the Group transfers substantially all the risks and rewards of ownership of the financial assets.

(ii) Financial liabilities

i) Initial recognition and measurement

Bonds and borrowings are initially recognized on the date when they are issued or incurred. All other financial liabilities are initially recognized on the contract date when the Group becomes a party to the contract of the financial instruments.

At initial recognition, financial liabilities are classified as (a) financial liabilities measured at amortized cost or (b) financial liabilities measured at fair value through profit or loss.

At initial recognition, financial liabilities measured at amortized cost are measured at fair value net of transaction costs that are directly attributable to the financial liabilities. Transaction costs of financial liabilities measured at fair value through profit or loss are recognized in profit or loss.

ii) Subsequent measurement

After initial recognition, financial liabilities are measured according to their classification as follows:

(a) Financial liabilities measured at amortized cost

Financial liabilities measured at amortized cost are measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. Amortization by using the effective interest method and any gains or losses on derecognition are recognized in profit or loss.

(b) Financial liabilities measured at fair value through profit or loss

Financial liabilities measured at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value, and any changes in their fair value are recognized in profit or loss.

iii) Derecognition

The Group derecognizes the financial liabilities only when they are extinguished, that is, the obligations specified in the contract are discharged, cancelled or expired.

(iii) Offsetting of financial assets and financial liabilities

Financial assets and financial liabilities are offset and the net amount is presented only when the Group currently has a legally enforceable right to set off the recognized amount and intends either to settle on a net basis or to realize the assets and settle the liabilities simultaneously.

(iv) Derivatives and hedge accounting

Derivatives are initially recognized at fair value. After initial recognition, derivatives continue to be measured at fair value.

The Group designates certain derivatives such as forward foreign exchange contracts, currency swap agreements, currency option transactions, and interest rate swap agreements to hedge foreign currency risk and interest rate risk.

At the inception of a hedging relationship, the Group formally designates and documents the hedging relationship and the risk management objective and strategy for undertaking the hedge. The documentation includes identification of the hedging instrument, the hedged item, the nature of the risk being hedged, and the methods of assessing whether the hedging relationship meets the hedge effectiveness requirements. The Group assesses whether the hedging relationship meets the hedge effectiveness requirements, both at inception and on an ongoing basis. Ongoing assessments are performed at each reporting date or upon a significant change in the circumstances affecting the hedge effectiveness requirements, whichever comes first.

The Group applies hedge accounting to cash flow hedges which meet the criteria for hedge accounting and such hedges are accounted for as follows:

The portions of the gain or loss on the hedging instrument that are determined to be effective hedges are recognized in other comprehensive income, while the remaining ineffective portions are recognized in profit or loss. The amounts associated with the hedging instruments recognized in other comprehensive income are reclassified to profit or loss when the hedged transactions affect profit or loss. However, in cases where the hedged forecast transaction subsequently results in the recognition of a non-financial asset or liability, the amount recognized in other comprehensive income is accounted for as an adjustment to the initial carrying amount of the non-financial asset or liability.

When the hedging relationship ceases to meet the qualifying criteria, or the hedging instrument expires or is sold, terminated or exercised, the application of hedge accounting is discontinued prospectively. When forecast transactions or firm commitments are no longer expected to occur, any related cumulative gains or losses that have been recognized in equity through other comprehensive income are reclassified to profit or loss.

The Group does not undertake any fair value hedges or any hedges of net investment in foreign operations.

(5) Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents consist of cash on hand, demand deposits, and short-term investments with original maturities of three months or less that are readily convertible to known amounts of cash and are so near maturity that they present insignificant risk of changes in value.

(6) Inventories

Inventories are measured at the lower of cost or net realizable value. Net realizable value is the estimated selling price in the ordinary course of business less the estimated costs of completion and the estimated costs necessary to make the sale. The cost of inventories is determined mainly by the weighted-average cost formula. The cost of inventories comprises all costs of purchase, costs of conversion and other costs incurred in bringing the inventories to the present location and condition.

(7) Property, plant and equipment

Property, plant and equipment are measured under the cost model and carried at their cost less any accumulated depreciation and impairment losses.

The cost of property, plant and equipment includes the cost directly incidental to the acquisition of assets, the initial estimated costs of dismantling, removing and restoring the assets.

Depreciation expense for assets except for land and construction in progress is recognized mainly by the straight-line method over the respective estimated useful lives. The estimated useful lives of major asset items are as follows:

- Buildings and structures: 2 to 65 years
- Machinery and vehicles: 2 to 40 years
- Tools, furniture and fixtures: 2 to 20 years

The estimated useful lives, residual values and depreciation methods of assets are reviewed at the end of each fiscal year, and any changes are applied prospectively as a change in an accounting estimate.

(8) Goodwill

Measurement of goodwill at initial recognition is provided in "(2) Business combinations." After initial recognition, the amount is recorded at its cost less any accumulated impairment losses.

Goodwill is allocated to each of the cash-generating units or groups of cash-generating units (hereinafter referred to as the "Cash-Generating Units") that is expected to benefit from the synergies of the business combination. Cash-Generating Units to which goodwill has been allocated are tested for impairment annually and whenever there is an indication that the unit may be impaired. If the recoverable amount of Cash-Generating Units is less than their carrying amounts, an impairment loss is recognized in profit or loss. With regard to allocation of impairment losses recognized in association with Cash-Generating Units, first the carrying amount of goodwill allocated to the unit is reduced, and then the remaining amount of impairment loss is allocated to other assets of the unit pro rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the unit. For impairment losses recognized on goodwill, no reversal is made in subsequent periods.

(Applicant/Principal), doing or intending to do business as a pharmaceutical wholesaler, whose address for purposes of service is 622 West Katella Ave Orange, CA 92867 (Address of Applicant/Principal), as PRINCIPAL, and Merchants Bonding Company (Mutual) (Surety Company), a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Iowa (State of Incorporation) and authorized to transact a general surety business in the State of Nevada, whose address for purposes of service is 6700 Westown Parkway, West Des Moines, IA 50266 (Address of Surety) as SURETY, are held and firmly bound unto the State of Nevada and to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy for the penal sum of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS ($25,000.00), for which payment we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns jointly and severally, by these presents. This bond term shall become effective on May 1, 2024 (Effective Date).

WHEREAS, the provisions of Nevada Revised Statue (NRS) 639.515 and Nevada Administrative Code (NAC) 639.5937 require that the Applicant/Principal file or have on file with the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy (Board) a bond in the sum of $25,000.00 payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy and this bond is executed and tendered in accordance therewith. This bond secures payment of any administrative fines imposed by the Board pursuant to NRS 639.255 and any costs incurred by the Board regarding the license of Applicant/Principal that are impose pursuant to NRS 622.400 or 622.410 which the Applicant/Principal fails to pay.

THIS BOND is subject to the following conditions:

(1) This bond shall be deemed continuous in form and shall remain in full force and effect and shall run concurrently with the license period for which the license is granted and each and every succeeding license period or periods for which said Applicant/Principal may be licensed, after which liability hereunder shall cease except as to any liability or indebtedness therefore incurred or accrued hereunder.
(2) This bond is executed by the Applicant/Principal and the Surety to comply with the provisions of NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937 and said bond shall be subject to all of the terms and provisions thereof.
(3) The Surety, its successors and assigns, are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond.
(4) The limitations of the liability of the Surety and the conditions of the bond are set forth in NRS 639.515 and NAC 639.5937. Any claim by the Board may be made directly to the Surety and need not be preceded by the filing of any action in a proper court. Payment of any such claim shall be payable to the Nevada State Board of Pharmacy.
(5) The aggregate liability of the Surety hereunder on all claims whatsoever shall not exceed the penal sum of this bond in any event.
(6) This bond may not be cancelled by the Surety without first giving the Board written notice at least thirty days in advance of any intent to cancel the bond.
(7) The Applicant/Principal and Surety may be served with notices, papers and other documents at the addresses given above.

I certify or declare under penalty of perjury, under the laws of the State of Nevada, that I have executed the foregoing bond on behalf of the Surety under an unrevoked power of attorney.

In witness whereof, each party to this bond has caused it to be executed on this 18th day of April, 2024.

POWER OF ATTORNEY

Know All Persons By These Presents, that MERCHANTS BONDING COMPANY (MUTUAL) and MERCHANTS NATIONAL BONDING, INC., both being corporations of the State of Iowa, d/b/a Merchants National Indemnity Company (in California only) (herein collectively called the "Companies") do hereby make, constitute and appoint, individually, their true and lawful Attorney(s)-in-Fact, to sign its name as surety(ies) and to execute, seal and acknowledge any and all bonds, undertakings, contracts and other written instruments in the nature thereof, on behalf of the Companies in their business of guaranteeing the fidelity of persons, guaranteeing the performance of contracts and executing or guaranteeing bonds and undertakings required or permitted in any actions or proceedings allowed by law.

This Power-of-Attorney is granted and is signed and sealed by facsimile under and by authority of the following By-Laws adopted by the Board of Directors of Merchants Bonding Company (Mutual) on April 23, 2011 and amended August 14, 2015 and adopted by the Board of Directors of Merchants National Bonding, Inc., on October 16, 2015.

"The President, Secretary, Treasurer, or any Assistant Treasurer or any Assistant Secretary or any Vice President shall have power and authority to appoint Attorneys-in-Fact, and to authorize them to execute on behalf of the Company, and attach the seal of the Company thereto, bonds and undertakings, recognizances, contracts of indemnity and other writings obligatory in the nature thereof."

"The signature of any authorized officer and the seal of the Company may be affixed by facsimile or electronic transmission to any Power of Attorney or Certification thereof authorizing the execution and delivery of any bond, undertaking, recognizance, or other suretyship obligations of the Company, and such signature and seal when so used shall have the same force and effect as though manually fixed."

In connection with obligations in favor of the Florida Department of Transportation only, it is agreed that the power and aut hority hereby given to the Attorney-in-Fact includes any and all consents for the release of retained percentages and/or final estimates on engineering and construction contracts required by the State of Florida Department of Transportation. It is fully understood that consenti ng to the State of Florida Department of Transportation making payment of the final estimate to the Contractor and/or its assignee, shall not relieve this surety company of any of its obligations under its bond.

In connection with obligations in favor of the Kentucky Department of Highways only, it is agreed that the power and authority hereby given to the Attorney-in-Fact cannot be modified or revoked unless prior written personal notice of such intent has been given to the Commissioner-Department of Highways of the Commonwealth of Kentucky at least thirty (30) days prior to the modification or revocation.
