Laura Tucker, General Counsel for the Nevada Board of Pharmacy, prosecuted the case against Sunrise Pharmacy alleging that as the pharmacy/pharmacy owner, Sunrise Pharmacy is responsible for the acts of its employees who mailed dangerous drugs to California, Louisiana, Ohio, Texas, and Wisconsin when they did not hold a pharmacy, wholesaler, or mail-order pharmacy license in those states.

Ms. Tucker prosecuted the case against Tamara Angeles, alleging that, as managing pharmacist during the time of the events, Respondent Angeles was aware and is responsible for the acts of its employees who mailed dangerous drugs to California, Louisiana, Ohio, Texas, and Wisconsin when they did not hold a pharmacy, wholesaler, or mail-order pharmacy license in those states.

Ms. Tucker stated that Respondent Welling has since completed his treatment and counseling and will no longer need to provide PRN-PRN or equivalent evaluations to the Board as part of the stipulation.

Mr. Welling requested the Board that his license be placed in an “inactive” status and that the fine be waived to be paid until he decides whether or not to renew his license.

Board discussion ensued.

Board Action:

Motion: Jade Jacobo moved to approve the Stipulation and Order for Eric Welling as presented by Ms. Tucker, with the amendment to paragraph 7, section A to reflect that the fine be due by October 31, 2026, instead of June 3, 2026.

Brett Kandt, General Counsel for the Nevada Board of Pharmacy, stated that the Board entered a default order on April 12, 2023, against Respondent Wisner, who was convicted in June 2022 in California on ten (10) felony counts of health care insurance fraud. The Respondent no longer qualifies for a controlled substance registration and his Certificate of Registration No. CS28822 was revoked.

Ms. Gandy stated that Respondent Wisner was unable to attend the initial hearing against his license due to being incarcerated. Respondent Wisner is seeking reconsideration of the revocation order after regaining his license to practice medicine from the Nevada State Board of Medical Examiners.

Mr. Kandt stated his opposition to the motion.

Ms. Gandy stated reasoning why Respondent Wisner was asking for reconsideration and gave background to the Board on how Respondent Wisner is currently serving rural communities.

Todd Weiss, Senior Deputy Attorney General, stated that the Board should first vote on whether or not to open this case up to a hearing before making a final motion.

Ms. Gandy clarified and requested that the Board reconsider the five (5) year period before Dr. Wisner may petition for reinstatement..

Board discussion ensued.

Board Action:

Motion: Jade Jacobo moved to modify the disciplinary order for Dr. Wisner to state thirty (30) months instead of five (5) years before Dr. Wisner may petition for reinstatement for his controlled substance registration, with the addition that Dr. Wisner does not need to appear before the Board to petition for reinstatement of his registration, provided that his disclosures match his past discipline, and no other concerns are identified by Board staff.

Hello Channing,

Thank you for contacting the California Department of Public Health – Food and Drug Branch about your inquiry. The HMDR license is offered to firms that sell or dispense home medical devices, or DME, to patients via or pursuant a prescription. The license licenses the site where retail sales/distribution activities are performed.

In this scenario, who will be selling the home medical device via prescription to the patients? In other words, who will be charging the patient for their device?

If the manufacturing company in CA is not selling or dispensing the home medical device to patients via or pursuant a prescription, then HMDR licensure would not be required for them.

If the out-of-state 3PL is only shipping or distributing the product and not overseeing the selling or dispensing of the Rx product, then licensure would not be required for the 3PL, either.

If the physician is dispensing the Rx device to the patient and the patient receives the device after it is billed through insurance, for example, no HMDR license is needed, as the physician can dispense the device to the patient directly under the scope of their medical license.

Thank you,
FDB MedDevice

Subject: Licensing Requirement Inquiry - December 12, 2025

You don't often get email from cjones@fenwick.com. Learn why this is important

December 12, 2025

Dear CDPH, Food and Drug Branch,

We are submitting this inquiry on behalf of a company that manufactures a medical device used for at-home peritoneal dialysis to inquire about applicable licensing requirements relating to the shipment of their product directly to patients' homes. The product in question is FDA-cleared and requires a prescription from a physician for a patient to use at-home.

The company is currently licensed in California as a manufacturer of this regulated product and distributes to healthcare providers. Due to issues of scale, the company contracts with a third-party logistics provider (3PL) that is located out of state. The 3PL receives the finished products from the California-based manufacturing facility and subsequently fulfills and ships any orders to recipient providers located in California.

The company, through the services of its contracted 3PL, is now hoping to deliver the devices directly to patients for at-home use, pursuant to a physician's prescription.

Under these circumstances, would the company be required to obtain a "Home Medical Device Retailer License" even if the company is not selling directly to patients (just delivering directly to patients)? If so, would it be sufficient for the license to be connected to the CA manufacturing location or does the out of state 3PL location need the HMDR out of state license?

Additionally, based on prior informal guidance from the CA Board of Pharmacy, our understanding is that the California Business and Professions Code §4054 provides an exemption to the wholesaler license requirement for at-home dialysis drugs and devices. However, we would appreciate written confirmation from CDPH, or other direction to the appropriate licensing authority, to ensure the company is in compliance with California regulations.

The company understands the importance of proper licensing oversight and aims to fully comply with any applicable statutes and regulations. Your guidance on whether the HMDR license is required, §4054 exemption applies in this context, and whether any further licensing is required, would be greatly appreciated.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Very respectfully,
Channing Jones

Medline Industries, LP- Discipline Confidential

Date	Facility	Description of State Action	Corrective Actions
8/3/2005	1401 N. Universal Ave Kansas City, MO 64120	FILE CLOSED 2010 Medline Industries' Kansas City, MO facility (#2003031660) was disciplined for failure to renew on time and for deficient temperature control procedures. Medline was placed on probation for 5 years. The state conducted multiple inspections of the facility throughout the probationary period and found Medline to comply with all requirements. The probationary period closed in August 2010.	Medline's Regulatory Affairs Department was significantly expanded to include a team of 7 Licensing Specialists that monitor and ensure our licenses are renewed on time. A temperature control room was constructed at the facility to ensure product is stored at the appropriate temperature and humidity. These control rooms are now a standard feature at our distribution centers. We worked closely with NABP to ensure that our temperature control facilities and procedures align with industry best practices throughout our distribution network.
12/7/2006	9101 Riverside Pkwy Lithia Springs, GA 30122	FILE CLOSED 2008 The Florida Certified Designated Representative at the Georgia facility unexpectedly resigned. The state of Florida suspended Medline's Florida Out of State Rx Drug Wholesale Distributor Permit (#23:1470) until a new licensed Florida CDR was hired at the facility.	To prevent this for occurring in the future, all Florida licensed Medline facilities are required to have multiple Florida Certified Designated Representatives on staff.
11/16/2007	10601 Southport Dr. Orlando, FL 32824 401 Commerce Blvd. Oldsmar, FL 34677 4750 118th Ave N Clearwater, FL 33762	FILE CLOSED 2008 Medline Industries was cited for several violations. Failure to pass and maintain a Florida compliant pedigree. Maintaining the wrong permit type for the activities performed in the facilities (in addition to a manufacturing permit, Florida required the facility a repackager permit). Distribution of saline to an unauthorized recipient. Additionally an Rx drug item was found at an unlicensed raw materials storage facility. Medline challenged several violations, resulting in most being substantially reduced or removed. Medline was assessed and paid a fine for these violations. All issues were addressed and resolved to the satisfaction of the FL DOH. After duly notifying state authorities, as required by law, Medline received a fined from New York for out-of-state professional misconduct. (Cal. No. 27278)	To address the pedigree issues, Medline instituted a Florida specific pedigree system. This program ensured that any pedigree shipments within our distribution network with potential to end up in Florida has the required Florida documentation. (Note - these requirements have since been preempted by federal law). To address the issue of the wrong permit type, Medline secured the repackaging permit. To address the sale of saline to an unauthorized person, Medline instituted a new procedure for obtaining and maintaining customer licenses for all Rx Drug purchases- this procedure generates an automatic block for any Rx Drug order by an unlicensed customer. The Rx Drug item unintentionally stored in the raw materials facility was properly disposed of. Waste disposal procedures were updated to ensure that this mistake would not recur.
11/26/2007	2708 NE Waldo Rd. Gainesville, FL 32609	FILE CLOSED 2008 Medline Industries' FL license (# 22:1022) was suspended for violations identified during a Florida BOP facility inspection. Medline, through Counsel, addressed the issues raised in the inspection and established that the suspension was unjustified. The suspension was lifted 3 days later on January 22, 2008. In 2010, Medline made an unrelated business decision to close this facility. (Case # 2007-37412)	After this inspection, Medline conducted a thorough review of its policies and procedures. Additionally, Medline implemented an internal auditing program to ensure that all distribution centers comply with internal policies and procedures and state and federal regulations.
3/5/2008	149 New Camellia Blvd. Covington, LA 70433	FILE CLOSED 2008 Medline Industries (LA #4318) was cited for failure to properly maintain copies of current customer licenses on-site. Medline was assessed and paid a fine. (Louisiana Administrative Docket #2008006). After duly notifying state authorities, as required by law, Medline received a fine from New York for out-of-state professional misconduct. (Cal. No. 27278)	In addition to storing copies of customers' licenses at headquarters, these licenses are now stored digitally so they can be accessed by our distribution centers.
5/9/2008	5450 W. Stewart Ave. Wausau, WI 54401	FILE CLOSED 2009 Medline Industries (WI # 1116-045) was cited and fined by the Wisconsin Department of Regulation & Licensing following a facility inspection. Medline managed a portion of a Wisconsin hospital's warehouse. The inspector cited Medline for failure to install a dividing fence between the Medline warehouse and the hospital portion of the facility. All of the hospital products were owned by the hospital. Medline was also cited for failure to access policies and procedures during the inspection. Corrections were made and the facility re-inspected, to the satisfaction of the state (Case #08	Immediately after the inspection, Medline and the owner of the facility erected a locked fence to divide the faculty. Medline also reviewed all of its other facilities to make sure no similar situations existed. In addition, training on where and how to access current policies and procedures was increased for distribution center personnel. This training is in addition to the training they receive on the policies and procedures themselves.

		PHM 037). In 2010, Medline made an unrelated business decision to close this facility. After duly notifying state authorities, as required by law, Medline received a fine from the states of Hawaii (Case #PHA 2009-7-L) and New York (Cal. No. 27278) for out-of-state professional misconduct.
8/21/2008	94-1420 Moaniani St. Waipahu, HI 96797	FILE CLOSED 2013 Medline Industries, Inc. (PWD 115) was fined $5000 and placed on probation for 5 years for failure to report disciplinary actions within 30 days. Medline submitted all required notices, but missed the 30-day deadline. The probationary period ended in August 2013. (Case # PHA 2008-17-L)	Medline implemented a new process to notify the necessary licensing boards of future disciplinary actions within the required reporting timelines.
3/19/2010	1401 N. Universal Ave. Kansas City, MO 64120	FILE CLOSED 2010 Medline Industries, Inc. applied for a Colorado Out-of-State Wholesaler license for the Kansas City, MO distribution center. The CO Board of Pharmacy issued a conditional license until the facility's MO probation period ended. (See 8/3/2005 discipline). Medline informed the CO Board when the MO probationary period was completed. Upon completion of probation, the Board issued a full license.	See 8/3/2005 discipline for corrective actions related to the underlying sanction.
1/6/2021	1501 Harris Rd Libertyville, IL 60048	FILE CLOSED 2021 Medline Industries, Inc. (OH License #01-1985050) received a fine of $250 from the Ohio Board of Pharmacy for the sale of dangerous drugs to an unlicensed entity. Medline maintained a current and valid DEA license on file for the physician rather than the TDDD license for the facility. The facility's TDDD license at the time of the sale had expired. The fine was paid on January 21, 2021 and the case was closed. (Case No. A-2020-0054 I-2019-0972-B.) After duly notifying state authorities, as required by law, Medline received a $500 fine from the Alabama State Board of Pharmacy for the same underlying conduct as the Ohio matter. The fine was paid and the matter closed. (Case No:21-L-0048)	Medline takes this matter very seriously. Medline reviewed the customer licensing policies and procedures and updated internal requirements for the type of license required for customers in Ohio. Efforts were taken by Customer Licensing to research, ensure the proper type, and check license status for a large number of existing Ohio licenses. The Ohio TDDD licenses are reviewed on an annual basis to ensure compliance.
11/1/2022	1040 Enterprise Parkway South West Jefferson, OH 43162	FILE CLOSED 2022 Medline Industries, LP (OH License #01-30000190) entered a settlement agreement and agreed to pay a fine of $1,125.00 to the Ohio Board of Pharmacy for alleged sales of dangerous drugs to an unlicensed entity. Medline maintained a physician license on file versus a Terminal Distributor (TDDD) license. The TDDD license was added in May 2022- prior to this investigation. During the period of July 2021 to March 2022, the customer's TDDD license lapsed and Medline was unaware. Medline is in the process of notifying states of this fine.	Medline is committed to following all applicable state and federal statutes and regulations, including customer license requirements. Medline updated customer licensing requirements after the 01/06/2021 fine. This incident occurred while Medline was in the process of updating a large number of Ohio accounts. Medline is implementing additional steps to ensure compliance, including, increasing staffing, training, and resources for the customer licensing team.
12/19/2022	9670 NW 112th Ave Miami, FL 33178	FILE CLOSED 2022 Medline Industries, LP (FL WDD# #2220297) entered a settlement agreement and agreed to pay a fine of $6,000.00 to the FL Dept. Business and Professional Regulation. Medline accepted a physician license for a facility customer, instead of the correct facility license. The second allegation relates to failure to include NDC numbers on outbound packing slips/ invoices. After duly notifying state authorities, as required by law, Medline received a reciprocal fine for disciplinary action by another state from the Hawaii Department of Consumer Affairs. The fine was paid and the matter closed. (Case PHA 2023-9-L).	Medline is addressing the customer licensing issue by expanding the customer licensing team resources and oversight. This process began after the 11/1/2022 Ohio Discipline and has been expanded to address FL and confirming other states. The packing slip/invoice error stemmed for an internal system error. The error was limited to DSCSA exempt products, i.e. IV fluids. A system fix is in progress.

07/19/2023 07/25/2023	1040 Enterprise Parkway South West Jefferson, OH 43162 251 Hilton Drive, Jeffersonville, IN 47130	FILE CLOSED 2023 Medline Industries, LP entered a settlement agreement with the Ohio Board of Pharmacy and agreed to pay fines of $750 and $850 for alleged sales of dangerous drugs to an unlicensed entity from the Jeffersonville, IN (OH License #01-30000158) and West Jefferson, OH locations (OH License #01-30000190). The sales occurred between July 2021 and January 2022. After duly notifying state authorities, as required by law, Medline received a reciprocal fine for disciplinary action by another state from the Hawaii Department of Consumer Affairs. The fine was paid and the matter closed. (Case PHA 2023-9-L).	This underlying issue was previously corrected. These fines related to activities between July 2021 and January 2022. At that time Medline was in the process of updating Ohio customer requirements. Medline updated Ohio customer license requirements and implemented a TDDD verification process in 2021. In addition, Medline reviewed all existing Ohio accounts to verify the correct license was on file. The review process was completed in 2022. Medline also dedicated additional resources and staff for the customer licensing team and remains committed to following all state and federal laws and regulations.

Summary of the Material Risks Associated with Our Business

Our business is subject to numerous risks and uncertainties that you should be aware of in evaluating our business. These risks include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Our business is highly dependent on the success of our bezuclastinib program and our ability to discover and develop additional product candidates. We may not be successful in our efforts to develop bezuclastinib or expand our pipeline of drug candidates.
- We will require substantial additional funding. If we fail to obtain additional financing when needed, or on attractive terms, we may be unable to complete the development and commercialization of our product candidates.
- If unacceptable side effects are identified during the development of our drug candidates, we may need to abandon or limit such development.
- We face significant competition from other biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies, and our operating results will suffer if we fail to compete effectively.
- The incidence and prevalence for target patient populations of our drug candidates have not been established with precision. If the market opportunities for our drug candidates are smaller than we estimate or if any approval that we obtain is based on a narrower definition of the patient population, our revenue potential and ability to achieve profitability will be adversely affected.
- Interim, "top-line" and preliminary data from our clinical trials that we announce or publish from time to time may change as more patient data become available, may be interpreted differently if additional data are disclosed, and are subject to audit and verification procedures that could result in material changes in the final data.
- Regulatory authorities, including the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ("FDA"), may disagree with our regulatory plan and we may fail to obtain regulatory approval of our product candidates.
- We currently rely and for the foreseeable future will continue to rely on third parties to conduct our clinical trials and to assist with various research, discovery, manufacturing and supply activities. If these third parties do not properly and successfully carry out their contractual duties or meet expected deadlines, we may not be able to obtain regulatory approval of or commercialize our product candidates or discover new product candidates.
- The third parties upon whom we rely for the supply of the API and drug product used in bezuclastinib are our sole source of supply, and the loss of any of these suppliers could significantly harm our business.
- If our efforts to protect the proprietary nature of the intellectual property related to our technologies are not adequate, we may not be able to compete effectively in our market.
- We are highly dependent on our key personnel, and if we are not successful in attracting and retaining highly qualified personnel, we may not be able to successfully implement our business strategy.
- We have incurred net losses in every year since our inception and anticipate that we will continue to incur net losses in the future.
- The price of our stock may be volatile, and you could lose all or part of your investment.

The summary risk factors described above should be read together with the text of the full risk factors in Item 1A. "Risk Factors" and the other information set forth in this Annual Report on Form 10-K, including our consolidated financial statements and the related notes, as well as in other documents that we file with the SEC. The risks summarized above or described in full below are not the only risks that we face. Additional risks and uncertainties not precisely known to us, or that we currently deem to be immaterial may also materially adversely affect our business, financial condition, results of operations and future growth prospects.

FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Annual Report on Form 10-K contains forward-looking statements, which reflect our current views with respect to, among other things, our operations and financial performance. All statements other than statements of historical facts contained in this Annual Report on Form 10-K, including statements regarding our future results of operations and financial position, business strategy and plans, and objectives of management for future operations, are forward-looking statements. These statements involve known and unknown risks, uncertainties, and other important factors that may cause our actual results, performance or achievements to be materially different from any future results, performance, or achievements expressed or implied by the forward-looking statements.

In some cases, you can identify forward-looking statements by terms such as "may," "should," "expects," "might," "plans," "anticipates," "could," "intends," "target," "projects," "contemplates," "believes," "estimates," "predicts," "potential," "seek," "would" or "continue," or the negative of these terms or other similar expressions. The forward-looking statements in this Annual Report on Form 10-K are only predictions. We have based these forward-looking statements largely on our current expectations and projections about future events and financial trends that we believe may affect our business, financial condition and results of operations. Although we believe that the expectations reflected in the forward-looking statements are reasonable, we cannot guarantee that the future results, levels of activity, performance or events and circumstances reflected in the forward-looking statements will be achieved or occur. These forward-looking statements speak only as of the date of this Annual Report on Form 10-K and are subject to a number of risks, uncertainties and assumptions described in the "Risk Factors" section and elsewhere in this Annual Report on Form 10-K. Because forward-looking statements are inherently subject to risks and uncertainties, some of which cannot be predicted or quantified, you should not rely on these forward-looking statements as predictions of future events. The events and circumstances reflected in our forward-looking statements may not be achieved or occur and actual results could differ materially from those projected in the forward-looking statements. Some of the key factors that could cause actual results to differ from our expectations include:

- the potential impacts of raising additional capital, including dilution to our existing stockholders, restrictions on our operations or requirements that we relinquish rights to our technologies or product candidates;
- the success, cost, and duration of our product development activities and clinical trials, including the enrollment rates in our clinical trials;
- the timing of our planned regulatory submissions to the FDA for our bezuclastinib product candidate and any other product candidates we may develop;
- our ability to obtain and maintain regulatory approval for our bezuclastinib product candidate and any other product candidates we may develop, and any related restrictions, limitations, and/or warnings in the label of an approved product candidate;
- the potential for our identified research priorities to advance our bezuclastinib product candidate or for our teams to discover and develop additional product candidates;
- the ability to license additional intellectual property rights relating to our bezuclastinib product candidate or future product candidates from third-parties and to comply with our existing or future license agreements and/or collaboration agreements;
- our ability to commercialize our bezuclastinib product candidate and future product candidates in light of the intellectual property rights of others;
- our ability to obtain funding for our operations, including funding necessary to complete further discovery, development and commercialization of our existing and future product candidates;
- the scalability and commercial viability of our manufacturing methods and processes;
- the commercialization of our product candidates, if approved;
- our ability to attract collaborators with development, regulatory, and commercialization expertise;
- future agreements with third parties in connection with the commercialization of our product candidates and any other approved product;
- the size and growth potential of the markets for our product candidates, and our ability to serve those markets;
- the rate and degree of market acceptance of our product candidates;
- the pricing and reimbursement of our product candidates, if approved;

- regulatory developments in the United States and foreign countries, including pharmaceutical and biological product marketing regulation;
- the impact of adverse business and economic conditions including inflationary pressures, general economic slowdown or a recession, high interest rates, changes in monetary policy, banking institution instability, changes in trade policies, including tariffs or other trade restrictions or the threat of such actions, and the prospect of a shutdown of the U.S. federal government;
- our ability to contract with third-party suppliers and manufacturers and their ability to perform adequately;
- the development and success of competing therapies that are or may be under development in clinical trials or become available commercially;
- our ability to attract and retain key scientific and management personnel;
- the accuracy of our estimates regarding expenses, future revenue, capital requirements, and needs for additional financing;
- our use of the proceeds from the private placements, sales of our preferred stock and public offerings of our common stock from time to time; and
- our expectations regarding our ability to obtain and maintain intellectual property protection for our bezuclastinib product candidate and future product candidates.

While we may elect to update these forward-looking statements at some point in the future, whether as a result of any new information, future events, or otherwise, we have no current intention of doing so except to the extent required by applicable law.

PART I

Unless the context otherwise requires, we use the terms "Cogent," "company," "we," "us," and "our" to refer to Cogent Biosciences, Inc. and, where appropriate, our subsidiaries.

ITEM 1. BUSINESS

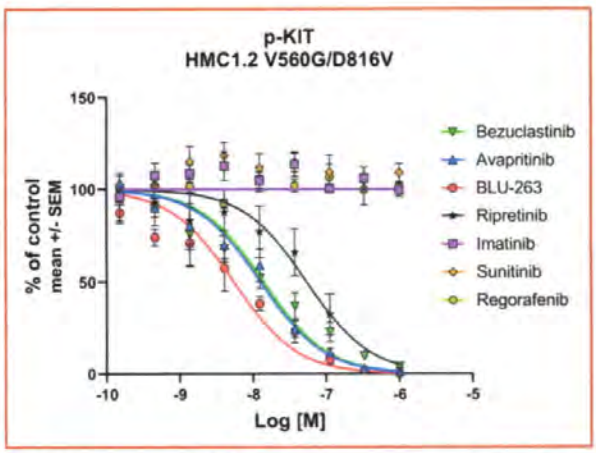
Overview

We are a clinical-stage biotechnology company focused on developing precision therapies for genetically defined diseases. Our approach is to design rational precision therapies that treat the underlying cause of disease and improve the lives of patients. Our most advanced program is bezuclastinib, also known as CGT9486, a highly selective tyrosine kinase inhibitor that is designed to potently inhibit the KIT D816V mutation as well as other mutations in KIT exon 17. In the vast majority of cases, KIT D816V is responsible for driving Systemic Mastocytosis ("SM"), a serious and rare disease caused by unchecked proliferation of mast cells. Exon 17 mutations are also found in patients with advanced gastrointestinal stromal tumors ("GIST"), a type of cancer with strong dependence on oncogenic KIT signaling. Bezuclastinib is a highly selective and potent KIT inhibitor with the potential to provide a new treatment option for these patient populations. We are developing bezuclastinib to treat patients living with Non-Advanced Systemic Mastocytosis ("Non-AdvSM"), Advanced Systemic Mastocytosis ("AdvSM") and GIST. We also have an ongoing Phase 1 study of our novel internally developed FGFR2 inhibitor, CGT4859. In addition, the Cogent Research Team is developing a portfolio of novel targeted therapies to help patients fighting serious, genetically driven diseases initially targeting mutations in ErbB2, PI3Kα and KRAS.

We have assembled a management team with extensive experience in the research, development, manufacturing and commercialization of pharmaceutical products, specifically including numerous successful precision medicines for genetically defined diseases. With the support of our board of directors and their expertise, we believe that the Company is well positioned to develop and commercialize novel precision medicines. Beginning with bezuclastinib, our mission is to develop and commercialize pharmaceutical products that improve the lives of patients fighting rare, genetically driven diseases.

Our Strategy

Our vision is to discover, develop, and commercialize best-in-class therapies that have a meaningful impact for patients with genetically defined diseases. The principal components of our strategy include:



- Explore the clinical utility of bezuclastinib in patients with Non-AdvSM;
- Explore the clinical utility of bezuclastinib in patients with AdvSM;
- Explore the clinical utility of bezuclastinib in combination with sunitinib as a second-line treatment for patients with GIST;
- Prepare to commercialize bezuclastinib should any or all of our active clinical trials demonstrate clinical benefit for patients with high unmet medical need;
- Explore the clinical utility of CGT4859, a reversible, selective FGFR2 inhibitor in patients with documented FGFR mutations, including advanced cholangiocarcinoma;
- Advance our ErbB2, PI3Kα and KRAS preclinical programs, as well as our other undisclosed preclinical programs; and
- Discover and develop additional precision medicines for patients with genetically defined diseases.

Our Pipeline

Bezuclastinib Overview

Bezuclastinib is designed to target mutations within the KIT receptor tyrosine kinase, including KIT D816V. As a Type I inhibitor, bezuclastinib is designed to selectively bind the active conformation of mutant KIT. In preclinical studies, bezuclastinib has demonstrated comparable potency relative to other FDA-approved KIT mutant inhibitors, and clear selectivity for KIT mutations versus other kinase targets frequently associated with other KIT inhibitors including, but not limited to PDGFRα, PDGFRβ, VEGFR2, FLT3, CSF1R and KDR. In preclinical studies of bezuclastinib, limited blood-brain-barrier penetration was observed, and there have been no clinically significant CNS toxicities identified. This preclinical profile of selectivity against kinases that have been associated with off-target toxicities and limited blood-brain-barrier penetration differentiate bezuclastinib from other KIT mutant inhibitors, and support the potential for a best-in-class clinical profile. The figures below provide a summary of potency and selectivity preclinical data.

Under the terms of the license agreement, Plexxikon received an upfront payment and is eligible for additional development and regulatory milestone payments along with mid- to high- single-digit royalty payments.

Clinical Trials and Disease Overviews

Bezuclastinib – SM

SM is driven by KIT D816V mutations causing a perpetual 'on' state within mast cells, a type of white blood cell, leading to proliferation and accumulation in various internal organs and bone marrow. Key biomarkers of SM include but are not limited to, elevated serum tryptase, high mass cell burden in bone marrow and the KIT D816V variant allele frequency. As a highly selective and potent KIT inhibitor, bezuclastinib has the potential to provide a new treatment option for patients with SM. SM occurs when mast cells inappropriately accumulate in various internal organs in the body. Approximately 90% of SM patients present with Non-AdvSM and 10% of patients present with AdvSM, a rare and very aggressive form of SM. There are three subtypes of AdvSM: aggressive SM ("ASM"), SM with associated hematologic neoplasm ("SM-AHN") and mast cell leukemia ("MCL").

Patients diagnosed with Non-AdvSM experience a life-long illness with chronic symptoms including headaches, urticaria pigmentosa, skin lesions, skin redness and warmth (flushing), abdominal pain, bloating, vomiting, diarrhea, and gastroesophageal reflux ("GERD"), that significantly impact the patient's quality of life. Many patients are also at high risk for severe, life-threatening anaphylactic reactions to various triggers such as insect bites or stings. Patients with Non-AdvSM suffer from a poor quality of life and are in need of new treatment options.

Patients with AdvSM may suffer from a multitude of debilitating symptoms such as anemia, thrombocytopenia, ascites, bone fractures, gastrointestinal abnormalities, and enlargement of the liver, spleen, and lymph nodes, which ultimately lead to organ failure and early death. Patients with AdvSM have a significantly diminished lifespan with a median survival of less than 3.5 years.

Based on the characteristics of bezuclastinib, we are pursuing development of the compound in both patients living with AdvSM and patients with Non-AdvSM, the vast majority of whom have a KIT D816V mutation. Emerging clinical data for other kinase inhibitors with activity against KIT D816V have shown that SM patients are highly sensitive to inhibition of the target. Bezuclastinib was specifically designed to selectively inhibit KIT mutations, including KIT D816V.

The underlying SM patient population is not yet well understood. The prevalence of SM in the United States is estimated to be up to 30,000 patients, with the prevalence of Non-AdvSM being approximately 25,000 patients. We believe there is a significant unmet medical need for clinically active, well tolerated treatment options for this patient population. We believe bezuclastinib is well suited to meet this need and target the direct underlying cause of SM. The FDA has granted orphan drug designation to bezuclastinib for the treatment of Mastocytosis.

We expect to report top-line results from our SUMMIT trial in July 2025 and from our APEX trial in the second half of 2025, and we plan to submit the first bezuclastinib New Drug Application ("NDA") by the end of 2025 for patients with SM.

In the first quarter of 2025, we expect to initiate an expanded access program in the United States for SM patients to receive investigational bezuclastinib after meeting certain eligibility criteria.

SUMMIT (Non-AdvSM)

SUMMIT is our registration-directed randomized, global, multicenter, double-blind, placebo-controlled, multi-part Phase 2 clinical trial for patients with Non-AdvSM. The study is designed to explore the safety and efficacy of bezuclastinib in patients with moderate to severe Non-AdvSM, which includes Indolent Systemic Mastocytosis ("ISM"), Smoldering Systemic Mastocytosis ("SSM") and Bone Marrow Mastocytosis. Based on the performance of bezuclastinib's optimized formulation in the PEAK lead-in trial, as well as in a healthy normal volunteer study, the SUMMIT trial protocol was amended to allow for the optimized formulation to be introduced during the Phase 1b dose optimization phase. SUMMIT Part 1 completed enrollment in the third quarter of 2023, including over enrollment at 54 patients across Part 1a and Part 1b. SUMMIT Part 2 completed enrollment in the fourth quarter of 2024, including over enrollment at 179 patients. We expect to report top-line results in July 2025.

From the data collected in Part 1 of SUMMIT and in accordance with FDA guidelines, we have developed a novel patient reported outcomes measure ("PROM") called Mastocytosis Symptom Severity Daily Diary ("MS2D2"). Based on literature review, patient and physician interviews, data from SUMMIT Part 1 and our interactions with the FDA, we believe our MS2D2 is a reliable, valid and fit-for-purpose PROM. The MS2D2 Total Symptom Score ("TSS") is comprised of 11 items, and scored on a 0-110 scale. The primary endpoint of SUMMIT Part 2 is a comparison of week 24 mean absolute change from baseline in MS2D2 TSS between bezuclastinib and placebo. In June 2024, we announced a positive discussion with the FDA and that we reached alignment with the FDA on the use of MS2D2 in Part 2 of SUMMIT.

In February 2024, we presented data from SUMMIT Part 1b at the 2024 American Academy of Allergy, Asthma and Immunology. Thirty-four patients were enrolled in Part 1b and were treated with either bezuclastinib or placebo plus best supportive care. These patients were evaluated for signs of clinical activity over 12 weeks, including well-accepted biomarkers of disease burden. Based on the totality of the results from SUMMIT Part 1, the data support 100 mg QD as the optimal dose of bezuclastinib in Part 2 of SUMMIT for patients with Non-AdvSM. After the initial 12-week period, all patients were given the opportunity to receive bezuclastinib in the SUMMIT Open Label Extension ("OLE"). In December 2024 at the 2024 American Society of Hematology ("ASH") Annual Meeting, we presented updated data on the 27 patients who were randomized in either Part 1 or the OLE to receive the 100 mg QD dose.

At the 100 mg QD dose and as of the cut-off date of August 29, 2024, 89% of patients had >50% decrease in serum tryptase by four weeks of treatment with bezuclastinib and 95% of patients with elevated baseline tryptase achieved serum tryptase levels <20 ng/ml by week 24. Additionally, 84% of patients with baseline serum tryptase >11.4ng/ml achieved <11.4ng/mL by week 24.

a Includes all patients who received bezuclastinib 100mg QD during Part 1 or OLE. Change from baseline is taken during 24 weeks of active therapy. bn=24, 25, or 26 at some timepoints 26 D

After 24 weeks of active treatment, the 27 patients randomized to receive 100 mg QD were evaluated for signs of clinical activity using multiple PRO measures, including the Mastocytosis Symptom Severity Daily Diary ("MS2D2") and the Mastocytosis Quality-of-Life ("MC-QoL") scale. These patients reported at 56% mean improvement in TSS from baseline.

Additionally, 76% of patients demonstrated >50% reduction from baseline in MS2D2 TSS with 88% of patients exceeding 30% reduction from baseline after 24 weeks. At 24 weeks of treatment 31% of patients have already reduced or discontinued best supportive care medications.

As of the data cutoff, August 29, 2024, the median duration of bezuclastinib treatment was 56 weeks for patients in the active arm and 40 weeks for placebo patients who crossed over to the OLE. The majority of treatment emergent adverse events were low grade and reversible with no treatment-related bleeding or cognitive impairment events reported. The most common treatment-emergent adverse events were hair color changes and transaminase elevations. All patients experiencing elevated transaminases were asymptomatic and reversible: five patients resolved without any dose modifications and remained on study; two patients resolved with dose reduction and remained on study, one of whom re-escalated to the original dose; and two patients resolved following discontinuation. All of the safety data were previously reported at ASH 2024. There were no other discontinuations due to adverse events.

APEX (AdvSM)

APEX is our registration-directed global, open-label, multi-center, Phase 2 clinical trial in patients with AdvSM evaluating the safety, efficacy, pharmacokinetic, and pharmacodynamic profiles of bezuclastinib. In April 2023, we initiated Part 2 of the APEX trial using the optimized formulation of bezuclastinib at 150 mg daily dose. An additional APEX cohort was initiated in the third quarter of 2023 and is designed to allow concomitant administration of bezuclastinib with azacitadine in patients with SM-AHN. We completed enrollment in APEX Part 2 in the first quarter of 2025 with 58 patients and expect to present top-line results in the second half of 2025.

In December 2024, at the 2024 ASH meeting, we reported updated positive clinical data from Part 1 of the APEX trial. Thirty-two patients were treated in Part 1 at one of four dose levels (50 mg BID, 100 mg BID, 200 mg BID or 400 mg QD). In 2024, we announced APEX Part 2 would be conducted at the optimized 150mg QD dose, which closely matches the exposure from 100 mg BID dose in APEX Part 1. Patients were enrolled with the following sub-types: seven patients with ASM, 23 patients with SM-AHN, and two patients with MCL.

As of the cutoff date of October 11, 2024, 32 patients enrolled were evaluated for signs of clinical activity, 27 of whom were mIWG-MRT-ECNM evaluable. An objective response rate ("ORR") of 52% (including complete remission ("CR"), CR with partial hematologic remission ("CRh"), partial remission ("PR"), and clinical improvement ("CI")) was achieved, including 61% ORR for TKI-treatment-naïve patients. An ORR of 88% was achieved by pure pathological response ("PPR") criteria. The median time to achieve response was 2.2 months and median duration of response has not yet been reached. Median progression-free survival ("PFS") was not yet reached at median follow-up of 20 months and the PFS rate at 24 months was 82%.

† Primary endpoint of Apex study

As of October 11, 2024, 94% of patients achieved a ≥ 50% reduction in serum tryptase levels, with 100% of patients receiving at least two cycles of treatment achieving a ≥ 50% reduction and 66% of patients achieved a reduction of serum tryptase below 20 ng/ml. Additionally, 93% of KIT D9816V-positive patients achieved a ≥ 50% reduction in KIT D816V VAF and 100% of evaluable patients achieved ≥ 50% reduction in bone marrow mast cell burden, with 83% of patients achieving a complete clearance of mast cell aggregates.

As of the data cutoff date of October 11, 2024, bezuclastinib continues to demonstrate a differentiated safety and tolerability profile across doses. The majority of hematological adverse events were low grade and reversible. There have been no new treatment-related serious adverse events or discontinuations reported since the 2023 ASH annual meeting. Twelve patients required dose reduction, eight of whom were treated at a 400 mg daily dose.

Bezuclastinib – GIST

GIST is characterized by uncontrolled cell growth in the interstitial cells of the gastrointestinal ("GI") tract. At diagnosis, about 80% of GIST patients' tumors are the result of primary KIT mutations. Imatinib is the current standard of care for treating GIST patients in the first line setting, with a median PFS of 19 months. However, the majority of GIST patients eventually develop resistance to imatinib due to secondary KIT mutations, most notably in exon 17 and exon 13. There are an estimated 2,000 to 3,500 patients with imatinib-resistant GIST eligible for treatment each year in the United States. We believe there is a significant unmet medical need for clinically active, well tolerated treatment options for this patient population and results from our clinical trial of bezuclastinib in combination with sunitinib demonstrated the potential for this novel combination to address the underlying drivers of imatinib resistance. Bezuclastinib has been granted orphan drug designation for the treatment of GIST by the FDA and under the Orphan Drug Act and the European Medicines Agency ("EMA").

Bezuclastinib is designed to be a potent and selective inhibitor of KIT exon 17 mutations. By combining bezuclastinib with sunitinib, a tyrosine kinase inhibitor known to inhibit KIT exon 13 mutations, we believe this combination has the potential to offer a new, active treatment option for imatinib resistant GIST patients.

The safety profile of bezuclastinib was clinically evaluated in approximately 50 GIST patients both as a single agent and as part of a combination therapy. Clinical data from this trial were published in the Journal of American Medical Association ("JAMA") and were presented at several scientific conferences, including by us at the 2020 annual Connective Tissue Oncology Society ("CTOS") meeting, and previously by Plexxikon at the 2018 annual American Society of Clinical Oncology ("ASCO") meeting and the 2017 annual CTOS meeting. In November 2020, we presented final results from a Phase 1/2 trial testing the combination of bezuclastinib with sunitinib in 18 heavily pre-treated GIST patients at 2020 CTOS. In the subset of 15 patients who had not been previously treated with bezuclastinib as a single-agent, the estimated mPFS reached 12 months, the confirmed ORR was 20% and the clinical benefit rate (CR+PR+SD) was 80%, with 27% of patients remaining on therapy out 27-34 months. Importantly, there were no dose limiting toxicities in the three dose levels tested, and the most common Treatment Emergent Adverse Events that were grade 3 or higher included anemia (5 patients, 27.8%), hypophosphatemia (3 patients, 16.7%), diarrhea, fatigue, hypertension, and lymphopenia (each 2 patients, 11.1%).

Summary of Risk Factors

Risks Related to Our Business and Industry

- If we do not successfully execute our priorities, our business, operating results and financial condition could be adversely affected.
- We are in a highly competitive and evolving field and face competition from well-established tissue processors and medical device manufacturers, as well as new market entrants.
- Rapid technological change could cause our products to become obsolete.
- Many of our products depend on the availability of tissue from human donors, and any disruption in supply could adversely affect our business.
- We depend on our senior leadership team and key employees and may not be able to retain or replace these employees or recruit additional qualified personnel.
- Our revenues depend on adequate reimbursement from public and private insurers and health systems and changes to the way in which our products are reimbursed in various sites of service could adversely impact our financial results.
- Our revenue, results of operations and cash flows may suffer upon the loss of a Group Purchasing Organization or Integrated Delivery Network.
- We contract with and are dependent on independent sales agents and distributors.
- Disruption of our processing facilities could adversely affect our business, financial condition and results of operations.
- To be commercially successful, we must educate physicians, where appropriate, how and when our products are proper alternatives to existing treatments and that our products should be used in their procedures.
- If we cannot successfully address quality issues that may arise with our products, our brand reputation could suffer, and our business, financial condition, and results of operations could be adversely impacted.
- The formation of physician-owned distributorships could result in increased pricing pressure on our products or harm our ability to sell our products to physicians who own or are affiliated with those distributorships.
- We face the risk of product liability claims and may not be able to obtain or maintain adequate product liability insurance.
- The products we offer are derived from human and animal tissue and therefore have the potential for disease transmission.
- We may implement a product recall or voluntary market withdrawal.
- A cyberattack or significant disruptions of information technology systems could adversely affect our business.
- We may expand or contract our business through acquisitions, divestitures, licenses, investments, and other commercial arrangements.
- A portion of our revenues and accounts receivable come from government accounts.
- New lines of business or new products and services may subject us to additional risks.
- Our international expansion and operations outside the U.S. expose us to risks.

Risks Related to Regulatory Approval of Our Products and Other Government Regulations

- The FDA has in the past determined, and may in the future determine, that certain of our products that are, or are derived from, human cells or tissues, do not qualify for regulation solely under Section 361 of the Public Health Service Act ("Section 361"), and may require that we revise our labeling and marketing claims for these products or that we suspend sales of such products until FDA pre-market clearance or approval is obtained, which could adversely affect our business, results of operations, and financial condition.
- Obtaining and maintaining the necessary regulatory approvals, including conducting clinical trials, for certain of our products will be expensive and time consuming and may impede our ability to fully exploit our technologies.
- Our business is subject to extensive regulation by the FDA and other authorities, which is costly.
- We may be subject to fines, penalties, injunctions and other sanctions if we are deemed to be promoting the use of our products for unapproved, or off-label, uses.
- We and our sales representatives must comply with various federal and state anti-kickback, self-referral, false claims and similar laws.
- Our results of operations may be adversely affected by current and potential future healthcare reforms.
- We may fail to obtain or maintain foreign regulatory approvals to market our products in other countries.
- Federal, state, and international laws that protect the privacy and security of personal information may increase our costs and limit our ability to collect and use that information and subject us to liability.

Risks Related to Our Intellectual Property

- Our ability to protect our intellectual property and proprietary technology through patents and other means is uncertain and may be inadequate.
- We may become subject to claims of infringement of the intellectual property rights of others.
- We may be subject to damages resulting from claims that we, our employees, or our independent contractors have wrongfully used or disclosed alleged trade secrets, proprietary or confidential information of our competitors or are in breach of non-competition or non-solicitation agreements with our competitors.

Risks Related to Our Consolidated Financial Statements, Internal Controls and Related Matters

- If we fail to maintain adequate internal control over financial reporting in the future, this could adversely affect our business, financial condition and operating results.

Risks Related to the Ownership of Our Common Stock

- The restrictive covenants in the Citizens Credit Agreement, and the Company's obligation to make payments under the Citizens Credit Agreement, limit our operating and financial flexibility.
- EW Healthcare Partners and its interests may conflict with those of our other shareholders.
- The price of our Common Stock has been, and will likely continue to be, volatile.
- Securities analysts may elect not to report on our common stock or may issue negative reports that adversely affect the stock price.
- Fluctuations in revenue or results of operations could cause additional volatility in our stock price.
- We do not intend to pay cash dividends on our Common Stock.
- Certain provisions of Florida law and anti-takeover provisions in our organizational documents may discourage or prevent a change of control.

Estimates and Projections

This discussion includes certain estimates, projections and other statistical data. These estimates and projections reflect management's best estimates based upon currently available information and certain assumptions we believe to be reasonable. These estimates are inherently uncertain, subject to risks and uncertainties, many of which are not within our control, have not been reviewed by our independent auditors and may be revised as a result of management's further review. In addition, these estimates and projections are not a comprehensive statement of our financial results, and our actual results may differ materially from these estimates and projections due to developments that may arise between now and the time the results are final. There can be no assurance that the estimates will be realized, and our results may vary significantly from the estimates, including as a result of unexpected issues in our business and operations. Accordingly, you should not place undue reliance on such information. Projections, assumptions and estimates of our future performance and the future performance of the markets in which we operate are necessarily subject to a high degree of uncertainty and risk. See Item 1A, Risk Factors for further information.

Item 1. Business

Overview

MIMEDX is a pioneer and leader in placental biologics focused on helping humans heal. With more than a decade of helping clinicians manage chronic and other hard-to-heal wounds, MIMEDX is dedicated to providing a leading portfolio of products for applications in the wound care, burn, and surgical sectors of healthcare. The Company's vision is to be the leading global provider of healing solutions through relentless innovation to restore quality of life.

With deep expertise, leading peer-reviewed data and an expansive library of additional scientific and real-world evidence in the field of placental biologics, MIMEDX develops and distributes placental tissue allografts that are manufactured using patent-protected, proprietary processes for multiple sectors of healthcare. Additionally, we began offering animal-derived products, or xenografts, in 2024 and have plans to further expand our product offering to serve our large and growing customer base.

Today, our product offering is comprised of solutions designed to help clinicians treat patients suffering from chronic and other hard-to-heal wounds, primarily in the wound care, burn, and surgical sectors of healthcare. These wounds can be slow to respond or unresponsive to conventional treatments and may benefit from advanced treatments, such as through the use of our products, in order to support the healing process.

Our placental allografts are human tissues that are derived from one person (the donor) and used to process products that treat multiple people (the recipients). The manufacturing of our human derived product offering begins with donated birth tissue, namely the human placental membrane, umbilical cord and the placental disc, which we source through a large donor network developed over multiple years with leading hospitals and clinician groups. In partnership with these facilities, we are able to obtain donated birth tissue from consenting mothers, which then are shipped to our manufacturing facilities in Marietta, Georgia, and undergo a series of testing followed by our proprietary tissue manufacturing workflow, which we refer to as the PURION® process. MIMEDX has supplied over three million allografts, through all shipments, filling direct orders and consignment orders, through December 31, 2024.

In 2024, we obtained the exclusive rights for and launched our first xenograft product and first U.S. Food & Drug Administration ("FDA") 510(k)-cleared product, HELIOGEN™ Fibrillar Collagen Matrix, a particulate product aimed at addressing complex wounds primarily in the surgical setting. HELIOGEN is manufactured by Regenity Biosciences, a developer and manufacturer of bioresorbable technologies.

We employ Current Good Tissue Practices ("CGTP") and terminal sterilization to produce our allografts. All of our products sold in the United States are regulated by the FDA, and to the extent we sell our products outside the United States, by other regulatory agencies in such international markets.

We devote significant research and development resources and expertise to the therapeutic potential of human derived, animal derived and synthetic tissues in an effort to grow our product offering, develop innovative products that address a wide range of chronic and acute health conditions affecting large patient populations, and generate best-in-class clinical evidence and data to support the use of our products.

Market Overview

Domestic sales currently account for the vast majority of our revenue today. In the United States, our primary areas of clinical use include applications in surgical settings as well as for the treatment of wounds and burns. Additionally we continue to pursue international expansion, primarily targeting Japan, as discussed below.

Wound

The unmet need for healing solutions is large and growing, with an estimated 1-2% of the population in developed countries and worldwide experiencing a chronic wound sometime in their lives[1]. In the U.S., the most recently available data indicates that chronic wounds affect 10.5 million Medicare beneficiaries and nearly 2.5% of the total population in the U.S.[2] The treatment of chronic wounds with advanced treatments is often referred to as Advanced Wound Care ("AWC"). Chronic wounds are defined and characterized as those that do not progress through the normal process of healing and remain open for an extended period of time, which, depending on the wound, can be from several weeks to a few months. There are numerous underlying causes of these wounds, with this patient population typically sharing some combination of comorbidities, including age, obesity, smoking history, diabetes and underlying heart and vascular diseases. Due to the rising incidence of each of these factors, we expect the AWC market will continue to grow worldwide.

Patients present with chronic wounds in a variety of care settings and these wounds vary in severity and complexity to treat. Our products can be found in many of these sites of service, including the private physician office (e.g., podiatry clinics), wound care centers, hospital inpatient and outpatient settings, nursing homes and federal facilities, such as those operated by the Department of Veterans Affairs ("VA"). The most common types of chronic and hard-to-heal wounds appear in the lower extremities, presenting as diabetic foot ulcers ("DFUs"), venous leg ulcers ("VLUs"), and pressure ulcers, among others. Taken together, nearly 60% of the chronic wounds in the U.S. are categorized as chronic leg ulcers (which include DFUs and VLUs), with 47% of these wounds treated with Advanced Wound Care dressings such as skin substitutes[3]. These wounds require intervention and active management by clinicians and are treated in a variety of sites-of-service, with numerous products aimed at achieving healing for the patient. The costs associated with treatment and management of patients with acute and chronic wounds is also high, with some estimates of the Medicare spend associated with such wounds approaching $100 billion annually.

The large and increasing number of patients requiring advanced treatment represents a significant cost burden on the healthcare system. The overall cost of treating chronic wounds is rising sharply, and the annual estimated cost in the United States has recently been estimated to exceed $28 billion[4].

Complications from non-healing chronic wounds can ultimately result in significant, life-altering adverse outcomes, such as limb amputation[5]. Ineffective wound management is linked to numerous poor outcomes for patients, up to and including the potential for amputation of the extremity where the wound is present. Amputation is a catastrophic event for patients, with significant impacts to their quality of life, the lives of their caretakers and the expense burden on the healthcare system. Today, up to one-fifth of diabetic patients who develop a DFU will require some form of amputation. Further, patients who undergo a major lower extremity amputation have an increased five-year mortality rate that is comparable to, and in some cases higher than, patients with many forms of cancer[6].

Advances in managing chronic and hard-to-heal wounds with solutions such as our EPIFIX® product have been shown to help contribute to improved outcomes for these patients. It is estimated that up to 85% of amputations are avoidable with a holistic, multispecialty team approach that incorporates innovative treatments, such as MIMEDX's products, and adherence to treatment parameters. MIMEDX is a leader in the cellular tissue products/skin substitute segment of the AWC category and the amniotic tissue allograft sub-category.

The AWC market is comprised of many product types, such as medical devices, advanced dressings, xenografts, synthetically derived grafts, biological products, and Human Cells, Tissues, and Cellular and Tissue - Based Products ("HCT/Ps"), which are used as skin substitutes to treat severe and chronic wounds. Not included in AWC are traditional wound care dressings, such as bandages, gauzes and ointments, which typically are used in the treatment of non-severe or non-chronic wounds.

The prevalence of both acute and chronic wounds has grown not only in the U.S., but also globally. While historically we have focused primarily on the U.S. market, we are in the process of expanding our footprint internationally, most notably in Japan where EPIFIX is the first and currently the only amniotic tissue product approved in the country for wound treatment across a broad range of conditions. We believe our first-mover advantage, favorable reimbursement rate, and strong distribution partner set us up for long-term success in this large and growing market.

Traditional dressings such as bandages, gauzes and ointments, along with treatment of active infection and debridement, currently represent the "standard of care" for treating chronic wounds such as DFUs and VLUs. If, after four weeks of standard of care therapy, the wound has not responded appropriately or improved, clinical research has shown that advanced therapy such as a skin substitute can be beneficial as part of the patient's treatment plan. Our EPIFIX, EPICORD® and EPIEFFECT® products can be stored at room temperature for up to five years, in contrast to certain other skin substitutes currently on the market that have performance, storage or handling limitations. In addition, we market multiple sizes of EPIFIX, EPICORD and EPIEFFECT sheets for use as protective barriers, which enables a healthcare provider to select an appropriate size graft based on the size of the wound to reduce product waste. Our EPICORD, EPICORD Expandable and EPIEFFECT product lines also offer an alternative treatment option to address larger, deeper wounds in a cost-effective way at a point earlier in the treatment algorithm.

With broad commercial payor coverage, Medicare coverage under the Local Coverage Determinations ("LCDs") scheduled for implementation in April 2025, the largest body of Level 1 clinical evidence among placental allograft products and a dedicated sales team calling on each of the major sites-of-service, we expect to continue to expand our presence in the AWC market, driving future growth of our business[7].

Surgical

In addition to our presence in the AWC settings, our products are also used in a variety of surgical settings, and our strategic goals include building a body of evidence and real-world use data for our products in a wide range of procedures. The applications in Surgical range from those involving the closure of an acute wound (which we refer to as "Surgical Recovery"), to those where our allografts are used inside the body to protect or reinforce tissues and/or regions of interest.

Acute wounds are defined as those that are recent, are acquired from an incision or trauma and have yet to progress through the sequential stages of wound healing. Acute wounds can be caused accidentally or they can arise in the normal course of a wide-range of surgical procedures. When acute wounds present in patients with similar comorbidities to those of chronic wound patients, the risk of a slow or ineffective healing wound increases, and the risk of a surgical site infection or other similar complication increases for the patient.

In other surgical settings, the use of our products in a wide range of procedures presents a growing number of meaningful opportunities for our business. For example, the use of our tissues in anastomotic procedures has shown a statistically significant reduction in complications arising from leaks. In other procedures, the need to protect sensitive nerves, tissues or other areas may occur. We are working with surgeons in a range of disciplines to build the body of clinical, scientific and health outcomes evidence to support the use of our products broadly. We believe our product offering is ideally suited for applications in a growing number of surgical specialties that we are targeting and expect the utilization of our products to continue to grow over time in this market.

Our strategy is to continue to deliver advanced products that serve patient needs within the Advanced Wound Care and Surgical markets and increase access to our products through clinical data generation and physician education.

Our Strategic Priorities

We manage our business by focusing on the following strategic priorities, which we believe are paramount to the success of MIMEDX over the short- and long-term.

Our first priority is to innovate and diversify our product portfolio to maximize growth. Achievement of this priority is measured by our ability to maximize our commercial opportunities in the markets we serve with existing and future products, continue to introduce new products from our organic pipeline, such as the late-2023 launch of EPIEFFECT as well as the 2024 launch of HELIOGEN and accelerate market expansion internationally with a particular focus on continuing to grow our presence in Japan.

Our second priority is to develop and deploy programs to expand our surgical footprint. We believe our ability to further penetrate the surgical setting is significant and will be enabled by our ability to leverage our existing evidence for surgical applications, invest in additional research and data in new indications and to drive market adoption of new surgical products, like our recently launched HELIOGEN offering.

Our third priority is to enhance our customer intimacy, which is a company-wide effort intended to implement programs and introduce offerings in support of lowering customer turnover. To that end, in March 2024 we launched MIMEDX Connect, an online product ordering and account management portal available to our customers designed to streamline ordering, payment processing and reimbursement submissions,

We believe execution of these strategic priorities can and will differentiate the value of our portfolio, address multiple areas of significant unmet clinical need, and support our continued growth in both new and existing segments of the market. We have focused our priorities on initiatives across our organization that position us to realize our commercial ambitions over the long-term while also generating a profitable, cash flow positive business capable of self-funding our future growth objectives.

Our Product Portfolio & Pipeline

Our product offering is comprised of tissue allografts derived from human placental membrane, umbilical cord and the placental disc. These products were developed and are manufactured using our proprietary processes. We sell our placenta-based allograft products under our own brands. We maintain strict controls on quality at each step of the manufacturing process beginning at the time of procurement. Our Quality Management System is focused on compliance with the American Association of Tissue Banks' ("AATB") standards, the FDA's CGTP regulations, and applicable foreign regulations.

Our Wound products, such as EPIFIX are marketed for external use, such as in Advanced Wound Care applications, while products such as AMNIOEFFECT are positioned for use in Surgical applications, including lower extremity repair, plastic surgery, vascular surgery and multiple orthopedic repairs and reconstruction, and our AXIOFILL product is positioned for use in the replacement or supplementation of damaged or inadequate integumental tissue. Our product portfolio also includes products for the burn market and others.

In 2024, we launched HELIOGEN, our first xenograft (animal-derived) and our first 510(k) cleared product in our portfolio. HELIOGEN is an advanced bovine collagen matrix containing type I and type III collagen that is intended for the management of moderately to heavily exudating wounds and to control minor bleeding. The product may be used for the management of exudating wounds such as pressure ulcers, venous stasis ulcers, diabetic ulcers, acute wounds, such as trauma and surgical wounds, and partial-thickness burns.

We continue to research new opportunities for additional human and animal derived products in a variety of configurations and sizes, and we have additional offerings in various stages of conceptualization and development.

Placenta Donation Program

In order to obtain the source material for our human birth tissue-based product portfolio, we partner with physicians and hospitals to recover donations of these materials at hospitals around the United States. Through our donor program, a mother who delivers a healthy baby via Caesarean section can donate her placenta and umbilical cord tissue in lieu of having it discarded as medical waste. After consent for donation is obtained, a blood sample from each donor is tested for communicable diseases, and the donor is screened for risk factors to determine eligibility in compliance with federal regulations and AATB standards. We operate a licensed tissue bank that is registered as a tissue establishment with the FDA, and we are an accredited member of the AATB. All donor records and test results are reviewed by our Medical Director and staff prior to the release of the tissue for distribution.

We have developed a large, geographically diverse, network of hospitals across the United States that participate in our placenta donation program, and we employ a dedicated staff that work with these hospitals. We also utilize third-party providers of placenta donations on an as- needed basis to mitigate business risk. We believe that we will be able to obtain an adequate supply of tissue to meet anticipated demand for the foreseeable future.

Processing (Manufacturing)

The Company has developed and patented a unique and proprietary technique (PURION) for processing allografts from the donated placental tissue. This technique specifically focuses on preserving the tissue's natural growth factor content and regulatory proteins and maintaining the structure and collagen matrix of the tissue. Our patented and proprietary processing method employs aseptic processing techniques in addition to terminal sterilization for increased product safety. Despite starting with similar placental tissues, all placental tissue products and processing methods are not the same – we believe that our proprietary process preserves more of the natural beneficial characteristics of the tissue than the processes used by many of our competitors.

The PURION process produces an allograft that retains the tissue's inherent biological properties and regulatory proteins (including cytokines, chemokines, and growth factors) found in the placental tissue and produces an allograft that is safe and easy for healthcare providers to use. Our allografts can be stored at room temperature and have a five-year shelf life. Each sheet allograft incorporates specialized visual markings that assist the health care practitioner with allograft placement and orientation.

To ensure the safety of human tissue products, the FDA enforces CGTP manufacturing regulations. We believe that MIMEDX has developed robust systems to comply with, and is in compliance with, these regulations. As an important part of the Company's product safety compliance, MIMEDX products are terminally sterilized to an internationally recognized industry standard in addition to having been processed via the PURION process.

Our facilities are subject to periodic announced and unannounced inspections by regulatory authorities and may undergo compliance inspections conducted by the FDA and corresponding state and foreign agencies. We are registered with the FDA as a tissue establishment and are subject to the FDA's CGTP quality program regulations, state regulations, and regulations promulgated by various regulatory authorities outside the United States.

The FDA most recently inspected our Marietta, Georgia, and Kennesaw, Georgia, processing facilities in 2023. At the conclusion of the inspections, the agency confirmed that the observations made in connection with its prior inspection in 2019 had all been satisfactorily closed out and/or resolved and there were no observations relating to noncompliance with 21 CFR 1271.

During the inspections, the FDA communicated that our product, AXIOFILL, appeared to be regulated under Section 351 of the Public Health Service Act (the "PHS Act"). Based on this position, the FDA inspected the facilities related to AXIOFILL production using regulations 21 CFR 210 and 211, relating to finished pharmaceutical products in addition to 21 CFR 1271, relating to HCT/Ps (as defined below). The FDA issued a Form 483, which is a list of inspectional observations, at the conclusion of each inspection. Specifically, the FDA issued a Form 483 consisting of one (1) observation at our Marietta, Georgia, processing facility, and a Form 483 consisting of six (6) observations at our Kennesaw, Georgia, processing facility. All observations were related to our AXIOFILL product and 21 CFR 211.

Subsequent to the inspections, MIMEDX engaged with the FDA regarding the observations and the appropriate classification of AXIOFILL, including a pre-Request for Designation ("RFD") and a formal RFD process, which define the regulatory identity or classification of a product as a drug, device, biological product or combination product. While the Company was engaged with FDA through the formal RFD process regarding AXIOFILL, MIMEDX received a Warning Letter on December 21, 2023, relating to the inspections and classification of AXIOFILL.

In March 2024, the FDA issued a determination letter in connection with the RFD process for AXIOFILL, reaffirming its position that the product does not meet the regulatory classification requirements of a Human Cell, Tissue or Cellular or Tissue-based Product ("HCT/P") under Section 361 of the Public Health Service Act ("PHSA"). In response to the RFD determination letter, MIMEDX subsequently filed suit in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia and intends to exhaust all legal options available, given the arbitrary and capricious manner in which FDA is regulating like-kind products. These proceedings are ongoing. Notably, while these proceedings are taking place, the Company is permitted to continue marketing AXIOFILL.

Intellectual Property

Our intellectual property includes owned and licensed patents, owned and licensed patent applications and patents pending, proprietary manufacturing processes and trade secrets, and trademarks associated with our technology. We believe that our patents, proprietary manufacturing processes, trade secrets, trademarks, and technology licensing rights provide us with important competitive advantages.

Patents and Patent Applications

Due to the substantial expertise and investment of time, effort and financial resources required to bring new regenerative biomaterial products and implants to the market, the importance of obtaining and maintaining patent protection for significant new technologies, products and processes cannot be underestimated. As of the date of the filing of this Annual Report, in addition to international patents and patent applications, we own 81 U.S. patents related to our amniotic tissue technology and products, and 12 additional patent applications covering aspects of this technology are pending at the United States Patent and Trademark Office. The vast majority of our domestic patents covering our core amniotic tissue technology and products will not begin to expire until August 2027. Globally, the Company has over 200 issued and pending patents, and from time to time seeks to enforce its intellectual property rights.

Marketing and Sales

Our direct sales team includes field sales representatives and field sales management, who call on hospitals, wound care clinics, physician offices, and federal health care facilities such as the VA and Department of Defense ("DoD") hospitals. Our direct sales force primarily focuses on the Wound and Surgical categories through multiple sites of service. We also maintain a network of independent sales agents that focus on Surgical applications leveraging the complementary products in their portfolios, and provide access to certain customers, as well as sales coverage for areas where we do not have a full-time sales representative.

We also sell our products through distributors. Distributors purchase products from us at wholesale prices and resell products to providers and end users. For example, in Japan, our distribution partner, Gunze Medical, purchases products from us and is responsible for sales to the end users for the approved indications of use and at the prevailing reimbursement rate for the product.

Coverage and Reimbursement

With the exception of government accounts, most purchasers of our products include physicians, hospitals, or ambulatory surgery centers ("ASCs") that rely on reimbursement by third-party payers. Accordingly, our growth substantially depends on adequate levels of third-party reimbursement for our products from these payers. Third-party payers have historically been sensitive to the cost of products and services and are increasingly seeking to implement cost containment measures to control, restrict access to, or influence the purchase of health care products and services. In the U.S., such payers include U.S. federal healthcare programs (e.g., Medicare and Medicaid), private insurance plans, managed care programs, and workers' compensation plans. Federal healthcare programs have prescribed coverage criteria and reimbursement rates for medical products, services, and procedures. Similarly, private, third-party payers have their own coverage criteria and negotiate reimbursement amounts for medical products, services, and procedures with providers. In addition, in the U.S., an increasing percentage of insured individuals are receiving their medical care through managed care programs (including managed federal healthcare programs) which monitor and may require pre-approval of the products and services that a member receives. Ultimately, however, each third-party payer determines whether and on what conditions they will provide coverage for our products, and such decisions often include each payer's assessment of the science and efficacy of the applicable product.

A portion of our products is purchased by U.S. government accounts (e.g., the VA and the Public Health Service, including the Indian Health Service), which do not depend on reimbursement from third-party payers. In order for us to be eligible to have our products purchased by such federal agencies and paid for by the Medicaid program, federal law requires us to participate in the VA Federal Supply Schedule ("FSS") pricing program.

Medicare Coverage

The largest third-party payer in the United States is the Medicare program, which is a federally-funded program that provides healthcare coverage for senior citizens and certain disabled individuals. The Medicare program is administered by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services ("CMS"), an agency within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services ("HHS"). Medicare Administrative Contractors ("MACs") are private insurance companies that serve as agents of CMS in the administration of the Medicare program and are responsible for making coverage decisions and paying claims for the designated Medicare jurisdiction. There are seven Part A/B MACs in the U.S., which cover 12 unique geographical jurisdictions. Each MAC also has its own standards and process for determining coverage and reimbursement for a procedure or product. Private payers often follow the lead of governmental payers in making coverage and reimbursement determinations. Therefore, achieving favorable Medicare coverage and reimbursement is usually a significant gating factor for successful adoption of a new product or clinical application by private payers.

The coverage and reimbursement framework for products under Medicare is determined in accordance with the Social Security Act and pursuant to regulations promulgated by CMS, as well as the agency's coverage and reimbursement guidance. In some cases, CMS does not specify coverage, leaving each of the MACs to determine whether and on what conditions they will provide coverage for the product. Such decisions are based on each MAC's assessments of the science and efficacy of the applicable product. As noted below under the heading "Research and Development," we have devoted significant resources to clinical studies to provide data to the MACs, as well as other payers, in order to demonstrate the clinical efficacy and economic effectiveness of our tissue technologies.

For Medicare reimbursement purposes, our EPIFIX, EPICORD and EPIEFFECT allografts are classified as "skin substitutes." Current reimbursement methodology varies between the hospital outpatient department ("HOPD") and ASC setting versus the physician office. Currently, within the HOPD and ASC places of service, skin substitutes are reimbursed under a "packaged" or "bundled" methodology that provides a single payment for both the application of the product as well as the product itself. CMS classifies skin substitutes into low cost or high cost groups. Our EPIFIX, EPICORD and EPIEFFECT products are all reimbursed under the high cost bundle in these settings. The national HOPD average packaged ("bundled") rate for our EPIFIX and EPICORD allograft products was $1,715 in 2021, $1,749.26 in 2022, $1,725 in 2023, and $1,738 in 2024. The national HOPD average packaged ("bundled") rate for our EPIFIX, EPICORD and EPIEFFECT products in 2025 is $1,829.23. CMS assigns lower national rates to the ASC to reflect a less resource-intensive place of service. Revenue in the ASC setting constitutes less than 1% of the Company's annual net sales. Medicare payments for most items and services, including EPIFIX and EPICORD sheet products, have been subject to sequestration reductions of approximately 2% periodically from 2013.

Medicare reimbursement in the physician office and associated care settings has been under increased scrutiny over the last couple of years and has led to changes in the manner in which products qualify for coverage and are reimbursed. We expect additional reimbursement changes over the course of 2025 associated with skin substitutes. Beginning in 2022, CMS announced plans to potentially change the reimbursement mechanism for skin substitutes in the physician office setting but has not proposed or enacted any national changes to the rules for these products to date. Over the last several years, a combination of rapidly escalating prices and volumes in the industry has resulted in Medicare spending on skin substitutes to increase dramatically, with annual spending in 2020 of about $500 million to a monthly run-rate of over $1 billion per month by the end of 2024.

In response to this dramatic increase in Medicare spending, the MACs together released a proposed Local Coverage Determination ("LCD") in April 2024 that was further refined and finalized in November 2024. This policy, which is scheduled to become effective April 13, 2025 includes lists of skin substitute products which would explicitly be eligible for coverage and those which would not, based upon prospective, peer-reviewed randomized, controlled trials ("RCTs").

The Company's EPIFIX and EPICORD products are recognized in the document for having sufficient evidence for coverage, with EPIFIX listed as covered for DFUs and VLUs and EPICORD covered for DFUs. EPIEFFECT, the Company's other primary product for the Wound markets, will not be covered under this policy initially. We are currently enrolling an RCT for EPIEFFECT designed to generate and publish the requisite evidence for coverage in the future.

Private Payers

We have devoted considerable resources to clinical trials to support coverage and reimbursement of our products. An increasing number of private payers reimburse for EPIFIX and EPICORD in the physician office, the HOPD and the ASC settings, and we have complete national commercial coverage for the use of EPIFIX in the treatment of DFUs. Additionally, EPIEFFECT has also started to receive private reimbursement in certain regions of the U.S. and we are focused on continuing to increase the number of covered lives eligible for this product in the future, most notably through the completion of a well designed and powered RCT that we are currently enrolling.

Coverage and reimbursement vary according to the patient's health plan and related benefits. The majority of health plans currently provide coverage for EPIFIX and EPICORD for the treatment of DFUs, and many include treatment of VLUs. MIMEDX has secured payer coverage for over 300 million covered lives, allowing a significant number of patients access to our products. Information contributing to the coverage determination included a third-party technical brief (by the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality ("AHRQ")) that evaluated a number of skin substitutes for treating chronic wounds, in which EPIFIX was noted to have the most Randomized Controlled Trials, a low risk of overall study bias, and statistically significant findings.

We have established and continue to grow a reimbursement support group to provide providers and patients with accurate coverage and reimbursement information regarding our products, and plan to continue investing in clinical data supportive of coverage for our products in additional clinical areas of use.

Hospital Use

Products administered in the hospital inpatient setting are bundled when submitted as part of the hospital's claim under a diagnosis-related group ("DRG"). In these cases, we continue to educate the hospital that our products are cost-effective, and have the potential to improve patient outcomes and reduce the length of stay. We are working to develop additional health economic data to support this effort. As noted above, the ability to sell products in a hospital is dependent upon demonstrating to the hospital the product's efficacy and cost effectiveness.

Seasonality

Revenues during our fourth quarter tend to be stronger than other quarters because many hospitals increase their purchases of our products during the fourth quarter to coincide with the end of their budget cycles in the United States. Satisfaction of patient deductibles through the course of the year also results in increased revenues later in the year. In general, our first quarter usually has lower revenues than the preceding fourth quarter, the second and third quarters have higher revenues than the first quarter, and the fourth quarter revenues are the highest in the year.

Customer Concentration

For the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023, and 2022, our top ten customers accounted for 20%, 20% and 19%, respectively, of our net sales, and net sales to all U.S. government accounts comprised approximately 1%, 2% and 2%, respectively, of our net sales.

Competition

Due to lower barriers to entry in the Section 361 HCT/P regulated market, competition is intense in the skin substitute market, particularly among human derived products and subject to new entrants and evolving market dynamics. Companies within the industry compete on the basis of price, ease of handling, logistics and efficacy. Another important factor is third-party reimbursement, which is difficult to obtain as it is a time-consuming and expensive process. We believe our success in obtaining third-party reimbursement, our strong position with group purchasing organizations, and the established clinical evidence for our products are competitive advantages.

In February 2020, the AHRQ published a technology assessment analyzing Skin Substitutes for Treating Chronic Wounds. AHRQ conducted a literature search yielding 164 studies and 81 Supplemental Evidence and Data for Systematic Reviews ("SEADs") submissions. Only 22 RCTs met the inclusion criteria to be reviewed in the AHRQ analysis, and out of the 22 RCTs MIMEDX had six RCTs included in the final brief. Of the 22 studies reviewed, only 12 were assessed as low risk of bias, of which five were MIMEDX RCTs. This important government assessment highlights our commitment to providing unbiased level 1 clinical evidence in advanced wound treatment. This dedication to elevating the standard of care is further underscored by the fact that the AHRQ points out in its assessment that MIMEDX was the only entity to provide two studies out of the 22 evaluated that performed a subgroup analysis of patients with DFUs that received adequate debridement. Both studies reported an increase in wounds healed with adequate debridement.

AWC therapies employ technologies to aid in wound healing in cases where the wound is chronic and healing progress has stalled or stopped. The primary competitive products in the skin substitutes category include, among others, placental-tissue allografts, tissue-engineered living skin equivalents, porcine-, bovine- and fish skin-derived xenografts and collagen matrix products.

Our main publicly-traded competitors in the skin substitute market include Integra LifeSciences Holdings Corporation, Organogenesis, Inc., and Smith & Nephew plc, which sell a variety of AWC products, including skin substitutes and placental tissue allografts. In addition, the overall market is competitive, with a large number of other, oftentimes privately-held competitors that compete regionally and nationally, primarily in the physician office and associated care settings due to the historical Medicare reimbursement and pricing dynamics that resulted in significant growth of Medicare expenditures for skin substitutes.

Government Regulation and Compliance

The products we sell are regulated by the FDA in the United States. The majority of the products currently manufactured and processed by the Company are derived from human tissue. Generally, our products currently sold in the United States are regulated as Human Cells, Tissues, and Cellular and Tissue - Based Products ("HCT/Ps"), and are subject solely to Section 361 of the Public Health Service Act ("Section 361") and related regulations, which do not require pre-market clearance or approval by the FDA. We do not currently sell in the United States those cellular and tissue-based products considered to be drugs, devices, and/or biological products ("Section 351 HCT/Ps") subject to licensure under Section 351 of the Public Health Service Act ("Section 351") and related regulations. Section 351 HCT/Ps are regulated as biological products, and, in order to be lawfully marketed in the United States, require FDA pre-market approval.

Beginning in 2024, we began commercializing a xenograft product, HELIOGEN, which is a 510(k) cleared product manufactured by Regenity Biosciences, a contract manufacturer. As a result, MIMEDX assumes FDA regulatory responsibilities associated with medical device distribution including complaint handling and medical device reporting as well as certain state requirements for medical device distribution.

Tissue Products

The FDA requires each HCT/P establishment to register and establish that its product meets the requirements to qualify for regulation solely under Section 361. To be a Section 361 HCT/P, a cellular or tissue-based product generally must meet all four of the following criteria (fully set forth in 21 CFR Part 1271):

- it must be minimally manipulated;
- it must be intended for homologous use;
- its manufacture must not involve combination with another article, except for water, crystalloids or a sterilizing, preserving or storage agent; and
- it must not have a systemic effect and must not be dependent upon the metabolic activity of living cells for its primary function.

Certain amniotic and other birth tissues are considered cellular and tissue-based articles and are therefore eligible for regulation solely as a Section 361 HCT/P depending on whether the specific product at issue and the claims made for it are consistent with the criteria set forth above. HCT/Ps that do not meet these criteria are subject to more extensive regulation as drugs, medical devices, biological products, or combination products.

Products Regulated Solely as Section 361 HCT/Ps

The FDA has specific regulations governing HCT/Ps, including some regulations specific to Section 361 HCT/Ps, which are set forth in 21 CFR Part 1271. All establishments that manufacture Section 361 HCT/Ps must register and list their HCT/Ps with the FDA's Center for Biologics Evaluation and Research within five days after commencing operations. In addition, establishments are required to update their registration annually in December or within 30 days of certain changes and submit changes in HCT/P listing at the time of or within six months of such change.

The regulations in 21 CFR Part 1271 also require establishments to comply with donor screening, eligibility and testing requirements, and CGTP to prevent the introduction, transmission and spread of communicable diseases. The CGTP govern, as may be applicable, the facilities, controls, and methods used in the manufacture of all HCT/Ps, including processing, storage, recovery, labeling, packaging, and distribution of Section 361 HCT/Ps. CGTP require us, among other things, to maintain a quality program, train personnel, control, and monitor environmental conditions as appropriate, control and validate processes, properly store, handle and test our products and raw materials, maintain our facilities and equipment, keep records and comply with standards regarding recovery, pre-distribution, distribution, tracking and labeling of our products, and complaint handling. 21 CFR Part 1271 also mandates compliance with adverse reaction and CGTP deviation reporting and labeling requirements.

The FDA conducts periodic inspections of HCT/P manufacturing facilities, and contract manufacturers' facilities, to assess compliance with CGTP. Such inspections can occur at any time, with or without written notice, at such frequency as determined by the FDA in its sole discretion. To determine compliance with the applicable provisions, the inspection may include, but is not limited to, an assessment of the establishment's facilities, equipment, finished and unfinished materials, containers, processes, HCT/Ps, procedures, labeling, records, files, papers and controls required to be maintained under 21 CFR Part 1271. If the FDA were to find serious non-compliant manufacturing or processing practices during such an inspection, it could take regulatory actions that could adversely affect our business, results of operations, financial condition, and cash flows.

2017 FDA Guidance and Transition Policy for HCT/Ps

In November 2017, the FDA released four guidance documents that, collectively, the agency described as a "comprehensive policy framework" for applying existing laws and regulations governing regenerative medicine products, including HCT/Ps. One guidance document in particular, "Regulatory Considerations for Human Cells, Tissues, and Cellular and Tissue – Based Products: Minimal Manipulation and Homologous Use – Guidance for Industry and Food and Drug Administration Staff," offered important clarity.

The guidance documents confirmed that sheet forms of amniotic membrane generally are appropriately regulated as solely Section 361 HCT/Ps when intended for use as a barrier or covering. We continually evaluate our marketing materials for each of our products to align with FDA guidance.

In March 2024, the FDA issued a determination letter in connection with the RFD process related to AXIOFILL, a human-derived particulate wound dressing. In the letter, FDA reaffirmed its position that AXIOFILL does not meet the regulatory classification requirements under Section 361. In response to the RFD determination letter, the Company has filed suit in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia and intends to exhaust all legal options available, given the arbitrary and capricious manner in which FDA is regulating like-kind products. Notably, while these proceedings are taking place, the Company is permitted to continue marketing AXIOFILL.The FDA has broad regulatory compliance and enforcement powers. Regarding the Resident State License

The resident state licensing agency, the Ohio Board of Pharmacy (Board), does not require manufacturers of prescription devices to obtain a license. Enclosed is correspondence from the Board.

Subject: FW: Prescription Device Licensing

EXTERNAL MESSAGE

Hello,

The State of Ohio Board of Pharmacy issues drug distributor licenses to entities for the manufacturing, distribution, etc. of dangerous drugs as defined in ORC 4729.01 (F) - http://codes.ohio.gov/orc/4729.01v1. We also issue licenses for entities that provide home medical equipment services directly to the public as defined in ORC 4752 (B) and (C) - http://codes.ohio.gov/orc/4752.01v1.

If the prescription medical device(s) does not contain a dangerous drug or meet the definition of home medical equipment, then a license is not required for the manufacturing, sale, or distribution of that device.

An entity can apply for licensure and must meet all drug distributor requirements.

Good afternoon,

Does your office require a virtual manufacturer of prescription devices located in Ohio to obtain a license? The prescription devices do not contain any drug products.

If no, can such a facility voluntary obtain a license with your office?

Thank you,

Cautionary note regarding forward-looking statements

This Annual Report on Form 10-K and Johnson & Johnson's other publicly available documents contain "forward-looking statements" within the meaning of the safe harbor provisions of the United States Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Management and representatives of Johnson & Johnson and its subsidiaries (the Company) also may from time to time make forward-looking statements. Forward-looking statements do not relate strictly to historical or current facts and reflect management's assumptions, views, plans, objectives and projections about the future. Forward-looking statements may be identified by the use of words such as "plans," "expects," "will," "anticipates," "estimates" and other words of similar meaning in conjunction with, among other things: discussions of future operations; expected operating results and financial performance; impact of planned acquisitions and dispositions; impact and timing of restructuring initiatives, including associated cost savings and other benefits; the Company's strategy for growth; product development activities; regulatory approvals; market position and expenditures.

Because forward-looking statements are based on current beliefs, expectations and assumptions regarding future events, they are subject to uncertainties, risks and changes that are difficult to predict and many of which are outside of the Company's control. Investors should realize that if underlying assumptions prove inaccurate, or known or unknown risks or uncertainties materialize, the Company's actual results and financial condition could vary materially from expectations and projections expressed or implied in its forward-looking statements. Investors are therefore cautioned not to rely on these forward-looking statements. Risks and uncertainties include, but are not limited to:

Risks related to product development, market success and competition

- Challenges and uncertainties inherent in innovation and development of new and improved products and technologies on which the Company's continued growth and success depend, including uncertainty of clinical outcomes, additional analysis of existing clinical data, obtaining regulatory approvals, health plan coverage and customer access, and initial and continued commercial success;
- Challenges to the Company's ability to obtain and protect adequate patent and other intellectual property rights for new and existing products and technologies in the United States and other important markets;
- The impact of patent expirations, typically followed by the introduction of competing generic, biosimilar or other products and resulting revenue and market share losses;
- Increasingly aggressive and frequent challenges to the Company's patents by competitors and others seeking to launch competing generic, biosimilar or other products and increased receptivity of courts, the United States Patent and Trademark Office and other decision makers to such challenges, potentially resulting in loss of market exclusivity and rapid decline in sales for the relevant product sooner than expected;
- Competition in research and development of new and improved products, processes and technologies, which can result in product and process obsolescence;
- Competition to reach agreement with third parties for collaboration, licensing, development and marketing agreements for products and technologies;
- Competition based on cost-effectiveness, product performance, technological advances and patents attained by competitors; and
- Allegations that the Company's products infringe the patents and other intellectual property rights of third parties, which could adversely affect the Company's ability to sell the products in question and require the payment of money damages and future royalties.

Risks related to product liability, litigation and regulatory activity

- Product efficacy or safety concerns, whether or not based on scientific evidence, potentially resulting in product withdrawals, recalls, regulatory action on the part of the United States Food and Drug Administration (U.S. FDA) (or international counterparts), declining sales, reputational damage, increased litigation expense and share price impact;
- The impact, including declining sales and reputational damage, of significant litigation or government action adverse to the Company, including product liability claims and allegations related to pharmaceutical marketing practices and contracting strategies;
- The impact of an adverse judgment or settlement and the adequacy of reserves related to legal proceedings, including patent litigation, product liability, personal injury claims, securities class actions, government investigations, employment and other legal proceedings;

- Increased scrutiny of the healthcare industry by government agencies and state attorneys general resulting in investigations and prosecutions, which carry the risk of significant civil and criminal penalties, including, but not limited to, debarment from government business;
- Failure to meet compliance obligations in compliance agreements with governments or government agencies, which could result in significant sanctions;
- Potential changes to applicable laws and regulations affecting United States and international operations, including relating to: approval of new products, licensing and patent rights; sales and promotion of healthcare products; access to, and reimbursement and pricing for, healthcare products and services; environmental protection; and sourcing of raw materials;
- Compliance with local regulations and laws that may restrict the Company's ability to manufacture or sell its products in relevant markets, including requirements to comply with medical device reporting regulations and other requirements such as the European Union's Medical Devices Regulation;
- Changes in domestic and international tax laws and regulations, increasing audit scrutiny by tax authorities around the world and exposures to additional tax liabilities potentially in excess of existing reserves; and
- The issuance of new or revised accounting standards by the Financial Accounting Standards Board and regulations by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Risks related to the Company's strategic initiatives, healthcare market trends and the realization of benefits from the separation of the Company's Consumer Health Business

- Pricing pressures resulting from trends toward healthcare cost containment, including the continued consolidation among healthcare providers and other market participants, trends toward managed care, the shift toward governments increasingly becoming the primary payors of healthcare expenses, significant new entrants to the healthcare markets seeking to reduce costs and government pressure on companies to voluntarily reduce costs and price increases;
- Restricted spending patterns of individual, institutional and governmental purchasers of healthcare products and services due to economic hardship and budgetary constraints;
- Challenges to the Company's ability to realize its strategy for growth including through externally sourced innovations, such as development collaborations, strategic acquisitions, licensing and marketing agreements, and the potential heightened costs of any such external arrangements due to competitive pressures;
- The potential that the expected strategic benefits and opportunities from any planned or completed acquisition or divestiture by the Company may not be realized or may take longer to realize than expected;
- The potential that the expected benefits and opportunities related to past and ongoing restructuring actions may not be realized or may take longer to realize than expected;
- The Company's ability to divest the Company's remaining ownership interest in Kenvue Inc. (Kenvue) and realize the anticipated benefits from the separation; and
- Kenvue's ability to succeed as a standalone publicly traded company.

Risks related to economic conditions, financial markets and operating internationally

- The risks associated with global operations of the Company and its customers and suppliers, including foreign governments in countries in which the Company operates;
- The impact of inflation and fluctuations in interest rates and currency exchange rates and the potential effect of such fluctuations on revenues, expenses and resulting margins;
- Potential changes in export/import and trade laws, regulations and policies of the United States and other countries, including any increased trade restrictions or tariffs and potential drug reimportation legislation;
- The impact on international operations from financial instability in international economies, sovereign risk, possible imposition of governmental controls and restrictive economic policies, and unstable international governments and legal systems;
- The impact of global public health crises and pandemics;

- Changes to global climate, extreme weather and natural disasters that could affect demand for the Company's products and services, cause disruptions in manufacturing and distribution networks, alter the availability of goods and services within the supply chain, and affect the overall design and integrity of the Company's products and operations;
- The impact of global or economic changes or events, including global tensions and war; and
- The impact of armed conflicts and terrorist attacks in the United States and other parts of the world, including social and economic disruptions and instability of financial and other markets.

Risks related to supply chain and operations

- Difficulties and delays in manufacturing, internally, through third-party providers or otherwise within the supply chain, that may lead to voluntary or involuntary business interruptions or shutdowns, product shortages, withdrawals or suspensions of products from the market, and potential regulatory action;
- Interruptions and breaches of the Company's information technology systems or those of the Company's vendors, which could result in reputational, competitive, operational or other business harm as well as financial costs and regulatory action;
- Reliance on global supply chains and production and distribution processes that are complex and subject to increasing regulatory requirements that may adversely affect supply, sourcing and pricing of materials used in the Company's products; and
- The potential that the expected benefits and opportunities related to restructuring actions may not be realized or may take longer to realize than expected, including due to any required approvals from applicable regulatory authorities.

Investors also should carefully read the risk factors described in Item 1A of this Annual Report on Form 10-K for a description of certain risks that could, among other things, cause the Company's actual results to differ materially from those expressed in its forward-looking statements. Investors should understand that it is not possible to predict or identify all such factors and should not consider the risks described above and in Item 1A to be a complete statement of all potential risks and uncertainties. The Company does not undertake to publicly update any forward-looking statement that may be made from time to time, whether as a result of new information or future events or developments.

Part I

Item 1. Business

General

Johnson & Johnson and its subsidiaries (the Company) have approximately 131,900 employees worldwide engaged in the research and development, manufacture and sale of a broad range of products in the healthcare field. Johnson & Johnson is a holding company, with operating companies conducting business in virtually all countries of the world. The Company's primary focus is products related to human health and well-being. Johnson & Johnson was incorporated in the State of New Jersey in 1887.

The Executive Committee of Johnson & Johnson is the principal management group responsible for the strategic operations and allocation of the resources of the Company. This Committee oversees and coordinates the activities of the Company's two business segments, Innovative Medicine (previously referred to as Pharmaceutical) and MedTech. Within the strategic parameters provided by the Committee, senior management groups at U.S. and international operating companies are each responsible for their own strategic plans and the day-to-day operations of those companies. Each subsidiary within the business segments is, with limited exceptions, managed by residents of the country where located.

Segments of business

Following the completion of the separation of the Consumer Health business (Kenvue) in August 2023, the Company is now organized into two business segments: Innovative Medicine and MedTech. Additional information required by this item is incorporated herein by reference to the narrative and tabular descriptions of segments and operating results under Item 7. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Results of Operations and Financial Condition of this Report, and Note 17 Segments of business and geographic areas of the notes to consolidated financial statements included in Item 8 of this Report.

Innovative Medicine

The Innovative Medicine segment is focused on the following therapeutic areas: Immunology (e.g., rheumatoid arthritis, psoriatic arthritis, inflammatory bowel disease and psoriasis); Infectious Diseases (e.g., HIV/AIDS); Neuroscience (e.g., mood disorders, neurodegenerative disorders and schizophrenia); Oncology (e.g., prostate cancer, hematologic malignancies, lung cancer and bladder cancer); Cardiovascular and Metabolism (e.g., thrombosis, diabetes and macular degeneration) and Pulmonary Hypertension (e.g., Pulmonary Arterial Hypertension). Medicines in this segment are distributed directly to retailers, wholesalers, distributors, hospitals and healthcare professionals for prescription use. Key products in the Innovative Medicine segment include: REMICADE (infliximab), a treatment for a number of immune-mediated inflammatory diseases; SIMPONI (golimumab), a subcutaneous treatment for adults with moderate to severe rheumatoid arthritis, active psoriatic arthritis, active ankylosing spondylitis and moderately active to severely active ulcerative colitis; SIMPONI ARIA (golimumab), an intravenous treatment for adults with moderate to severe rheumatoid arthritis, active psoriatic arthritis and active ankylosing spondylitis and active polyarticular juvenile idiopathic arthritis (pJIA) in people 2 years of age and older; STELARA (ustekinumab), a treatment for adults and children with moderate to severe plaque psoriasis, for adults with active psoriatic arthritis, for adults with moderately to severely active Crohn's disease and treatment of moderately to severely active ulcerative colitis; TREMFYA (guselkumab), a treatment for adults with moderate to severe plaque psoriasis and active psoriatic arthritis; EDURANT (rilpivirine), PREZISTA (darunavir) and PREZCOBIX/REZOLSTA (darunavir/cobicistat), antiretroviral medicines for the treatment of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) in combination with other antiretroviral products and SYMTUZA (darunavir/cobicistat/emtricitabine/tenofovir alafenamide), a once-daily single tablet regimen for the treatment of HIV; CONCERTA (methylphenidate HCl) extended-release tablets CII, a treatment for attention deficit hyperactivity disorder; INVEGA SUSTENNA/XEPLION (paliperidone palmitate), for the treatment of schizophrenia and schizoaffective disorder in adults; INVEGA TRINZA/TREVICTA (paliperidone palmitate), for the treatment of schizophrenia in patients after they have been adequately treated with INVEGA SUSTENNA for at least four months; SPRAVATO (Esketamine), a nasal spray, used along with an oral antidepressant, to treat adults with treatment-resistant depression (TRD) and depressive symptoms in adults with major depressive disorder (MDD) with suicidal thoughts or actions; CARVYKTI (ciltacabtagene autoleucel), a chimeric antigen receptor (CAR)-T-cell therapy for the treatment of patients with relapsed/refractory multiple myeloma; ZYTIGA (abiraterone acetate), a treatment for patients with prostate cancer; ERLEADA (apalutamide), a next-generation androgen receptor inhibitor for the treatment of patients with prostate cancer; IMBRUVICA (ibrutinib), a treatment for certain B-cell malignancies, or blood cancers and chronic graft versus host disease; DARZALEX (daratumumab), a treatment for multiple myeloma; DARZALEX FASPRO (daratumumab and hyaluronidase-fihj), a treatment for multiple myeloma and light chain (AL) Amyloidosis; XARELTO (rivaroxaban), an oral anticoagulant for the prevention of deep vein thrombosis (DVT), which may lead to pulmonary embolism (PE) in patients undergoing hip or knee replacement surgery; to reduce the risk of stroke and systemic embolism in patients with nonvalvular atrial fibrillation; and for the treatment and reduction of risk of recurrence of DVT and PE to reduce the risk of major cardiovascular events in patients with coronary artery disease (CAD) and peripheral artery disease (PAD); for the treatment and secondary prevention of thromboembolism in pediatric patients; and for thromboprophylaxis in pediatric patients following the Fontan procedure; OPSUMIT (macitentan) as monotherapy or in combination, indicated for the long-term treatment of pulmonary arterial hypertension (PAH); UPTRAVI (selexipag), the only approved oral and intravenous selective IP receptor agonist targeting a prostacyclin pathway in PAH. Many of these medicines were developed in collaboration with strategic partners or are licensed from other companies and maintain active lifecycle development programs.

MedTech

The MedTech segment includes a broad portfolio of products used in the Interventional Solutions, Orthopaedics, Surgery and Vision categories. Interventional Solutions include electrophysiology products (Biosense Webster) to treat heart rhythm disorders, the heart recovery portfolio (Abiomed) which includes technologies to treat severe coronary artery disease requiring high-risk PCI or AMI cardiogenic shock, and Neurovascular care (Cerenovus) that treats hemorrhagic and ischemic stroke. The Orthopaedics portfolio (DePuy Synthes) includes products and enabling technologies that support Hips, Knees, Trauma, and Spine, Sports & Other. The Surgery portfolios include advanced and general surgery technologies (Ethicon), as well as solutions that focus on breast aesthetics (Mentor), and Ear, Nose and Throat (Acclarent) procedures. Johnson & Johnson Vision products include ACUVUE Brand contact lenses and TECNIS intraocular lenses for cataract surgery. These products are distributed to wholesalers, hospitals and retailers, and used predominantly in the professional fields by physicians, nurses, hospitals, eye care professionals and clinics.

Geographic areas

Johnson & Johnson and its subsidiaries (the Company) have approximately 131,900 employees worldwide engaged in the research and development, manufacture and sale of a broad range of products in the healthcare field. The Company conducts business in virtually all countries of the world with the primary focus on products related to human health and well-being.

The products made and sold in the international business include many of those described above under Segments of Business – Innovative Medicine and MedTech. However, the principal markets, products and methods of distribution in the international business vary with the country and the culture. The products sold in international business include those developed in the U.S. and by subsidiaries abroad.

Investments and activities in some countries outside the U.S. are subject to higher risks than comparable U.S. activities because the investment and commercial climate may be influenced by financial instability in international economies, restrictive economic policies and political and legal system uncertainties.

Raw materials

Raw materials essential to the Company's business are generally readily available from multiple sources. Where there are exceptions, the temporary unavailability of those raw materials would not likely have a material adverse effect on the financial results of the Company.

Patents

The Company's subsidiaries have made a practice of obtaining patent protection on their products and processes where possible. They own, or are licensed under, a significant number of patents in the U.S. and other countries relating to their products, product uses, formulations and manufacturing processes, which in the aggregate are believed to be of material importance to the Company in the operation of its businesses. The Company's subsidiaries face patent challenges from third parties, including challenges seeking to manufacture and market generic and biosimilar versions of the Company's key pharmaceutical products prior to expiration of the applicable patents covering those products. Significant legal proceedings and claims involving the Company's patent and other intellectual property are described in Note 19 Legal proceedings—Intellectual property of the Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements included in Item 8 of this Report.

Sales of the Company's largest product, STELARA (ustekinumab) accounted for approximately 12.8% of the Company's total revenues for fiscal 2023. Accordingly, the patents related to this product are believed to be material to the Company. Janssen Biotech, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson, owns patents specifically related to STELARA. The latest expiring United States composition of matter patent expired in 2023. As a result of settlements and other agreements with third parties, the Company does not anticipate the launch of a biosimilar version of STELARA before January 1, 2025 in the United States. The latest expiring European composition of matter patent (Supplementary Protection Certificate) expires in 2024.

Sales of the Company's second largest product, collectively DARZALEX (daratumumab) and DARZALEX FASPRO (daratumumab and hyaluronidase-fihj), accounted for approximately 11.4% of the Company's total revenues for fiscal 2023. Accordingly, the patents related to this product are believed to be material to the Company. Genmab A/S owns two patent families related to DARZALEX, and Janssen Biotech, Inc. has an exclusive license to those patent families. The two patent families both expire in the United States in 2029, and in Europe, compound patent protection in select countries extends to 2031/2032. Janssen Biotech, Inc. owns a separate patent portfolio related to DARZALEX FASPRO.

Trademarks

The Company's subsidiaries have made a practice of selling their products under trademarks and of obtaining protection for these trademarks by all available means. These trademarks are protected by registration in the U.S. and other countries where such products are marketed. The Company considers these trademarks in the aggregate to be of material importance in the operation of its businesses.

Seasonality

Worldwide sales do not reflect any significant degree of seasonality; however, spending has typically been heavier in the fourth quarter of each year than in other quarters. This reflects increased spending decisions, principally for research and development activity.

Competition

In all of their product lines, the Company's subsidiaries compete with companies both locally and globally. Competition exists in all product lines without regard to the number and size of the competing companies involved. Competition in research, both internally and externally sourced, involving the development and the improvement of new and existing products and processes, is particularly significant. The development of new and innovative products, as well as protecting the underlying intellectual property of the Company's product portfolio, is important to the Company's success in all areas of its business. The competitive environment requires substantial investments in continuing research.

Environment

The Company is subject to a variety of environmental laws and regulations in the United States and other jurisdictions. The Company believes that its operations comply in all material respects with applicable environmental laws and regulations. The Company's compliance with these requirements is not expected to have a material effect upon its capital expenditures, cash flows, earnings or competitive position.

Regulation

The Company's businesses are subject to varying degrees of governmental regulation in the countries in which operations are conducted, and the general trend is toward increasingly stringent regulation and enforcement. The Company is subject to costly and complex U.S. and foreign laws and governmental regulations and any adverse regulatory action may materially adversely affect the Company's financial condition and business operations. In the U.S., the pharmaceutical product and medical technology industries have long been subject to regulation by various federal and state agencies, primarily as to product safety, efficacy, manufacturing, advertising, labeling and safety reporting. The exercise of broad regulatory powers by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (the U.S. FDA) continues to result in increases in the amounts of testing and documentation required for U.S. FDA approval of new drugs and devices and a corresponding increase in the expense of product introduction. Similar trends are also evident in major markets outside of the U.S.

The new medical device regulatory framework and the evolving privacy, data localization, and emerging cyber security laws and regulations around the world are examples of such increased regulation. Within the U.S., an increasing number of U.S. States have enacted comprehensive privacy laws and federal regulators (e.g., the U.S. FDA, FTC and HHS) continue to stress the intersection of health and privacy as a compliance and enforcement priority. In the EU, multiple directives and laws (including NIS2, EHDS, the Data Act, the Cyber Resilience Act, and the AI Act) are rapidly changing privacy and cybersecurity compliance requirements while introducing new enforcement risks. In addition, China has introduced broad personal information protection and data security regulations, with more anticipated, thereby increasing China's scrutiny of company compliance and data transfer practices. With other jurisdictions enacting similar privacy laws, local data protection authorities will force greater accountability on the collection, access and use of personal data in the healthcare industry. These laws can also restrict transfers of data across borders, potentially impacting how data-driven health care solutions are developed and deployed globally in a compliant manner. Moreover, as a result of the broad scale release and availability of Artificial Intelligence (AI) technologies such as generative AI, a global trend towards more comprehensive and nuanced regulation (e.g., White House's Executive Order on the Safe, Secure, and Trustworthy Development and Use of Artificial Intelligence; the EU AI Act) to ensure the ethical use, privacy, and security of AI is underway that includes standards for transparency, accountability, and fairness, which will require compliance developments or enhancements.

The regulatory agencies under whose purview the Company operates have administrative powers that may subject it to actions such as product withdrawals, recalls, seizure of products and other civil and criminal sanctions. In some cases, the Company's subsidiaries may deem it advisable to initiate product recalls regardless of whether it has been required or directed to.

The U.S. FDA and regulatory agencies around the globe are also increasing their enforcement activities. If the U.S. FDA were to conclude that we are not in compliance with applicable laws or regulations, or that any of our pharmaceutical products or medical technologies are ineffective or pose an unreasonable health risk, the U.S. FDA could ban such products, detain or seize adulterated or misbranded products, order a recall, repair, replacement, or refund of such products, refuse to grant pending applications for marketing authorization or require certificates of foreign governments for exports, and/or require us to notify health professionals and others that the products present unreasonable risks of substantial harm to the public health. The U.S. FDA may also assess civil or criminal penalties against us, our officers or employees and impose operating restrictions on a company-wide basis, or enjoin and/or restrain certain conduct resulting in violations of applicable law. The U.S. FDA may also recommend prosecution to the U.S. Department of Justice. Any adverse regulatory action, depending on its magnitude, may restrict us from effectively marketing and selling our products and limit our ability to obtain future clearances or approvals, and could result in a substantial modification to our business practices and operations. Equivalent enforcement mechanisms exist in different countries in which we conduct business.

The costs of human healthcare have been and continue to be a subject of study, investigation and regulation by governmental agencies and legislative bodies around the world. In the U.S., attention has been focused by states, regulatory agencies and Congress on prices, profits, overutilization and the quality and costs of healthcare generally. Laws and regulations have been enacted to require adherence to strict compliance standards and prevent fraud and abuse in the healthcare industry. There is increased focus on interactions and financial relationships between healthcare companies and healthcare providers. Various state and federal transparency laws and regulations require disclosures of payments and other transfers of value made to certain healthcare practitioners, including physicians, teaching hospitals, and certain non-physician practitioners. Federal and foreign laws governing international business practices require strict compliance with anti-bribery standards and certain prohibitions with respect to payments to any foreign government official. Payors and Pharmacy Benefit Managers (PBMs) are a potent force in the marketplace, and increased attention is being paid to the impact of PBM practices on healthcare cost and access in the U.S.

Our business has been and continues to be affected by federal and state legislation that alters the pricing, coverage, and reimbursement landscape. At the federal level, in August 2022, President Biden signed into law the Inflation Reduction Act (IRA), which includes provisions that effectively authorize the government to establish prices for certain high-spend single-source drugs and biologics reimbursed by the Medicare program, starting in 2026 for Medicare Part D drugs and 2028 for Medicare Part B drugs. On August 29, 2023, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services ("CMS") published the first "Selected Drug" list, which includes XARELTO and STELARA as well as IMBRUVICA, which is developed in collaboration and co-commercialized in the U.S. with Pharmacyclics LLC, an AbbVie company. The Selected Drug list also included other medicines targeting disease states that are prevalent in the Medicare population. There remains uncertainty, however, regarding how the federal government will establish prices for the selected products, as the IRA specifies a ceiling price but not a minimum price. In any event, we anticipate that the selected products will be subjected to a government-established price for the Medicare population.

The IRA also contains provisions that impose rebates if certain prices increase at a rate that outpaces the rate of inflation, beginning October 1, 2022, for Medicare Part D drugs and January 1, 2023, for Medicare Part B drugs. Separate IRA provisions redesign the Medicare Part D benefit in various ways, including by shifting a greater portion of costs to manufacturers within certain coverage phases and replacing the Part D coverage gap discount program with a new manufacturer discounting program. Failure to comply with IRA provisions may subject manufacturers to various penalties, including civil monetary penalties.

In July 2023, Janssen Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (Janssen) filed litigation against the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services as well as the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services challenging the constitutionality of the Inflation Reduction Act's (IRA) Medicare Drug Price Negotiation Program. The litigation requests a declaration that the IRA violates Janssen's rights under the First Amendment and the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution and therefore that Janssen is not subject to the IRA's mandatory pricing scheme. The impact of the IRA on our business and the broader pharmaceutical industry remains uncertain, as litigation filed by Janssen and other pharmaceutical companies remains ongoing and CMS has yet to publicly announce the maximum fair price for each of the selected drugs.

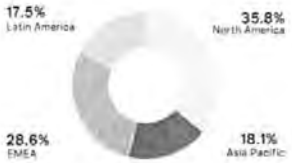
Additionally, we expect continued scrutiny on drug pricing and government price reporting from Congress, agencies, and other bodies at the federal and state levels, which may result in additional regulations or other mechanisms to increase pricing transparency and controls.

There are a number of additional bills pending in Congress and healthcare reform proposals at the state level that would affect drug pricing, including in the Medicare and Medicaid programs. This changing legal landscape has both positive and negative impacts on the U.S. healthcare industry with much remaining uncertain as to how various provisions of federal and state law, and potential modification or repeal of these laws, will ultimately affect the industry. The IRA and any other federal or state legislative change could affect the pricing and market conditions for our products.

In addition, business practices in the healthcare industry have come under increased scrutiny, particularly in the U.S., by government agencies and state attorneys general, and resulting investigations and prosecutions carry the risk of significant civil and criminal penalties. Of note is the increased enforcement activity by data protection authorities in various jurisdictions, particularly in the European Union, where significant fines have been levied on companies for data breaches, violations of privacy requirements, and unlawful cross-border data transfers. In the U.S., the Federal Trade Commission has stepped up enforcement of data privacy with several significant settlements (including settlements concerning the downstream sharing of personal information and use and disclosure of personal health data) and there have been a material increase in class-action lawsuits linked to the collection and use of biometric data and use of tracking technologies.

Further, the Company relies on global supply chains, and production and distribution processes, that are complex, and subject to increasing regulatory requirements that may affect sourcing, supply and pricing of materials used in the Company's products. These processes also are subject to complex and lengthy regulatory approvals.

Employees and human capital management



As of December 31, 2023, the number of employees was approximately:

Employees[1]
Full-time equivalent (FTE) positions[2]

[1] "Employee" is defined as an individual working full-time or part-time, excluding fixed term employees, interns and co-op employees. Employee data may not include full population from more recently acquired companies and individuals on long-term disability are excluded. Contingent workers, contractors and subcontractors are also excluded.

[2] FTE represents the total number of full-time equivalent positions and does not reflect the total number of individual employees as some work part time.

Strategy

The Company believes that its employees are critical to its continued success and are an essential element of its long-term strategy. Management is responsible for ensuring that its policies and processes reflect and reinforce the Company's desired corporate culture, including policies and processes related to strategy, risk management, and ethics and compliance. The Company's human capital management strategy is built on three fundamental focus areas:

- Attracting and recruiting the best talent
- Developing and retaining talent
- Empowering and inspiring talent

Underpinning these focus areas are ongoing efforts to cultivate and foster a culture built on diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI), innovation, health, well-being and safety, where the Company's employees are encouraged to succeed both professionally and personally while helping the Company achieve its business goals.

Culture and employee engagement

At the Company, employees are guided by Our Credo which sets forth the Company's responsibilities to patients, consumers, customers, healthcare professionals, employees, communities and shareholders. Employees worldwide must adhere to the Company's Code of Business Conduct which sets basic requirements and serves as a foundation for the Company policies, procedures and guidelines, all of which provide additional guidance on expected employee behaviors in every market where it operates. The Company conducts global surveys that offer its employees the ability to provide feedback and valuable insight to help address potential human resources risks and identify opportunities to improve. In 2023, 94% of global employees across 76 countries participated in Our Credo Survey which was offered in 36 languages.

Growth and development

To lead in the changing healthcare landscape, it is crucial that the Company continue to attract and retain top talent. In 2023, the Company's voluntary turnover rate was 7%. The Company believes that its employees must be equipped with the right knowledge and skills and be provided with opportunities to grow and develop in their careers. Accordingly, professional development programs and educational resources are available to all employees. The Company's objective is to foster a learning culture that helps shape each person's unique career path while creating a robust pipeline of talent to deliver on the Company's long-term strategies. In furtherance of this objective, the Company deploys a global approach to ensure development is for everyone, regardless of where they are on their career journey. To prioritize learning, the Company recently held Johnson & Johnson's first Global Learning Day. Employees were encouraged to set aside a full day to explore skill-building courses across five areas: leadership, business skills, digital upskilling, DEI, and well-being, on J&J Learn, the Company's new learning platform.

Diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI)

The Company is committed to workplace diversity and to cultivating, fostering, and advancing a culture of equity and inclusion. The Company's evidenced-based global enterprise Diversity, Equity and Inclusion strategy recognizes how DEI accelerates the Company's ability to meet the changing needs of the communities the Company serves in, as outlined in Our Credo. The Company's DEI Vision is: Be yourself, change the world. The Company's DEI Mission is: Make diversity, equity and inclusion how we work everyday. The Company's enterprise DEI Strategy is aligned to the DEI Vision and Mission and rests on four core pillars:

- Build a workforce of individuals with diverse backgrounds, cultures, abilities and perspectives
- Foster a culture of inclusion where every individual belongs
- Transform talent and business processes to achieve equitable opportunities for all
- Drive innovation and growth with our business to serve diverse markets around the world

The Company's DEI strategy is guided by internal and external insights, global best practices and continual employee feedback and recognizes that while diversity changes by location, inclusion is the same everywhere.

Compensation and benefits

As part of the Company's total rewards philosophy, the Company offers competitive compensation and benefits to attract and retain top talent. The Company is committed to fairness and equitable treatment in its compensation and benefits for employees at all levels. The Company observes legal minimum wage provisions and exceeds them where possible. The Company's total rewards offerings include an array of programs to support its employees' well-being, including annual performance incentive opportunities, pension and retirement savings programs, health and welfare benefits, paid time off, leave programs, flexible work schedules and employee assistance programs. In recognition of the Company's commitment to help employees balance their personal and professional responsibilities, the Company enhanced its caregiver, bereavement, and volunteer paid leave benefits, effective July 2023.

Health, wellness and safety

The Company's investment in employee health, well-being and safety is built on its conviction that advancing health for humanity starts with advancing the health of its employees. With the right awareness, focus, practices and tools, the Company ensures that all its employees around the world, as well as temporary contractors and visitors to the Company's sites, can work safely. The Company has continuously expanded health and well-being programs throughout the Company and across the globe, incorporating new thinking and technologies to keep its offerings best-in-class and to help employees achieve their personal health goals. The programs and practices the Company advances for total health—physical, mental, emotional and financial—ensure employee health protection for emerging health risks. The Company continues to address our employees needs through J&J Flex, a hybrid model that empowers the Company's office-based employees to find the right productivity and balance of in-person and remote work.

Item 1A. Risk factors

An investment in the Company's common stock or debt securities involves risks and uncertainties. The Company seeks to identify, manage and mitigate risks to our business, but uncertainties and risks are difficult to predict and many are outside of the Company's control and cannot therefore be eliminated. In addition to the other information in this report and the Company's other filings with the SEC, investors should consider carefully the factors set forth below. Investors should be aware that it is not possible to predict or identify all such factors and that the following is not meant to be a complete discussion of all potential risks or uncertainties. If known or unknown risks or uncertainties materialize, the Company's business, results of operations or financial condition could be adversely affected, potentially in a material way.

Risks related to our business, industry and operations

The Company's businesses operate in highly competitive product markets and competitive pressures could adversely affect the Company's earnings.

The Company faces substantial competition in its two operating segments and in all geographic markets. The Company's businesses compete with companies of all sizes on the basis of cost-effectiveness, technological innovations, intellectual property rights, product performance, real or perceived product advantages, pricing and availability and rate of reimbursement. The Company also competes with other market participants in securing rights to acquisitions, collaborations and licensing agreements with third parties. Competition for rights to product candidates and technologies may result in significant investment and acquisition costs and onerous agreement terms for the Company. Competitors' development of more effective or less costly products, and/or their ability to secure patent and other intellectual property rights and successfully market products ahead of the Company, could negatively impact sales of the Company's existing products as well as its ability to bring new products to market despite significant prior investment in the related product development. The Company may also experience operational and financial risk in connection with acquisitions if we are unable to fully identify potential risks and liabilities associated with acquired businesses or products, successfully integrate operations and employees, and successfully identify and realize synergies with existing businesses while containing acquisition-related strain on our management, operations and financial resources.

For the Company's Innovative Medicine businesses, loss of patent exclusivity for a product often is followed by a substantial reduction in sales as competitors gain regulatory approval for generic and other competing products and enter the market. Similar competition can be triggered by the loss of exclusivity for a biological product. For the Company's MedTech businesses, technological innovation, product quality, reputation and customer service are especially important to competitiveness. Development by other companies of new or improved products, processes and technologies could threaten to make the Company's products or technologies less desirable, less economical or obsolete. The Company's business and operations will be negatively impacted if we are unable to introduce new products or technological advances that are safe, more effective, more effectively marketed or otherwise outperform those of our competitors.

Interruptions and delays in manufacturing operations could adversely affect the Company's business, sales and reputation.

The Company's manufacturing of products requires the timely delivery of sufficient amounts of complex, high-quality components and materials. The Company's subsidiaries operate 61 manufacturing facilities as well as sourcing from thousands of suppliers around the world. The Company has in the past, and may in the future, face unanticipated interruptions and delays in manufacturing through its internal or external supply chain. Manufacturing disruptions can occur for many reasons including regulatory action, production quality deviations or safety issues, labor disputes, labor shortages, site-specific incidents (such as fires), natural disasters such as hurricanes and other severe weather events, raw material shortages, political unrest, terrorist attacks and epidemics or pandemics. Such delays and difficulties in manufacturing can result in product shortages, declines in sales and reputational impact as well as significant remediation and related costs associated with addressing the shortage.

The Company relies on third parties to manufacture and supply certain of our products. Any failure by or loss of a third-party manufacturer or supplier could result in delays and increased costs, which may adversely affect our business.

The Company relies on third parties to manufacture and supply certain of our raw materials, component parts and products. We depend on these third-party manufacturers to allocate to us a portion of their manufacturing capacity sufficient to meet our needs, to produce products of acceptable quality and at acceptable manufacturing yields and to deliver those products to us on a timely basis and at acceptable prices. However, we cannot guarantee that these third-party manufacturers will be able to meet our near-term or long-term manufacturing requirements, which could result in lost sales and have an adverse effect on our business.

Other risks associated with our reliance on third parties to manufacture these products include reliance on the third party for regulatory compliance and quality assurance, misappropriation of the Company's intellectual property, limited ability to manage our inventory, possible breach of the manufacturing agreement by the third party and the possible termination or nonrenewal of the manufacturing agreement by the third party at a time that is costly or inconvenient for us. Moreover, if any of our third-party manufacturers suffers any damage to facilities, loses benefits under material agreements, experiences power outages, encounters financial difficulties, is unable to secure necessary raw materials from its suppliers or suffers any other reduction in efficiency, the Company may experience significant business disruption. In the event of any such disruption, the Company would need to seek and source other qualified third-party manufacturers, likely resulting in further delays and increased costs which could affect our business adversely.

Counterfeit versions of our products could harm our patients and have a negative impact on our revenues, earnings, reputation and business.

Our industry continues to be challenged by the vulnerability of distribution channels to illegal counterfeiting and the presence of counterfeit products in a growing number of markets and over the internet. Third parties may illegally distribute and sell counterfeit versions of our products, which do not meet our rigorous manufacturing and testing standards. To distributors and patients, counterfeit products may be visually indistinguishable from the authentic version. Counterfeit medicines pose a risk to patient health and safety because of the conditions under which they are manufactured – often in unregulated, unlicensed, uninspected and unsanitary sites – as well as the lack of regulation of their contents.

The industry's failure to mitigate the threat of counterfeit medicines could adversely impact our business and reputation by impacting patient confidence in our authentic products, potentially resulting in lost sales, product recalls, and an increased threat of litigation. In addition, diversion of our products from their authorized market into other channels may result in reduced revenues and negatively affect our profitability.

Global health crises, pandemics, epidemics, or other outbreaks could adversely disrupt or impact certain aspects of the Company's business, results of operations and financial condition.

We are subject to risks associated with global health crises, epidemics, pandemics and other outbreaks (such incident(s), a health crisis or health crises). For example, the COVID-19 pandemic adversely impacted certain aspects of the Company's business, results of operations and financial condition, including lower sales and reduced customer demand and usage of certain of our products. The spread of any health crises may cause the Company to modify its business practices, and take further actions as may be required by government authorities or as the Company determines are in the best interests of our patients, customers, employees and business partners under such circumstances. While the Company has robust business continuity plans in place across our global supply chain network designed to help mitigate the impact of health crises, these efforts may not completely prevent our business from being adversely affected in the event of a health crisis. Health crises could adversely impact the Company's operations, including, among other things, our manufacturing operations, supply chain, third-party suppliers, sales and marketing, and clinical trial operations. Any of these factors could adversely affect the Company's business, financial results, and global economic conditions generally.

Risks related to government regulation and legal proceedings

Global sales in the Company's Innovative Medicine and MedTech segments may be negatively impacted by healthcare reforms and increasing pricing pressures.

Sales of the Company's Innovative Medicine and MedTech products are significantly affected by reimbursements by third-party payors such as government healthcare programs, private insurance plans and managed care organizations. As part of various efforts to contain healthcare costs, these payors are putting downward pressure on prices at which products will be reimbursed. In the U.S., increased purchasing power of entities that negotiate on behalf of Medicare, Medicaid, and private sector beneficiaries, in part due to continued consolidation among healthcare providers, could result in further pricing pressures. In addition, recent legislation and ongoing political scrutiny on pricing, coverage and reimbursement could result in additional pricing pressures. Specifically, the Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 (IRA) may subject certain products to government-established pricing, potentially impose rebates, and subject manufacturers who fail to adhere to the government's interpretations of the law to penalties. Further, increased third-party utilization of the 340B Federal Drug Discount Program from expanded interpretations of the statute may have a negative impact on the Company's financial performance. Outside the U.S., numerous major markets, including the EU, United Kingdom, Japan and China, have pervasive government involvement in funding healthcare and, in that regard, directly or indirectly impose price controls, limit access to, or reimbursement for, the Company's products, or reduce the value of its intellectual property protection.

Values

Integrity	Accountability	People	Performance
We do what's right	We do what we say	We grow talent	We deliver

Stryker was incorporated in Michigan in 1946 as the successor company to a business founded in 1941 by Dr. Homer H. Stryker, a prominent orthopaedic surgeon and inventor of several medical products. Our products are sold in approximately 75 countries through company-owned subsidiaries and branches as well as third-party dealers and distributors, and include surgical equipment and surgical navigation systems; endoscopic and communications systems; patient handling, emergency medical equipment and intensive care disposable products; clinical communication and artificial intelligence-assisted virtual care platform technology; neurosurgical and neurovascular devices; implants used in joint replacement and trauma surgeries; Mako Robotic-Arm Assisted technology; spinal devices; as well as other products used in a variety of medical specialties. Most of our products are marketed directly to doctors, hospitals and other healthcare facilities.

As used herein, and except where the context otherwise requires, "Stryker," "we," "us," and "our" refer to Stryker Corporation and its consolidated subsidiaries.

Business Segments and Geographic Information

We segregate our operations into two reportable business segments: (i) MedSurg and Neurotechnology and (ii) Orthopaedics. Financial information regarding our reportable business segments and certain geographic information is included under "Consolidated Results of Operations" in Item 7 of this report and Note 14 to our Consolidated Financial Statements.

In the fourth quarter 2024 we reorganized our Spine business to align with certain updates to our internal reporting structure. The spine enabling technologies portfolio (Enabling Technologies) was reclassified to Other Orthopaedics and Spine, the Interventional Spine (IVS) portfolio was reclassified to Neuro Cranial and the remaining Spine business was renamed to Spinal Implants. In addition, we changed the name of our "Orthopaedics and Spine" operating segment to "Orthopaedics."

In 2024 Instruments launched SurgiCount+ powered by Triton, which combines our existing sponge counting technology with artificial intelligence and quantifying blood loss software. We also launched CoPilot, which combines with our Spine Q guidance system to help surgeons plan and perform certain spinal procedures, including supporting bone resection, pedicle preparation and screw delivery.

In addition we completed the acquisition of Vertos Medical, Inc., a leader in interventional pain management solutions for chronic lower back pain caused by lumbar spinal stenosis. The acquisition of Vertos is complementary to our Interventional Spine business as we continue to focus on advanced pain procedures.

Endoscopy continued to deliver its 4K 1788 Camera platform to the market. Our 1788 Camera platform features several enhancements for a broader range of clinical applications and specialties, including urology, neurology and ear, nose and throat and can be used to visualize indocyanine green and Cytalux.

Medical launched the LIFEPAK 35 monitor/defibrillator, our next generation platform designed to optimize care with new clinical features such as the new Glasgow 30.4 algorithm, cprINSIGHT, 15-lead monitoring capabilities, and STJ insight and mapping. LIFEPAK 35 combines a modern intuitive touch screen display and increased processing power with Bluetooth and WiFi data connectivity.

Medical also completed the acquisition of care.ai, a virtual care and ambient intelligence solutions platform. care.ai adds complementary technology that is expected to integrate seamlessly with the Vocera platform (Vocera) and Stryker's devices, providing customers with an enterprise-wide ecosystem that is intended to deliver dynamic clinical workflows and further the development of smart care facilities.

Neurovascular initiated a targeted launch of the Surpass Elite Flow Diverting Stent (FDS) in the U.S. and South Korea. Surpass Elite FDS is designed to reduce thrombin generation when compared to unmodified stents. Additionally, Neurovascular launched Surpass Evolve FDS in Japan. The Stryker FDS platform is designed to effectively treat aneurysms by redirecting blood flow away from the aneurysm to promote healing.

Orthopaedics

Orthopaedics products primarily include implants used in total joint replacements, such as hip, knee and shoulder, and trauma and extremities surgeries. We bring patients and physicians advanced implant designs and specialized instrumentation that make orthopaedic surgery and recovery simpler, faster and more effective. We support surgeons with the technologies, products and services they need to support each patient's clinical challenge.

We are one of four leading global competitors for joint replacement and trauma and extremities products and robotics; the other three being Zimmer, Johnson & Johnson MedTech and Smith & Nephew.

In 2024 we continued the full commercial launch of our Triathlon Hinge revision knee system. Triathlon Hinge received approval in August of 2023 and is now released in the U.S., Canada and New Zealand. We also continued delivering growth in total hip arthroplasty, particularly in the primary segment where Direct Anterior Reconstructive Technology and Mako Total Hip can help to reduce, if not eliminate, a surgeon's use of intraoperative fluoroscopy during direct anterior hip procedures. With the acquisition of SERF SAS, we strengthened distribution in key European markets and continue to scale differentiated solutions such as the Novae monolithic dual mobility cup engineered to deliver greater hip stability and reduce dislocation risk.

We continued to expand our global footprint of Mako SmartRobotics™ in 2024 which is now sold in more than 45 countries. To date more than one million robotic Mako Total Knees and 1.5 million robotic procedures across Total Hips, Total Knees and Partial Knees have been performed globally. Stryker's Joint Replacement division also launched the "Scan. Plan. Mako Can." direct to patient campaign, accelerating awareness of Mako technology in the U.S.

Our spine enabling technologies portfolio includes best in class imaging solutions, image-guided surgical technology, patient specific implants and digital health solutions supporting surgeons and their patients throughout the continuum of care.

In December 2024 we performed our first Mako Shoulder procedure using robotic-arm assistance to remove bone, prepare the glenoid surface and enable positioning and placement of the Perform Reversed Glenoid implant.

In 2024 Trauma launched Pangea, a comprehensive variable angle plating portfolio designed to optimize plate fit to bone utilizing simple, intuitive instrumentation that enhances ease of use and reproducibility. These combined solutions empower Stryker to deliver a complete portfolio across all trauma segments.

Raw Materials and Inventory

Raw materials essential to our business are generally readily available from multiple sources; however, certain of our raw materials are currently sourced from single suppliers. Substantially all products we manufacture are stocked in inventory, while certain MedSurg products are assembled to order.

Patents and Trademarks

Patents and trademarks are significant to our business to the extent that a product or an attribute of a product represents a unique design or process. Patent protection of such products restricts competitors from duplicating these unique designs and features. We seek to obtain patent protection on our products whenever appropriate for protecting our competitive advantage. On December 31, 2024 we owned approximately 5,600 United States patents and approximately 8,600 patents in other countries.

Seasonality

Our business is generally not seasonal in nature; however, the number of orthopaedic implant surgeries is typically lower in the summer months, and sales of capital equipment are generally higher in the fourth quarter.

Competition

In each of our product lines we compete with local and global companies. The development of innovative products is important to our success in all areas of our business. Competition in research involving the development and improvement of new and existing products and processes is particularly significant. The competitive environment requires substantial investments in continuing research and maintaining sales forces.

We believe our commitment to innovation, quality and service and our reputation differentiates us in the highly competitive product categories in which we operate and enables us to compete effectively. We believe that our competitive position in the future will depend to a large degree on our ability to develop new products and make improvements to existing products.

Regulation

Our businesses are subject to varying degrees of governmental regulation in the countries in which we operate, and the general trend is toward increasingly stringent regulation. We are required to comply with the unique regulatory requirements of each country in which we market and sell our products.

In the United States the Medical Device Amendments of 1976 to the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act and its subsequent amendments and the regulations issued and proposed thereunder provide for federal regulation by the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) of the design, manufacture and marketing of medical devices, including most of our products. In addition, state licensing requirements often apply to certain of our business operations and products. On the federal level, many of our new products fall into FDA classifications that require notification submitted as a 510(k) and review by the FDA before we begin marketing them. Certain of our products require extensive clinical testing, consisting of safety and efficacy studies, followed by pre-market approval applications for specific surgical indications. Certain of our products also fall under other FDA classifications, such as drugs and Human Cells, Tissues, and Cellular and Tissue-Based Products.

The FDA's Quality System regulations set forth standards for our product design and manufacturing processes, require the maintenance of certain records and provide for inspections of our facilities by the FDA. There are also certain requirements of state, local and foreign governments that must be complied with in the manufacture and marketing of our products.

The European Union enacted the European Union Medical Device Regulation in May 2017 with an original effective date of May 2022, which imposes stricter requirements for the marketing and sale of medical devices, including in the areas of clinical evaluation requirements, quality systems, labeling and post-market surveillance. Extended transition timelines were published in 2023 which range from May 2026 through December 2028 depending on the type of device and our implementation is on track to meet these timelines.

Initiatives to limit the growth of general healthcare expenses and hospital costs are ongoing in the markets we do business. These initiatives are sponsored by government agencies, legislative bodies and the private sector and include price regulation and competitive pricing. It is not possible to predict at this time the long-term impact of such cost containment measures on our future business. In addition, business practices in the healthcare industry are scrutinized, particularly in the United States, by federal and state government agencies. Any resulting investigations and prosecutions potentially carry the risk of significant civil and criminal penalties.

Environment

We are subject to various rules and regulation in the United States and internationally related to the protection of human health and the environment. Our operations involve the use of substances regulated under environmental laws, primarily in manufacturing and sterilization processes. We believe our policies, practices and procedures are properly designed to comply, in all material respects, with applicable environmental laws and regulations. We do not expect compliance with these requirements to have a material effect on purchases of property, plant and equipment, cash flows, net earnings or competitive position.

Employees

On December 31, 2024 we had approximately 53,000 employees globally, with approximately 27,000 employees in the United States. Our talented employees are an integral reason for our standing as a global leader in medical technologies where, together with our customers, we are driven to make healthcare better. Our company values of integrity, accountability, people and performance are a key component of that mission. Our people, as one of our core values, continue to be a key focus.

Our success depends on our ability to attract the best talent. To do so, we continue to focus on creating and maintaining a great workplace. We believe in attracting the right people, maintaining and building employee engagement and developing our employees. We believe when people are able to do what they do best, they will look forward to coming to work and, in turn, will deliver great business results.

Our leadership team and Board of Directors receive regular updates on our people and culture strategy and provide feedback on our strategy and goals, including alignment to our mission and values, peer benchmarking and stakeholder feedback.

Employee Development

Our employee development is extensive and exists at all levels of the organization, including company-wide training on our Code of Conduct, job-related technical training and management and leadership training. Our development programs include on-the-job learning, coaching and mentoring, management and leadership development courses, team building and collaboration training and immersive experiences with expert partners.

We encourage all employees to establish development objectives, in partnership with their manager, to help employees gain the needed development experience to grow their careers.

Employee Engagement

An engaged workplace culture that drives performance and business outcomes is central to our mission. Listening to and learning from our employees forms the foundation of an engaging culture. More than 90% of our employees participate in our annual engagement survey, which provides a valued platform for listening and allows us to take action based on the feedback collected.

We supplement our annual engagement survey with targeted pulse surveys to gather feedback on topics relevant to the current climate.

We also provide tools and resources that enable managers and teams to act on the insights we gain from our surveys and to drive employee engagement and strong business outcomes.

Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DE&I)

An essential part of our culture is respecting each individual's strengths and values. Building on this foundation, we are focused on maintaining an inclusive, engaging work environment in keeping with our values of integrity and people. Our DE&I strategy is centered around these three commitments:

- Strengthen the diversity of our workforce
- Advance a culture of inclusion, engagement and belonging
- Maximize the power of inclusion to drive innovation and growth

We are advancing our commitments through the following actions, among others:

- Increasing access to talent through strategic partnerships and campaigns
- Growing and engaging talent with a range of opportunities to learn and develop
- Aligning our employee resource groups, which are open to all employees, to focus on creating community and belonging

Attracting and Hiring

We understand that every employee drives our success. We focus on attracting, identifying and selecting strong candidates who will be successful at Stryker and ensuring that each person we hire brings the talent, expertise and passion we need to continue to be successful.

Health and Safety

Ensuring our employees' safety is a top priority. It is a responsibility that we share throughout the company and one that has evolved to meet the needs of our workforce. Employees' safety risks vary depending on the roles they perform, so we tailor our safety efforts accordingly.

Competitive Pay and Benefits

Our compensation and benefits programs are designed to attract and retain top talent and to incentivize performance and alignment to our mission and values.

We offer market-competitive base pay and benefits to our employees in countries around the world. We regularly evaluate our compensation and benefit offerings and levels, using recognized outside consulting firms to ensure internal fairness and competitiveness in our offerings.

Most of our employees also have variable components to their compensation packages that reward employees based on individual, business unit and/or company-wide performance.

Our proxy statement provides more detail on the competitive compensation programs we offer to our executive officers.

ITEM 1A. RISK FACTORS.

This report contains statements that are not historical facts and are considered "forward-looking statements" within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. These statements are based on current projections about operations, industry conditions, financial condition and liquidity. Words that identify forward-looking statements include, without limitation, words such as "may," "could," "will," "should," "possible," "plan," "predict," "forecast," "potential," "anticipate," "estimate," "expect," "project," "intend," "believe," "may impact," "on track," "goal," "strategy" and words and terms of similar substance used in connection with any discussion of future operating or financial performance, an acquisition or our businesses. In addition, any statements that refer to expectations, projections or other characterizations of future events or circumstances, including any underlying assumptions, are forward-looking statements. Those statements are not guarantees and are subject to risks, uncertainties and assumptions that are difficult to predict. Therefore, actual results could differ materially and adversely from these forward-looking statements, historical experience or our present expectations. Some important factors that could cause our actual results to differ from our expectations in any forward-looking statements include:

- weakening of economic conditions, or the anticipation thereof, that could adversely affect the level of demand for our or Inari Medical, Inc.'s ("Inari") products;
- geopolitical risks, including from international conflicts, which could, among other things, lead to increased market volatility;

- pricing pressures generally, including cost-containment measures that have adversely affected and could in the future adversely affect the price of or demand for our or Inari's products;
- changes in foreign currency exchange markets;
- legislative and regulatory actions;
- unanticipated issues arising in connection with clinical studies and otherwise that affect approval of new products, including Inari products, by the FDA and foreign regulatory agencies;
- inflationary pressures;
- increased interest rates or interest rate volatility;
- supply chain disruptions;
- changes in labor markets;
- changes in coverage and reimbursement levels from third-party payors;
- changes in the competitive environment;
- breaches, failures or other disruptions of our or our vendors' or customers' information technology systems or products, including by cyber-attack, data leakage, unauthorized access or theft;
- a significant increase in product liability claims;
- the ultimate total cost with respect to recall-related and other regulatory and quality matters;
- the impact of investigative and legal proceedings and compliance risks;
- resolution of tax audits;
- changes in tax laws and regulations;
- the impact of legislation to reform the healthcare system in the United States or other countries;
- costs to comply with medical device regulations;
- changes in financial markets;
- changes in our credit ratings;
- our ability to integrate and realize the anticipated benefits of acquisitions in full or at all or within the expected timeframes, including our acquisition of Inari;
- our ability to realize any anticipated cost savings;
- potential negative impacts resulting from climate change or other environmental, social and governance and sustainability related matters;
- the impact on our operations and financial results of any public health emergency and any related policies and actions by governments or other third parties;
- uncertainties as to the timing of the tender offer for shares of Inari common stock and the subsequent merger with Inari;
- uncertainties as to how many of Inari's stockholders will tender their shares in the tender offer;
- the failure to satisfy any of the closing conditions to the acquisition of Inari, including the expiration or termination of the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act waiting period (and the risk that such governmental approval may result in the imposition of conditions that could adversely affect the expected benefits of the transaction);
- delays in consummating the acquisition of Inari or the risk that the transaction may not close at all;
- unexpected liabilities, costs, charges or expenses in connection with the acquisition of Inari;
- the effects of the proposed Inari transaction (or the announcement thereof) on the parties' relationships with employees, customers, other business partners or governmental entities; and
- other risks detailed in our filings with the SEC.

While we believe that the assumptions underlying such forward-looking statements are reasonable, there can be no assurance that future events or developments will not cause such statements to be inaccurate. All forward-looking statements contained in this report are qualified in their entirety by this cautionary statement. We expressly disclaim any intention or obligation to publicly update or revise any forward-looking statement to reflect any change in our expectations or in events, conditions or circumstances on which those expectations may be based, or that affect the likelihood that actual results will differ from those contained in the forward-looking statements.

Our operations and financial results are subject to various risks and uncertainties discussed below that could materially and adversely affect our business, cash flows, financial condition and results of operations. Additional risks and uncertainties not currently known to us or that we currently deem not to be material or that could apply to any company may also materially and adversely affect our business, cash flows, financial condition or results of operations. If any of the risks discussed below or other risks actually occur or continue to occur, our business, financial condition, operating results or cash flows could be materially adversely affected. Accordingly, you should carefully consider the following risk factors, as well as other information contained in or incorporated by reference in this report.

BUSINESS AND OPERATIONAL RISKS

We use a variety of raw materials, components, devices and third-party services in our global supply chains, production and distribution processes; significant shortages, price increases or unavailability of third-party services have in the past increased, and could in the future increase, our operating costs and could require significant capital expenditures or adversely impact the competitive position of our products: Our reliance on certain suppliers to secure raw materials, components and finished devices, and on certain third-party service providers, such as sterilization service providers, exposes us to the risk of product shortages and unanticipated increases in prices, whether due to inflationary pressure, regulatory changes, litigation exposure, geopolitical tensions or otherwise. For example, in the past we experienced limited product availability due to an electronic components shortage in certain product lines. If a similar shortage occurs in the future with respect to any raw materials or components, we may not be able to obtain them from our suppliers on a timely basis, or at all, or identify alternative suppliers. In addition, several raw materials, components, finished devices and services are procured from a sole source due to, among other things, the quality considerations, unique intellectual property considerations or constraints associated with regulatory requirements. If sole-source suppliers or service providers are unable or unwilling to deliver these materials or services as a result of financial difficulties, business disruptions, acquisition by a third party, natural disasters or otherwise, we may not be able to manufacture or have available one or more products during such period of unavailability and our business could suffer, possibly materially. In certain cases, we may not be able to establish additional or replacement suppliers for such materials or service providers for such services in a timely or cost-effective manner, often as a result of FDA and other regulations that require, among other things, validation of materials, components and services prior to their use in or with our products. In certain instances we have been unable to meet demand due to supply chain challenges, which has led to loss of sales. Although the impacts have not been material to date, an inability to meet demand due to supply chain challenges in the future could materially adversely impact our reputation, the competitive position of our products and our business. Any of the foregoing risks could have a material adverse impact on our profitability and results of operations.

In addition, in recent years, the market has experienced inflationary pressures in part due to global supply chain disruptions, labor shortages and other impacts following the COVID-19 pandemic. Inflation in the United States and in many of the countries where we conduct business has resulted in, and may in the future result in, high interest rates and increased capital, energy, shipping and labor costs, weakening or strengthening exchange rates against the United States Dollar and other similar effects. We have experienced, and may in the future experience, inflationary increases in manufacturing costs and operating expenses, as well as negative impacts from weakening or strengthening exchange rates against the United States Dollar. Although we have been able to pass certain cost increases on to our customers, we have not been able to pass along all cost increases and we cannot guarantee that we will be able to do so in the future. Inflation, high interest rates or interest rate volatility may also cause our customers to reduce or delay orders for our products and services. Any of the foregoing could have a material adverse impact on our sales, profitability and results of operations.

We are subject to pricing pressures as a result of cost containment measures in the United States and other countries and other factors, including changes in reimbursement practices and coverage policies and third-party payor cost containment measures: Initiatives to limit the growth of general healthcare expenses and hospital costs are ongoing in the markets in which we do business. These initiatives are sponsored by government agencies, legislative bodies and the private sector and include price regulation and competitive pricing. For example, China has implemented a volume-based procurement process designed to decrease prices for medical devices and other products. Pricing pressure has also increased due to continued consolidation among healthcare providers, trends toward managed care, the shift toward governments becoming the primary payers of healthcare expenses, reduction in coverage or reimbursement levels and medical procedure volumes and government laws and regulations relating to sales and promotion, reimbursement and pricing generally. Coverage policies and reimbursement levels can vary across the payer community globally, regionally, and locally, and may affect which products customers purchase, the market acceptance rate for new technologies and the prices customers are willing to pay for those products in a particular jurisdiction. Furthermore, any changes to the coverage or reimbursement landscape, or adverse decisions relating to our products by administrators of these systems could significantly reduce reimbursement for procedures using our products or result in denial of reimbursement for those products, which could adversely affect customer demand, or the price customers are willing to pay for such products. Public and private payers have challenged, and are expected to continue to challenge, prices charged for medical products and services. Such downward pricing pressures from any or all of these payers may result in an adverse effect on our business, results of operations, financial condition and cash flows. We have also reduced prices for certain products due to increased competition and if we further reduce prices, we could become less profitable. In addition, due to healthcare industry consolidation in recent years, competition to provide goods and services to industry participants has become, and may continue to become, more intense, and this consolidation has produced, and may continue to produce, larger enterprises with more bargaining power. Pricing pressures related to any of the foregoing or other factors have impacted and could in the future impact our results of operations and profitability.

We operate in a highly competitive industry in which competition and the regulatory burden in the development and improvement of new and existing products is significant: The markets in which we compete are highly competitive, and a significant element of our strategy is to increase revenue growth by focusing on innovation, new product development and improvement of existing products. New business models, products and surgical procedures, as well as improvements to existing products, are introduced on an ongoing basis and our present or future products could be rendered obsolete or uneconomical by internal or external technological advances, including by our existing competitors and new market entrants, which could adversely impact demand for certain of our existing products. The success of our products and services depends on, among other things, our ability to properly identify customer needs and predict future needs; innovate and develop new technologies, services and applications at an accelerated pace; and appropriately allocate our research and development spending to products and services with higher growth. Our existing competitors and new market entrants may respond more quickly to or integrate new or emerging technologies such as robotics, artificial intelligence and machine learning in their product offerings, undertake more extensive marketing campaigns, have greater access to clinical information to support ongoing product position in the market, have greater financial, marketing and other resources or be more successful in attracting potential customers, employees and strategic partners. There can be no assurance that any products now in development, or that we may seek to develop in the future, will achieve technological feasibility, obtain regulatory approval or gain market acceptance. If we are unable to develop and launch new products, our ability to maintain or expand our market position in the markets in which we participate may be negatively impacted.

We may be unable to maintain adequate working relationships with healthcare professionals: We work with healthcare professionals in a transparent and responsible manner and seek to maintain these relationships with respected physicians and medical personnel in healthcare organizations, such as hospitals and universities, who assist in product research and development. We rely on these professionals to assist us in the development and improvement of proprietary products. If we are unable to maintain these relationships due to regulatory restrictions, hospital access restrictions for non-patients or for other reasons, our ability to develop, market and sell new and improved products could be adversely affected.

We rely on indirect distribution channels and major distributors that are independent of Stryker: In many markets we rely on indirect distribution channels to market, distribute and sell our products. These indirect channels often are the main point of contact for the healthcare professionals and healthcare organization customers who buy and use our products. Our ability to continue to market, distribute and sell our products may be at risk if the indirect channels become insolvent, choose to sell competitive products, choose to stop selling medical technology, fail to adhere to Stryker requirements or are subject to new or additional government regulation.

We are subject to risks associated with our extensive global operations: We develop, manufacture and distribute our products globally. Our global operations are subject to risks and costs related to, among other things, changes in coverage or reimbursement levels from third-party payors in the United States and other countries; changes in regulatory requirements (such as the staggered phase-in period for manufacturers to comply with the European Union Medical Device Regulation (MDR) through December 2028); differing local product preferences and product requirements; diminished protection of intellectual property in some countries; tariffs and other trade protection measures, as well as increasing localization and protectionism policies in certain jurisdictions; international trade disputes and import or export requirements; difficulty in staffing and managing foreign operations; introduction of new internal business structures and programs; political and economic instability and uncertainty; current or potential geopolitical conflicts, such as the tensions between China and Taiwan and the wars in Ukraine and the Middle East, and related sanctions and other developments; disruptions of transportation, including port closures, increased border controls or border closures or reduced transportation availability, due to military conflicts, a global pandemic of contagious diseases like COVID-19 or otherwise; increased energy or transportation costs; fluctuations in currency exchange rates and financial markets; and increased security threats to our supply chain. Many of these risks are rapidly evolving and subject to an accelerating pace of change. Our business could be adversely impacted if we are unable to successfully manage these and other risks of global operations in an increasingly volatile environment. In addition, in many countries, the laws and regulations applicable to us or our industry are evolving, and we have in certain cases become subject to divergent and conflicting laws and regulations across our operations, which has increased the risks we are subject to.

We may be unable to capitalize on previous or future acquisitions: In addition to internally developed products, we invest in new products and technologies through acquisitions. Such investments are inherently risky, and we cannot guarantee that any acquisition will be successful or will not have a material unfavorable impact on us. The risks include the activities required and resources allocated to integrate new businesses, diversion of management time that could adversely affect management's ability to focus on other projects, the inability to realize the expected benefits, savings or synergies from the acquisition, the loss of key personnel, litigation resulting from the acquisition and exposure to unexpected liabilities of acquired companies. Certain acquisitions are subject to antitrust and competition laws, and antitrust scrutiny by regulatory agencies and changes to the regulatory approval process in the United States and foreign jurisdictions may cause approvals to take longer than anticipated to obtain, not be obtained at all, or contain burdensome conditions, which may jeopardize, delay or reduce the anticipated benefits of acquisitions to us and could impede the execution of our business strategy. In addition, we cannot be certain that the businesses we acquire will become or remain profitable.

We, our business partners or our third-party vendors could experience a material failure or breach of a key information technology system, network, process or site: We rely extensively on information technology (IT) systems to conduct business. In addition, we rely on networks and services, including internet sites, cloud and software-as-a-service solutions, data hosting and processing facilities and tools and other hardware, software (including open-source software) and technical applications and platforms, some of which are managed, hosted, provided and/or used by third parties or their vendors, to assist in conducting our business. Furthermore, numerous and evolving cybersecurity threats have posed, and will continue to pose, risks to the security of our IT systems, networks and product offerings, as well as the confidentiality, availability and integrity of our data. Emerging technologies such as generative artificial intelligence (AI) may be used by malicious actors to create more targeted phishing narratives, spread disinformation about us or our products or otherwise strengthen social engineering capabilities. Some of our products, services, and information technology systems contain or use open-source software which poses particular risks, including potential security vulnerabilities, licensing compliance issues and quality issues. We, our customers and third-party hosting services have experienced, and expect to continue to experience, security breaches of, unauthorized access to, and disruptions of, products or systems. While such breaches, unauthorized access and disruptions have not had a material effect on us to date, we cannot guarantee that any future breach or unauthorized access will not be material and any breach or unauthorized access could impact the use of such products and systems and the security of information stored therein. Although we have made investments and expect to continue to make investments seeking to address these threats, including monitoring of networks and systems, use of artificial intelligence, hiring of experts, employee training and security policies for employees and third-party providers, the techniques used in these attacks change frequently and may be difficult to detect for periods of time and we may face difficulties in anticipating and implementing adequate preventative measures.

When cybersecurity or other technology related incidents occur, we follow our incident response protocols and address them in accordance with applicable governmental regulations and other legal requirements. Our response to these incidents and our investments to protect our product offerings and information technology infrastructure and data may not shield us from significant losses and potential liability or prevent any future interruption or breach of our systems. Moreover, given the increasing complexity and sophistication of the techniques used by threat actors to obtain unauthorized access or disable or degrade systems, a cyberattack could occur and persist for an extended period of time before being detected, and we may not anticipate these acts or mitigate them adequately or timely, which may compound damages before the incident is discovered or remediated. The extent of a particular cyber incident and the steps that we may need to take to investigate the incident may not be immediately clear, and it may take a significant amount of time before such investigation can be completed and full and reliable information about the incident is known. New regulations may require us to disclose information about a material cybersecurity incident before it has been resolved or fully investigated. Additionally, as threats continue to evolve and increase, and as the regulatory environment and customer requirements related to information security, data collection and use, and privacy become increasingly rigorous, we may be required to devote significant additional resources to modify and enhance our security controls and to identify and remediate any security vulnerabilities, which could adversely impact our net income. In addition, a significant number of our employees working remotely has exposed us, and may continue to expose us, to greater risks related to cybersecurity and cyber-liability.

Hardware and software failures or delays in our key information technology systems, networks, processes or sites could disrupt our operations, cause the loss of confidential information or otherwise adversely impact our business. Our systems, networks, processes and sites may be vulnerable to damage, disruptions and shutdown from a variety of sources, including malfunctions in maintenance updates or security patches, design defects, the age of the technology, network failures, modernization or other initiatives, human acts and natural disasters. For example, some of our information technology systems contain legacy third-party software components for which we depend on a layered security approach to protect against exploitation, which may not be effective. Any such damage or disruptions could also compromise the security of our information systems and networks. These issues can also arise as a result of failures by, or in the software or hardware of, third parties, including networks or service providers, with whom we do business and over whom we have limited or no control. Any disruption or failure of our systems, networks, processes or sites could have a material impact on our business and operations.

If our IT systems, networks or processes are damaged or cease to function properly for any reason, the networks, service providers, hardware or software we rely upon fail to function properly, or we or one of our third-party providers suffer a loss or disclosure of our business or stakeholder information due to any number of causes ranging from catastrophic events or power outages to improper data handling or security breaches or unauthorized access and our business continuity plans do not effectively address these failures on a timely basis, we may be exposed to reputational, competitive and business harm as well as litigation and regulatory action and fines, penalties and expenses related thereto.

An inability to successfully manage the implementation of our new commercial global enterprise resource planning (ERP) system could adversely affect our operations and operating results: We are in the process of implementing a new commercial ERP system. This system will replace many of our existing operating and financial systems. The implementation is a major undertaking, both financially and from a management and personnel perspective. Any material disruptions, delays or deficiencies in the design and implementation of our new ERP system could adversely affect our ability to process orders, ship products, provide services and customer support, send invoices and track payments, fulfill contractual obligations or otherwise operate our business.

We may be unable to attract, develop and retain executives and key employees: Our sales, technical and other key personnel play an integral role in the development, marketing and selling of new and existing products. Our future performance also depends in large part on the continued services of our senior management. If we are unable to recruit, hire, develop and retain a talented, competitive workforce in our highly competitive industry, or if we are unable to plan effective succession for the future, we may not be able to meet our strategic business objectives. Inflationary pressures, labor demand and shortages and other macroeconomic factors have increased and could further increase the cost of labor and could harm our ability to recruit, hire and retain talented employees. In addition, increased unionization could negatively impact our labor costs and ability to create an engaging, connected culture, which could adversely affect our ability to recruit, hire, develop and retain a talented, competitive workforce. Further, if we are unable to maintain competitive and equitable compensation and benefit programs, including incentive programs which reward financial and operational performance, our ability to recruit, hire, engage, motivate and retain talent could be negatively affected. Additionally, if we are unable to maintain an inclusive culture that aligns our diverse workforce with our mission and values, it could adversely impact our ability to recruit, hire, develop and retain key talent. Further, our remote and hybrid work practices, ability to provide flexible and alternative work arrangements, and our practices relating to corporate responsibility may not meet the needs or expectations of our employees, including senior management or other key employees, which could negatively impact our ability to attract and retain highly skilled employees, or may harm our culture and/or decrease employee engagement, which could adversely impact our ability to recruit, hire, develop and retain a talented, competitive workforce.

Effective succession planning is also important to our long-term success. Failure to ensure effective transfer of knowledge and smooth transitions involving executives and other key employees could hinder our strategic planning and execution. Changes in our management team may be disruptive to our business, and any failure to successfully integrate key new hires or promoted employees could adversely affect our business and results of operations. The loss of the services of any of our senior management or other key personnel, or our inability to attract highly qualified senior management and other key personnel, could harm our business. Our ability to execute our business strategy could be impaired if we are unable to replace such persons timely. In addition, recent legal and regulatory changes affect our ability to enforce post-termination obligations from certain employees with respect to non-competition, non-solicitation and protection of confidential information. This may negatively impact our ability to retain employees and protect our information and relationships with customers and other third parties.

Interruption of manufacturing operations could adversely affect our business: We and our suppliers have manufacturing and supply sites all over the world. However, the manufacturing of certain of our product lines is concentrated in one or more plants or geographic regions. We have principal manufacturing and distribution facilities in the United States in Arizona, California, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, Puerto Rico, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Washington, and outside the United States in China, France, Germany, Ireland, Mexico, the Netherlands, Poland, Switzerland and Turkey. Damage to our facilities, to our suppliers' or service providers' facilities, or to our central distribution centers as a result of natural disasters, fires, explosions or otherwise, as well as issues in our manufacturing arising from a failure to follow specific internal protocols and procedures, compliance concerns relating to the quality systems regulation, equipment breakdown or malfunction, IT system failures or cybersecurity incidents, environmental hazard incidents or changes to environmental regulations or other factors, could adversely affect the availability of our products. In the event of an interruption in manufacturing, we may be unable to move quickly to alternate means of producing and distributing affected products to meet customer demand. In the event of a significant interruption, we may experience lengthy delays in resuming production or distribution of affected products due to the need for regulatory approvals, and we may experience loss of market share, additional expense and harm to our reputation.

Our insurance program may not be adequate to cover future losses: We maintain third-party insurance to cover our exposure to certain property and casualty losses and are self-insured for claims and expenses related to other property and casualty losses, including product liability, intellectual property infringement and enforcement, environmental, and cybersecurity and data privacy losses. We manage a portion of our exposure to self-insured losses through a wholly-owned captive insurance company. Insurance coverage limits provided by third-party insurers and/or our captive insurance company may not be sufficient to fully cover certain losses we may experience.

We have experienced, and may continue to experience, a significant and unpredictable need to adjust our operations as market demand for certain of our products has shifted and continues to shift or as may be mandated by governmental authorities: Some of our products are particularly sensitive to reductions in elective medical procedures. It is not possible to predict whether elective medical procedures will be suspended or reduced in the future and, to the extent individuals and customers are required to delay or cancel elective procedures, our business, cash flows, financial condition and results of operations could be negatively affected. Further, our customers have experienced, and may continue to experience, staffing shortages that may result in decreased demand for our products, which could negatively affect our business and financial results.

Unpredictable increases in demand for certain of our products have exceeded in the past, and could exceed in the future, our capacity to meet such demand timely, which could adversely affect our customer relationships and result in negative publicity. In this regard, the accelerated development and production of products and services to address medical and other requirements could increase the risk of regulatory enforcement actions, product defects or related claims or reputational harm, among other things.

Our use of AI and other emerging technologies could adversely impact our business and financial results: We have begun to deploy AI and other emerging technologies in various facets of our operations and we continue to explore further use cases. The rapid advancement of these technologies presents opportunities for us in research, manufacturing, commercialization, and other business endeavors, but also entails risks, including that AI-generated content, analyses, or recommendations we utilize could be deficient, that our competitors may more quickly or effectively adopt AI capabilities, or that our use of AI or other emerging technologies increases regulatory, cybersecurity and other significant risks. In addition, any disruption or failure in the AI functionality we incorporate into our business activities, products or services could adversely impact our business or result in delays or errors in our product offerings. The legal and regulatory landscape surrounding AI technologies is rapidly evolving and uncertain, including in the areas of intellectual property, cybersecurity and privacy and data protection. Compliance with new or changing laws, regulations or industry standards relating to AI may impose significant costs on us and limit our ability to effectively develop, deploy or use AI technologies. Furthermore, if we are unable to effectively manage the use of AI technologies by our employees and service providers, our confidential information, intellectual property and reputation could be put at risk. Failure to appropriately respond to this evolving landscape may result in reputational, competitive and business harm as well as litigation and regulatory action and fines, penalties and expenses related thereto.

Pandemics and public health emergencies, and the fear thereof, have in the past materially adversely affected and could in the future materially adversely affect, our operations, supply chain, manufacturing, product distribution, customers and other business activities: In connection with prior pandemics, governmental authorities and private enterprises implemented, and may in the future implement in connection with another pandemic or public health emergency (or in response to the fear thereof), measures, such as travel bans and restrictions, quarantines, shelter-in-place orders and shutdowns. Our customers, global suppliers, distributors and manufacturing facilities have in the past been, and could in the future be, materially affected by restrictive measures implemented in response to a pandemic or public health emergency, which has in the past caused and could in the future cause them to be unable to hire and retain employees, distribute or use our products or provide required services. We have as a result experienced, and could in the future experience, delays in, or the suspension of, our manufacturing operations, sales activities, research and product development activities, regulatory work streams, clinical development programs and other important commercial functions, which may result in our inability to satisfy consumer demand for our products in a timely manner or at all and which could harm our reputation, future sales and profitability. The extent of any future pandemic or public health emergency's effect on our business and industry will depend on, among other things, the severity of the disease, the successful development, distribution and acceptance of vaccines for diseases, future resurgences and/or the spread of disease variants, all of which are uncertain and difficult to predict. The COVID-19 pandemic materially impacted us, and any future pandemic or public health emergency could materially impact us and would heighten many of the other risks described in this report.

LEGAL AND REGULATORY RISKS

Current economic and political conditions make tax rules in jurisdictions subject to significant change: Our future results of operations could be affected by changes in the effective tax rate as a result of changes in tax laws, regulations and judicial rulings. We are continuing to evaluate the impact of tax reform in the countries in which we operate as new guidance is published and new regulations are adopted. In addition, further changes in the tax laws could arise, including as a result of the base erosion and profit shifting project undertaken by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). The OECD, which represents a coalition of member countries, has put forth two proposed frameworks that revise the existing profit allocation and nexus rules (Pillar 1) and ensure a minimal level of taxation (Pillar 2), respectively. In 2022 the European Union member states agreed to implement the Inclusive Framework's global corporate minimum tax rate of 15%, and various countries within and outside the European Union have either enacted or proposed new tax laws implementing Pillar Two in 2024. The OECD continues to release additional guidance and we anticipate more countries will enact similar tax laws. Some of the new tax laws are effective in 2024 while others will be effective in future years. These tax law changes and any additional contemplated tax law changes, could increase tax expense in future periods.

We could be negatively impacted by future changes in the allocation of income to each of the income tax jurisdictions in which we operate: We operate in multiple income tax jurisdictions both in the United States and internationally. Accordingly, our management must determine the appropriate allocation of income to each jurisdiction based on current interpretations of complex income tax regulations. Income tax authorities regularly perform audits of our income tax filings. Income tax audits associated with the allocation of income and other complex issues, including inventory transfer pricing and cost sharing, product royalty and foreign branch arrangements, may require an extended period to resolve and may result in significant income tax adjustments.

The impact of healthcare reform legislation on our business remains uncertain: Several markets where we sell our products are making efforts to expand access to healthcare or health insurance coverage while decreasing costs. These efforts may have a direct or unintended negative impact on access to medical technology and could have a significant effect on our business. Both in the U.S. and internationally, governmental authorities may make legislative or administrative reforms to existing reimbursement programs, make adverse decisions relating to our products' coverage or reimbursement, or make changes to patient access to healthcare, all of which could adversely impact the demand for and usage of our products or the prices that our customers are willing to pay for them. We cannot predict what healthcare programs and regulations could ultimately be implemented at the federal or state level or the effect that any future legislation or regulation in the United States may have on our business. Similarly, we cannot predict the impact that healthcare reform legislation in other countries where we sell our products may have on our business.

We are subject to extensive governmental regulation relating to the classification, manufacturing, sterilization, licensing, labeling, marketing and sale of our products: The classification, manufacturing, sterilization, licensing, labeling, marketing and sale of our products are subject to extensive and evolving regulations and rigorous regulatory enforcement by the FDA, state governments, European Union and other governmental authorities in the United States and internationally. These governmental authorities may impose additional requirements or limits on the methods, procedures or agents we use to manufacture and sterilize our products, which could have a negative impact on our business. For example, governmental authorities in the United States and internationally have or are considering adopting regulations on the use of per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances. In addition, the process of obtaining licenses, regulatory clearances and/or approvals to market and sell our products can be costly and time consuming and the clearances and/or approvals might not be granted timely. We have ongoing responsibilities under the laws and regulations applicable to the manufacturing of products within our facilities and those contracted by third parties that are subject to periodic inspections by the FDA, state Boards of Pharmacy and other governmental authorities to determine compliance with the quality system, medical device reporting regulations and other requirements. We may also be subject to legal obligations in some countries that require disclosure or sharing of proprietary information. We incur significant costs to comply with regulations, including the MDR. If we fail to comply with applicable regulatory requirements, we may be subject to a range of sanctions, including substantial fines, warning letters that require corrective action, product seizures, recalls, import restrictions, the suspension of product manufacturing or sales, revocation of approvals, exclusion from future participation in government healthcare programs, substantial fines and criminal prosecution.

We are subject to federal, state and foreign healthcare regulations, including anti-bribery, anti-corruption, anti-kickback and false claims laws, globally and could face substantial penalties if we fail to comply with such regulations and laws: The relationships that we, and third parties that market and/or sell our products, have with healthcare professionals, such as physicians, hospitals, healthcare organizations and others, are subject to scrutiny under various state and federal laws often referred to collectively as healthcare fraud and abuse laws. In addition, the United States and foreign government regulators have increased the enforcement of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) and other anti-bribery and anti-kickback laws. We also must comply with a variety of other laws that impose extensive tracking and reporting related to all transfers of value provided to certain healthcare professionals and others. These laws and regulations are broad in scope and are subject to evolving interpretation and we have in the past been, and in the future could be, required to incur substantial costs to investigate, audit and monitor compliance or to alter our practices. Violations or alleged violations of these laws have in the past resulted and could in the future result in investigations, litigation or government proceedings, and we have been and may in the future be subject to criminal or civil penalties and sanctions, including substantial fines, imprisonment of current or former employees and exclusion from participation in governmental healthcare programs. For example, in 2013 and 2018 we settled claims brought by the SEC related to the FCPA. Pursuant to these settlements, we paid fines and penalties and retained an independent compliance consultant. We continue to implement recommendations that resulted from the independent compliance consultant's review of our commercial practices to enhance our commercial business practices. In addition, we are currently investigating whether certain business activities in certain foreign countries violated provisions of the FCPA and have been contacted by the SEC, United States Department of Justice and certain other regulatory authorities. Although we are currently unable to predict the outcome of the investigations or the potential impact, if any, on our financial statements, the impacts could potentially be significant.

We are subject to privacy, data protection and data security regulations and laws globally, and could face substantial penalties if we fail to comply with such regulations and laws: We are subject to a variety of laws and regulations globally regarding privacy, data protection, and data security, including those related to the collection, storage, handling, use, disclosure, transfer and security of personally identifiable healthcare information. For example, in the United States, privacy and security regulations under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, including the expanded requirements under the Health Information Technology for Economic and Clinical Health Act of 2009, establish comprehensive standards with respect to the use and disclosure of protected health information (PHI), by covered entities, in addition to setting standards to protect the confidentiality, integrity and security of PHI. Regulators are also imposing new data privacy and security requirements, including new and greater monetary fines for privacy violations. For example, the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) established rules regarding the handling of personal data. Non-compliance with the GDPR may result in monetary penalties of up to 4% of total company revenue. Various U.S. states and other governmental authorities around the world have imposed or are considering similar types of laws and regulations, data breach reporting and penalties for non-compliance and increasing security requirements. These laws and regulations are broad in scope and are subject to evolving interpretation and enforcement and we have in the past been, and in the future could be, required to incur substantial costs to monitor compliance or to alter our practices. As new privacy-related laws and regulations are implemented, the time and resources needed for us to comply with such laws and regulations, as well as our potential liability for non-compliance and reporting obligations in the case of data breaches, have increased and may further increase.

We may be adversely affected by product liability claims, unfavorable court decisions or legal settlements: We are exposed to potential product liability risks inherent in the design, manufacture and marketing of medical devices, many of which are implanted in the human body for long periods of time or indefinitely. We are currently defendants in a number of product liability matters, including those relating to our Rejuvenate and ABGII Modular-Neck hip stems, LFIT Anatomic CoCr V40 Femoral Heads and the product liability lawsuits and claims relating to Wright Medical Group N.V. (Wright) legacy hip products discussed in Note 7 to our Consolidated Financial Statements. These matters are subject to uncertainties and outcomes are not predictable. Further, the European Representative Actions Directive (the Collective Redress Directive) mandates a class action regime in each EU member state to facilitate domestic and cross-border class actions in a wide range of areas, including product liability claims with medical devices. The European Product Liability Directive was revised in 2024 and will become fully adopted into each member state's national laws by 2026. The revised Product Liability Directive and Collective Redress Directive exposes us to additional litigation risks and could result in significant legal expenses. In addition, we may incur significant legal expenses or reputational damage for product liability claims regardless of whether we are found to be liable.

Intellectual property litigation and infringement claims could cause us to incur significant expenses or prevent us from selling certain of our products: The medical device industry is characterized by extensive intellectual property litigation and, from time to time, we are the subject of claims of infringement or misappropriation. Regardless of the outcome, such claims are expensive to defend and divert management and operating personnel from other business issues. A successful claim or claims of patent or other intellectual property infringement against us could result in payment of significant monetary damages and/or royalty payments or negatively impact our ability to sell current or future products in the affected category.

Dependence on intellectual proprietary rights and failing to protect such rights or to be successful in litigation related to such rights may impact offerings in our product portfolios: Our long-term success largely depends on our ability to market technologically competitive products. If we fail to obtain or maintain adequate intellectual property protection, it could allow others to sell products that directly compete with proprietary features in our product portfolio. Also, our issued patents may be subject to claims challenging their validity and scope and raising other issues. In addition, currently pending or future patent applications may not result in issued patents and the expiration of patents may lead to a loss of exclusive rights and/or increased competition.

MARKET RISKS

We have exposure to exchange rate fluctuations on cross border transactions and translation of local currency results into United States Dollars: We report our financial results in United States Dollars and approximately 25% of our net sales are denominated in foreign currencies, including the Australian Dollar, British Pound, Canadian Dollar, Euro and Japanese Yen. Cross border transactions with external parties, financing transactions in currencies other than the United States Dollar and intercompany relationships result in increased exposure to foreign currency exchange effects. While we use derivative instruments to manage the impact of currency exchange, our hedging strategies may not be successful, and our unhedged exposures continue to be subject to currency fluctuations. In addition, the weakening or strengthening of the United States Dollar results in favorable or unfavorable translation effects when the results of our foreign locations are translated into United States Dollars. In recent years, currency exchange rates have been especially volatile, and these currency fluctuations have affected, and may continue to affect, our results of operations.

Additional capital that we may require in the future may not be available to us or may only be available to us on unfavorable terms, which could negatively affect our liquidity: Our future capital requirements will depend on many factors, including operating requirements, current and future acquisitions and the need to refinance existing debt. Our ability to issue additional debt or enter into other financing arrangements on acceptable terms could be adversely affected by our debt levels, unfavorable changes in economic conditions or uncertainties that affect the capital markets. Changes in credit ratings issued by nationally recognized credit rating agencies could also adversely affect our access to and cost of financing. Higher borrowing costs or the inability to access capital markets could adversely affect our ability to support future growth and operating requirements. In addition, we have experienced, and could in the future experience, loss of sales and profits due to delayed payments or insolvency of healthcare professionals, hospitals and other customers and suppliers facing liquidity issues due to the current macroeconomic environment, type and number of conditions being treated or for other reasons. As a result, we may be compelled to take additional measures to preserve our cash flow, including through the reduction of operating expenses or suspension of dividend payments.

ENVIRONMENTAL, SOCIAL AND GOVERNANCE RISKS

We could be negatively impacted by corporate responsibility and sustainability-related matters: Governments, investors, customers, employees and other stakeholders have been focused on corporate responsibility practices and disclosures, and expectations in this area continue to rapidly evolve, including in diverging directions. On occasion, we announce new initiatives and make disclosures, including goals, under our corporate responsibility framework. This framework is aligned with our areas of interest and applicable regulatory requirements, which include environment and sustainability, workforce-related issues, diversity, equity and inclusion and supply chain management, among others. Implementation of these initiatives involves risks and uncertainties, requires investments and depends in part on third-party performance or data that is outside our control. We cannot guarantee that we will achieve our announced corporate responsibility initiatives. The criteria by which our corporate responsibility practices are assessed may change due to the quickly evolving landscape, which could result in greater regulatory requirements or expectations of us and cause us to undertake costly initiatives to satisfy such new criteria. Moreover, the increasing attention to corporate responsibility initiatives could also result in, among other things, reduced demand for our products, reduced profits, increased investigations and litigation and an increased risk of reputational damage. If we are unable to satisfy evolving criteria, certain investors and other stakeholders may conclude that our policies and/or actions with respect to corporate responsibility matters are inadequate or undesirable. If we fail or are perceived to have failed to achieve previously announced initiatives or goals, comply with corporate responsibility laws and regulations, meet evolving expectations or accurately disclose our progress, we could face legal and regulatory proceedings and our reputation, business, financial condition and results of operations could be adversely impacted.

Physical effects of climate change or legal, regulatory or market measures intended to address climate change could adversely affect our operations and operating results: Risks associated with climate change are subject to increasing societal, regulatory and political focus in the United States and globally. Shifts in weather patterns caused by climate change have increased and are expected to further increase the frequency, severity or duration of certain adverse weather conditions and natural disasters, such as hurricanes, tornadoes, earthquakes, wildfires, droughts, extreme temperatures and flooding, which could cause more significant business and supply chain interruptions, damage to our products and facilities as well as the infrastructure of hospitals, medical care facilities and other customers, reduced workforce availability, increased costs of raw materials and components, increased liabilities and decreased revenues than what we have experienced in the past from such events. In addition, increased public concern over climate change has resulted in certain, and could result in additional, new legal or regulatory requirements designed to mitigate the effects of climate change, which could include the adoption of more stringent environmental laws and regulations or stricter enforcement of existing laws and regulations. Such developments could result in increased compliance costs and adverse impacts on raw material availability and sourcing, manufacturing operations and the distribution of our products, which could adversely affect our operations and operating results.

ITEM 1C. CYBERSECURITY.

RISK MANAGEMENT AND STRATEGY

We review cybersecurity risk as part of our overall enterprise risk management program. This ensures that cybersecurity risk management remains a top priority in our business strategy and operations.

MANAGEMENT'S ROLE IN MANAGING RISK

Primary management responsibility for assessing, monitoring and managing our cybersecurity risks rests with our chief information security officer ("CISO"). Our current CISO has over 30 years of experience in information technology including over 20 years in cybersecurity and oversees a team of cybersecurity professionals with over 140 security, risk, and compliance certifications. The CISO is regularly informed about recent developments in cybersecurity, including potential threats and innovative risk management techniques.

The CISO implements and oversees processes for the regular monitoring of our information systems. We use various tools and methodologies to manage cybersecurity risk that are tested regularly. We also monitor and evaluate our cybersecurity posture and performance on an ongoing basis through regular vulnerability scans, penetration tests and threat intelligence feeds. In addition, we engage third-party consultants to conduct annual cybersecurity assessments and to conduct audits for compliance with regulatory, Sarbanes-Oxley Act, Service Organization Control Type 2 and International Organization for Standardization standards. We also engage third parties to assess our cybersecurity maturity and risk management programs.

We use a cross-departmental approach to addressing cybersecurity risk, with our cybersecurity, product security and legal teams presenting quarterly on key topics to a committee of leaders in finance, regulatory, and corporate affairs functions. This leadership committee meets quarterly to ensure that we have input and oversight from critical stakeholders into our cybersecurity program and evolving issues.

The CISO oversees a training and awareness program for employees to take part in protecting the Company against cybersecurity risks. We have implemented annual mandatory security education to help employees understand cybersecurity risks and comply with our cybersecurity policies. Additionally, we provide frequent communications around pertinent cybersecurity topics and policies to all employees. We also provide additional cybersecurity and data protection training to employees in certain roles.

As part of our cybersecurity risk management program, we also conduct cybersecurity and privacy assessments on all third parties who integrate with Stryker's data, network, systems and products. We use a combination of internal and external tools to confirm that these third parties meet our security requirements. We leverage standard industry threat model and privacy impact assessment concepts to confirm that data minimization and adequate data protections are in place. We perform supplemental reviews as necessary, commensurate with the risk associated with each vendor.

In the event of a cybersecurity incident, we have an incident response plan that includes immediate actions to mitigate the impact and long-term strategies for remediation and prevention of future incidents. The cybersecurity and product security teams routinely practice this plan with functions across the organization. We conduct tabletop exercises with senior management, during which we practice the procedures in place to ensure that potentially material cybersecurity risks and incidents are escalated to management and the Board of Directors where applicable.

GOVERNANCE

Cybersecurity risks are overseen by the full Board of Directors and the Audit Committee. The Audit Committee is central to the Board of Directors' oversight of cybersecurity risks and bears the primary responsibility for overseeing cybersecurity risk. The Audit Committee actively participates in strategic decisions related to cybersecurity, offering guidance and approval for major cybersecurity initiatives. This involvement ensures that cybersecurity considerations are integrated into our broader strategic objectives.

Our CISO provides comprehensive updates to the Audit Committee quarterly and the full Board of Directors periodically. These briefings include a range of topics, including:

- Current cybersecurity landscape and emerging threats;
- Status of ongoing cybersecurity initiatives and strategies;
- Incident reports and learnings from any cybersecurity events;
- Metrics demonstrating company and industry-standard prevention of common threats; and
- Regulatory changes impacting cybersecurity requirements and strategy.

The Board of Directors is aware of the critical nature of managing risks associated with cybersecurity threats and is actively engaged in our cybersecurity risk management strategy.

RISKS FROM CYBERSECURITY THREATS

Although cybersecurity risks have not materially affected us, including our business strategy, results of operations or financial condition, to date, we face numerous and evolving cybersecurity threats in our business. For more information about the cybersecurity risks we face, see the risk factor entitled "We, our business partners or our third-party vendors could experience a material failure or breach of a key information technology system, network, process or site" in Item 1A. Risk Factors.

ITEM 2. PROPERTIES.

We have approximately 27 company-owned and 297 leased locations worldwide including 45 manufacturing locations. We believe that our properties are in good operating condition and adequate for the manufacture and distribution of our products.

We do not anticipate difficulty in renewing existing leases as they expire or in finding alternative facilities.

ITEM 3. LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

We are involved in various ongoing proceedings, legal actions and claims arising in the normal course of our business, including proceedings related to product, labor, intellectual property and other matters. Refer to Note 7 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information.

ITEM 4. MINE SAFETY DISCLOSURES.

Not applicable.

Note: In the fourth quarter 2024 we reorganized our Spine business to align with certain updates to our internal reporting structure. The spine enabling technologies portfolio (Enabling Technologies) was reclassified to Other Orthopaedics, the interventional spine portfolio was reclassified to Neuro Cranial and the remaining Spine business was renamed to Spinal Implants. Neuro Cranial includes sales related to interventional spine of $413, $327 and $282 for 2024, 2023 and 2022. Other Orthopaedics includes sales related to Enabling Technologies of $152, $149 and $131 for 2024, 2023 and 2022. In the first quarter 2024 a product line previously included in Instruments has been reclassified to Endoscopy to align with a change in our internal reporting structure. We have reflected these changes in all historical periods presented.

Consolidated Net Sales

Consolidated net sales in 2024 increased 10.2% as reported and 10.7% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.5% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 9.1% from increased unit volume and 1.1% due to higher prices. The unit volume increase was primarily due to higher shipments across all businesses.

Consolidated net sales in 2023 increased 11.1% as reported and 11.6% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.1% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 10.9% from increased unit volume and 0.6% due to higher prices. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across all MedSurg and Neurotechnology businesses and most Orthopaedics businesses.

MedSurg and Neurotechnology Net Sales

MedSurg and Neurotechnology net sales in 2024 increased 11.1% as reported and 11.6% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.4% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 9.5% from increased unit volume and 1.7% due to higher prices. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across all MedSurg and Neurotechnology businesses.

MedSurg and Neurotechnology net sales in 2023 increased 11.7% as reported and 12.2% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.3% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 10.2% from increased unit volume and 1.7% due to higher prices. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across all MedSurg and Neurotechnology businesses.

Orthopaedics Net Sales

Orthopaedics net sales in 2024 increased 8.9% as reported and 9.4% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.7% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 8.7% from increased unit volume. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across all Orthopaedics businesses.

Orthopaedics net sales in 2023 increased 10.3% as reported and 10.9% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.6%. Excluding the 0.1% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 11.9% from increased unit volume partially offset by 1.1% due to lower prices. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across most Orthopaedics businesses.

Gross Profit

Gross profit was $14,440, $13,058 and $11,578 in 2024, 2023, and 2022. The key components of the change were:

	Gross Profit Percent Net Sales
2022	62.8 %
Sales pricing	20 bps
Volume and mix	100 bps
Manufacturing and supply chain costs	(40) bps
Inventory stepped up to fair value	10 bps
2023	63.7 %
Sales pricing	40 bps
Volume and mix	60 bps
Manufacturing and supply chain costs	(40) bps
Inventory stepped up to fair value	(20) bps
Structural optimization and other special charges	(20) bps
2024	63.9 %

Gross profit as a percentage of net sales increased to 63.9% in 2024 from 63.7% in 2023 due to higher sales pricing and favorable volume partially offset by higher manufacturing and supply chain costs primarily due to inflationary pressures impacting fixed and variable manufacturing costs as well as higher amortization of inventory stepped up to fair value.

Gross profit as a percentage of net sales increased to 63.7% in 2023 from 62.8% in 2022 due to higher sales pricing and favorable volume offset by higher manufacturing and supply chain costs primarily due to higher raw material costs in the first six months of 2023 and supply chain inefficiencies.

While segment mix was not a significant driver of the change in gross profit as a percent of net sales between 2024, 2023 and 2022, we generally expect segment mix to have an unfavorable impact for the foreseeable future as we anticipate more rapid sales growth in our lower gross margin MedSurg and Neurotechnology segment than our Orthopaedics segment.

Research, Development and Engineering Expenses

Research, development and engineering expenses as a percentage of net sales in 2024 decreased to 6.5% from 6.8% in 2023 primarily due to lower spend on medical device regulations in the European Union.

Research, development and engineering expenses as a percentage of net sales in 2023 decreased to 6.8% from 7.9% in 2022 primarily due to increased spending for product launches, the write-off of certain intangible assets and higher spend related to the new medical device regulations in the European Union in 2022.

Selling, General and Administrative Expenses

Selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of net sales in 2024 decreased to 34.0% from 34.7% in 2023 primarily due to continued spend discipline and lower charges for structural optimization and certain legal matters partially offset by higher acquisition-related costs.

Selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of net sales in 2023 of 34.7% remained relatively flat with 34.6% in 2022 as charges of $132 related to share-based awards for Vocera employees that vested upon our acquisition in 2022 were partially offset by disciplined increases in spend and investments in 2023 to support our growth, including sales growth incentives and increased spend on travel and meetings. In addition, in 2022 we determined that certain commercial and regulatory milestones related to technology acquired in the purchase of Mobius Imaging and Cardan Robotics were no longer probable of being achieved and recorded $110 to reduce the fair value of contingent consideration.

Amortization of Intangible Assets

Amortization of intangible assets was $623, $635 and $627 in 2024, 2023 and 2022. These amounts include amortization related to intangible assets acquired in 2024 from various acquisitions, 2023 from Cerus Endovascular Limited (Cerus) and 2022 from Vocera. Refer to Notes 6 and 8 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information.

Goodwill and Other Impairments

In 2024 and 2022 we recorded goodwill impairment charges of $456 and $216 related to our Spine business.

In 2024 we recognized an estimated loss of $362 as a result of classifying certain assets in our Spinal Implants business as held for sale. Refer to Notes 8, 16 and 17 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information.

In 2024, 2023 and 2022 we recorded other impairments of $159, $36 and $54. Refer to Notes 15 and 16 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information.

Operating Income

Operating income was $3,689, $3,888 and $2,841 in 2024, 2023 and 2022. Operating income decreased as a percentage of sales to 16.3% in 2024 from 19.0% in 2023 and increased from 15.4% in 2022. Refer to the comments above for discussion of the primary drivers of the change.

MedSurg and Neurotechnology operating income as a percentage of net sales increased to 29.6% in 2024 from 28.5% in 2023. MedSurg and Neurotechnology operating income as a percentage of net sales increased to 28.5% in 2023 from 26.0% in 2022. Orthopaedics operating income as a percentage of net sales increased to 28.5% in 2024 from 27.2% in 2023. Orthopaedics operating income as a percentage of net sales increased to 27.2% in 2023 from 29.1% in 2022. The key components of the change were:

	Operating Income Percent Net Sales
	MedSurg and Neurotechnology	Orthopaedics
2022	26.0 %	29.1 %
Sales pricing	70 bps	(30) bps
Volume	100 bps	80 bps
Manufacturing and supply chain costs	90 bps	(220) bps
Research, development and engineering expenses	50 bps	20 bps
Selling, general and administrative expenses	(60) bps	(40) bps
2023	28.5 %	27.2 %
Sales pricing	70 bps	0 bps
Volume	40 bps	70 bps
Manufacturing and supply chain costs	(40) bps	(20) bps
Research, development and engineering expenses	0 bps	10 bps
Selling, general and administrative expenses	40 bps	70 bps
2024	29.6 %	28.5 %

The increase in MedSurg and Neurotechnology operating income as a percentage of net sales in 2024 from 2023 was primarily driven by higher unit volumes, higher prices and a decrease in selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of sales partially offset by higher manufacturing and supply chain costs.

The increase in MedSurg and Neurotechnology operating income as a percentage of net sales in 2023 from 2022 was primarily driven by higher unit volumes, higher prices and lower manufacturing and supply chain costs due to supply chain challenges impacting capital products in our MedSurg businesses in 2022 which improved in 2023 partially offset by higher selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of sales due to continued investments including sales growth incentives and a more normalized cadence of travel and meetings.

The increase in Orthopaedics operating income as a percentage of net sales for 2024 from 2023 was primarily driven by higher sales volumes and a decrease in selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of sales partially offset by higher manufacturing and supply chain costs.

The decrease in Orthopaedics operating income as a percentage of net sales for 2023 from 2022 was primarily driven by higher higher manufacturing and supply chain costs primarily due to increased inventory reserves partially offset by higher unit volumes.

Other Income (Expense), Net

Other income (expense), net was ($197), ($215) and ($158) in 2024, 2023 and 2022. The decrease in net expense in 2024 from 2023 was primarily due to higher interest income partially offset by lower interest expense in 2024. The increase in net expense in 2023 from 2022 was primarily due to the release of accrued interest of $50 in 2022 related to the effective settlement of the United States federal income tax audit for years 2014 through 2018. Refer to Note 11 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information and higher interest income in 2023.

Income Taxes

Our effective tax rate was 14.3%, 13.8% and 12.1% for 2024, 2023 and 2022. The effective income tax rate for 2024 decreased from 2023 due to the 2024 deferred tax benefit on the outside basis difference related to the anticipated sale of the Spinal Implants business partially offset by the 2023 tax effect related to transfers of intellectual property between tax jurisdictions. The effective income tax rate for 2023 increased from 2022 due to the 2022 effective settlement of the United States federal income tax audit for years 2014 through 2018 and the 2022 reversal of deferred income tax on undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries partially offset by the 2023 tax effect related to transfers of intellectual property between tax jurisdictions. Additionally, the effective income tax rates for 2024, 2023 and 2022 reflect the continued lower effective income tax rates as a result of our European operations and certain discrete tax items.

The Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), which represents a coalition of member countries, has put forth two proposed base erosion and profit shifting frameworks that revise the existing profit allocation and nexus rules (Pillar One) and ensure a minimal level of taxation (Pillar Two). On December 12, 2022 the European Union member states agreed to implement the Inclusive Framework's global corporate minimum tax rate of 15%, and various countries within and outside the European Union have either enacted or proposed new tax laws implementing Pillar Two in 2024. The OECD continues to release additional guidance and we anticipate more countries will enact similar tax laws. Some of the new tax laws became effective in 2024 while others will be effective in future years. These tax law changes and any additional contemplated tax law changes could increase tax expense in future periods.

Net Earnings

Net earnings for 2024 increased to $2,993 or $7.76 per diluted share from $3,165 or $8.25 per diluted share in 2023 and $2,358 or $6.17 per diluted share in 2022. Refer to the comments above for discussion of the primary drivers of the change.

Non-GAAP Financial Measures

We supplement the reporting of our financial information determined under accounting principles generally accepted in the United States (GAAP) with certain non-GAAP financial measures, including percentage sales growth in constant currency; percentage organic sales growth; adjusted gross profit; adjusted selling, general and administrative expenses; adjusted research, development and engineering expenses; adjusted operating income; adjusted other income (expense), net; adjusted income taxes; adjusted effective income tax rate; adjusted net earnings; and adjusted net earnings per diluted share (Diluted EPS). We believe these non-GAAP financial measures provide meaningful information to assist investors and shareholders in understanding our financial results and assessing our prospects for future performance. Management believes percentage sales growth in constant currency and the other adjusted measures described above are important indicators of our operations because they exclude items that may not be indicative of or are unrelated to our core operating results and provide a baseline for analyzing trends in our underlying businesses. Management uses these non-GAAP financial measures for reviewing the operating results of reportable business segments and analyzing potential future business trends in connection with our budget process and bases certain management incentive compensation on these non-GAAP financial measures. To measure percentage sales growth in constant currency, we remove the impact of changes in foreign currency exchange rates that affect the comparability and trend of sales. Percentage sales growth in constant currency is calculated by translating current and prior year results at the same foreign currency exchange rate. To measure percentage organic sales growth, we remove the impact of changes in foreign currency exchange rates, acquisitions and divestitures, which affect the comparability and trend of sales. Percentage organic sales growth is calculated by translating current year and prior year results at the same foreign currency exchange rates excluding the impact of acquisitions and divestitures. To measure earnings performance on a consistent and comparable basis, we exclude certain items that affect the comparability of operating results and the trend of earnings. The income tax effect of each adjustment was determined based on the tax effect of the jurisdiction in which the related pre-tax adjustment was recorded. These adjustments are irregular in timing and may not be indicative of our past and future performance. The following are examples of the types of adjustments that may be included in a period:

1. Acquisition and integration-related costs. Costs related to integrating recently acquired businesses (e.g., costs associated with the termination of sales relationships, employee retention and workforce reductions, manufacturing integration costs and other integration-related activities), changes in the fair value of contingent consideration, amortization of inventory stepped-up to fair value, specific costs (e.g., deal costs and costs associated with legal entity rationalization) related to the consummation of the acquisition process and legal entity rationalization and acquisition-related tax items.
2. Amortization of purchased intangible assets. Periodic amortization expense related to purchased intangible assets.
3. Structural optimization and other special charges. Costs associated with employee retention and workforce reductions, the closure or transfer of manufacturing and other facilities (e.g., site closure costs, contract termination costs and redundant employee costs during the work transfers), product line exits (primarily inventory, long-lived asset and specifically-identified intangible asset write-offs), certain long-lived and intangible asset write-offs and impairments and other charges.
4. Medical device regulations. Costs specific to updating our quality system, product labeling, asset write-offs and product remanufacturing to comply with the new medical device reporting regulations and other requirements of the European Union.
5. Recall-related matters. Changes in our best estimate of the probable loss, or the minimum of the range of probable losses when a best estimate within a range is not known, to resolve the Rejuvenate, LFIT V40, Wright legacy hip products and other product recalls.
6. Regulatory and legal matters. Changes in our best estimate of the probable loss, or the minimum of the range of probable losses when a best estimate within a range is not known, to resolve certain regulatory or other legal matters and the amount of favorable awards from settlements.

7. Tax matters. Impact of accounting for certain significant and discrete tax items.

Because non-GAAP financial measures are not standardized, it may not be possible to compare these financial measures with other companies' non-GAAP financial measures having the same or similar names. These adjusted financial measures should not be considered in isolation or as a substitute for reported sales growth, gross profit, selling, general and administrative expenses, research, development and engineering expenses, operating income, other income (expense), net, income taxes, effective income tax rate, net earnings and net earnings per diluted share, the most directly comparable GAAP financial measures. These non-GAAP financial measures are an additional way of viewing aspects of our operations when viewed with our GAAP results and the reconciliations to corresponding GAAP financial measures at the end of the discussion of Consolidated Results of Operations below. We strongly encourage investors and shareholders to review our financial statements and publicly-filed reports in their entirety and not to rely on any single financial measure.

The weighted-average diluted shares outstanding used in the calculation of adjusted net earnings per diluted share are the same as those used in the calculation of reported net earnings per diluted share for the respective period.

We believe our financial condition continues to be of high quality, as evidenced by our ability to generate substantial cash from operations and to readily access capital markets at competitive rates despite the current macroeconomic environment. Operating cash flow provides the primary source of cash to fund operating needs and capital expenditures. Excess operating cash is used first to fund acquisitions to complement our portfolio of businesses. Other discretionary uses include dividends and share repurchases. We supplement operating cash flow with debt to fund our activities as necessary. Our overall cash position reflects our business results and a global cash management strategy that takes into account liquidity management, economic factors and tax considerations.

Operating Activities

Cash provided by operating activities was $4,242, $3,711 and $2,624 in 2024, 2023 and 2022. The increase in 2024 was primarily due to higher cash earnings partially offset by changes in working capital. The increase in 2023 from 2022 was primarily due to higher net earnings and increased collections on accounts receivable.

ACCEPTED AND AGREED BY APPLICANT

Dated: 4/12/2024

On Behalf of Stryker Sustainability Solutions, Inc.
and Howmedica Osteonics Corp.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. The Board is the duly constituted authority for licensing and regulating the practice of pharmacy in the State of Arizona.

2. Stryker Sustainability Solutions, Inc. operated as a resident virtual manufacturer at two locations in the state of Arizona and Howmedica Osteonics Corp. operated as a wholesaler at one location in the state of Arizona. These three locations are not currently permitted in the state of Arizona.

3. During an inspection of a third Arizona-based Applicant location that held a permit but required a different type of permit, the Board identified potential unpermitted activity involving a different location and opened an investigation.

4. Applicant, through counsel, informed the Board that in fact, it was likely that several additional locations required permits. Applicant was already in the midst of a multi-year enterprise-wide project to rectify this oversight and voluntarily identified to the Board those locations within Arizona that Applicant believed required permitting.

5. In total, Applicant filed 28 permit applications with the Board and met with the Board on multiple occasions to discuss an efficient and orderly process to resolve all unpermitted activity at Applicant's locations that held or sought new permits.

6. Applicant acknowledges that it has manufactured and sold numerous devices from and into Arizona from unpermitted locations.

7. Applicant has 28 pending permit applications with the Board, which include administratively incomplete applications and applications that are substantively complete and ready for issuance. Three of these pending permit applications related to operations located within the State of Arizona.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Board asserts jurisdiction over the subject matter and over Applicant pursuant to A.R.S. § 32-1901 et seq.

2. The Board may deny a permit to an Applicant who has engaged in unethical conduct. A.R.S. § 32-1927.02(P).

3. The conduct and circumstances described above provide grounds for Board to impose discipline under A.R.S. §32-1927.03 which provides, that a person that resides in any other jurisdiction and that sells a prescription-only drug or device, within or into this state shall hold a valid board-issued permit and which allows the Board to impose a civil penalty for unpermitted activity.

ORDER

Based upon the above Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED THAT:

1. Stryker Sustainability Solutions, Inc. and Howmedica Osteonics Corp. shall jointly pay to the Board as a civil penalty the sum of Three Hundred Seventy-Five Thousand Dollars ($375,000/$125,000 per unpermitted location in this state). The civil penalty shall be paid in full to the Board within Ninety (90) days of the effective date of this Consent Agreement and Order. The effective date of this Consent Agreement is the date it is signed by the Board's Executive Director.

2. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Board, through its Executive Director shall immediately grant and issue permits for all substantively complete applications and shall without delay, grant and issue permits for all applications that Applicant shall cause to be substantively completed or resubmitted to the Board in compliance with this Consent Agreement, subject to the following:

   a. The Board shall not grant any applications until such time Applicant pays the civil penalty as set forth above and any applicable permit fees.

b. The Board shall not grant any application until it has determined through its Executive Director, that the application is substantively complete and that the Applicant has met the minimum requirements for the permit.

c. The Board shall not consider any unpermitted activity at any location in deciding whether an application is administratively or substantively complete and shall not deny any application or pursue any other available remedy on the basis of unpermitted activity at any location before the effective date of this Consent Agreement.

d. For each non-resident location, the Board shall issue a non-disciplinary advisory letter for unpermitted activity.

e. Upon Applicant's execution of and compliance with the terms in this consent agreement, including payment of the amount set forth in paragraph 1 above, all matters arising out of or made in connection with this consent agreement shall be fully resolved.

3. By entering into the Consent Agreement, Applicant waives its right to appeal. In addition, the Board may seek further remedies as permitted by statute.

4. With respect to the approximately twenty-five (25) various permit applications pending before the Board filed by or on behalf of Stryker Corporation or its subsidiaries, the parties acknowledge that the applications are in various stages of review by Board staff. Some applications are incomplete awaiting the receipt of additional information. Other applications were administratively closed because requested information was not timely received. Applicant has stated its intention to refile those applications and have all of its facilities come into compliance with Arizona law. The parties agree that all applications that are otherwise complete and have met the requirements for licensure, shall be approved and the permits granted with Advisory Letters issued accordingly with each approved application.

5. Applicant understands that this Consent Agreement is a public record that may be publicly disseminated as a formal action.

Performance We deliver

Stryker was incorporated in Michigan in 1946 as the successor company to a business founded in 1941 by Dr. Homer H. Stryker, a prominent orthopaedic surgeon and inventor of several medical products. Our products are sold in approximately 75 countries through company-owned subsidiaries and branches as well as third-party dealers and distributors, and include surgical equipment and surgical navigation systems; endoscopic and communications systems; patient handling, emergency medical equipment and intensive care disposable products; clinical communication and artificial intelligence-assisted virtual care platform technology; neurosurgical and neurovascular devices; implants used in joint replacement and trauma surgeries; Mako Robotic-Arm Assisted technology; spinal devices; as well as other products used in a variety of medical specialties. Most of our products are marketed directly to doctors, hospitals and other healthcare facilities.

As used herein, and except where the context otherwise requires, "Stryker," "we," "us," and "our" refer to Stryker Corporation and its consolidated subsidiaries.

Business Segments and Geographic Information

We segregate our operations into two reportable business segments: (i) MedSurg and Neurotechnology and (ii) Orthopaedics. Financial information regarding our reportable business segments and certain geographic information is included under "Consolidated Results of Operations" in Item 7 of this report and Note 14 to our Consolidated Financial Statements.

In the fourth quarter 2024 we reorganized our Spine business to align with certain updates to our internal reporting structure. The spine enabling technologies portfolio (Enabling Technologies) was reclassified to Other Orthopaedics and Spine, the Interventional Spine (IVS) portfolio was reclassified to Neuro Cranial and the remaining Spine business was renamed to Spinal Implants. In addition, we changed the name of our "Orthopaedics and Spine" operating segment to "Orthopaedics."

In 2024 Instruments launched SurgiCount+ powered by Triton, which combines our existing sponge counting technology with artificial intelligence and quantifying blood loss software. We also launched CoPilot, which combines with our Spine Q guidance system to help surgeons plan and perform certain spinal procedures, including supporting bone resection, pedicle preparation and screw delivery.

In addition we completed the acquisition of Vertos Medical, Inc., a leader in interventional pain management solutions for chronic lower back pain caused by lumbar spinal stenosis. The acquisition of Vertos is complementary to our Interventional Spine business as we continue to focus on advanced pain procedures.

Endoscopy continued to deliver its 4K 1788 Camera platform to the market. Our 1788 Camera platform features several enhancements for a broader range of clinical applications and specialties, including urology, neurology and ear, nose and throat and can be used to visualize indocyanine green and Cytalux.

Medical launched the LIFEPAK 35 monitor/defibrillator, our next generation platform designed to optimize care with new clinical features such as the new Glasgow 30.4 algorithm, cprINSIGHT, 15-lead monitoring capabilities, and STJ insight and mapping. LIFEPAK 35 combines a modern intuitive touch screen display and increased processing power with Bluetooth and WiFi data connectivity.

Medical also completed the acquisition of care.ai, a virtual care and ambient intelligence solutions platform. care.ai adds complementary technology that is expected to integrate seamlessly with the Vocera platform (Vocera) and Stryker's devices, providing customers with an enterprise-wide ecosystem that is intended to deliver dynamic clinical workflows and further the development of smart care facilities.

Neurovascular initiated a targeted launch of the Surpass Elite Flow Diverting Stent (FDS) in the U.S. and South Korea. Surpass Elite FDS is designed to reduce thrombin generation when compared to unmodified stents. Additionally, Neurovascular launched Surpass Evolve FDS in Japan. The Stryker FDS platform is designed to effectively treat aneurysms by redirecting blood flow away from the aneurysm to promote healing.

Orthopaedics

Orthopaedics products primarily include implants used in total joint replacements, such as hip, knee and shoulder, and trauma and extremities surgeries. We bring patients and physicians advanced implant designs and specialized instrumentation that make orthopaedic surgery and recovery simpler, faster and more effective. We support surgeons with the technologies, products and services they need to support each patient's clinical challenge.

We are one of four leading global competitors for joint replacement and trauma and extremities products and robotics; the other three being Zimmer, Johnson & Johnson MedTech and Smith & Nephew.

In 2024 we continued the full commercial launch of our Triathlon Hinge revision knee system. Triathlon Hinge received approval in August of 2023 and is now released in the U.S., Canada and New Zealand. We also continued delivering growth in total hip arthroplasty, particularly in the primary segment where Direct Anterior Reconstructive Technology and Mako Total Hip can help to reduce, if not eliminate, a surgeon's use of intraoperative fluoroscopy during direct anterior hip procedures. With the acquisition of SERF SAS, we strengthened distribution in key European markets and continue to scale differentiated solutions such as the Novae monolithic dual mobility cup engineered to deliver greater hip stability and reduce dislocation risk.

We continued to expand our global footprint of Mako SmartRobotics™ in 2024 which is now sold in more than 45 countries. To date more than one million robotic Mako Total Knees and 1.5 million robotic procedures across Total Hips, Total Knees and Partial Knees have been performed globally. Stryker's Joint Replacement division also launched the "Scan. Plan. Mako Can." direct to patient campaign, accelerating awareness of Mako technology in the U.S.

Our spine enabling technologies portfolio includes best in class imaging solutions, image-guided surgical technology, patient specific implants and digital health solutions supporting surgeons and their patients throughout the continuum of care.

In December 2024 we performed our first Mako Shoulder procedure using robotic-arm assistance to remove bone, prepare the glenoid surface and enable positioning and placement of the Perform Reversed Glenoid implant.

In 2024 Trauma launched Pangea, a comprehensive variable angle plating portfolio designed to optimize plate fit to bone utilizing simple, intuitive instrumentation that enhances ease of use and reproducibility. These combined solutions empower Stryker to deliver a complete portfolio across all trauma segments.

Raw Materials and Inventory

Raw materials essential to our business are generally readily available from multiple sources, however, certain of our raw materials are currently sourced from single suppliers. Substantially all products we manufacture are stocked in inventory, while certain MedSurg products are assembled to order.

Patents and Trademarks

Patents and trademarks are significant to our business to the extent that a product or an attribute of a product represents a unique design or process. Patent protection of such products restricts competitors from duplicating these unique designs and features. We seek to obtain patent protection on our products whenever appropriate for protecting our competitive advantage. On December 31, 2024 we owned approximately 5,600 United States patents and approximately 8,600 patents in other countries.

Seasonality

Our business is generally not seasonal in nature; however, the number of orthopaedic implant surgeries is typically lower in the summer months, and sales of capital equipment are generally higher in the fourth quarter.

Competition

In each of our product lines we compete with local and global companies. The development of innovative products is important to our success in all areas of our business. Competition in research involving the development and improvement of new and existing products and processes is particularly significant. The competitive environment requires substantial investments in continuing research and maintaining sales forces.

We believe our commitment to innovation, quality and service and our reputation differentiates us in the highly competitive product categories in which we operate and enables us to compete effectively. We believe that our competitive position in the future will depend to a large degree on our ability to develop new products and make improvements to existing products.

Regulation

Our businesses are subject to varying degrees of governmental regulation in the countries in which we operate, and the general trend is toward increasingly stringent regulation. We are required to comply with the unique regulatory requirements of each country in which we market and sell our products.

In the United States the Medical Device Amendments of 1976 to the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act and its subsequent amendments and the regulations issued and proposed thereunder provide for federal regulation by the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) of the design, manufacture and marketing of medical devices, including most of our products. In addition, state licensing requirements often apply to certain of our business operations and products. On the federal level, many of our new products fall into FDA classifications that require notification submitted as a 510(k) and review by the FDA before we begin marketing them. Certain of our products require extensive clinical testing, consisting of safety and efficacy studies, followed by pre-market approval applications for specific surgical indications. Certain of our products also fall under other FDA classifications, such as drugs and Human Cells, Tissues, and Cellular and Tissue-Based Products.

The FDA's Quality System regulations set forth standards for our product design and manufacturing processes, require the maintenance of certain records and provide for inspections of our facilities by the FDA. There are also certain requirements of state, local and foreign governments that must be complied with in the manufacture and marketing of our products.

The European Union enacted the European Union Medical Device Regulation in May 2017 with an original effective date of May 2022, which imposes stricter requirements for the marketing and sale of medical devices, including in the areas of clinical evaluation requirements, quality systems, labeling and post-market surveillance. Extended transition timelines were published in 2023 which range from May 2026 through December 2028 depending on the type of device and our implementation is on track to meet these timelines.

Initiatives to limit the growth of general healthcare expenses and hospital costs are ongoing in the markets we do business. These initiatives are sponsored by government agencies, legislative bodies and the private sector and include price regulation and competitive pricing. It is not possible to predict at this time the long-term impact of such cost containment measures on our future business. In addition, business practices in the healthcare industry are scrutinized, particularly in the United States, by federal and state government agencies. Any resulting investigations and prosecutions potentially carry the risk of significant civil and criminal penalties.

Environment

We are subject to various rules and regulation in the United States and internationally related to the protection of human health and the environment. Our operations involve the use of substances regulated under environmental laws, primarily in manufacturing and sterilization processes. We believe our policies, practices and procedures are properly designed to comply, in all material respects, with applicable environmental laws and regulations. We do not expect compliance with these requirements to have a material effect on purchases of property, plant and equipment, cash flows, net earnings or competitive position.

Employees

On December 31, 2024 we had approximately 53,000 employees globally, with approximately 27,000 employees in the United States. Our talented employees are an integral reason for our standing as a global leader in medical technologies where, together with our customers, we are driven to make healthcare better. Our company values of integrity, accountability, people and performance are a key component of that mission. Our people, as one of our core values, continue to be a key focus.

Our success depends on our ability to attract the best talent. To do so, we continue to focus on creating and maintaining a great workplace. We believe in attracting the right people, maintaining and building employee engagement and developing our employees. We believe when people are able to do what they do best, they will look forward to coming to work and, in turn, will deliver great business results.

Our leadership team and Board of Directors receive regular updates on our people and culture strategy and provide feedback on our strategy and goals, including alignment to our mission and values, peer benchmarking and stakeholder feedback.

Employee Development

Our employee development is extensive and exists at all levels of the organization, including company-wide training on our Code of Conduct, job-related technical training and management and leadership training. Our development programs include on-the-job learning, coaching and mentoring, management and leadership development courses, team building and collaboration training and immersive experiences with expert partners.

We encourage all employees to establish development objectives, in partnership with their manager, to help employees gain the needed development experience to grow their careers.

Employee Engagement

An engaged workplace culture that drives performance and business outcomes is central to our mission. Listening to and learning from our employees forms the foundation of an engaging culture. More than 90% of our employees participate in our annual engagement survey, which provides a valued platform for listening and allows us to take action based on the feedback collected.

We supplement our annual engagement survey with targeted pulse surveys to gather feedback on topics relevant to the current climate.

We also provide tools and resources that enable managers and teams to act on the insights we gain from our surveys and to drive employee engagement and strong business outcomes.

Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DE&I)

An essential part of our culture is respecting each individual's strengths and values. Building on this foundation, we are focused on maintaining an inclusive, engaging work environment in keeping with our values of integrity and people. Our DE&I strategy is centered around these three commitments:

- Strengthen the diversity of our workforce
- Advance a culture of inclusion, engagement and belonging
- Maximize the power of inclusion to drive innovation and growth

We are advancing our commitments through the following actions, among others:

- Increasing access to talent through strategic partnerships and campaigns
- Growing and engaging talent with a range of opportunities to learn and develop
- Aligning our employee resource groups, which are open to all employees, to focus on creating community and belonging

Attracting and Hiring

We understand that every employee drives our success. We focus on attracting, identifying and selecting strong candidates who will be successful at Stryker and ensuring that each person we hire brings the talent, expertise and passion we need to continue to be successful.

Health and Safety

Ensuring our employees' safety is a top priority. It is a responsibility that we share throughout the company and one that has evolved to meet the needs of our workforce. Employees' safety risks vary depending on the roles they perform, so we tailor our safety efforts accordingly.

Competitive Pay and Benefits

Our compensation and benefits programs are designed to attract and retain top talent and to incentivize performance and alignment to our mission and values.

We offer market-competitive base pay and benefits to our employees in countries around the world. We regularly evaluate our compensation and benefit offerings and levels, using recognized outside consulting firms to ensure internal fairness and competitiveness in our offerings.

Most of our employees also have variable components to their compensation packages that reward employees based on individual, business unit and/or company-wide performance.

Our proxy statement provides more detail on the competitive compensation programs we offer to our executive officers.

This report contains statements that are not historical facts and are considered "forward-looking statements" within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. These statements are based on current projections about operations, industry conditions, financial condition and liquidity. Words that identify forward-looking statements include, without limitation, words such as "may," "could," "will," "should," "possible," "plan," "predict," "forecast," "potential," "anticipate," "estimate," "expect," "project," "intend," "believe," "may impact," "on track," "goal," "strategy" and words and terms of similar substance used in connection with any discussion of future operating or financial performance, an acquisition or our businesses. Those statements are not guarantees and are subject to risks, uncertainties and assumptions that are difficult to predict. Therefore, actual results could differ materially and adversely from these forward-looking statements, historical experience or our present expectations. Some important factors that could cause our actual results to differ from our expectations in any forward-looking statements include:

- geopolitical risks, including from international conflicts, which could, among other things, lead to increased market volatility;

- pricing pressures generally, including cost-containment measures that have adversely affected and could in the future adversely affect the price of or demand for our or Inari's products;
- changes in foreign currency exchange markets;
- legislative and regulatory actions;
- unanticipated issues arising in connection with clinical studies and otherwise that affect approval of new products, including Inari products, by the FDA and foreign regulatory agencies;
- inflationary pressures;
- increased interest rates or interest rate volatility;
- supply chain disruptions;
- changes in labor markets;
- changes in coverage and reimbursement levels from third-party payors;
- changes in the competitive environment;
- breaches, failures or other disruptions of our or our vendors' or customers' information technology systems or products, including by cyber-attack, data leakage, unauthorized access or theft;
- a significant increase in product liability claims;
- the ultimate total cost with respect to recall-related and other regulatory and quality matters;
- the impact of investigative and legal proceedings and compliance risks;
- resolution of tax audits;
- changes in tax laws and regulations;
- the impact of legislation to reform the healthcare system in the United States or other countries;

- uncertainties as to how many of Inari's stockholders will tender their shares in the tender offer;
- the failure to satisfy any of the closing conditions to the acquisition of Inari, including the expiration or termination of the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act waiting period (and the risk that such governmental approval may result in the imposition of conditions that could adversely affect the expected benefits of the transaction);
- delays in consummating the acquisition of Inari or the risk that the transaction may not close at all;
- unexpected liabilities, costs, charges or expenses in connection with the acquisition of Inari;
- the effects of the proposed Inari transaction (or the announcement thereof) on the parties' relationships with employees, customers, other business partners or governmental entities; and

While we believe that the assumptions underlying such forward-looking statements are reasonable, there can be no assurance that future events or developments will not cause such statements to be inaccurate. All forward-looking statements contained in this report are qualified in their entirety by this cautionary statement. We expressly disclaim any intention or obligation to publicly update or revise any forward-looking statement to reflect any change in our expectations or in events, conditions or circumstances on which those expectations may be based, or that affect the likelihood that actual results will differ from those contained in the forward-looking statements.

Our operations and financial results are subject to various risks and uncertainties discussed below that could materially and adversely affect our business, cash flows, financial condition and results of operations. Additional risks and uncertainties not currently known to us or that we currently deem not to be material or that could apply to any company may also materially and adversely affect our business, cash flows, financial condition or results of operations. If any of the risks discussed below or other risks actually occur or continue to occur, our business, financial condition, operating results or cash flows could be materially adversely affected. Accordingly, you should carefully consider the following risk factors, as well as other information contained in or incorporated by reference in this report.

We use a variety of raw materials, components, devices and third-party services in our global supply chains, production and distribution processes; significant shortages, price increases or unavailability of third-party services have in the past increased, and could in the future increase, our operating costs and could require significant capital expenditures or adversely impact the competitive position of our products: Our reliance on certain suppliers to secure raw materials, components and finished devices, and on certain third-party service providers, such as sterilization service providers, exposes us to the risk of product shortages and unanticipated increases in prices, whether due to inflationary pressure, regulatory changes, litigation exposure, geopolitical tensions or otherwise. For example, in the past we experienced limited product availability due to an electronic components shortage in certain product lines. If a similar shortage occurs in the future with respect to any raw materials or components, we may not be able to obtain them from our suppliers on a timely basis, or at all, or identify alternative suppliers. In addition, several raw materials, components, finished devices and services are procured from a sole source due to, among other things, the quality considerations, unique intellectual property considerations or constraints associated with regulatory requirements. If sole-source suppliers or service providers are unable or unwilling to deliver these materials or services as a result of financial difficulties, business disruptions, acquisition by a third party, natural disasters or otherwise, we may not be able to manufacture or have available one or more products during such period of unavailability and our business could suffer, possibly materially. In certain cases, we may not be able to establish additional or replacement suppliers for such materials or service providers for such services in a timely or cost-effective manner, often as a result of FDA and other regulations that require, among other things, validation of materials, components and services prior to their use in or with our products. In certain instances we have been unable to meet demand due to supply chain challenges, which has led to loss of sales. Although the impacts have not been material to date, an inability to meet demand due to supply chain challenges in the future could materially adversely impact our reputation, the competitive position of our products and our business. Any of the foregoing risks could have a material adverse impact on our profitability and results of operations.

In addition, in recent years, the market has experienced inflationary pressures in part due to global supply chain disruptions, labor shortages and other impacts following the COVID-19 pandemic. Inflation in the United States and in many of the countries where we conduct business has resulted in, and may in the future result in, high interest rates and increased capital, energy, shipping and labor costs, weakening or strengthening exchange rates against the United States Dollar and other similar effects. We have experienced, and may in the future experience, inflationary increases in manufacturing costs and operating expenses, as well as negative impacts from weakening or strengthening exchange rates against the United States Dollar. Although we have been able to pass certain cost increases on to our customers, we have not been able to pass along all cost increases and we cannot guarantee that we will be able to do so in the future. Inflation, high interest rates or interest rate volatility may also cause our customers to reduce or delay orders for our products and services. Any of the foregoing could have a material adverse impact on our sales, profitability and results of operations.

We are subject to pricing pressures as a result of cost containment measures in the United States and other countries and other factors, including changes in reimbursement practices and coverage policies and third-party payor cost containment measures: Initiatives to limit the growth of general healthcare expenses and hospital costs are ongoing in the markets in which we do business. These initiatives are sponsored by government agencies, legislative bodies and the private sector and include price regulation and competitive pricing. For example, China has implemented a volume-based procurement process designed to decrease prices for medical devices and other products. Pricing pressure has also increased due to continued consolidation among healthcare providers, trends toward managed care, the shift toward governments becoming the primary payers of healthcare expenses, reduction in coverage or reimbursement levels and medical procedure volumes and government laws and regulations relating to sales and promotion, reimbursement and pricing generally. Coverage policies and reimbursement levels can vary across the payer community globally, regionally, and locally, and may affect which products customers purchase, the market acceptance rate for new technologies and the prices customers are willing to pay for those products in a particular jurisdiction. Furthermore, any changes to the coverage or reimbursement landscape, or adverse decisions relating to our products by administrators of these systems could significantly reduce reimbursement for procedures using our products or result in denial of reimbursement for those products, which could adversely affect customer demand, or the price customers are willing to pay for such products. Public and private payers have challenged, and are expected to continue to challenge, prices charged for medical products and services. Such downward pricing pressures from any or all of these payers may result in an adverse effect on our business, results of operations, financial condition and cash flows. We have also reduced prices for certain products due to increased competition and if we further reduce prices, we could become less profitable. In addition, due to healthcare industry consolidation in recent years, competition to provide goods and services to industry participants has become, and may continue to become, more intense, and this consolidation has produced, and may continue to produce, larger enterprises with more bargaining power. Pricing pressures related to any of the foregoing or other factors have impacted and could in the future impact our results of operations and profitability.

We operate in a highly competitive industry in which competition and the regulatory burden in the development and improvement of new and existing products is significant: The markets in which we compete are highly competitive, and a significant element of our strategy is to increase revenue growth by focusing on innovation, new product development and improvement of existing products. New business models, products and surgical procedures, as well as improvements to existing products, are introduced on an ongoing basis and our present or future products could be rendered obsolete or uneconomical by internal or external technological advances, including by our existing competitors and new market entrants, which could adversely impact demand for certain of our existing products. The success of our products and services depends on, among other things, our ability to properly identify customer needs and predict future needs; innovate and develop new technologies, services and applications at an accelerated pace; and appropriately allocate our research and development spending to products and services with higher growth. Our existing competitors and new market entrants may respond more quickly to or integrate new or emerging technologies such as robotics, artificial intelligence and machine learning in their product offerings, undertake more extensive marketing campaigns, have greater access to clinical information to support ongoing product position in the market, have greater financial, marketing and other resources or be more successful in attracting potential customers, employees and strategic partners. There can be no assurance that any products now in development, or that we may seek to develop in the future, will achieve technological feasibility, obtain regulatory approval or gain market acceptance. If we are unable to develop and launch new products, our ability to maintain or expand our market position in the markets in which we participate may be negatively impacted.

We may be unable to maintain adequate working relationships with healthcare professionals: We work with healthcare professionals in a transparent and responsible manner and seek to maintain these relationships with respected physicians and medical personnel in healthcare organizations, such as hospitals and universities, who assist in product research and development. We rely on these professionals to assist us in the development and improvement of proprietary products. If we are unable to maintain these relationships due to regulatory restrictions, hospital access restrictions for non-patients or for other reasons, our ability to develop, market and sell new and improved products could be adversely affected.

We rely on indirect distribution channels and major distributors that are independent of Stryker: In many markets we rely on indirect distribution channels to market, distribute and sell our products. These indirect channels often are the main point of contact for the healthcare professionals and healthcare organization customers who buy and use our products. Our ability to continue to market, distribute and sell our products may be at risk if the indirect channels become insolvent, choose to sell competitive products, choose to stop selling medical technology, fail to adhere to Stryker requirements or are subject to new or additional government regulation.

We are subject to risks associated with our extensive global operations: We develop, manufacture and distribute our products globally. Our global operations are subject to risks and costs related to, among other things, changes in coverage or reimbursement levels from third-party payors in the United States and other countries; changes in regulatory requirements (such as the staggered phase-in period for manufacturers to comply with the European Union Medical Device Regulation (MDR) through December 2028); differing local product preferences and product requirements; diminished protection of intellectual property in some countries; tariffs and other trade protection measures, as well as increasing localization and protectionism policies in certain jurisdictions; international trade disputes and import or export requirements; difficulty in staffing and managing foreign operations; introduction of new internal business structures and programs; political and economic instability and uncertainty; current or potential geopolitical conflicts, such as the tensions between China and Taiwan and the wars in Ukraine and the Middle East, and related sanctions and other developments; disruptions of transportation, including port closures, increased border controls or border closures or reduced transportation availability, due to military conflicts, a global pandemic of contagious diseases like COVID-19 or otherwise; increased energy or transportation costs; fluctuations in currency exchange rates and financial markets; and increased security threats to our supply chain. Many of these risks are rapidly evolving and subject to an accelerating pace of change. Our business could be adversely impacted if we are unable to successfully manage these and other risks of global operations in an increasingly volatile environment. In addition, in many countries, the laws and regulations applicable to us or our industry are evolving, and we have in certain cases become subject to divergent and conflicting laws and regulations across our operations, which has increased the risks we are subject to.

We may be unable to capitalize on previous or future acquisitions: In addition to internally developed products, we invest in new products and technologies through acquisitions. Such investments are inherently risky, and we cannot guarantee that any acquisition will be successful or will not have a material unfavorable impact on us. The risks include the activities required and resources allocated to integrate new businesses, diversion of management time that could adversely affect management's ability to focus on other projects, the inability to realize the expected benefits, savings or synergies from the acquisition, the loss of key personnel, litigation resulting from the acquisition and exposure to unexpected liabilities of acquired companies. Certain acquisitions are subject to antitrust and competition laws, and antitrust scrutiny by regulatory agencies and changes to the regulatory approval process in the United States and foreign jurisdictions may cause approvals to take longer than anticipated to obtain, not be obtained at all, or contain burdensome conditions, which may jeopardize, delay or reduce the anticipated benefits of acquisitions to us and could impede the execution of our business strategy. In addition, we cannot be certain that the businesses we acquire will become or remain profitable.

We, our business partners or our third-party vendors could experience a material failure or breach of a key information technology system, network, process or site: We rely extensively on information technology (IT) systems to conduct business. In addition, we rely on networks and services, including internet sites, cloud and software-as-a-service solutions, data hosting and processing facilities and tools and other hardware, software (including open-source software) and technical applications and platforms, some of which are managed, hosted, provided and/or used by third parties or their vendors, to assist in conducting our business. Furthermore, numerous and evolving cybersecurity threats have posed, and will continue to pose, risks to the security of our IT systems, networks and product offerings, as well as the confidentiality, availability and integrity of our data. Emerging technologies such as generative artificial intelligence (AI) may be used by malicious actors to create more targeted phishing narratives, spread disinformation about us or our products or otherwise strengthen social engineering capabilities. Some of our products, services, and information technology systems contain or use open-source software which poses particular risks, including potential security vulnerabilities, licensing compliance issues and quality issues. We, our customers and third-party hosting services have experienced, and expect to continue to experience, security breaches of, unauthorized access to, and disruptions of, products or systems. While such breaches, unauthorized access and disruptions have not had a material effect on us to date, we cannot guarantee that any future breach or unauthorized access will not be material and any breach or unauthorized access could impact the use of such products and systems and the security of information stored therein. Although we have made investments and expect to continue to make investments seeking to address these threats, including monitoring of networks and systems, use of artificial intelligence, hiring of experts, employee training and security policies for employees and third-party providers, the techniques used in these attacks change frequently and may be difficult to detect for periods of time and we may face difficulties in anticipating and implementing adequate preventative measures.

When cybersecurity or other technology related incidents occur, we follow our incident response protocols and address them in accordance with applicable governmental regulations and other legal requirements. Our response to these incidents and our investments to protect our product offerings and information technology infrastructure and data may not shield us from significant losses and potential liability or prevent any future interruption or breach of our systems. Moreover, given the increasing complexity and sophistication of the techniques used by threat actors to obtain unauthorized access or disable or degrade systems, a cyberattack could occur and persist for an extended period of time before being detected, and we may not anticipate these acts or mitigate them adequately or timely, which may compound damages before the incident is discovered or remediated. The extent of a particular cyber incident and the steps that we may need to take to investigate the incident may not be immediately clear, and it may take a significant amount of time before such investigation can be completed and full and reliable information about the incident is known. New regulations may require us to disclose information about a material cybersecurity incident before it has been resolved or fully investigated. Additionally, as threats continue to evolve and increase, and as the regulatory environment and customer requirements related to information security, data collection and use, and privacy become increasingly rigorous, we may be required to devote significant additional resources to modify and enhance our security controls and to identify and remediate any security vulnerabilities, which could adversely impact our net income. In addition, a significant number of our employees working remotely has exposed us, and may continue to expose us, to greater risks related to cybersecurity and cyber-liability.

Hardware and software failures or delays in our key information technology systems, networks, processes or sites could disrupt our operations, cause the loss of confidential information or otherwise adversely impact our business. Our systems, networks, processes and sites may be vulnerable to damage, disruptions and shutdown from a variety of sources, including malfunctions in maintenance updates or security patches, design defects, the age of the technology, network failures, modernization or other initiatives, human acts and natural disasters. For example, some of our information technology systems contain legacy third-party software components for which we depend on a layered security approach to protect against exploitation, which may not be effective. Any such damage or disruptions could also compromise the security of our information systems and networks. These issues can also arise as a result of failures by, or in the software or hardware of, third parties, including networks or service providers, with whom we do business and over whom we have limited or no control. Any disruption or failure of our systems, networks, processes or sites could have a material impact on our business and operations.

If our IT systems, networks or processes are damaged or cease to function properly for any reason, the networks, service providers, hardware or software we rely upon fail to function properly, or we or one of our third-party providers suffer a loss or disclosure of our business or stakeholder information due to any number of causes ranging from catastrophic events or power outages to improper data handling or security breaches or unauthorized access and our business continuity plans do not effectively address these failures on a timely basis, we may be exposed to reputational, competitive and business harm as well as litigation and regulatory action and fines, penalties and expenses related thereto.

An inability to successfully manage the implementation of our new commercial global enterprise resource planning (ERP) system could adversely affect our operations and operating results: We are in the process of implementing a new commercial ERP system. This system will replace many of our existing operating and financial systems. The implementation is a major undertaking, both financially and from a management and personnel perspective. Any material disruptions, delays or deficiencies in the design and implementation of our new ERP system could adversely affect our ability to process orders, ship products, provide services and customer support, send invoices and track payments, fulfill contractual obligations or otherwise operate our business.

We may be unable to attract, develop and retain executives and key employees: Our sales, technical and other key personnel play an integral role in the development, marketing and selling of new and existing products. Our future performance also depends in large part on the continued services of our senior management. If we are unable to recruit, hire, develop and retain a talented, competitive workforce in our highly competitive industry, or if we are unable to plan effective succession for the future, we may not be able to meet our strategic business objectives. Inflationary pressures, labor demand and shortages and other macroeconomic factors have increased and could further increase the cost of labor and could harm our ability to recruit, hire and retain talented employees. In addition, increased unionization could negatively impact our labor costs and ability to create an engaging, connected culture, which could adversely affect our ability to recruit, hire, develop and retain a talented, competitive workforce. Further, if we are unable to maintain competitive and equitable compensation and benefit programs, including incentive programs which reward financial and operational performance, our ability to recruit, hire, engage, motivate and retain talent could be negatively affected. Additionally, if we are unable to maintain an inclusive culture that aligns our diverse workforce with our mission and values, it could adversely impact our ability to recruit, hire, develop and retain key talent. Further, our remote and hybrid work practices, ability to provide flexible and alternative work arrangements, and our practices relating to corporate responsibility may not meet the needs or expectations of our employees, including senior management or other key employees, which could negatively impact our ability to attract and retain highly skilled employees, or may harm our culture and/or decrease employee engagement, which could adversely impact our ability to recruit, hire, develop and retain a talented, competitive workforce.

Effective succession planning is also important to our long-term success. Failure to ensure effective transfer of knowledge and smooth transitions involving executives and other key employees could hinder our strategic planning and execution. Changes in our management team may be disruptive to our business, and any failure to successfully integrate key new hires or promoted employees could adversely affect our business and results of operations. The loss of the services of any of our senior management or other key personnel, or our inability to attract highly qualified senior management and other key personnel, could harm our business. Our ability to execute our business strategy could be impaired if we are unable to replace such persons timely. In addition, recent legal and regulatory changes affect our ability to enforce post-termination obligations from certain employees with respect to non-competition, non-solicitation and protection of confidential information. This may negatively impact our ability to retain employees and protect our information and relationships with customers and other third parties.

Interruption of manufacturing operations could adversely affect our business: We and our suppliers have manufacturing and supply sites all over the world. However, the manufacturing of certain of our product lines is concentrated in one or more plants or geographic regions. We have principal manufacturing and distribution facilities in the United States in Arizona, California, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, Puerto Rico, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Washington, and outside the United States in China, France, Germany, Ireland, Mexico, the Netherlands, Poland, Switzerland and Turkey. Damage to our facilities, to our suppliers' or service providers' facilities, or to our central distribution centers as a result of natural disasters, fires, explosions or otherwise, as well as issues in our manufacturing arising from a failure to follow specific internal protocols and procedures, compliance concerns relating to the quality systems regulation, equipment breakdown or malfunction, IT system failures or cybersecurity incidents, environmental hazard incidents or changes to environmental regulations or other factors, could adversely affect the availability of our products. In the event of an interruption in manufacturing, we may be unable to move quickly to alternate means of producing and distributing affected products to meet customer demand. In the event of a significant interruption, we may experience lengthy delays in resuming production or distribution of affected products due to the need for regulatory approvals, and we may experience loss of market share, additional expense and harm to our reputation.

Our insurance program may not be adequate to cover future losses: We maintain third-party insurance to cover our exposure to certain property and casualty losses and are self-insured for claims and expenses related to other property and casualty losses, including product liability, intellectual property infringement and enforcement, environmental, and cybersecurity and data privacy losses. We manage a portion of our exposure to self-insured losses through a wholly-owned captive insurance company. Insurance coverage limits provided by third-party insurers and/or our captive insurance company may not be sufficient to fully cover certain losses we may experience.

We have experienced, and may continue to experience, a significant and unpredictable need to adjust our operations as market demand for certain of our products has shifted and continues to shift or as may be mandated by governmental authorities: Some of our products are particularly sensitive to reductions in elective medical procedures. It is not possible to predict whether elective medical procedures will be suspended or reduced in the future and, to the extent individuals and customers are required to delay or cancel elective procedures, our business, cash flows, financial condition and results of operations could be negatively affected. Further, our customers have experienced, and may continue to experience, staffing shortages that may result in decreased demand for our products, which could negatively affect our business and financial results.

Unpredictable increases in demand for certain of our products have exceeded in the past, and could exceed in the future, our capacity to meet such demand timely, which could adversely affect our customer relationships and result in negative publicity. In this regard, the accelerated development and production of products and services to address medical and other requirements could increase the risk of regulatory enforcement actions, product defects or related claims or reputational harm, among other things.

Our use of AI and other emerging technologies could adversely impact our business and financial results: We have begun to deploy AI and other emerging technologies in various facets of our operations and we continue to explore further use cases. The rapid advancement of these technologies presents opportunities for us in research, manufacturing, commercialization, and other business endeavors, but also entails risks, including that AI-generated content, analyses, or recommendations we utilize could be deficient, that our competitors may more quickly or effectively adopt AI capabilities, or that our use of AI or other emerging technologies increases regulatory, cybersecurity and other significant risks. In addition, any disruption or failure in the AI functionality we incorporate into our business activities, products or services could adversely impact our business or result in delays or errors in our product offerings. The legal and regulatory landscape surrounding AI technologies is rapidly evolving and uncertain, including in the areas of intellectual property, cybersecurity and privacy and data protection. Compliance with new or changing laws, regulations or industry standards relating to AI may impose significant costs on us and limit our ability to effectively develop, deploy or use AI technologies. Furthermore, if we are unable to effectively manage the use of AI technologies by our employees and service providers, our confidential information, intellectual property and reputation could be put at risk. Failure to appropriately respond to this evolving landscape may result in reputational, competitive and business harm as well as litigation and regulatory action and fines, penalties and expenses related thereto.

Pandemics and public health emergencies, and the fear thereof, have in the past materially adversely affected and could in the future materially adversely affect, our operations, supply chain, manufacturing, product distribution, customers and other business activities: In connection with prior pandemics, governmental authorities and private enterprises implemented, and may in the future implement in connection with another pandemic or public health emergency (or in response to the fear thereof), measures, such as travel bans and restrictions, quarantines, shelter-in-place orders and shutdowns. Our customers, global suppliers, distributors and manufacturing facilities have in the past been, and could in the future be, materially affected by restrictive measures implemented in response to a pandemic or public health emergency, which has in the past caused and could in the future cause them to be unable to hire and retain employees, distribute or use our products or provide required services. We have as a result experienced, and could in the future experience, delays in, or the suspension of, our manufacturing operations, sales activities, research and product development activities, regulatory work streams, clinical development programs and other important commercial functions, which may result in our inability to satisfy consumer demand for our products in a timely manner or at all and which could harm our reputation, future sales and profitability. The extent of any future pandemic or public health emergency's effect on our business and industry will depend on, among other things, the severity of the disease, the successful development, distribution and acceptance of vaccines for diseases, future resurgences and/or the spread of disease variants, all of which are uncertain and difficult to predict. The COVID-19 pandemic materially impacted us, and any future pandemic or public health emergency could materially impact us and would heighten many of the other risks described in this report.

Current economic and political conditions make tax rules in jurisdictions subject to significant change: Our future results of operations could be affected by changes in the effective tax rate as a result of changes in tax laws, regulations and judicial rulings. We are continuing to evaluate the impact of tax reform in the countries in which we operate as new guidance is published and new regulations are adopted. In addition, further changes in the tax laws could arise, including as a result of the base erosion and profit shifting project undertaken by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). The OECD, which represents a coalition of member countries, has put forth two proposed frameworks that revise the existing profit allocation and nexus rules (Pillar 1) and ensure a minimal level of taxation (Pillar 2), respectively. In 2022 the European Union member states agreed to implement the Inclusive Framework's global corporate minimum tax rate of 15%, and various countries within and outside the European Union have either enacted or proposed new tax laws implementing Pillar Two in 2024. The OECD continues to release additional guidance and we anticipate more countries will enact similar tax laws. Some of the new tax laws are effective in 2024 while others will be effective in future years. These tax law changes and any additional contemplated tax law changes, could increase tax expense in future periods.

We could be negatively impacted by future changes in the allocation of income to each of the income tax jurisdictions in which we operate: We operate in multiple income tax jurisdictions both in the United States and internationally. Accordingly, our management must determine the appropriate allocation of income to each jurisdiction based on current interpretations of complex income tax regulations. Income tax authorities regularly perform audits of our income tax filings. Income tax audits associated with the allocation of income and other complex issues, including inventory transfer pricing and cost sharing, product royalty and foreign branch arrangements, may require an extended period to resolve and may result in significant income tax adjustments.

The impact of healthcare reform legislation on our business remains uncertain: Several markets where we sell our products are making efforts to expand access to healthcare or health insurance coverage while decreasing costs. These efforts may have a direct or unintended negative impact on access to medical technology and could have a significant effect on our business. Both in the U.S. and internationally, governmental authorities may make legislative or administrative reforms to existing reimbursement programs, make adverse decisions relating to our products' coverage or reimbursement, or make changes to patient access to healthcare, all of which could adversely impact the demand for and usage of our products or the prices that our customers are willing to pay for them. We cannot predict what healthcare programs and regulations could ultimately be implemented at the federal or state level or the effect that any future legislation or regulation in the United States may have on our business. Similarly, we cannot predict the impact that healthcare reform legislation in other countries where we sell our products may have on our business.

We are subject to extensive governmental regulation relating to the classification, manufacturing, sterilization, licensing, labeling, marketing and sale of our products: The classification, manufacturing, sterilization, licensing, labeling, marketing and sale of our products are subject to extensive and evolving regulations and rigorous regulatory enforcement by the FDA, state governments, European Union and other governmental authorities in the United States and internationally. These governmental authorities may impose additional requirements or limits on the methods, procedures or agents we use to manufacture and sterilize our products, which could have a negative impact on our business. For example, governmental authorities in the United States and internationally have or are considering adopting regulations on the use of per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances. In addition, the process of obtaining licenses, regulatory clearances and/or approvals to market and sell our products can be costly and time consuming and the clearances and/or approvals might not be granted timely. We have ongoing responsibilities under the laws and regulations applicable to the manufacturing of products within our facilities and those contracted by third parties that are subject to periodic inspections by the FDA, state Boards of Pharmacy and other governmental authorities to determine compliance with the quality system, medical device reporting regulations and other requirements. We may also be subject to legal obligations in some countries that require disclosure or sharing of proprietary information. We incur significant costs to comply with regulations, including the MDR. If we fail to comply with applicable regulatory requirements, we may be subject to a range of sanctions, including substantial fines, warning letters that require corrective action, product seizures, recalls, import restrictions, the suspension of product manufacturing or sales, revocation of approvals, exclusion from future participation in government healthcare programs, substantial fines and criminal prosecution.

We are subject to federal, state and foreign healthcare regulations, including anti-bribery, anti-corruption, anti-kickback and false claims laws, globally and could face substantial penalties if we fail to comply with such regulations and laws: The relationships that we, and third parties that market and/or sell our products, have with healthcare professionals, such as physicians, hospitals, healthcare organizations and others, are subject to scrutiny under various state and federal laws often referred to collectively as healthcare fraud and abuse laws. In addition, the United States and foreign government regulators have increased the enforcement of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) and other anti-bribery and anti-kickback laws. We also must comply with a variety of other laws that impose extensive tracking and reporting related to all transfers of value provided to certain healthcare professionals and others. These laws and regulations are broad in scope and are subject to evolving interpretation and we have in the past been, and in the future could be, required to incur substantial costs to investigate, audit and monitor compliance or to alter our practices. Violations or alleged violations of these laws have in the past resulted and could in the future result in investigations, litigation or government proceedings, and we have been and may in the future be subject to criminal or civil penalties and sanctions, including substantial fines, imprisonment of current or former employees and exclusion from participation in governmental healthcare programs. For example, in 2013 and 2018 we settled claims brought by the SEC related to the FCPA. Pursuant to these settlements, we paid fines and penalties and retained an independent compliance consultant. We continue to implement recommendations that resulted from the independent compliance consultant's review of our commercial practices to enhance our commercial business practices. In addition, we are currently investigating whether certain business activities in certain foreign countries violated provisions of the FCPA and have been contacted by the SEC, United States Department of Justice and certain other regulatory authorities. Although we are currently unable to predict the outcome of the investigations or the potential impact, if any, on our financial statements, the impacts could potentially be significant.

We are subject to privacy, data protection and data security regulations and laws globally, and could face substantial penalties if we fail to comply with such regulations and laws: We are subject to a variety of laws and regulations globally regarding privacy, data protection, and data security, including those related to the collection, storage, handling, use, disclosure, transfer and security of personally identifiable healthcare information. For example, in the United States, privacy and security regulations under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996, including the expanded requirements under the Health Information Technology for Economic and Clinical Health Act of 2009, establish comprehensive standards with respect to the use and disclosure of protected health information (PHI), by covered entities, in addition to setting standards to protect the confidentiality, integrity and security of PHI. Regulators are also imposing new data privacy and security requirements, including new and greater monetary fines for privacy violations. For example, the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) established rules regarding the handling of personal data. Non-compliance with the GDPR may result in monetary penalties of up to 4% of total company revenue. Various U.S. states and other governmental authorities around the world have imposed or are considering similar types of laws and regulations, data breach reporting and penalties for non-compliance and increasing security requirements. These laws and regulations are broad in scope and are subject to evolving interpretation and enforcement and we have in the past been, and in the future could be, required to incur substantial costs to monitor compliance or to alter our practices. As new privacy-related laws and regulations are implemented, the time and resources needed for us to comply with such laws and regulations, as well as our potential liability for non-compliance and reporting obligations in the case of data breaches, have increased and may further increase.

We may be adversely affected by product liability claims, unfavorable court decisions or legal settlements: We are exposed to potential product liability risks inherent in the design, manufacture and marketing of medical devices, many of which are implanted in the human body for long periods of time or indefinitely. We are currently defendants in a number of product liability matters, including those relating to our Rejuvenate and ABGII Modular-Neck hip stems, LFIT Anatomic CoCr V40 Femoral Heads and the product liability lawsuits and claims relating to Wright Medical Group N.V. (Wright) legacy hip products discussed in Note 7 to our Consolidated Financial Statements. These matters are subject to uncertainties and outcomes are not predictable. Further, the European Representative Actions Directive (the Collective Redress Directive) mandates a class action regime in each EU member state to facilitate domestic and cross-border class actions in a wide range of areas, including product liability claims with medical devices. The European Product Liability Directive was revised in 2024 and will become fully adopted into each member state's national laws by 2026. The revised Product Liability Directive and Collective Redress Directive exposes us to additional litigation risks and could result in significant legal expenses. In addition, we may incur significant legal expenses or reputational damage for product liability claims regardless of whether we are found to be liable.

Intellectual property litigation and infringement claims could cause us to incur significant expenses or prevent us from selling certain of our products: The medical device industry is characterized by extensive intellectual property litigation and, from time to time, we are the subject of claims of infringement or misappropriation. Regardless of the outcome, such claims are expensive to defend and divert management and operating personnel from other business issues. A successful claim or claims of patent or other intellectual property infringement against us could result in payment of significant monetary damages and/or royalty payments or negatively impact our ability to sell current or future products in the affected category.

Dependence on intellectual proprietary rights and failing to protect such rights or to be successful in litigation related to such rights may impact offerings in our product portfolios: Our long-term success largely depends on our ability to market technologically competitive products. If we fail to obtain or maintain adequate intellectual property protection, it could allow others to sell products that directly compete with proprietary features in our product portfolio. Also, our issued patents may be subject to claims challenging their validity and scope and raising other issues. In addition, currently pending or future patent applications may not result in issued patents and the expiration of patents may lead to a loss of exclusive rights and/or increased competition.

MARKET RISKS

We have exposure to exchange rate fluctuations on cross border transactions and translation of local currency results into United States Dollars: We report our financial results in United States Dollars and approximately 25% of our net sales are denominated in foreign currencies, including the Australian Dollar, British Pound, Canadian Dollar, Euro and Japanese Yen. Cross border transactions with external parties, financing transactions in currencies other than the United States Dollar and intercompany relationships result in increased exposure to foreign currency exchange effects. While we use derivative instruments to manage the impact of currency exchange, our hedging strategies may not be successful, and our unhedged exposures continue to be subject to currency fluctuations. In addition, the weakening or strengthening of the United States Dollar results in favorable or unfavorable translation effects when the results of our foreign locations are translated into United States Dollars. In recent years, currency exchange rates have been especially volatile, and these currency fluctuations have affected, and may continue to affect, our results of operations.

Additional capital that we may require in the future may not be available to us or may only be available to us on unfavorable terms, which could negatively affect our liquidity: Our future capital requirements will depend on many factors, including operating requirements, current and future acquisitions and the need to refinance existing debt. Our ability to issue additional debt or enter into other financing arrangements on acceptable terms could be adversely affected by our debt levels, unfavorable changes in economic conditions or uncertainties that affect the capital markets. Changes in credit ratings issued by nationally recognized credit rating agencies could also adversely affect our access to and cost of financing. Higher borrowing costs or the inability to access capital markets could adversely affect our ability to support future growth and operating requirements. In addition, we have experienced, and could in the future experience, loss of sales and profits due to delayed payments or insolvency of healthcare professionals, hospitals and other customers and suppliers facing liquidity issues due to the current macroeconomic environment, type and number of conditions being treated or for other reasons. As a result, we may be compelled to take additional measures to preserve our cash flow, including through the reduction of operating expenses or suspension of dividend payments.

ENVIRONMENTAL, SOCIAL AND GOVERNANCE RISKS

We could be negatively impacted by corporate responsibility and sustainability-related matters: Governments, investors, customers, employees and other stakeholders have been focused on corporate responsibility practices and disclosures, and expectations in this area continue to rapidly evolve, including in diverging directions. On occasion, we announce new initiatives and make disclosures, including goals, under our corporate responsibility framework. This framework is aligned with our areas of interest and applicable regulatory requirements, which include environment and sustainability, workforce-related issues, diversity, equity and inclusion and supply chain management, among others. Implementation of these initiatives involves risks and uncertainties, requires investments and depends in part on third-party performance or data that is outside our control. We cannot guarantee that we will achieve our announced corporate responsibility initiatives. The criteria by which our corporate responsibility practices are assessed may change due to the quickly evolving landscape, which could result in greater regulatory requirements or expectations of us and cause us to undertake costly initiatives to satisfy such new criteria. Moreover, the increasing attention to corporate responsibility initiatives could also result in, among other things, reduced demand for our products, reduced profits, increased investigations and litigation and an increased risk of reputational damage. If we are unable to satisfy evolving criteria, certain investors and other stakeholders may conclude that our policies and/or actions with respect to corporate responsibility matters are inadequate or undesirable. If we fail or are perceived to have failed to achieve previously announced initiatives or goals, comply with corporate responsibility laws and regulations, meet evolving expectations or accurately disclose our progress, we could face legal and regulatory proceedings and our reputation, business, financial condition and results of operations could be adversely impacted.

Physical effects of climate change or legal, regulatory or market measures intended to address climate change could adversely affect our operations and operating results: Risks associated with climate change are subject to increasing societal, regulatory and political focus in the United States and globally. Shifts in weather patterns caused by climate change have increased and are expected to further increase the frequency, severity or duration of certain adverse weather conditions and natural disasters, such as hurricanes, tornadoes, earthquakes, wildfires, droughts, extreme temperatures and flooding, which could cause more significant business and supply chain interruptions, damage to our products and facilities as well as the infrastructure of hospitals, medical care facilities and other customers, reduced workforce availability, increased costs of raw materials and components, increased liabilities and decreased revenues than what we have experienced in the past from such events. In addition, increased public concern over climate change has resulted in certain, and could result in additional, new legal or regulatory requirements designed to mitigate the effects of climate change, which could include the adoption of more stringent environmental laws and regulations or stricter enforcement of existing laws and regulations. Such developments could result in increased compliance costs and adverse impacts on raw material availability and sourcing, manufacturing operations and the distribution of our products, which could adversely affect our operations and operating results.

ITEM 1C. CYBERSECURITY.

RISK MANAGEMENT AND STRATEGY

We review cybersecurity risk as part of our overall enterprise risk management program. This ensures that cybersecurity risk management remains a top priority in our business strategy and operations.

MANAGEMENT'S ROLE IN MANAGING RISK

Primary management responsibility for assessing, monitoring and managing our cybersecurity risks rests with our chief information security officer ("CISO"). Our current CISO has over 30 years of experience in information technology including over 20 years in cybersecurity and oversees a team of cybersecurity professionals with over 140 security, risk, and compliance certifications. The CISO is regularly informed about recent developments in cybersecurity, including potential threats and innovative risk management techniques.

The CISO implements and oversees processes for the regular monitoring of our information systems. We use various tools and methodologies to manage cybersecurity risk that are tested regularly. We also monitor and evaluate our cybersecurity posture and performance on an ongoing basis through regular vulnerability scans, penetration tests and threat intelligence feeds. In addition, we engage third-party consultants to conduct annual cybersecurity assessments and to conduct audits for compliance with regulatory, Sarbanes-Oxley Act, Service Organization Control Type 2 and International Organization for Standardization standards. We also engage third parties to assess our cybersecurity maturity and risk management programs.

We use a cross-departmental approach to addressing cybersecurity risk, with our cybersecurity, product security and legal teams presenting quarterly on key topics to a committee of leaders in finance, regulatory, and corporate affairs functions. This leadership committee meets quarterly to ensure that we have input and oversight from critical stakeholders into our cybersecurity program and evolving issues.

The CISO oversees a training and awareness program for employees to take part in protecting the Company against cybersecurity risks. We have implemented annual mandatory security education to help employees understand cybersecurity risks and comply with our cybersecurity policies. Additionally, we provide frequent communications around pertinent cybersecurity topics and policies to all employees. We also provide additional cybersecurity and data protection training to employees in certain roles.

As part of our cybersecurity risk management program, we also conduct cybersecurity and privacy assessments on all third parties who integrate with Stryker's data, network, systems and products. We use a combination of internal and external tools to confirm that these third parties meet our security requirements. We leverage standard industry threat model and privacy impact assessment concepts to confirm that data minimization and adequate data protections are in place. We perform supplemental reviews as necessary, commensurate with the risk associated with each vendor.

In the event of a cybersecurity incident, we have an incident response plan that includes immediate actions to mitigate the impact and long-term strategies for remediation and prevention of future incidents. The cybersecurity and product security teams routinely practice this plan with functions across the organization. We conduct tabletop exercises with senior management, during which we practice the procedures in place to ensure that potentially material cybersecurity risks and incidents are escalated to management and the Board of Directors where applicable.

GOVERNANCE

Cybersecurity risks are overseen by the full Board of Directors and the Audit Committee. The Audit Committee is central to the Board of Directors' oversight of cybersecurity risks and bears the primary responsibility for overseeing cybersecurity risk. The Audit Committee actively participates in strategic decisions related to cybersecurity, offering guidance and approval for major cybersecurity initiatives. This involvement ensures that cybersecurity considerations are integrated into our broader strategic objectives.

Our CISO provides comprehensive updates to the Audit Committee quarterly and the full Board of Directors periodically. These briefings include a range of topics, including:

Although cybersecurity risks have not materially affected us, including our business strategy, results of operations or financial condition, to date, we face numerous and evolving cybersecurity threats in our business. For more information about the cybersecurity risks we face, see the risk factor entitled "We, our business partners or our third-party vendors could experience a material failure or breach of a key information technology system, network, process or site" in Item 1A. Risk Factors.

ITEM 2. PROPERTIES.

We have approximately 27 company-owned and 297 leased locations worldwide including 45 manufacturing locations. We believe that our properties are in good operating condition and adequate for the manufacture and distribution of our products.

We do not anticipate difficulty in renewing existing leases as they expire or in finding alternative facilities.

ITEM 3. LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

We are involved in various ongoing proceedings, legal actions and claims arising in the normal course of our business, including proceedings related to product, labor, intellectual property and other matters. Refer to Note 7 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information.

Note: In the fourth quarter 2024 we reorganized our Spine business to align with certain updates to our internal reporting structure. The spine enabling technologies portfolio (Enabling Technologies) was reclassified to Other Orthopaedics, the interventional spine portfolio was reclassified to Neuro Cranial and the remaining Spine business was renamed to Spinal Implants. Neuro Cranial includes sales related to interventional spine of $413, $327 and $282 for 2024, 2023 and 2022. Other Orthopaedics includes sales related to Enabling Technologies of $152, $149 and $131 for 2024, 2023 and 2022. In the first quarter 2024 a product line previously included in Instruments has been reclassified to Endoscopy to align with a change in our internal reporting structure. We have reflected these changes in all historical periods presented.

Consolidated Net Sales

Consolidated net sales in 2024 increased 10.2% as reported and 10.7% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.5% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 9.1% from increased unit volume and 1.1% due to higher prices. The unit volume increase was primarily due to higher shipments across all businesses.

Consolidated net sales in 2023 increased 11.1% as reported and 11.6% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.1% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 10.9% from increased unit volume and 0.6% due to higher prices. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across all MedSurg and Neurotechnology businesses and most Orthopaedics businesses.

MedSurg and Neurotechnology Net Sales

MedSurg and Neurotechnology net sales in 2024 increased 11.1% as reported and 11.6% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.4% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 9.5% from increased unit volume and 1.7% due to higher prices. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across all MedSurg and Neurotechnology businesses.

MedSurg and Neurotechnology net sales in 2023 increased 11.7% as reported and 12.2% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.3% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 10.2% from increased unit volume and 1.7% due to higher prices. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across all MedSurg and Neurotechnology businesses.

Orthopaedics Net Sales

Orthopaedics net sales in 2024 increased 8.9% as reported and 9.4% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.5%. Excluding the 0.7% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 8.7% from increased unit volume. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across all Orthopaedics businesses.

Orthopaedics net sales in 2023 increased 10.3% as reported and 10.9% in constant currency, as foreign currency exchange rates negatively impacted net sales by 0.6%. Excluding the 0.1% impact of acquisitions and divestitures, net sales in constant currency increased by 11.9% from increased unit volume partially offset by 1.1% due to lower prices. The unit volume increase was due to higher shipments across most Orthopaedics businesses.

Gross Profit

Gross profit was $14,440, $13,058 and $11,578 in 2024, 2023, and 2022. The key components of the change were:

	Gross Profit Percent Net Sales
2022	62.8 %
Sales pricing	20 bps
Volume and mix	100 bps
Manufacturing and supply chain costs	(40) bps
Inventory stepped up to fair value	10 bps
2023	63.7 %
Sales pricing	40 bps
Volume and mix	60 bps
Manufacturing and supply chain costs	(40) bps
Inventory stepped up to fair value	(20) bps
Structural optimization and other special charges	(20) bps
2024	63.9 %

Gross profit as a percentage of net sales increased to 63.9% in 2024 from 63.7% in 2023 due to higher sales pricing and favorable volume partially offset by higher manufacturing and supply chain costs primarily due to inflationary pressures impacting fixed and variable manufacturing costs as well as higher amortization of inventory stepped up to fair value.

Gross profit as a percentage of net sales increased to 63.7% in 2023 from 62.8% in 2022 due to higher sales pricing and favorable volume offset by higher manufacturing and supply chain costs primarily due to higher raw material costs in the first six months of 2023 and supply chain inefficiencies.

While segment mix was not a significant driver of the change in gross profit as a percent of net sales between 2024, 2023 and 2022, we generally expect segment mix to have an unfavorable impact for the foreseeable future as we anticipate more rapid sales growth in our lower gross margin MedSurg and Neurotechnology segment than our Orthopaedics segment.

Research, Development and Engineering Expenses

Research, development and engineering expenses as a percentage of net sales in 2024 decreased to 6.5% from 6.8% in 2023 primarily due to lower spend on medical device regulations in the European Union.

Research, development and engineering expenses as a percentage of net sales in 2023 decreased to 6.8% from 7.9% in 2022 primarily due to increased spending for product launches, the write-off of certain intangible assets and higher spend related to the new medical device regulations in the European Union in 2022.

Selling, General and Administrative Expenses

Selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of net sales in 2024 decreased to 34.0% from 34.7% in 2023 primarily due to continued spend discipline and lower charges for structural optimization and certain legal matters partially offset by higher acquisition-related costs.

Selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of net sales in 2023 of 34.7% remained relatively flat with 34.6% in 2022 as charges of $132 related to share-based awards for Vocera employees that vested upon our acquisition in 2022 were partially offset by disciplined increases in spend and investments in 2023 to support our growth, including sales growth incentives and increased spend on travel and meetings. In addition, in 2022 we determined that certain commercial and regulatory milestones related to technology acquired in the purchase of Mobius Imaging and Cardan Robotics were no longer probable of being achieved and recorded $110 to reduce the fair value of contingent consideration.

Amortization of Intangible Assets

Amortization of intangible assets was $623, $635 and $627 in 2024, 2023 and 2022. These amounts include amortization related to intangible assets acquired in 2024 from various acquisitions, 2023 from Cerus Endovascular Limited (Cerus) and 2022 from Vocera. Refer to Notes 6 and 8 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information.

Goodwill and Other Impairments

In 2024 and 2022 we recorded goodwill impairment charges of $456 and $216 related to our Spine business.

In 2024 we recognized an estimated loss of $362 as a result of classifying certain assets in our Spinal Implants business as held for sale. Refer to Notes 8, 16 and 17 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information.

In 2024, 2023 and 2022 we recorded other impairments of $159, $36 and $54. Refer to Notes 15 and 16 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information.

Operating Income

Operating income was $3,689, $3,888 and $2,841 in 2024, 2023 and 2022. Operating income decreased as a percentage of sales to 16.3% in 2024 from 19.0% in 2023 and increased from 15.4% in 2022. Refer to the comments above for discussion of the primary drivers of the change.

MedSurg and Neurotechnology operating income as a percentage of net sales increased to 29.6% in 2024 from 28.5% in 2023. MedSurg and Neurotechnology operating income as a percentage of net sales increased to 28.5% in 2023 from 26.0% in 2022. Orthopaedics operating income as a percentage of net sales increased to 28.5% in 2024 from 27.2% in 2023. Orthopaedics operating income as a percentage of net sales increased to 27.2% in 2023 from 29.1% in 2022. The key components of the change were:

	Operating Income Percent Net Sales
	MedSurg and Neurotechnology	Orthopaedics
2022	26.0 %	29.1 %
Sales pricing	70 bps	(30) bps
Volume	100 bps	80 bps
Manufacturing and supply chain costs	90 bps	(220) bps
Research, development and engineering expenses	50 bps	20 bps
Selling, general and administrative expenses	(60) bps	(40) bps
2023	28.5 %	27.2 %
Sales pricing	70 bps	0 bps
Volume	40 bps	70 bps
Manufacturing and supply chain costs	(40) bps	(20) bps
Research, development and engineering expenses	0 bps	10 bps
Selling, general and administrative expenses	40 bps	70 bps
2024	29.6 %	28.5 %

The increase in MedSurg and Neurotechnology operating income as a percentage of net sales in 2024 from 2023 was primarily driven by higher unit volumes, higher prices and a decrease in selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of sales partially offset by higher manufacturing and supply chain costs.

The increase in MedSurg and Neurotechnology operating income as a percentage of net sales in 2023 from 2022 was primarily driven by higher unit volumes, higher prices and lower manufacturing and supply chain costs due to supply chain challenges impacting capital products in our MedSurg businesses in 2022 which improved in 2023 partially offset by higher selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of sales due to continued investments including sales growth incentives and a more normalized cadence of travel and meetings.

The increase in Orthopaedics operating income as a percentage of net sales for 2024 from 2023 was primarily driven by higher sales volumes and a decrease in selling, general and administrative expenses as a percentage of sales partially offset by higher manufacturing and supply chain costs.

The decrease in Orthopaedics operating income as a percentage of net sales for 2023 from 2022 was primarily driven by higher higher manufacturing and supply chain costs primarily due to increased inventory reserves partially offset by higher unit volumes.

Other Income (Expense), Net

Other income (expense), net was ($197), ($215) and ($158) in 2024, 2023 and 2022. The decrease in net expense in 2024 from 2023 was primarily due to higher interest income partially offset by lower interest expense in 2024. The increase in net expense in 2023 from 2022 was primarily due to the release of accrued interest of $50 in 2022 related to the effective settlement of the United States federal income tax audit for years 2014 through 2018. Refer to Note 11 to our Consolidated Financial Statements for further information and higher interest income in 2023.

Income Taxes

Our effective tax rate was 14.3%, 13.8% and 12.1% for 2024, 2023 and 2022. The effective income tax rate for 2024 decreased from 2023 due to the 2024 deferred tax benefit on the outside basis difference related to the anticipated sale of the Spinal Implants business partially offset by the 2023 tax effect related to transfers of intellectual property between tax jurisdictions. The effective income tax rate for 2023 increased from 2022 due to the 2022 effective settlement of the United States federal income tax audit for years 2014 through 2018 and the 2022 reversal of deferred income tax on undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries partially offset by the 2023 tax effect related to transfers of intellectual property between tax jurisdictions. Additionally, the effective income tax rates for 2024, 2023 and 2022 reflect the continued lower effective income tax rates as a result of our European operations and certain discrete tax items.

The Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), which represents a coalition of member countries, has put forth two proposed base erosion and profit shifting frameworks that revise the existing profit allocation and nexus rules (Pillar One) and ensure a minimal level of taxation (Pillar Two). On December 12, 2022 the European Union member states agreed to implement the Inclusive Framework's global corporate minimum tax rate of 15%, and various countries within and outside the European Union have either enacted or proposed new tax laws implementing Pillar Two in 2024. The OECD continues to release additional guidance and we anticipate more countries will enact similar tax laws. Some of the new tax laws became effective in 2024 while others will be effective in future years. These tax law changes and any additional contemplated tax law changes could increase tax expense in future periods.

Net Earnings

Net earnings for 2024 increased to $2,993 or $7.76 per diluted share from $3,165 or $8.25 per diluted share in 2023 and $2,358 or $6.17 per diluted share in 2022. Refer to the comments above for discussion of the primary drivers of the change.

Non-GAAP Financial Measures

We supplement the reporting of our financial information determined under accounting principles generally accepted in the United States (GAAP) with certain non-GAAP financial measures, including percentage sales growth in constant currency; percentage organic sales growth; adjusted gross profit; adjusted selling, general and administrative expenses; adjusted research, development and engineering expenses; adjusted operating income; adjusted other income (expense), net; adjusted income taxes; adjusted effective income tax rate; adjusted net earnings; and adjusted net earnings per diluted share (Diluted EPS). We believe these non-GAAP financial measures provide meaningful information to assist investors and shareholders in understanding our financial results and assessing our prospects for future performance. Management believes percentage sales growth in constant currency and the other adjusted measures described above are important indicators of our operations because they exclude items that may not be indicative of or are unrelated to our core operating results and provide a baseline for analyzing trends in our underlying businesses. Management uses these non-GAAP financial measures for reviewing the operating results of reportable business segments and analyzing potential future business trends in connection with our budget process and bases certain management incentive compensation on these non-GAAP financial measures. To measure percentage sales growth in constant currency, we remove the impact of changes in foreign currency exchange rates that affect the comparability and trend of sales. Percentage sales growth in constant currency is calculated by translating current and prior year results at the same foreign currency exchange rate. To measure percentage organic sales growth, we remove the impact of changes in foreign currency exchange rates, acquisitions and divestitures, which affect the comparability and trend of sales. Percentage organic sales growth is calculated by translating current year and prior year results at the same foreign currency exchange rates excluding the impact of acquisitions and divestitures. To measure earnings performance on a consistent and comparable basis, we exclude certain items that affect the comparability of operating results and the trend of earnings. The income tax effect of each adjustment was determined based on the tax effect of the jurisdiction in which the related pre-tax adjustment was recorded. These adjustments are irregular in timing and may not be indicative of our past and future performance. The following are examples of the types of adjustments that may be included in a period:

1. Acquisition and integration-related costs. Costs related to integrating recently acquired businesses (e.g., costs associated with the termination of sales relationships, employee retention and workforce reductions, manufacturing integration costs and other integration-related activities), changes in the fair value of contingent consideration, amortization of inventory stepped-up to fair value, specific costs (e.g., deal costs and costs associated with legal entity rationalization) related to the consummation of the acquisition process and legal entity rationalization and acquisition-related tax items.
2. Amortization of purchased intangible assets. Periodic amortization expense related to purchased intangible assets.
3. Structural optimization and other special charges. Costs associated with employee retention and workforce reductions, the closure or transfer of manufacturing and other facilities (e.g., site closure costs, contract termination costs and redundant employee costs during the work transfers), product line exits (primarily inventory, long-lived asset and specifically-identified intangible asset write-offs), certain long-lived and intangible asset write-offs and impairments and other charges.
4. Medical device regulations. Costs specific to updating our quality system, product labeling, asset write-offs and product remanufacturing to comply with the new medical device reporting regulations and other requirements of the European Union.
5. Recall-related matters. Changes in our best estimate of the probable loss, or the minimum of the range of probable losses when a best estimate within a range is not known, to resolve the Rejuvenate, LFIT V40, Wright legacy hip products and other product recalls.
6. Regulatory and legal matters. Changes in our best estimate of the probable loss, or the minimum of the range of probable losses when a best estimate within a range is not known, to resolve certain regulatory or other legal matters.

7. Tax matters. Impact of accounting for certain significant and discrete tax items.

Because non-GAAP financial measures are not standardized, it may not be possible to compare these financial measures with other companies' non-GAAP financial measures having the same or similar names. These adjusted financial measures should not be considered in isolation or as a substitute for reported sales growth, gross profit, selling, general and administrative expenses, research, development and engineering expenses, operating income, other income (expense), net, income taxes, effective income tax rate, net earnings and net earnings per diluted share, the most directly comparable GAAP financial measures. These non-GAAP financial measures are an additional way of viewing aspects of our operations when viewed with our GAAP results and the reconciliations to corresponding GAAP financial measures at the end of the discussion of Consolidated Results of Operations below. We strongly encourage investors and shareholders to review our financial statements and publicly-filed reports in their entirety and not to rely on any single financial measure.

The weighted-average diluted shares outstanding used in the calculation of adjusted net earnings per diluted share are the same as those used in the calculation of reported net earnings per diluted share for the respective period.

Investing activities	(3,000)	(962)	(2,924)

We believe our financial condition continues to be of high quality, as evidenced by our ability to generate substantial cash from operations and to readily access capital markets at competitive rates despite the current macroeconomic environment. Operating cash flow provides the primary source of cash to fund operating needs and capital expenditures. Excess operating cash is used first to fund acquisitions to complement our portfolio of businesses. Other discretionary uses include dividends and share repurchases. We supplement operating cash flow with debt to fund our activities as necessary. Our overall cash position reflects our business results and a global cash management strategy that takes into account liquidity management, economic factors and tax considerations.

Operating Activities

Cash provided by operating activities was $4,242, $3,711 and $2,624 in 2024, 2023 and 2022. The increase in 2024 was primarily due to higher cash earnings partially offset by changes in working capital. The increase in 2023 from 2022 was primarily due to higher net earnings and increased collections on accounts receivable.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has assigned the above Labeler Code to your firm. The number cannot be used until you have confirmed the assignment. Please revise and resubmit your Labeler Code Request SPL to include the assigned number above to complete the process. To do this, open the previous Labeler Code Request SPL file and fill in the new information (your assigned Labeler Code) without changing the other existing information. Fill in a new root id and new version number with the original set id and the appropriate effective time.

For CDER Direct Users: Open the previously submitted and accepted Labeler Code Request, click Create New Version, enter the Labeler Code assigned in the field for "Labeler Code", and Submit SPL.

This Labeler Code should be used to create the NDC (National Drug Code) assigned to all drugs you manufacture or distribute for U.S. commercial distribution. The assignment of NDC is extensively discussed in Title 21 of Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) 207.35. The NDC for each drug must be submitted as part of drug listing information submitted to FDA. Per 21 CFR Part 207, owners or operators of an establishment entering into the manufacture or processing of a drug or drugs shall drug list, every drug in commercial distribution within 5 days after the beginning of operation. Labeler Codes are assigned by FDA and may be inactivated at any time upon violation of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

Note that receipt of this letter is not to be construed as Federal Government endorsement or approval of the establishment or its products.

SUMMARY OF THE MATERIAL RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH OUR BUSINESS

Below is a summary of the principal factors that make an investment in our common stock speculative or risky. This summary does not address all of the risks that we face. Additional discussion of the risks summarized in this risk factor summary, and other risks that we face, can be found below under the heading "Item 1A. Risk Factors" and should be carefully considered, together with other information in this Annual Report and our other filings with the SEC, before making an investment decision regarding our common stock.

- If we are unable to raise additional capital when needed, we would be forced to delay, reduce, or eliminate our research and product development programs or future commercialization efforts.
- We have historically incurred losses, have a limited operating history on which to assess our business, and anticipate that we will continue to incur significant losses for the foreseeable future.
- Clinical trials are costly, time consuming, and inherently risky, and we may fail to demonstrate safety and efficacy to the satisfaction of applicable regulatory authorities.
- Regulatory approval processes are lengthy, time-consuming and inherently unpredictable. Failure to obtain regulatory approval for our product candidates would have a material adverse effect upon our business and business prospects.
- Our product candidates may cause undesirable side effects or have other properties that could delay or prevent their regulatory approval, limit the commercial viability of approved labeling, or result in significant negative consequences following marketing approval, if any.
- We are heavily dependent on the success of our product candidates, which are in clinical development. Some of our product candidates have produced results only in nonclinical settings, or for other indications than those for which we contemplate conducting development and seeking U.S. Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") or other regulatory approval, and we cannot give any assurance that we will generate data for any of our product candidates sufficiently supportive to receive regulatory approval in our planned indications, which will be required before they can be commercialized.
- Product development involves a lengthy and expensive process with an uncertain outcome, and results of earlier nonclinical studies and clinical trials may not be predictive of future clinical trial results.
- We rely on third parties to conduct our nonclinical development activities and clinical trials, manufacture our product candidates, and perform other services. If these third parties do not successfully perform and/or comply with regulatory requirements, we may not be able to successfully complete clinical development, obtain regulatory approval, or commercialize our product candidates and our business could be substantially harmed.
- We rely on patent rights, trade secret protections, and confidentiality agreements to protect intellectual property, including intellectual property related to our product candidates and any future product candidates. If we are unable to obtain or maintain exclusivity from the combination of these approaches, we may not be able to compete effectively in our markets.
- If we are unable to establish commercial manufacturing, sales and marketing capabilities or enter into agreements with third parties to commercially manufacture, market and sell our product candidates, we may be unable to generate any revenue.
- We face substantial competition and our competitors may discover, develop, or commercialize products faster or more successfully than us.
- Our future success depends in part on our ability to attract, retain, and motivate qualified personnel. If we lose key personnel, or if we fail to recruit additional highly skilled personnel, our ability to develop our product candidates will be impaired and our business may be harmed.

PART I

ITEM 1. BUSINESS

Company Overview

We are a biopharmaceutical company focused on discovering, developing, and commercializing potential best-in-class medicines for serious and rare diseases. We target disease areas where marketed therapies often leave room for improvements in efficacy, safety, and/or dosing convenience. We believe that first-generation medicines rarely represent optimal solutions, especially in rare disease areas, and that there is potential to develop differentiated, best-in-class medicines that could lead to improved patient outcomes, reduced side effects, improved quality of life, expanded market access, and augmented market competition. Our business model is designed to identify and evaluate product opportunities in disease areas where trial data establishes proof-of-concept for a drug target in the clinic, but the competitive evolution of the product life cycle management and number of entrants appears incomplete. We intend to prioritize indications where a fast-follower and a potentially differentiated drug candidate, or overall product profile, could create significant medical benefit for patients. We are engineering product candidates to address unmet medical needs for patients and further advance drug innovation.

Our goal is to identify and evaluate product concepts leveraging clinically validated molecular targets using established therapeutic modalities. We prioritize product concepts that are aligned with clinical and commercial hypotheses, which we expect will provide an attractive balance of risk and opportunity, thereby representing a compelling allocation of our resources. We focus on advancing therapeutic proteins that we either in-license or discover internally, incorporating proprietary therapeutic protein and antibody discovery and optimization platforms to advance clinical candidates with unique characteristics. We have built relevant expertise in protein and antibody discovery and engineering, biologics manufacturing, nonclinical and clinical development, and commercialization for thyroid eye disease ("TED"), development of anti-neonatal Fc receptor ("FcRn") therapies, and nonclinical and clinical development for indications in rare and autoimmune diseases.

Our approach to rapidly discovering and developing novel therapeutics relies on our scientific expertise in evaluating pre-existing clinical proof-of-concept data for the drug targets we are pursuing, and opportunities to improve upon existing investigational and/or approved therapies. This approach informs how we design, select, and develop our product candidates, including in critical areas such as pharmacokinetics, pharmacodynamics, clinical trial design, trial endpoints, and the selection and recruitment of patients. We believe this strategy reduces the risks associated with discovering and developing novel therapeutics.

Development of Therapies to Treat Thyroid Eye Disease (TED)

We are developing therapies for the treatment of TED, a serious and debilitating rare autoimmune disease that causes inflammation within the orbit of the eye that can cause bulging of the eyes, redness and swelling, double vision, pain, and potential blindness. TED significantly impacts quality of life, imposing a high burden on activities of daily living and mental health for patients suffering from the disease. TED is a progressive disease consisting of an initial active phase ("active TED"), followed by a transition to a secondary chronic phase ("chronic TED"). The only medicine approved by the FDA for TED is Tepezza® (teprotumumab), which is an intravenously administered monoclonal antibody that targets insulin-like growth factor 1 receptor ("IGF-1R"). Tepezza is marketed in the United States ("U.S.") by Horizon Therapeutics plc ("Horizon"), which was acquired by Amgen Inc. ("Amgen") in October 2023. In 2024, Amgen gained approval for Tepezza in Japan and submitted a Marketing Authorization Application ("MAA") to the European Medicines Agency ("EMA").

The results from clinical trials of teprotumumab conducted by Horizon provide strong clinical validation linking the targeting of IGF-1R to clinical benefit in patients with TED. However, clinical trials evaluating teprotumumab in patients with TED reported to date used a single dosing regimen, providing little guidance as to the optimal dosing required for clinical activity in TED. We believe that there are multiple opportunities to develop fast-follower therapeutics that improve on teprotumumab's features, including dosing schedule, route of administration, and safety profile.

We are developing two product candidates, veligrotug (formerly known as VRDN-001) for intravenous ("IV") and VRDN-003 for subcutaneous ("SC") administration, to treat patients who suffer from TED. Our most advanced program, veligrotug, is a differentiated humanized monoclonal antibody targeting IGF-1R intravenously administered for the treatment of TED. In previously presented in vitro nonclinical data, we showed that veligrotug is a potentially differentiated full antagonist of IGF-1R, compared to teprotumumab's incomplete antagonism of IGF-1R. VRDN-003 has the same binding domain as veligrotug, and was engineered to have a longer half-life. VRDN-003 is designed to be a low-volume, infrequently-dosed subcutaneous IGF-1R for TED, which we plan to launch commercially with an auto-injector to enable at-home patient self-administration. We believe VRDN-003 has the potential to be the best-in-class subcutaneous anti-IGF-1R product candidate by preserving the efficacy of anti-IGF-1Rs in TED, improving safety and maximizing convenience for patients.

We conducted phase 1/2 clinical trials of veligrotug in patients with active or chronic TED. In the active TED portion of the phase 1/2 clinical trials, data reported from all three dose cohorts of veligrotug (n=21) showed significant and rapid improvement in both the signs and symptoms of TED after two infusions of veligrotug compared to placebo. Across all veligrotug treated patients in the active TED trial, 71% were proptosis responders, 67% were overall responders, 62% achieved a clinical activity score ("CAS") of 0 or 1, and 54% had complete resolution of their diplopia. In the chronic TED portion of the phase 1/2 clinical trials, data reported from both dose cohorts of veligrotug (n=12) showed significant and rapid improvement in the signs and symptoms of TED after two infusions of veligrotug compared to placebo. Across all veligrotug treated patients in the chronic TED trial, 42% were proptosis responders, 40% achieved a CAS of 0 or 1, and no patients had complete resolution of their diplopia. In the phase 1/2 clinical trials of both active and chronic TED, veligrotug had a favorable safety profile and was well-tolerated by all patients treated in all dose cohorts.

We are conducting a global pivotal program for veligrotug, including evaluating its efficacy and safety in two global well-controlled phase 3 clinical trials, THRIVE and THRIVE-2, for the treatment of active and chronic TED, respectively. THRIVE and THRIVE-2 are each designed to compare a five-dose IV treatment arm of veligrotug at 10 mg/kg, dosed three weeks apart, to placebo. This five-dose veligrotug regimen features fewer infusions and a shorter time per infusion compared to teprotumumab, the currently marketed IGF-1R inhibitor. On September 10, 2024, we announced topline data from the THRIVE study, which enrolled 113 patients, randomized to veligrotug (n=75) and placebo (n=38). THRIVE achieved all primary and secondary endpoints with a high level of statistical significance ($p < 0.0001$) and was generally well-tolerated, with no treatment-related serious adverse events ("SAEs"). Veligrotug additionally showed a rapid onset of treatment effect, with the majority (53%) of veligrotug-treated patients achieving a proptosis response as early as three weeks. On December 16, 2024, we announced topline data from the THRIVE-2 study, which enrolled 188 patients, randomized to veligrotug (n=125) and placebo (n=63). THRIVE-2 achieved all primary and secondary endpoints with statistical significance and was generally well-tolerated. Veligrotug continued to demonstrate a rapid onset of treatment effect, with a statistically significant proptosis response as early as three weeks and a statistically significant reduction and resolution of diplopia as early as six weeks. THRIVE-2 is the first global phase 3 study in patients with chronic TED to demonstrate a statistically significant and clinically meaningful diplopia responder rate and rate of diplopia complete resolution. To meet the 300 patient standard safety database requirements for the veligrotug biologics license application ("BLA"), we are conducting our STRIVE clinical trial (safety database inclusive of patients from the THRIVE and THRIVE-2 trials). STRIVE is a global study of veligrotug in TED patients that utilizes broad inclusion criteria (e.g., any severity or duration of disease) and is randomized 3:1 (10 mg/kg IV with an active control of 3 mg/kg IV). In January 2025, we completed enrollment in STRIVE with a total of 231 patients, exceeding the enrollment target of 212 due to patient demand. We have also completed enrollment of the open label extension study for non-responding patients in THRIVE and THRIVE-2. We anticipate submitting a BLA for veligrotug in the second half of 2025 and an MAA to the EMA in the first half of 2026.

In addition to our intravenous veligrotug program, VRDN-003 is our subcutaneous product candidate currently in pivotal development in TED, which we selected in December 2023 following positive data in a phase 1 clinical trial in healthy volunteers.

The VRDN-003 phase 1 clinical study showed VRDN-003 to have a prolonged half-life of 40 to 50 days, which is four to five times that of veligrotug. Because of the healthy volunteer data and the similarities between the veligrotug and VRDN-003 antibodies, we expect VRDN-003 to have similar clinical responses at the exposure levels of veligrotug that led to robust clinical activity in its clinical trials to date in TED. Further, pharmacokinetic modeling of VRDN-003 based on the healthy volunteer data predicted that exposure levels of VRDN-003 could be achieved that are equivalent to exposure levels of veligrotug that produced clinically meaningful results with multiple dosing regimens of VRDN-003, i.e., subcutaneous injection every two, four, or eight weeks.

We are conducting a global pivotal program for VRDN-003, including evaluating its efficacy and safety in two global well-controlled phase 3 clinical trials, REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2, for the treatment of active and chronic TED, respectively. Both studies will evaluate subcutaneous VRDN-003 administered every four weeks or every eight weeks and will assess outcomes versus placebo. Patient enrollment and dosing continues in both studies. In addition, to enable BLA submission for VRDN-003, we have initiated a safety study to meet the 300 patient standard safety database requirement (to also include patients from the REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 trials) and plan to initiate an auto-injector study in 2025 to enable launching VRDN-003 in an auto-injector device, if approved. We anticipate topline data for REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 in the first half of 2026, and we anticipate submitting a BLA for VRDN-003 for the treatment of TED by the end of 2026.

Development of FcRn Inhibitors

In addition to developing therapies for TED, we are also developing a portfolio of engineered FcRn inhibitors, including VRDN-006 and VRDN-008. FcRn inhibitors have the potential to treat a broad array of autoimmune diseases, representing a possible significant commercial market opportunity. Our multi-pronged engineering approach has resulted in a portfolio of FcRn-targeting molecules that leverage the clinically and commercially validated mechanism of FcRn inhibition while potentially addressing the limitations of current agents such as incomplete immunoglobulin G ("IgG") suppression, safety, and inconvenience of dosing.

VRDN-006 is a highly selective Fc fragment that inhibits FcRn and is designed to be a convenient subcutaneous and self-administered option for patients. In non-human primate ("NHP") studies, VRDN-006 demonstrated specificity for blocking FcRn-IgG interactions while not showing decreases in albumin or increases in low-density lipoprotein ("LDL") levels, which are known potential side effects associated with certain full-length anti-FcRn monoclonal antibodies. In our head-to-head NHP studies, VRDN-006 demonstrated comparable potency and IgG reductions to efgartigimod, which is the current standard of care in FcRn inhibition, as well as a similar safety profile. We submitted an IND for VRDN-006 in December 2024, which cleared in January 2025, and we expect proof-of-concept IgG reduction data in healthy volunteers in the third quarter of 2025.

VRDN-008 is a half-life extended bispecific FcRn inhibitor comprising an Fc fragment and an albumin-binding domain designed to prolong IgG suppression and provide a potentially best-in-class subcutaneous option for patients. In a single, high-dose, head-to-head study in NHPs, VRDN-008 demonstrated three times the half-life of efgartigimod. Additionally, VRDN-008 showed a deeper and more sustained IgG reduction with peak IgG reductions that were 20% deeper than efgartigimod while not showing decreases in albumin or increases in LDL levels. NHP studies are ongoing to generate additional data for VRDN-008. Once completed, we plan to use the totality of VRDN-008's NHP data to build a robust pharmacokinetic and pharmacodynamic model to predict potential human dosing regimens for VRDN-008. We anticipate submitting an IND for VRDN-008 by the end of 2025.

Our Strategy

Our mission is to create and advance new biologic medicines for patients suffering from serious and rare diseases that are underserved by today's therapies. Key elements of our business strategy are to:

- Evaluate opportunities to identify, engineer, and develop potential best-in-class therapeutic proteins and antibodies that optimize patient care. Our pipeline of therapeutic programs represents a patient-centric model of innovation that leverages proven biology and protein and antibody technology to reduce research and development risk, while striving to address strategic gaps related to access, delivery, quality of life, efficacy, and/or safety and tolerability in targeted therapeutic areas. Our multidisciplinary search process evaluates scientific and clinical validation of therapeutic targets, market potential, and feasibility of efficiently developing a competitive product.

- Our clinical development and commercial focus on thyroid eye disease (TED):

  - Seek marketing approval for veligrotug. We are evaluating veligrotug in two pivotal global phase 3 clinical trials, THRIVE and THRIVE-2, for the treatment of active and chronic TED, respectively. THRIVE and THRIVE-2 are each designed to compare a five-dose intravenous treatment arm of veligrotug at 10 mg/kg, dosed three weeks apart, to placebo. This five-dose veligrotug regimen features fewer infusions and a shorter time per infusion compared to teprotumumab, the currently marketed IGF-1R inhibitor for TED. We reported positive topline THRIVE and THRIVE-2 data in September 2024 and December 2024, respectively. We expect that the THRIVE and THRIVE-2 phase 3 trials, together with a safety database comprising 300 treated patients (safety database inclusive of patients from the THRIVE and THRIVE-2 trials), will support global health authority registration for marketing approval in both active and chronic TED. We expect to submit a BLA for veligrotug in the second half of 2025 and an MAA to the EMA for veligrotug in the first half of 2026.

  - Rapidly develop subcutaneous VRDN-003 as our next generation, potential best-in-class IGF-1R antibody. VRDN-003 is designed to be self-administered subcutaneously at home as an infrequent and low-volume injection to decrease the burden on TED patients. VRDN-003 has the same binding domain as veligrotug and was engineered to have a longer half-life. VRDN-003 is designed to maintain the efficacy of IGF-1Rs as demonstrated by the marketed product, teprotumumab, and by the clinical results for veligrotug in THRIVE and THRIVE-2, while improving on its safety and maximizing patient convenience. We are evaluating VRDN-003 in two global phase 3 clinical trials, REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2, for the treatment of active and chronic TED, respectively. REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 are each designed to evaluate subcutaneous VRDN-003 administered every four weeks or every eight weeks and will assess outcomes versus placebo. We have initiated a safety study to meet the 300 patient standard safety database requirement (to also include patients from the REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 trials) and anticipate initiating an auto-injector study in 2025 to have an auto-injector device available at the time of commercial launch, if approved. We expect to report topline REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 data in the first half of 2026. We expect that the REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 phase 3 trials, together with a safety database of 300 treated patients (safety database inclusive of patients from the REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 trials), will support global health authority registration for marketing approval in both active and chronic TED, respectively.

- Be a trusted partner in the care of TED patients. We plan to cultivate a network across TED stakeholders to inform our patient-centric approach, including with patients and advocacy groups, key opinion leaders, research institutions, healthcare professionals and payers.

- Prepare for commercialization of veligrotug and VRDN-003, for the treatment of patients with TED. We hold worldwide commercialization rights, excluding the greater area of China, to veligrotug and VRDN-003. As a result, we have the flexibility to develop and potentially commercialize products ourselves, or alternatively to enter collaborations with industry partners.

- Advance our portfolio of FcRn inhibitors with the potential to treat a broad array of autoimmune disorders. We are developing a portfolio of engineered anti-neonatal FcRn inhibitors, including VRDN-006 and VRDN-008. FcRn inhibitors have the potential to treat a broad array of autoimmune diseases, representing a possible significant commercial market opportunity. Our multi-pronged engineering approach has resulted in a portfolio of FcRn-targeting molecules that leverage the clinically and commercially validated mechanism of FcRn inhibition while potentially addressing the limitations of current agents such as incomplete IgG suppression and safety.

  - Generate VRDN-006 proof-of-concept IgG reduction data in healthy volunteers. VRDN-006 is a highly selective Fc fragment that inhibits FcRn and is designed to be a convenient subcutaneous and self-administered option for patients. VRDN-006 received IND clearance from the FDA in January 2025 and we expect proof-of-concept IgG reduction data in healthy volunteers in the third quarter of 2025.

  - Advance VRDN-008 to the clinic. VRDN-008 is a half-life extended bispecific FcRn inhibitor comprising an Fc fragment and an albumin-binding domain designed to prolong IgG suppression as a subcutaneous, self-administered and potential best-in-class option for patients. In single, high-dose head-to-head NHP studies, VRDN-008 demonstrated three times the half-life and showed a deeper and more sustained IgG reduction than efgartigimod. NHP studies are ongoing to generate additional data for VRDN-008. Once completed, we plan to use the totality of VRDN-008's NHP data to build a robust pharmacokinetic and pharmacodynamic model to predict potential human dosing regimens for VRDN-008. We anticipate submitting an IND for VRDN-008 by the end of 2025.

- Leverage our therapeutic protein, antibody, and multi-disciplinary search expertise to continue discovering and developing novel, best-in class product candidates. We plan to continue to identify and advance novel product candidates and technologies to generate potential best-in-class protein and antibody therapeutics, either internally or through in-licensing.

Our Pipeline

Thyroid Eye Disease (TED)

TED, commonly associated with Graves' Disease, and in some cases referred to as Graves' orbitopathy, is a serious and rare autoimmune disorder affecting the eye and its adjacent tissue. It is characterized by inflammation within the orbit of the eye that can cause bulging of the eyes, redness and swelling, double vision, pain, and potential blindness. TED is a progressive disease consisting of an initial active phase or active TED, followed by a transition to a secondary chronic phase or chronic TED. In the active phase of TED, patients present with several inflammatory signs and symptoms such as pain, redness, swelling, proptosis, diplopia, and eyelid retraction. The active phase is generally defined as the first 18 to 24 months of disease onset and is typically when inflammatory signs and symptoms reach their peak levels. The second, chronic phase of TED is characterized by a reduction in some of the inflammatory signs, such as redness and swelling in the area surrounding the eye, compared to the active phase of the disease. However, proptosis, pain, diplopia, and eyelid retraction often persist throughout life for patients with chronic TED. Patients with active and chronic TED experience significant impairment to their quality of life, including difficulties with the activities of daily living, trouble functioning in social situations, and decreased psychological well-being. About one in every three patients experience anxiety and depression.

Pathologies Leading to the Development of TED

TED develops in parallel with Graves' Disease, an autoimmune disease in which antibodies form against the thyroid-stimulating hormone receptor ("TSHR"), which is present in the thyroid and other cells such as adipocytes and fibroblasts. A close temporal relationship exists between the onset of Graves' Disease and the onset of TED. Regardless of which condition occurs first, the other condition develops within 18 months in 80% of patients. In addition to antibodies against TSHR, patients with TED also develop antibodies against IGF-1R.

Insulin-like growth factor 1 is a hormone similar in molecular structure to insulin with higher growth-promoting activity. IGF-1R, the receptor for IGF-1, is highly expressed in fibrocytes, cells that are derived from the bone marrow and that have the potential to differentiate into either myofibroblasts or fat cells. IGF-1R and TSHR function in concert to regulate the proliferation and differentiation of fibrocytes in the orbital socket.

One potential cause of TED is autoimmune antibodies against IGF-1R that lead to the activation of IGF-1R, resulting in increased proliferation, secretion of extracellular complex carbohydrates, and differentiation into fat cells. These antibodies, and autoimmune antibodies to TSHR, can elicit an immune attack against the fibrocytes that surround the eye triggering the development of TED. Inflammation associated with this attack combined with activation of IGF-1R leads to the wide spectrum of pathologies seen with this disease.

Exposure to other inflammatory agents, such as cigarette smoke, leads to exacerbation of the disease resulting in more severe symptoms.

Current Treatments for TED

Prior to 2020, moderate to severe cases of TED were treated off-label with steroids such as daily doses of oral prednisone, or in more severe cases, weekly doses of IV methylprednisolone. Treatment with steroids is associated with a wide range of serious complications including high blood pressure, diabetes, psychological effects, personality change, insomnia, skin thinning, immunosuppression, hyperglycemia, and increased risks of infections. Systemic steroids showed limited efficacy for most of the signs and symptoms of TED and are not a sustainable long-range intervention given the side effects. If steroid treatment proved to be inadequate, or could not be tolerated, remaining options for patients include orbital radiation or surgery to reduce swelling, decompress orbital contents, and protect the vision. Again, each of these therapies was considered incomplete or inadequate from the perspective of both the patient and the treating physician.

In January 2020, Tepezza (teprotumumab), an antibody that blocks the activation of IGF-1R, was approved by the FDA for the treatment of TED. The Tepezza labeling was updated in April 2023 to specify its use for the treatment of TED regardless of TED activity or duration. In addition, the labeling was updated in its warnings and precautions, adverse reactions, and patient counseling information sections in December 2022 with additional information on hyperglycemia and in July 2023 to include hearing impairment, its potential severity, and guidance for monitoring.

In two randomized, double-blind placebo-controlled trials, infusions of teprotumumab every three weeks, for a total of eight doses, led to a greater than 2 mm decrease in proptosis in 71% and 83% of patients with active TED, respectively, compared to 20% and 10% with placebo. Combined results from these two studies in patients with active TED showed that treatment with teprotumumab also led to a 53% decrease in diplopia compared to a 25% decrease when patients were treated with placebo control. Thus, these data show that targeting and blockade of IGF-1R in TED provides a clinically meaningful benefit and is a de-risked approach.

Market Potential

We estimate approximately 190,000 TED patients in the United States with moderate to severe TED, which includes patients with either active and chronic TED, and a similar epidemiology in Europe. In 2020, Horizon launched with a price of approximately $16,300 per vial of Tepezza which translates to a list price of approximately $375,000 based on patient weight for a six-month course of therapy. Tepezza's 2024 net sales in the U.S. were approximately $1.8 billion, with the potential for additional revenue in the U.S. with further penetration into the prevalent TED population and more convenient regimens and routes of administration. With Tepezza now approved in multiple countries outside of the U.S., including Japan, and a regulatory submission completed in Europe, we believe there is potential for meaningful additional revenue outside of the U.S., which we believe will further support multiple entrants.

Our Product Candidates

Veligrotug, a potential best-in-class intravenously administered IGF-1R antibody

Veligrotug is a monoclonal antibody that binds to and is believed to act as a full antagonist of IGF-1R signaling pathway. This mechanism of action is clinically and commercially validated by the only FDA product approved for the treatment of TED, Tepezza. Based on our ongoing THRIVE and THRIVE-2 phase 3 clinical trials, our goal is for veligrotug to be second to market in this class of medicine, with the opportunity to offer a differentiated IV product.

We have an exclusive license to the worldwide rights to develop and commercialize veligrotug for all non-oncology indications that do not use radiopharmaceuticals, including the treatment of patients with TED, from ImmunoGen, Inc. ("ImmunoGen"). The antibody sequence that we are developing as veligrotug in TED had previously been developed in oncology as AVE-1642 and studied in over 100 patients. However, development in oncology was stopped in 2009 due to its failure to meet the primary efficacy endpoints in multiple myeloma. As described below, we sublicensed the right to develop, manufacture and commercialize certain IGF-1R directed antibody products for non-oncology indications in the greater area of China to Zenas BioPharma (Cayman) Limited (now Zenas BioPharma, Inc., their successor in interest, "Zenas BioPharma"). In January 2025, Zenas BioPharma sublicensed their rights to Zai Lab (Hong King) Limited ("Zai Lab").

Clinical Trials for veligrotug

Phase 1/2 Trial of veligrotug in Patients with Active TED

In the second half of 2022 and early 2023, we announced data from our phase 1/2 clinical trial evaluating the safety and efficacy of veligrotug in patients with active TED. The proof-of-concept portion of this double-blind, placebo-controlled phase 1/2 trial evaluated two infusions of veligrotug administered intravenously, three weeks apart, with efficacy measured six weeks after the first dose. Veligrotug was evaluated at doses of 3, 10, and 20 mg/kg, with each cohort designed to include six patients randomized to drug, and two patients randomized to placebo. We previously announced positive results from all three dose cohorts, and veligrotug demonstrated a favorable safety profile. In the 3 mg/kg dose cohort, nine patients were randomized to receive veligrotug to enable all consented patients who were eligible following screening to participate in the trial, and two patients were randomized to receive placebo. At week 6, across all three dose groups (n=21), we observed a 71% proptosis responder rate and a 67% overall responder rate. 62% of veligrotug-treated patients achieved a CAS of 0 or 1, and 54% had complete resolution of their diplopia. Veligrotug was generally well-tolerated.

Phase 1/2 Trial of veligrotug in Patients with Chronic TED

In July 2023, we announced data from our phase 1/2 clinical trial evaluating the safety and efficacy of veligrotug in patients with chronic TED. The proof-of-concept portion of this double-blind, placebo-controlled phase 1/2 trial evaluated two infusions of veligrotug administered intravenously, three weeks apart, with efficacy measured six weeks after the first dose. Veligrotug was evaluated at doses of 3 and 10 mg/kg, with each cohort designed to include six patients randomized to drug, and two patients randomized to placebo. We previously announced positive results from both cohorts, and veligrotug demonstrated a favorable safety profile that was generally consistent with the previously reported results in patients with active TED with veligrotug. At week six, across both dose groups (n=12), we observed a 42% proptosis responder rate and 40% of veligrotug-treated patients achieving a CAS of 0 or 1. No patients achieved complete resolution of their diplopia. Veligrotug was generally well-tolerated and demonstrated a safety profile that was generally consistent with the previously reported results in patients with active TED with veligrotug.

Phase 3 Trial (THRIVE) of veligrotug in Patients with Active TED

THRIVE is a global double-masked, placebo-controlled phase 3 clinical trial evaluating the safety and efficacy of veligrotug in patients with active TED. THRIVE evaluated five infusions of veligrotug at 10 mg/kg, dosed three weeks apart. Patients were randomized two to drug and one to placebo.

In September 2024, we announced positive topline data from THRIVE. THRIVE met the primary and all secondary endpoints at fifteen weeks after five infusions of veligrotug, showing highly statistically significant ($p < 0.0001$) improvements on all of the measured signs and symptoms of TED. Veligrotug additionally showed a rapid onset of treatment effect, with the majority (53%) of veligrotug-treated patients achieving a proptosis response as early as three weeks. THRIVE enrolled 113 patients, randomized to veligrotug (n=75) and placebo (n=38).

The following activity was observed in veligrotug-treated patients at week fifteen (n=75):

Proptosis

- 70% proptosis responder rate ("PRR") (64% placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), defined as a ≥2-millimeter ("mm") reduction in proptosis from baseline in the study eye without worsening in the fellow eye (≥2 mm increase), as measured by exophthalmometry. PRR results as measured by MRI/CT were consistent with those measured by exophthalmometry at the primary efficacy analysis timepoint.

- 2.9mm mean reduction in proptosis from baseline (2.4mm placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), as measured by exophthalmometry

Diplopia

- 63% diplopia responder rate (43% placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), defined as patients with baseline diplopia who achieved a reduction of at least 1 on the Gorman subjective diplopia scale (76 patients with diplopia at baseline)

- 54% complete resolution of diplopia (43% placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), defined as patients with baseline diplopia who achieved a score of 0 on the Gorman subjective diplopia scale

CAS

- 64% maximal or near-maximal therapeutic effect on CAS (46% placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), defined as reaching a CAS of 0 or 1 on the 7-point composite measure of signs and symptoms of TED
- 3.4 point mean reduction in CAS from baseline (1.7-point placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), on a 7-point measure of signs and symptoms of TED

Overall response

- 67% overall responder rate (61% placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), defined as a ≥2 mm reduction in proptosis and a ≥2 point reduction in CAS

Veligrotug was generally well-tolerated with a safety profile consistent with previous veligrotug studies. The majority of adverse events ("AEs") were mild, and 96% of veligrotug-treated patients completing all doses. There were no treatment-related serious AEs. A 5.5% placebo-adjusted rate of hearing impairment AEs was observed.

Phase 3 Trial (THRIVE-2) of veligrotug in Patients with Chronic TED

THRIVE-2 is a global double-masked, placebo-controlled phase 3 clinical trial evaluating the safety and efficacy of veligrotug in patients with chronic TED. THRIVE-2 evaluated five infusions of veligrotug at 10 mg/kg, dosed three weeks apart. Patients were randomized two to drug and one to placebo.

In December 2024, we announced positive topline data from THRIVE-2. THRIVE-2 met the primary and all secondary endpoints at fifteen weeks after five infusions of veligrotug, showing statistically significant responses on all of the measured signs and symptoms of TED. Veligrotug continued to demonstrate a rapid onset of treatment effect, with a statistically significant proptosis response as early as three weeks and statistically significant diplopia reduction and resolution as early as six weeks. THRIVE-2 is the first global phase 3 study in patients with chronic TED to demonstrate a statistically significant and clinically meaningful diplopia responder rate and rate of diplopia complete resolution. THRIVE-2 enrolled 188 patients, randomized to veligrotug (n=125) and placebo (n=63). The mean time since onset of TED in patients treated with veligrotug was 69.8 months.

The following activity was observed in veligrotug-treated patients at week fifteen (n=125):

Proptosis

- 56% proptosis responder rate ("PRR") (48% placebo-adjusted; $p < 0.0001$), defined as a ≥2-millimeter ("mm") reduction in proptosis from baseline in the study eye without worsening in the fellow eye (≥2 mm increase), as measured by exophthalmometry. PRR was statistically significant at all time points, including as early as 3 weeks, demonstrating a rapid onset of treatment effect. PRR results as measured by MRI/CT were consistent with those measured by exophthalmometry at the primary efficacy analysis timepoint.
- 2.3mm mean reduction in proptosis from baseline (1.9mm placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), as measured by exophthalmometry

Diplopia

- 56% diplopia responder rate (31% placebo-adjusted, $p = 0.0006$), defined as patients with baseline diplopia who achieved a reduction of at least 1 on the Gorman subjective diplopia scale. Rapid onset was observed as early as 6 weeks after just two infusions (102 patients with diplopia at baseline)
- 32% complete resolution of diplopia (18% placebo-adjusted, $p = 0.0152$), defined as patients with baseline diplopia who achieved a score of 0 on the Gorman subjective diplopia scale

CAS

- 54% maximal or near-maximal therapeutic effect on CAS (29% placebo-adjusted, $p = 0.006$), defined as reaching a CAS of 0 or 1 on the 7-point composite measure of signs and symptoms of TED, among patients with a CAS of ≥ 3 at baseline (n = 104)

- 2.9 point mean reduction in CAS from baseline (1.6-point placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), on a 7-point measure of signs and symptoms of TED, among patients with a CAS of ≥ 3 at baseline

- CAS outcomes are exploratory endpoints and p-values are nominally significant.

Overall response

- 56% overall responder rate (50% placebo-adjusted, $p < 0.0001$), defined as a ≥ 2 mm reduction in proptosis and a ≥ 1 point reduction in CAS

Veligrotug was generally well-tolerated with a safety profile consistent with previous veligrotug studies, including THRIVE. The majority of AEs were mild, and 94% of veligrotug-treated patients completed their treatment course. A 9.6% placebo-adjusted rate of hearing impairment AEs was observed.

To meet the 300 patient standard safety database requirements for the veligrotug BLA, we are conducting STRIVE, a global clinical study of veligrotug in TED patients that utilizes broad inclusion criteria (e.g., any severity or duration of disease) and is randomized 3:1 (10 mg/kg IV with an active control of 3 mg/kg IV). In January 2025, we completed enrollment in STRIVE with a total of 231 patients, exceeding the enrollment target of 212 due to patient demand. We also completed enrollment of patients in the open label extension study for non-responding patients in THRIVE and THRIVE-2.

Together, THRIVE and THRIVE-2 evaluated veligrotug in the largest and broadest population of active and chronic TED patients studied to date in global phase 3 clinical trials. We believe that these robust and consistent clinical efficacy and safety results, after only five infusions of veligrotug, support a differentiated product profile and the potential for veligrotug to be the IV treatment-of-choice for all forms of active and chronic TED. We expect that the THRIVE and THRIVE-2 phase 3 clinical trials, together with a safety database comprising 300 treated patients, will support global health authority registration for marketing approval in both active and chronic TED, respectively. We expect to submit a BLA in the second half of 2025 and an MAA to the EMA in the first half of 2026.

VRDN-003 is a monoclonal antibody that acts as a full antagonist of IGF-1R. VRDN-003 utilizes the same binding domain as veligrotug and is engineered to extend its half-life, and therefore potentially enabling less frequent and more convenient dosing. VRDN-003 is designed to maintain the clinical response of veligrotug IV while significantly increasing patient convenience.

We believe a later-entrant subcutaneous therapy can convert meaningful portions of an IV market. There is precedent that subcutaneous therapies can quickly command substantial market share even when launching several years after an incumbent IV. Although we have designed VRDN-003 to have a superior dosing profile to its parent molecule, veligrotug, as well as to the currently marketed IV product, teprotumumab, market examples demonstrate that subcutaneous therapies have commanded market share even where such therapies have the same or worse dosing frequency than their IV counterparts. Further, subcutaneous offerings can also grow the overall market size for their class. We believe VRDN-003 has significant potential to capture a meaningful proportion of the IV TED market and to grow the TED market as a convenient, less-frequent, low-volume subcutaneous anti-IGF-1R antibody that patients take at home.

We are conducting a global pivotal program for VRDN-003, including evaluating its efficacy and safety in two global well-controlled phase 3 pivotal clinical trials, REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2, for the treatment of active and chronic TED, respectively. We selected VRDN-003 for pivotal development in TED following positive data in a phase 1 clinical trial in healthy volunteers. This study showed VRDN-003 to have a prolonged half-life of 40 to 50 days, which is four to five times that of its parent molecule, veligrotug. Because of the similarities of veligrotug and VRDN-003, we expect VRDN-003 to have similar clinical responses at the exposure levels of veligrotug that led to robust clinical activity in its phase 2 clinical study in TED. Further, pharmacokinetic modeling of VRDN-003 predicted that exposure levels of VRDN-003 could be achieved that are equivalent to exposure levels of veligrotug that produced clinically meaningful results with multiple dosing regimens of VRDN-003, i.e., subcutaneous injection every two, four, or eight weeks. Patient enrollment and dosing continues in both REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2. Both studies will evaluate subcutaneous VRDN-003 administered every four weeks or every eight weeks and will assess outcomes versus placebo. We expect that the REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 phase 3 trials, together with a safety database of 300 patients (safety database inclusive of patients from the REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 trials), will support global health authority registration for marketing approval in both active and chronic TED, respectively. We also anticipate initiating an auto-injector study in 2025 to have an auto-injector device available at the time of commercial launch, if approved. We anticipate topline data for REVEAL-1 and REVEAL-2 in the first half of 2026, and we anticipate submitting a BLA for VRDN-003 for the treatment of TED by the end of 2026.

Re: Notice of Corporate Reorganization of J&B Medical Supply Co., Inc.

To Whom it May Concern:

Please accept this letter as notice that, effective April 29, 2025 ("Effective Date"), J&B Medical Supply Co., Inc. ("J&B Medical"), which is licensed in the State of Michigan as a Wholesale Distributor, License No. 5306007104, underwent a corporate reorganization that involved inserting a holding company between J&B Medical and its beneficial owners.

Prior to the reorganization, Mary E. Shaya Living Trust, dated November 28, 1994, directly owned 51% of the equity in J&B Medical and Fawzi B. Shaya Living Trust, dated November 28, 1994, directly owned 49% of J&B Medical. To accomplish the reorganization, Mary E. Shaya Living Trust and Fawzi B. Shaya Living Trust organized a new company, JBM JMS Holdco, Inc. ("JMS Holdco"), and each transferred their equity in J&B Medical to JMS Holdco in exchange for an equivalent amount of ownership in JMS Holdco. JMS Holdco is a Michigan corporation with an address of 50496 Pontiac Trail, Wixom, MI 48393. JMS Holdco's tax identification number is 33-4652298.

After the reorganization:

- J&B Medical continues to hold the state license as a corporate entity and the tax identification number of J&B Medical remains the same (38-3271174). The operations and personnel of J&B Medical also remain the same.
- JMS Holdco owns 100% of the equity in J&B Medical.
- Mary E. Shaya Living Trust owns 51 % and Fawzi B. Shaya Living Trust owns 49% of JMS Holdco, respectively. Accordingly, the beneficial ownership and control of J&B Medical remains the same as it did before the reorganization. The tax identification numbers of Mary E. Shaya Living Trust (* * *-6591) and Fawzi B. Shaya Living Trust (85-6792505) also remain the same.

If you have any questions regarding the reorganization, please do not hesitate to contact us at credentialing@jandbmedical.com

Sincerely,

J&B Medical Supply Co., Inc.

Massachusetts only licenses facilities distributing controlled substances.

The facility does not handle prescription drugs recognized as controlled substances in Massachusetts, therefore no home license is needed.

Attached is an email from the MA Board of Pharmacy that confirms the facility located in Chelmsford, MA does not need a home state license.

Subject: IABP Pumps - license

Good morning,

I am responsible for maintaining state licenses for all the Teleflex facilities.

Our facility in Massachusetts manufactures Intra-Aortic Balloon (IAB) Pumps which are designed to assist patients who need mechanical circulatory support during cardiac events. The IAB Pump uses Helium to inflate and deflate the balloon. In connection with the distribution of the IAB Pumps, the facility will distribute Helium tanks, which are labeled as "Rx-Only".

Bases upon our reading of the Pharmacy law, the facility is not required to be licenses in MA. In connection with sales/shipments of the products into the other states, we need to obtain wholesaler/manufacturer licenses. Most applications require a copy of the home state license. Would it be possible to get a letter from the MA Board of Pharmacy to confirm that the facility does not need a home license?

Let me know if you need more information.

Kind regards

Bettina

Subject: Re: Nevada Out-of-State Wholesaler Application-B. Braun Medical Inc.

WARNING - This email originated from outside the State of Nevada. Exercise caution when opening attachments or clicking links, especially from unknown senders.

1. B. Braun Medical Inc. holds the labeler code for their products. To clarify, no manufacturing takes place at this facility.

2. I accidentally attached the DE Certificate to this application. This facility is located in TX which does not provide a Certificate of Good Standing. I have attached a form from Texas Comptroller which I hope will satisfy your request.

Looking for a Certificate of Good Standing?

Although the comptroller's office no longer uses the term, "certificate of good standing" is sometimes used to refer to a certificate issued by the Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts regarding an entity's franchise tax account status. The comptroller's office now refers to these certificates as "certificates of account status." Information about certificates of account status is available from the comptroller. You may contact the comptroller at (800) 252-1381 for assistance as well.

. I have attached the update COI.

Please let me know if you require anything additional.

Thank you,

RECITALS

1. Applicant has read and understands this Consent Agreement and has had the opportunity to discuss this Consent Agreement with an attorney, or has waived the opportunity to discuss this Consent Agreement with an attorney.

2. Applicant understands that it has a right to a public administrative hearing concerning this matter at which hearing it could present evidence and cross examine witnesses. By entering into this Consent Agreement, Applicant knowingly and voluntarily relinquishes all rights to such an administrative hearing, as well as rights of rehearing, review, reconsideration, appeal, judicial review or any other administrative and/or judicial action, concerning the matters set forth herein.

3. Applicant affirmatively agrees that this Consent Agreement shall be irrevocable. Applicant acknowledges and agrees that, upon signing this Consent Agreement and returning this document to the Board's Executive Director, it may not revoke acceptance of the Consent Agreement or make any modifications to the document regardless of whether the Consent Agreement has been signed by the Executive Director. Any modification to this original document is ineffective and void unless mutually agreed by the parties in writing.

4. Applicant understands that this Consent Agreement or any part of the agreement may be considered in any future disciplinary action by the Board against it.

5. Applicant understands this Consent Agreement deals with a Board Complaint involving allegations of unethical conduct against Applicant. The investigation into these allegations against Applicant shall be concluded upon the Board's execution of this Consent Agreement.

6. Applicant acknowledges and agrees that the acceptance of this Consent Agreement is solely to settle this Board matter and the granting of permit applications and the resolution of unpermitted activity referenced in this Consent Agreement and does not preclude the Board from instituting other proceedings as may be appropriate now or in the future.

ACCEPTED AND AGREED BY APPLICANT

Dated: 4/12/2024

On Behalf of Stryker Sustainability Solutions, Inc.
and Howmedica Osteonics Corp.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. The Board is the duly constituted authority for licensing and regulating the practice of pharmacy in the State of Arizona.

2. Stryker Sustainability Solutions, Inc. operated as a resident virtual manufacturer at two locations in the state of Arizona and Howmedica Osteonics Corp. operated as a wholesaler at one location in the state of Arizona. These three locations are not currently permitted in the state of Arizona.

3. During an inspection of a third Arizona-based Applicant location that held a permit but required a different type of permit, the Board identified potential unpermitted activity involving a different location and opened an investigation.

4. Applicant, through counsel, informed the Board that in fact, it was likely that several additional locations required permits. Applicant was already in the midst of a multi-year enterprise-wide project to rectify this oversight and voluntarily identified to the Board those locations within Arizona that Applicant believed required permitting.

5. In total, Applicant filed 28 permit applications with the Board and met with the Board on multiple occasions to discuss an efficient and orderly process to resolve all unpermitted activity at Applicant's locations that held or sought new permits.

6. Applicant acknowledges that it has manufactured and sold numerous devices from and into Arizona from unpermitted locations.

7. Applicant has 28 pending permit applications with the Board, which include administratively incomplete applications and applications that are substantively complete and ready for issuance. Three of these pending permit applications related to operations located within the State of Arizona.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Board asserts jurisdiction over the subject matter and over Applicant pursuant to A.R.S. § 32-1901 et seq.

2. The Board may deny a permit to an Applicant who has engaged in unethical conduct. A.R.S. § 32-1927.02(P).

3. The conduct and circumstances described above provide grounds for Board to impose discipline under A.R.S. §32-1927.03 which provides, that a person that resides in any other jurisdiction and that sells a prescription-only drug or device, within or into this state shall hold a valid board-issued permit and which allows the Board to impose a civil penalty for unpermitted activity.

ORDER

Based upon the above Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED THAT:

1. Stryker Sustainability Solutions, Inc. and Howmedica Osteonics Corp. shall jointly pay to the Board as a civil penalty the sum of Three Hundred Seventy-Five Thousand Dollars ($375,000/$125,000 per unpermitted location in this state). The civil penalty shall be paid in full to the Board within Ninety (90) days of the effective date of this Consent Agreement and Order. The effective date of this Consent Agreement is the date it is signed by the Board's Executive Director.

2. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Board, through its Executive Director shall immediately grant and issue permits for all substantively complete applications and shall without delay, grant and issue permits for all applications that Applicant shall cause to be substantively completed or resubmitted to the Board in compliance with this Consent Agreement, subject to the following:

   a. The Board shall not grant any applications until such time Applicant pays the civil penalty as set forth above and any applicable permit fees.

b. The Board shall not grant any application until it has determined through its Executive Director, that the application is substantively complete and that the Applicant has met the minimum requirements for the permit.

c. The Board shall not consider any unpermitted activity at any location in deciding whether an application is administratively or substantively complete and shall not deny any application or pursue any other available remedy on the basis of unpermitted activity at any location before the effective date of this Consent Agreement.

d. For each non-resident location, the Board shall issue a non-disciplinary advisory letter for unpermitted activity.

e. Upon Applicant's execution of and compliance with the terms in this consent agreement, including payment of the amount set forth in paragraph 1 above, all matters arising out of or made in connection with this consent agreement shall be fully resolved.

3. By entering into the Consent Agreement, Applicant waives its right to appeal. In addition, the Board may seek further remedies as permitted by statute.

4. With respect to the approximately twenty-five (25) various permit applications pending before the Board filed by or on behalf of Stryker Corporation or its subsidiaries, the parties acknowledge that the applications are in various stages of review by Board staff. Some applications are incomplete awaiting the receipt of additional information. Other applications were administratively closed because requested information was not timely received. Applicant has stated its intention to refile those applications and have all of its facilities come into compliance with Arizona law. The parties agree that all applications that are otherwise complete and have met the requirements for licensure, shall be approved and the permits granted with Advisory Letters issued accordingly with each approved application.

5. Applicant understands that this Consent Agreement is a public record that may be publicly disseminated as a formal action.
